NORWICH TOWN MAN ARRESTED ON HIGHWAY ROBBERY CHARGE

Charged with forcing Felix Pakowski of Norwich Town to give up $40 at the point of a gun, Newel P. Vergason, 24, living on Vergason avenue, Norwich Town, was arrested at his home early Friday evening by Constable Lucius Fenton and was brought to police headquarters where he was locked up for the night in default of bonds. Vergason admitted to Captain D. J. Twomey that he had a pistol but claimed he took only $5 from Pakowski and that this was some part of money that Pakowski owed him as the balance on a ring.

Both the men are employed in the Saxton woolen mill and it is charged that after they got out of work Friday night Vergason encountered the other man in a path that is a shortcut across the lots, pointed a gun at him, ordered him to put up his hands and threw his money on the ground.

Pakowski did as ordered, he told the police, and Vergason gathered up $40 and ran away. Pakowski claimed he had about $70 with him but Vergason didn't get all of it.

Pakowski later reported the robbery to Constable Fenton, who arrested Vergason at his home, where he found him in bed. Vergason claimed he had thrown the gun away behind the house of John Browning, but the constable was unable to find it.

Vergasgn's story is that he won a ring in a drawing some time ago, of the value of $150, and that he sold it to Pakowski for $25 on which the latter still owed him some money. He claimed the holdup was his way of collecting what was due him.

Pakowski denies that he owes any money on the ring, stating that he paid up the balance some time ago.

THINKS WORKING MINISTERS CAN'T MARRY PEOPLE

Legal interpretation of a phrase of the present marriage law of the state renders void every marriage by a minister not engaged in the work of the ministry at the time he performs a marriage ceremony, is the opinion of Judge Epaphroditus Peck of Bristol, one of the sponsors of a bill calling for radical changes in the marriage laws of the state.

"There is a dangerous defect in the present law, an ambiguous provision," he said, "which, interpreted legally, would make void marriages by any minister engaged in secular business.

"But it is illegal just the same and in some instances I do not see how the courts could stretch a point, when a minister is engaged in teaching and business, for the law explicitly says a marriage is void by a minister not engaged in work of the ministry."

Judge Peck attacked the present law in many details. One of the most pronounced existing evils, he said, was the lack of prevention of hasty marriages. "I believe that only 5 per cent. of the hasty, impulsive, sudden marriages in this state are lasting," he said. He strongly urged a five day period between application and issuance of marriage licenses, a provision which is incorporated in the new bill.

The lack of adequate redress against untrue statements as to age, past marriages, etc., was cited by the judge. He said there seemed no way around the difficulty, as under the present law one of the two parties can swear to the authenticity of the application even to facts concerning the other party. Yet perjury cannot be established except with great difficulty should the case come to court.

"The Register will be issued on or about the first of each month, from February to December, inclusive, in parts suitable for binding together in a pair of detachable stiff cloth covers, supplied to each subscriber with the first installment.

"The Register will contain no extraneous matter whatever, but will comprise lists of all vehicle registrations issued, including transfers, and will give the same detailed information regarding each vehicle as was given in the Register of 1924."

STATE HIGHWAY MONEY IS WELL PROTECTED

Following an investigation of the books and accounting methods of the state highway department, certified public accountants have submitted a report to the department commending safeguards being taken to protect the state's funds. The independent examination of accounts was undertaken several months ago on recommendation of the department and with the sanction of the board of control.

The object of the examination was to study methods used to protect the state's money passing through or under control of the department and to permit of recommendations for the improvement of the accounting system now in use.

In connection with bills rendered by the department to various parties, it is recommended that instructions be printed thereon to draw checks payable to the treasurer of the state, thus eliminating the necessity of endorsing checks payable to the highway commissioner. The procedure followed in checking invoices, the report points out, necessitates the handling of the invoices by several individuals in the department, thus assuring the propriety of invoices before requisitions are made on the comptroller for ment.

Discussing the manner of conducting the district offices in various parts of the state, the report says:

"The department payrolls are prepared by the clerks in the offices of the district supervisors from time books made up by gang foremen. At the present time, road employees are engaged by either gang foremen or supervisors of repairs and based on information received from either of them, the clerk in the office of the supervisor fills in a card which serves as an employment record. We recommend that the card be prepared by the individual who engages the employee, be signed by the foreman, signed for approval by the supervisor, and then turned over to the clerk in the supervisor's office.

"The distribution of payroll checks should be delegated to someone who has no connection with writing up the time book or preparation of the payroll, thus preventing, except for collusion, the payment of wages or salaries to "dummies".

The report also proposes several small changes in the handling of books ledgers and accounts, chiefly for the conservation of time.

"We understand that many of the safeguards now in force have been inaugurated quite recently and, in our opinion, when the foregoing recommendations, which are of a minor nature, are adopted, the state funds insofar as the highway commission, is concerned, will be well and properly safeguarded," the report advises.

MASTER PLUMBERS COMMITTEE ENJOYED NORWICH MEETING

The meeting of the executive board of the Connecticut State Association of Master Plumbers was held here on Thursday afternoon at the Buckingham Memorial. The meeting was appointed here for the first time purposely to give encouragement and stimulus to the local trade in Norwich and incidentally to receive and consider invitations for the annual convention and banquet which occurs in May.

The attendance of members from many cities in the state was large and interesting, including as it does all officers of the state organization. Several Norwich master plumbers were present and were granted the privilege of participating in the discussions.

A pleasant episode occurred during the meeting when John Troland, whose birthday had been discovered by some of the directors, was called to the front by the president, Howard Foster Bryant, of Bridgeport, who in behalf of the assemblage presented Mr. Troland a beautiful array of pinks, from the Hawkins Florists, which though wholly unexpected was gratefully and feelingly accepted.

Mr. Troland is a member of the association of many years standing and for eleven years treasurer and now an honorary member.

The meeting adjourned at 5 o'clock with many grateful remarks in favor of their first experience in Norwich and the satisfactory condition of the state organization in general.

DISCUSSED AUTO TRUCK FOR FARMERS' USE

With President Louis R. Peckham in the chair the Norwich Vegetable Growers' association held a well attended meeting at the rooms of the New London County Farm Bureau Wednesday evening. Prof. Wilkinson discussed the auto truck as a more efficient means of delivery for the vegetable growers over the old style horse drawn truck.

FARMERS HEAR TALK ON PURE BRED SIRES

The storm cut down the attendance considerably at the meeting of New London county farmers at the office of the New London County Farm Bureau in this city Friday afternoon. Prof. J. A. Sims of the dairy department of the Connecticut Agricultural College, Storrs, spoke to those present on pure bred sires.

HUMANE POSTER CONTEST IS AGAIN UNDER WAY

The third annual humane poster contest conducted under the auspices of the Connecticut Humane society, 300 Washington street, Hartford, is now under way in the schools of Connecticut. $800,000 will be distributed in prizes and posters will be on exhibition at the Old State House, Hartford, from April 6th to the 18th. The contest closes Monday, March 30th, 1925.

The contest is open to all pupils beginning with the third grade in the public and parochial elementary schools and the students in the junior high schools. The posters should illustrate the idea of kindness to animals, or human beings, or point out some way in which wrongs inflicted upon them may be remedied. Each poster should also bear an appropriate slogan which will count in the awarding of prizes. Posters may be worked in any material (pencil, crayon or water color) and from the lower grades those cut from colored paper will be accepted. Posters should not exceed twenty-four inches the large way. The name of the maker must be written clearly on the back of each poster, giving home address, also age, grade and name of school.

Teachers are requested to submit only the best work of each school, limiting the number to five from each room and certify on the reverse side of the posters whether the school has the benefit of a supervisor or teacher of drawing.

The society reserves the right to retain any prize-winning posters. All others will be returned to the schools at the convenience of the organization. If the children are acquainted with the fact that the posters retained have been displayed in many parts of the state they will not only be enthused to do even better work but will undoubtedly be glad to contribute their drawings for this purpose.

The eight hundred dollars ($800) will be distributed as follows: Twenty prizes of $5 each awarded to the junior high schools. Prizes ranging from $1 to $5, amounting to a total of $700, will be distributed in the public and parochial elementary schools according to merit.

In making the awards the age and grade will be considered, also whether the school has the benefit of a supervisor or special teacher in drawing. Every pupil should feel that his work is worth entering in this contest. It is the lesson of kindness as well as merit in drawing that the organization is endeavoring to encourage. (A section of prize-winning posters will be entered later in the National Humane Poster Contest.) No posters will be received later than Monday, March 30, 1925. All posters to be forwarded or delivered to the Connecticut Humane Society, 300

GERALD CHAPMAN, GUNMAN CAPTURED IN MUNCIE, IND

Notorious Mail Robber and Fugitive From Justice Was Taken After He Had Fired One Shot—As He Turned to Fire a Policeman Leaped on Chapman's Back—In Chapman's Room the Police Found Nitroglycerine, Ten Gold Watches, Jewelry and $3,000 in Liberty Bonds—On His Person and in His Suitcase the Bandit Had $4,563.92 in Cash.

New York, Jan. 18.—Gerald Chapman, mail robber and fugitive from justice, has been captured in Muncie, Indiana, according to a telegram received today at police headquarters here from the Muncie police.

The telegram states that the bandit was captured after a gun duel with Detective [illegible] the Muncie police [illegible] and that he had $5,000 in cash and bonds on his person when taken.

Chapman is wanted as an escaped prisoner from the Atlanta penitentiary where he was serving a sentence for participation in the holdup and robbery of a mail truck in this city in October 1921.

Chapman was also sought in connection with the killing of a policeman on Oct. 19, last, in New Britain, Conn., where he and another man were said to have been surprised in the act of blowing up a safe.

Chapman escaped from Atlanta penitentiary on March 3, 1923, but was recaptured. While in a hospital at Athens, Ga., recovering from the wounds suffered when recaptured after the first attempt, he again escaped on April 4, 1922.

He has been widely sought since then in many states.

Chapman has been suspected of many crimes since his escape. The police expressed the opinion that he was connected with a daring daylight holdup near Greenwich Village in which 10 armed bandits waylaid a customs truck and seized jewels and watches valued at $145,000.

A Mount Vernon, N. Y., policeman, who was shot and robbed of his revolver by a bandit on December 16, last, is said to have identified the robber from photographs at police headquarters as Chapman.

The last holdup with which Chapman was thought to have been connected was the robbery Jan. 13 of $40,000 from a railway mail clerk at Baltimore, L. I. James W. Cadoo, a former mail clerk, has since been arrested and is said to have confessed to the robbery.

CHAPMAN TURNED OVER TO FEDERAL AUTHORITIES

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 18.—Gerald Chapman, notorious bandit and prison breaker, for whom a nation-wide search has been made, was captured here this afternoon by Muncie police after a pistol battle.

Chapman, who escaped from the Atlanta penitentiary while serving a 25-year sentence for participation in a $2,000,000 mail robbery in New York, was seen walking near a traction station by four detectives who were passing in an automobile. Detective Fred Puckett accosted the fugitive, who immediately opened fire. The bullet went wild and the officers overpowered him before he could shoot again.

After a grilling at police headquarters, Chapman admitted his identity but otherwise would make no statement. When searched he was found to be in possession of two bottles of nitroglycerin, a pistol, and $4,949 in cash.

Chapman was taken to Indianapolis tonight under guard, where he was turned over to federal authorities.

About four months ago the police were tipped that Chapman was in this city, but he made his getaway when the officers got close on his trail. He has been in Muncie several times since, the police said, but has always until today, been successful in eluding the authorities. Several weeks ago his automobile broke down near this city and he had it repaired at a garage in an outlying district and made his escape.

Motor Policeman Colling and Detective Goodpaster saw Chapman at 11:30 o'clock this morning one square from the courthouse. Officer Collins trailed the fugitive while Detective Goodpaster went after Captain of Police Puckett and Detective Brown who were waiting for Chapman to appear at a place nearby. Collins trailed Chapman for five squares while the other officers got in a police car and prepared to make the capture.

Captain Puckett drove alongside Chapman and inquired "Does Mr. ——— live along here?" Chapman saw the other men coming near him, and he turned his back for a second, then whirled around with a pistol in his hand. He shot in the direction of Captain Puckett, but Officer Collins leaped on Chapman's back, causing the shot to go wild. The officers arrested the revolver from him, and handcuffed him.

While being taken to police headquarters Chapman told the officers he did not blame them for his arrest but turned "the man who turned me up for blood money."

Postoffice Inspector Kelley was called from Winchester, Ind., and arriving here remarked to Chapman: "You are a smart fellow, Chapman." The fugitive replied: "Yes, but look at me now." He admitted his identity to the authorities, but refused to make further comment.

One of the officers said to him: "I see where they connect you with a robbery at Fort Wayne."

"Yes, they claim they've seen me all over the country since I escaped."

In Chapman's room the police found a suit case in which were two half-pint bottles of nitroglycerin, ten gold watches and other jewelry valued at about $400, and $3,000 in Liberty bonds. Chapman had on his person and in his suitcase $4,563.92 in cash.

NEW BRITAIN POLICE TO BE SENT TO MUNCIE

Hartford, Jan. 18.—State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn will immediately set in action the machinery by which he hopes to secure the extradition of Gerald Chapman from Indiana to face a charge of murder in the first degree. He will at once call in the grand jury in order to obtain an indictment against Chapman for first degree murder. He said tonight he expected that the grand jury could be in session on Tuesday. In connection with the call will be a request for a special session of the superior court which Mr. Alcorn will ask of "the most available judge" tomorrow morning.

County Detective Edward J. Hickey and Chief Hart of the New Britain police will be dispatched at once to Muncie to keep in close touch with the situation under orders given tonight by Mr. Alcorn. "They will remain there to bring back Chapman," Mr. Alcorn said. "We will make every effort to secure his rapid extradition if I am successful in obtaining the indictment from the grand jury."

20 FIREMEN AND ONE POLICEMAN OVERCOME

New Haven, Jan. 18.—More than twenty firemen and one policeman were overcome in a fire which did but little damage but which filled the Shartenburg department store in Chapel street with dense clouds of smoke this morning. The fire, because of the smoke was one of the most stubborn that the New Haven firemen have had to fight in some time.

The fire started in the paper bin in the basement and was confined to that part of the store.

Captain James B. Webster, who was directing the firemen in their work, was the first to be overcome and he had been taken to the open air but a few minutes when Hoseman John East and Foseman Frederick P. Clark became unconscious and had to be carried out. Patrolman John Condon, who had done heroic work in carrying firemen from the smoke-filled store, was overcome himself when he re-entered the store to find his hat which he had lost. His absence was not noted until he had been absent several [illegible] He was minus his belt, gun, club when found. He had been knocked by one of the firemen or had staggered against a table or some other projection and was injured in the abdomen.

He was taken to the hospital.

Hoseman Fred Nott did not respond to first aid treatment and was taken to the hospital. Lieutenant Joseph Comiskey received a severe cut on his right hand and was taken to a hospital.

BELIEVE MAN BURIED WAS THEIR BROTHER

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 18.—Believing their long search was ended, Charles E. and George McMillan, of Bridgeville, a suburb, left tonight for Bay Shore, N. Y., with the expectation of finding that the body of a beach combe who died there Saturday in the potters' field under the name of Andrew McMillan, was that of their brother, Andrew S. McMillan, a plastering contractor, who disappeared from his home seven years ago.

The McMillan brothers planned on their arrival at Bay Shore to consult the coroner and check the description of the [illegible] somber with that of Andrew McMillan, preliminary to asking that the body be exhumed for identification.

Charles E. McMillan declared he would accept scars from three operations on the body as "positive proof" that his brother had been found. He said Andrew McMillan suffered constant and intense pain after he had undergone several operations, and that he believed his brother's physical condition had caused him to become mentally unbalanced, resulting in his disappearance.

DISCOVERY MAY DISPEL LIGHT WAVE THEORY

Chicago, Jan. 18.—Discoveries concerning the nature of light which may affect the wave theory of radiation were announced tonight by Professor Arthur Compton of the physics department of the University of Chicago, after a series of experiments which showed that light consists of "discrete bits," each proceeding in a definite direction.

The professor photographed the tracks of electrons ejected from air by X-ray. The angles and velocities were measured and found to agree with the quantum theory, a revival of Newton's old view that light consists of minute streams of particles. Professor Compton said his experiments were difficult to reconcile with the wave theory upon which rests the basic work involved in the X-ray and radio transmission.

"We found that the wave lengths of the scattered X-rays were what they should be if a quantum of radiation bounced from an electron," he said, "just as one billiard ball bounces from nother.

"He said that while the wave theory probably will stand until another is found capable of explaining the things it has so well interpreted, "it is unable in its present form to account for the results of our experiments."

Einstein's supposition that light par[illegible] or "quonta" had a momentum of energy universely proportional to what has been called the wave-length of the light, Professor Compton said, "predicted as accurately as we could measure, the change of wave-length observed when the X-rays were scattered by a piece of carbon or paraffin."

"The new ideas of the nature of light," he continued, "if they were right, would mean that whenever a light particle is reflected it would give a bump to every electron which changed its path For visible light a calculation showed that the impulse thus given to an electron would probably be too small to knock the electron out of the atom in which it happened to be But for X-rays the momentum of a quantum should be some ten thousand times as great and should be enough to knock an electron clear out of its atom and shoot it through the surrounding air"

CONFESSED HOLD-UP OF RUSSO BANK IN NEW HAVEN

Mount Vernon, Jan. 18.—Chief of Police George G. Atwell announced tonight that Philip Thomas or Tomiassi, who was arrested by state troopers in Richmond Hills, on Saturday night, had made a confession admitting a part in the hold-up of the Russo bank at New Haven, Conn., and involving several other men in robberies in Westchester county and Connecticut. The troopers made the arrest on information given them by Chief Atwell.

According to the police, Thomas admitted he was an accomplice of a bandit known as "Big Mike," who is wanted for twenty hold-ups in Westchester and Connecticut and the shooting of two policemen. Thomas, a former convict, was said to have admitted being one of the three men who on April 28 held up three men in the Russo bank and stole $600.

Chief Atwell said it was expected that Thomas' confession would lead to the arrest of several men who participated in other hold-ups at New Haven.

RIOT AT SOCIALIST PARTY MEETING IN NEW YORK

New York Jan. 18.—DiDsorder that bordered on rioting, menacing more than four thousand persons crowded into the Star Casino in upper Park avenue, was quelled today by police reserves.

The disorder broke out at a meeting of the Jewish section of the socialist party, known as the Jewish Socialist Alliance, during an address by Raphael Abramovitch, a socialist and anti-bolshevist.

Abramovitch was whisked out of a back door of the casino by friends, to evade a mob at the front entrance which refused to disperse.

ALLEGED NARCOTICS SEIZED IN STEAMER

New York, Jan. 18.—A canvas belt with watertight pockets containing 88 ounces of alleged narcotics, valued at about $1,100, was seized by treasury agents in the stewards' quarters aboard the Lloyd-Sabaudo liner Conte Verde on its arrival here today. No members of the crew were held.

All members of the crew denied knowledge of the narcotics. The ship's officers aided in the questioning of the crew, and asserted that they themselves had conducted four searches of the vessel before her arrival here.

LABOR BANK NOT TO INCREASE ITS CAPITAL

New York, Jan. 18.—The Federation bank of New York, the labor institution which grew in eighteen months from original resources of $500,000 to $8,500,000 on Dec. 31st last, is now considering increasing its capital another $500,000, or $1,000,000.

Peter J. Brady, president, in making this announcement tonight, said the matter would be decided at an early meeting of the stockholders, and that they would also be asked to consider changing from a state bank to a trust company.

The new board of directors of the Federation bank at the New Year meeting re-elected officers for 1925.

President Brady in his annual report announced the bank had yielded profits of $65,000 during 1924.

Grist of Legislation Confronts Congress

Doubtful of Action on Muscle Shoals and Postal Pay Increase Bill.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Congress, at the half way point of this session, finds itself engulfed in a mass of legislative business that must be disposed of before March 4.

Not one of the regular supply bills has been sent to the president. In fact no measure of outstanding importance has run the course of the legislative machine.

Leaders are satisfied, however, with the progress made, and are confident that the supply bills will reach the White House well in advance of adjournment. They still are dubious, however, as to the fate of Muscle Shoals, postal pay and rate increase, farm aid and other general legislation.

During this week the senate will divide its attention between the Isle of Pine treaty and the naval appropriation bill, with fair prospect that a vote will be had on each before Saturday.

The program in the house is for disposition of two additional appropriation measures, one for the independent offices and the other covering the departments of state, justice, commerce and labor.

Except for a possible second deficiency and the regular bills for the legislative establishment and the District of Columbia, this will clear the calendar of supply measures.

Three of the regular bills have reached the conference stage, but the senate still is to act on the budgets for the navy and the army in addition to the other five that are yet to be sent to it from the house. One appropriation measure, the first deficiency, has been sent to the White House.

The chief point of difference now between the house and senate, in Muscle Shoals. Leaders are trying to iron this out before sending the Underwood private leasing bill to conference. Even if they reach an agreement, the legislation still will have hard sledding, as senate opponents have indicated an intention of renewing their fight whe the conference report comes in with a view to preventing final action at this session.

The postal pay and rate raise bill will become the special order of the senate for next Thursday, with a general assault on the rate provision threatened. Many amendments will be proposed and a protracted fight appears to be in prospect before the bill can be advanced to a point of house consideration.

Aside from the Isle of Pines treaty other questions touching foreign relations will engage the attention of the senate. Senator Johnson, republican, California, will press for early action on his resolution calling for a copy of the agreement concerning payments of American claims out of German reparations allotments.

He and others of the irreconcilables are preparing to go very thoroughly into the question whether this agreement does in fact take the American government into the reparations settlement question.

American adherence to the world court also is to come to the front with consideration by the foreign relations committee at its meeting Wednesday. Senator Shipstead, of Minnesota, the one farmer-labor member of that body, has given notice that unless proponents take steps to obtain early senate action, he will offer a formal motion to that end although opposing the world court plan.

TWO RUM RUNNERS ESCAPED IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 18.—Two alleged rum runners, captured aboard a fast motor boat containing thirty cases of alleged liquor, escaped tonight after one of the men had been treated for serious bullet wounds in his right shoulder.

Their bullet riddled speed boat, captured after a two hour chase by the coast guard off Sandy Hook, was brought to the barge office tonight with the liquor. The boat was half-filled with water, leaking badly from holes torn through its hull by bullets.

The coast guard officers, pursing the rum runners' craft, opened fire with Lewis machine guns, and scored more than 25 direct hits before the boat surrendered, it was said at the barge office tonight. One man was found to be wounded.

The injured prisoner and his companion were hurried to the Sandy Hook hospital. After the injured man was treated, both men escaped. The coast guard officials did not make clear tonight how the men escaped.

Examination of the motor boat showed it to be capable of more than 27 knots, according to customs authorities, who unofficially estimated its value at about $6,000.

TWO MEN KILLED WHEN TRAIN WENT THROUGH TRESTLE

Selma, Ala., Jan. 18.—Engineer C. L. Dunham and T. B. Foster, a yardman, were killed and several persons injured when a Southern Railway passenger train plunged through a trestle near Burnsville about 6.30 this morning. Dunham was carried down into the creek with his engine.

The trestle over Mulberry creek, about 14 miles from this city, had been weakened from heavy rains and high water, and gave way when the train started across, precipitating the engine, baggage car and three empty coaches into the creek below.

INSISTS DEAD HUSBAND IS MERELY ASLEEP

New York, Jan. 18.—Insisting that her husband was not dead but merely asleep, Mrs. Mary Stone, 46, was taken today to Bellevue hospital, while the police removed the body of her husband, John Stone, 48, who, according to the neighbors, had been dead four days.

The police said they found Mrs. Stone acting strangely when they answered a call from neighbors and found the body of Mr. Stone, who had apparently died from the result of a hemorrhage.

On charges some of which date back to February, 1918, the board of engineers of Canton, Mass., removed Cornelius S. Healey, a member of the fire department.

Four Children Burned to Death

Were Sleeping in Their Beds —Parents Downstairs Were Unaware of the Blaze.

Waterbury, Jan. 18.—Sleeping in their beds where their mother had tucked them early tonight, four children of Harry Loomis, of Middlebury, near here, were burned to death about 6.30 o'clock tonight while their parents and grandparents were gathered in the downstairs part of the house unconscious of the blaze which was consuming the children.

One child, the oldest of the family, escaped.

The dead children are Ruhanna, aged 7; Thomas, aged 5; Juanita, aged 3, and Merrill, aged 2. Alvin, aged 9, was the only one of the five children to escape and he was downstairs with the rest of the family.

The four children had been put to bed in the upper part of the old colonial mansion owned by their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Loomis, and in which they lived with their parents and grandparents. The mother had seen the youngsters safely to bed at about six o'clock and returned to the living room on the first floor closing the door at the bottom of the long staircase after her.

A neighbor first noticed the fire in the house which lighted the upstairs windows like a furnace. He ran to the Loomis home and informed the adult members of the family who were gathered in the parlor, unconscious of the blaze which had already gutted the upstairs portion of their home and partly consumed the bodies of four of the little children sleeping there. It is believed the children were smothered to death by the smoke while asleep and that they were later burned.

They rushed to the door leading to the second floor. They attempted to get to the second floor but the terrific heat and volumes of smoke drove them back. The mother of the children tried frantically to beat her way to the second floor and had to be dragged back several times to prevent her from sacrificing herself. When all hope of saving her children had to be abandoned Mrs. Loomis had to be carried to the home of a neighbor in a hysterical condition.

The house was nearly burned to the ground before adequate fire apparatus could be brought to the scene.

The cause of the fire is unknown. Mrs. Loomis, mother of the children, says that there was no fire for heating purposes upstairs. There had been an oil heater there, but it was fairly warm and she did not light the heater.

Men who tried to get into the upper portion of the house say that they smelled gas of some kind. There were storage batteries used for a radio set upstairs and some believe that these may have become grounded or short circuited in such a way as to cause the fire. These opinions are only surmises, however, based on the statements that some gas was smelled by the neighbors who attempted to reach the upper portion of the house.

OPPOSITION TO APPOINTMENT OF MRS M. W. WILLEBRANDT

Washington, Jan. 8.—Development of strong opposition has made improbable the appointment of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney general, as the first woman to sit on a federal bench.

Decision almost had been reached by President Coolidge and Attorney General Stone a week ago, to nominate Mrs. Willebrandt to the vacant judgeship in the northern district of California, has brought a revision of plans. One of the arguments the Protestants have used is that Mrs. Willebrandt, as a resident of Los Angeles, should not be selected to preside over a judicial district embracing the northern section of the state.

Numerous women's organizations and individual women however, are supporting Mrs. Willebrandt, and officials emphasized today that the possibility of her appointment has not been entirely eliminated.

Senator Shortridge is urging the selection of A. F. St. Sure, of San Francisco, now a member of the circuit court of appeals of California, for a district judgeship.

EFFORTS TO AVERT STRIKE OF SOME 60,000 COAL MINERS

Scranton, Pa., Jan. 18.—Efforts to avert the threatened general strike of the 60,000 miners in District No. 1, United Mine Workers of America, were made today by the executive board of the district at a special session in district headquarters. A meeting of the general grievance committees, representing about 90 locals, was held in Wilkes-Barre Saturday night, when the district officials were given three days to settle the Pennsylvania miners walkout and to call a special convention of the miners. The general grievance committee will meet again Wednesday afternoon in Wilkes-Barre, when, it is reported, a general strike order will be issued if the trouble is not settled.

At the meeting of the general grievance committees all that prevented a strike being called for Monday, it was said, was the desire to allow the local unions to safeguard their funds from seizure by district or international officials, and to give the locals an opportunity to authorize their delegates to vote for a walkout.

Businessmen and labor leaders are making every effort to avert a tie-up, among the steps taken being an appeal to Governor Pinchot to intervene.

BOY IN MIDDLETOWN KILLED WHILE SLIDING

Middletown, Jan. 18.—John Sapata, 14 years old, of 14 Butternut street, was almost instantly killed on Standish Hill this afternoon when he was thrown from his sled and hit a telegraph pole. The boy in coasting down the hill swerved to one side to avoid hitting two other boys on their way up the hill. The sled overturned and he was thrown against the pole. He died fifteen minutes after the accident before medical aid reached him. Medical Examiner J. Francis Cuier said that death was due to a fractured skull. Coroner L. A. Smith is investigating. It was the first coasting accident of the winter here.

ITALIAN PARLIAMENT HAS BEEN ADJOURNED

Rome, Jan. 18 (By the A. P.)—Although the chamber of deputies adjourned last night after having passed a new electoral bill, everyone is asking when it will reopen its sessions. Some persons believe that Premier Mussolini, having obtained what he wanted, will keep parliament closed for quite a while.

There are those who hold the opinion that the chamber will be reconvoked in about a week for discussion of the budgets. It is said that in addition to the budget the premier will ask the chamber also to discuss the bill dealing with the press, which is ready.

Meanwhile, the opposition is centering its efforts upon the senate, where it is hoped, during discussions of the electoral bill, the senators against the government, led by Signor Albertini and Signor Conti, who now have been strengthened by the adhesion of senators who are followers of former Premiers Giolitti, Orlando and Salandra, may achieve, if not the defeat of the government, then at least a reverse in its representation by greatly reducing its former majority.

A decision by the senate, however, is of less importance than one by the chamber of deputies, since if the cabinet has a setback in the senate it does not resign, unless the senate vote is ratified by the chamber.

THREE PERSONS KILLED IN A SHOOTING AFFRAY

Everett, Mass., Jan. 18.—Two notes scrawled in Sicilian dialect, held by the police today, formed the apparent explanation of a shooting tragedy here late yesterday which wiped out three lives. According to the incoherently told story in the letters, the shooting was the climax of a domestic triangle in which Mrs. Francesco Ferranti and Paul Lombardi, boarder in the Ferranti home, were murdered and Frank Ferranti, husband of the dead woman, committed suicide.

According to the story of the tragedy as revealed by the police investigation, Ferranti, known also as Vito Adorno, strode into the kitchen of his home unexpectedly yesterday afternoon and dealt out swift death with a revolver to his wife and Lombardi. Apparently he intended to escape, but the taxicab which carried him to his home had disappeared and when a police patrol, summoned by a neighbor, entered the street, Ferranti turned the weapon on himself.

The police, forced to break a window to enter the room, found Mrs. Ferranti and Lombardi dead. Ferranti, found with a revolver still grasped in his hand, died without regaining consciousness.

TROTZKY EXPELLED FROM THE SOVIET WAR COUNCIL

Moscow, Jan. 18 (By the A. P.)—Leon Trotzky will not be permitted to remain on the soviet war council, and he is warned that a continuance of disobedience will culminate in his being expelled from the political bureau and the soviet executive committee, it became known today in a semi-official communication issued here.

The communication says that at a plenary meeting of the executive committee and control commission of the communist party, held on Friday, it was decided, almost unanimously, first to invite Trotzky effectively to submit to party discipline; second, that his retention on the war council must be regarded as impossible, and third, that the question of the further employment of Trotzky on the executive committee be postponed until the next party congress, with a warning that his continued disobedience would entail his removal from the political bureau and the executive committee.

WOMEN CAUSE GROWTH IN CONSUMPTION OF CIGARETTES

Washington, Jan. 18.—The increase in the number of women smokers is listed by T. L. Hughes, chief of the tobacco section of the commerce department, as one of the likely explanations of the tremendous rise in recent years in cigarette consumption in the United States.

Mr. Hughes has found that the use of cigarettes in the United States, which was 15,000,000,000 in 1913, has gained fourfold in ten years, amounting to 63,000,000,000 in 1923.

EMPLOYMENT INCREASED IN THE TEXTILE INDUSTRY

Boston, Jan. 18.—An improvement in industrial employment conditions in December, especially in textile mills, was noted in the monthly report of the United States employment service for the New England district, made public today. In Rhode Island and Connecticut the improvement was especially marked, according to the report.

In Rhode Island industrial employment conditions have shown a decided improvement during December. Several large plants have resumed full time, operations and the textile and machine tool industries in particular have increased their working forces. Jewelry factories are on part time bais due to seasonal slackening. Worsted mills in certain sections of the state are working overtime and the rubber industry is on a fairly satisfactory basis. Building program active, providing work for a large number of craftsmen. No farm labor problem at the present time.

In Connecticut industrial employment conditions showed an upward trend during December, in practically all sections of the state. All industries are operating with most of them on full time schedules and there is very little unemployment apparent. Overtime obtains in the woolen mills and brass factories in some parts of the state. Extensive building operations keep craftsmen well employed. Farm labor situation reported satisfactory.

Boston industrial district: Industrial employment conditions showed an upward trend during the past 20 days. While part time obtains in some plants, a number have resumed full time schedules and working forces.

RUSSIAN SOVIET GOVT IS CENSORING OPERAS

Berlin, Jan. 18.—Glink's famous opera, "A Life From the Czar," which has held a prominent place in the world of opera for a century, has been rewritten under orders from the Russian soviet government so as to eradicate all monarchial sugestions from the text, according to Moscow advices. The title of the opera has been changed to "Scythe and Hammer," which are the symbols of the soviet regime, and while the music has not been changed, another text has been written by a local poet which avoids all clashes with communistic teachings and eliminates the czar completely.

Verdi, Rossini and Donizetti are also being rewritten. Even Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana," has been slashed by the censor.

Arthur Trudeau of this city, who was charged with breaking and entering the Michael Longo fruit store on Railroad street some time between New Year's Eve and New Year's morning, was adjudged not guilty of the charge in the police court here Saturday morning and the case was nolled. Trudeau successfully established the alibi that he had spent practically all of that night at the Windham Social club, an organization holding headquarters in the city. He had gone to the club about 8 o'clock in the evening. About 4 o'clock in the morning he went home to look after the furnace and upon returning had occasion to talk to Officer Fred Cornaty who was stationed on Railroad street. He then went to a nearby restaurant, purchased cigarettes and returned to the club house. One witness for the state, Arthur Martin, who, it was alleged, had told an officer that he had seen Trudeau on the street New Year's morning made a denial of this when called to the stand. Michael Longo, the victimized proprietor, said that $84 in currency, mostly $5 bills, which he had on display in connection with a punch board, had been taken from the show case. The break was made through a window in a door next to the railroad property. Trudeau was apprehended on January 6 by Lieutenant McLean who found about $54 on the defendant's person. Trudeau accounted for most of it, stating that it was some money collected for his mother. The remainder, he said, was money won in a pinochle game at the club. Lieutenant McLean pointed out the similarity of serial and running numbers of the money found on Trudeau and some of the bills, remaining from the partly stolen lot, brought out by Longo. Officer Arthur Hurley upheld him in this testimony. Prosecuting Attorney Samuel B. Harvey recommended that the case be nolled for lack of evidence, the state having failed to prove Trudeau was on the streets during the hours when the robbery was committed.

Andrews of the Mansfield town court Saturday forenoon and charged with operating a still and keeping in her possession liquor with the intent to sell. Mrs. Jasiusky pleaded guilty but as this was her first offense against the Volstead decree some leniency was shown. She paid a fine of $50 and costs, amounting to $87.95. Grand Juror George W. Millard prosecuted. The Jasiusky home is near the Willimantic municipal ice plant on the Mansfield highway.

In about ten days and at the comparatively low cost of $1,400, those in charge of the municipal ice plant in Mansfield boast that 5,000 tons of fine, clear ice, ranging from nine to 12 inches in thickness, have been harvested. The plant workers can now take things easy until the advent of the summer months. Last year, about this time, talk about town was causing many to get the impression that possibly Willimantic would face an ice shortage.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you'll find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take them every night just to keep right. Try them. 15c and 30c.

The Westerly police department has adopted a belt similar to the white cross strap and belt arrangement worn by Providence traffic officers when on duty at street intersections. The belts are of a substantial and heavy white rubber which is easily cleaned. Traffic Officer Robert M. Kessell wore the "harness" for the first time on Saturday evening, when on duty on Broad street.

Another automobile collision occurred on Saturday morning at "Deadman's Curve," so called, the intersection of Elm and School streets about 1.30 o'clock. The platform body truck X653 R. I., of the Walter C. Hiscox company was being operated down School street by Lewis Wilcox when the Chevrolet panel truck X 10-654 R. I. of Walter Dower of 34 Moss street, Pawcatuck, was being driven up Elm street, the two autos coming together with such force the Chevrolet truck was driven onto the sidewalk at the house of Catherine McWeeney. The Chevrolet truck colliding with a telephone pole at the corner was prevented from going through the fence at that point and sustained a smashed fender and pushed in radiator. The smooth surface of School street makes that thoroughfare one that carries a heavy traffic up and down the hill and residents at the intersections of cross street report that daily collisions are narrowed averred. Westerly Patrolman Robert M. Kessell investigated the collision.

Inviting Manufacturers to Buy Bonds

The purchase by manufacturers of the new six per cent. re-financing bonds of the New Haven railroad is a form of transportation insurance to industry, according to a communication from the Manufacturers' association of Connecticut received by its members today. The association's suggestion to manufacturers that they invest in the bonds follows the recent vote of the board of directors that the organization support the New Haven loan. Similar support is being given by the industries of Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

The proposal that Connecticut manufacturers invest individual and corporate funds in the new bonds of the New Haven is based, according to officers of the Manufacturers' association on the proposition that "a financially weak New Haven railroad is a menace to Connecticut industry" and thereby a menace to the employment and the general business prosperity of a large proportion of the people of this state.

"Success of the new bond issue, under the terms of the re-financing plan," the association declares, "is a form of insurance to Connecticut industry that the New Haven railroad will have the cash with which to make improvements in its facilities and service. Even should there be at any time a temporary depreciation in the market value of the bonds subscribed for, such a depreciation will be but a small premium to pay for such transportation insurance."

It is anticipated by both the railroad company and the officers of the Manufacturers' Association that the great majority of the manufacturers subscribing will not place their bonds on the market at an early date but will hold them until they are retired. The terms of the bond issue provide for an annual sinking fund of two per cent. under which it is expected that more than half of the bonds will be retired before their maturity in 1940.

"As an investment," the Manufacturer's association declares, "the bonds have the approval of the banks of New York, Boston and intervening territory. The bonds have not only refrained from making the underwriting charges usual in floating railroad and other corporate bond issues, but have also themselves subscribed in large amounts. The subscriptions received to date from Connecticut banks, insurance companies, industries and other saurces in thi state amount to more than three million dollars with many additional pledges in sight.

"The representatives of the industrial groups in Connecticut, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island have ... large representation of industry among New Haven bondholders ... strengthen and stabilize conditions throughout southern New England. ... his view has been unreservedly accepted since the co-operative plan of refinancing the New Haven was announced, and it is generally regarded as having something to do with the considerable appreciation in the market values of New Haven securities during the last few weeks. It is therefore more important that a large proportion of members of the Manufacturers' association should subscribe some amount for the bonds than that a smaller number of members should take bonds to an equal value in the aggregate."

Connecticut College Concert

That Rosa Ponselle who sings at the New London State Armory next Thursday evening is a great favorite in the concert field as well as at the Metropolitan Opera House is amply attested by the fact that the office of the Connecticut College Concert committee has clippings from 35 newspapers published in as many cities and coming from 16 states. Obviously these cannot be reproduced here, but every one of them shower upon the singer upstinted praise, and almost every one speaks of her wonderfully glorious voice.

This evidence of the singers greatness is supplemented by several telegrams, all in the same vein, from local managers in cities where she has appeared.

That this public is at least partially aware of the treat in store for it is evidenced by one of the best first days sales since the inception of these concerts.

Miss Ponselle asks that her name be pronounced with two syllables, the accent being in the last one.

Strand Theatre.

Judging from the favorable comment heard from the capacity audiences leaving the Strand last night this theatre will soon become the most popular photoplay theatre in Norwich. During the past week several changes have been put in effect and the lighting system in the lobby has undergone a wonderful improvement. The new management evidently believes in plenty of light as Water street was ablaze and this will certainly attract many from Market street. Upon entering the theatre one could easy see that the theatre had been thoroughly cleaned and the whole atmosphere was one of comfort. The picture programme was so arranged to please every one. The popular screen star, Fred Thompson, and his wonder horse, Silver King, in "Thundering Hoofs," was the main feature. First you see Thompson save his horse from a brute of a man, and last he saves his horse from a two ton savage bull—and in both cases he does it with his bare hands. In between these two events there is action and more action and still more action. You just about have time to catch your breath after one thrilling situation when you are plunged into another that is even more nerve-devastating than the last. You may think you have seen the last word in thrills but you haven't and not until you see this dare devil in "Thundering Hoofs". The companion feature, "Girls Men Forget" featuring Patsy Ruth Miller and Johnny Walker is one of the very best ... Because a girl is known as a Jazz Baby does she necessarily forfeit the respect of men? That is the theme of "Girls Men Forget" and is very well done Miss Miller has never had a role more fitting and portrays the character of Kitty Shayne in a manner acceptable to all. Johnny Walker was an equally happy choice for the role of the young hero. The picture has been tastefully staged. The action moves at a good pace and the theme is relieved now and then by moments of comedy, which however, are appropriate to the ... in lines of ... every other ... in the ... Rock ... burg ... and Wilbur Day end in the thrill serial, "The Riddle Rider" is known to Strand patrons and will be continued every Sunday night. In place of the Riddle Rider today and Tuesday "Rudolph Valentino" and his sighty-eight beauties in "Beauty Conquers Everything" will be shown as an added attraction. In this picture Valentino has gathered the prize winners of the Yamous "America" beauty contest held recently at Atlantic City and is a very interesting picture. The policy of the Strand is to be a complete change of programme every Sunday, Wednesday and Friday offering at all times a double feature programme and the popular prices of ten and twenty cents for the week days and twenty and twenty-five cents Sunday night should as stated above make the Strand a very popular photoplay playhouse.

Breed Theater

Mary Pickford in Dorothy Vernor of Hadden Hall is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today and tomorrow.

Picturization of Dorothy Vernon of Hadden Hall, one of the most famous of the Charles Major novels, stands out as one of the cinema events of the year, presenting Mary Pickford in her greatest role. Her thoughts having dwelt so much upon the filming of this story Mary has given her whole heart and soul to the creation of her newest screen personality.

Among the other players of note are: Lottie Pickford Forrest, Malcolm Waite, Courtenay Foote, Howard Gaye Estelle Taylor, Mme. Carrie Daumery, Eric Mayne, Colin Kenny and Lewis Sargent.

The production is lavish, no expense having been spared in erecting stately mansions and mediaeval castles. Scenes of pageantry and revelry are presented with picturesque magnificence.

Under the capable direction of Marshall Neilan, Dorothy Vernon of Hadden Hall has renewed interest in the ... costume drama of the screen ... photography by Charles Rosher ... the most beautiful ever ... well-known cameraman ... news, a Hodge Podge and ... ke up the re- ... all ... shows daily at 2:15 ... 30. Feature shown at 2:45 and 8.

Broadway Theatre.

Something unusual will be seen as the feature attraction at the Broadway theatre starting today. The five Spinettas come here direct from B. F. Keith's Palace theatre, New York city, where they made a decided hit last week.

No better or more unusual dancing act has ever been seen than that presented by the Five Spinettas. Claims of superiority are frequently nothing more than claims but this quintette of steppers from the other side of the pond ... up to any claim, even the most imaginative press agent could make for them. They are called Upside Down Dancers. This dancing in reverse position is only one of the features of their decidedly unusual routine. A series of tall metal tables are placed upon the stage. The Five Spinettas stand on their hands and dance on the bottom of these tables. That is their feet execute a variety of steps.

Other big acts on the programme include the following:

Clem Bevins & Co., in "Just Like Futher, a comedy by Ray Hodgden.

Art Hall and Abe Shapiro will keep you in laughter with "How Does He Stand It."

The Moores present Bits and Hits of Broadway.

Mons. Herbert offers a musical novelty.

Betty Compson is the star in the photoplay feature.

Sam Woods has made a colorful popular magazine story, "Dalia," the production from Cynthia Stockley's Lion Club" which opened last night at the Broadway theatre as "The Female." The picture, based upon an adaptation by Agnes Christine Johnson, is crowded with thrills, chock-full of exciting action in which is interwoven a heart-throbbing love story.

"The Stork" at Lyceum Theatre.

The eclipse of the sun will not be the only interesting event for New Londoners next week, for on Thursday and Friday nights, January 22 and 23, the Lyceum theatre has booked "The Stork" a new and audacious comedy by Laszlo Fodor and Ben Hecht, which will stop over here for two nights on its way to Broadway. "The Stork" is scheduled to open at the Cort theatre in New York on the Monday following its New London engagement, so this gives local playgoers a chance to get in on a sure Broadway hit even before Manhattan gets a glimpse of it.

Although New London is to see "The Stork" before New York, the local performances will not be the first of this comedy. It opened in Albany last Monday for its "try-out" and the New York managers and producers who were present to witness the premier pronounced it one of the cleverest of emotional comedies in several seasons. The Albany newspapers were unanimous in praising the play, the cast, the stage direction and the production.

In the stellar company which will be seen here in "The Stork" will be Katherine Alexander, Trey Kerr, Ferdinand Gottschalk, ... Marbe, Morgan Wallace, Barbara Bennett, Thomas McLarnie, Ralph Shirley, Carlotte Irwin, Conrad Cantzen, Mildred Brown, Monroe Childs and many others.

The story of "The Sork" tells the story of a young Frenchman who is called to become premier of the republic on his wedding night. His bride suggests "the home, the fireside and the cradle" as the slogan of the government. This policy becomes very popular all over the land, but the young husband is so busy spreading the gospel that he finds no time to practice his own preaching. One can imagine what hilarious situations might result from such a plot.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Fire destroyed the one-story frame Nuiman block in Moosup Sunday morning, causing damage variously estimated, as to building and contents, at from $10,000 to $15,000. The fire was discovered shortly after 3 a. m., when persons passing in the street saw smoke rolling through the structure, in which there were five stores, one of them vacant at the present time.

An alarm brought out the fire department, but the blaze, working its way around through the partitions, was a difficult one to combat and never was controlled until the structure was almost completely destroyed.

Occupants of the building were Ritterman, a butcher; Nathan Nuiman, the owner, operator of a second hand furniture store, the Simmons Automobile Supply company and a cobbler's shop.

Hundreds gathered to watch the progress of the fire, the fighting of which was prolonged through the morning.

The Bellavance block, a sidewall of which is within a few inches of the destroyed structure, was not damaged.

There is interest here in the plan that will be presented to the legislature for a statute that will prohibit the further pollution of the rivers of the state through sewerage and other varieties of waste that pollutes the streams. If the plan is adopted it will be possible to carry out the plans of fishermen hereabouts to stock the Assawaga and Quinebaug rivers with several varieties of gamley fish that will furnish good sport for anglers in years to come. In years past the rivers through Danielson furnished good fishing, but for the past two decades sewage and dyestuffs from mills has ruined the fishing.

James McGoty, 58, born in this town and all his life a resident here, died Saturday morning at St. Vincent's hospital in Worcester, where he had been a patient in the surgical division for the past two weeks. Mr. McGorty had been in poor health for a long time, his condition becoming really critical within the past few weeks.

He was the son of John and Bridget (Keenan) McGorty, long since residents here. Mr. McGorty was engaged during his life time at various occupations, including painting and as a woolen mill operative.

Mr. McGorty leaves his wife, who was before their marriage Miss Mary McCormack, and two daughters, all residents at Elmville.

There will be something special to entice the members of the Service Battery to the State Armory Tuesday evening. They are going to be paid off. The pay checks that are coming through will be for the period from October 1 to January 1. Of course the boys know about this. It will be no news to them. But they are feeling rather good about it.

Connecticut did materially better by the automobilists Saturday morning, when the highways were a glare of ice, than did the neighboring state of Rhode Island. Out on the always busy route between Danielson and Providence there was sand on the hills and steep grades on the Connecticut side, but over in Rhode Island border nature was being allowed to take its course, and it did not appear to be in any hurry about it. Meanwhile cars were sliding off the state highway over by Dolly Cole hill and at its crest a line of cars were stopped while their drivers contemplated the risks of going down. Numbers of them decided adversely and went around through Chepachet and to Putnam, a long detour to avoid the big hills. By noon the ice had made the ice coating soft and traffic was moving along without much difficulty. During Saturday night, when the mercury dropped, the ice on the roads hardened up again and there were slippery conditions for the drivers to fave again on Sunday morning. There were no serious accidents notwithstanding the bad traveling conditions. Here in Danielson numbers of people were tossed and thrown after losing their footing on the slippery going.

Unusual things such as people are apt to say are not true happen from day to day—some of them in territory hereabouts. Hiram Bentley, who lives just over the Rhode Island line from East Killingly on the old Hartford pike, tells of queer friends he made out in the lonely section where his home is located. Mr. Bentley has a cat that is a great pet. This winter the cat has had two strange companions to share its food. Out of the woods on the more than 1,000 acres that Mr. Bentley owns over in that territory a pair of raccoons came to the Bentley home to be fed. They were shy at first, but came every day to the house and entered the kitchen. Being well cared for and liberally fed, the coons learned to like their new place of visiting and became fairly tame. Of late the coons have not made their appearance and the assumption is they have gone into their den to remain for the winter. Mr. Bentley is awaiting their reappearance in the spring.

At the Hygula reservoir near East Killingly a large crew of men was engaged at the week end in harvesting the ice crop that is housed there each season. The ice is of splendid quality. When the men resumed work this morning the houses will be somewhat over half filled. The work will continue until the full supply for the season is accumulated.

A monster six-wheel bus was an attraction here Saturday morning. The mammoth vehicle was being run over the roads from Philadelphia to Providence. It provides seating accommodations for 26 passengers. Friday night while trying to negotiate the icy roads into Danielson, and being without chains, the bus had a bit of a scraping match with a state highway plow and showed the marks of the encounter while it was being inspected here. The bus slid off into the gutter over on the Brooklyn road and remained there for the night, but it hauled out and was off for the finish of its run Saturday morning.

Icy roads did not prevent hundreds of out of town shoppers getting into Danielson Saturday morning to participate in the great bargain carnival widely advertised as Appreciation Day. From early morning until the stores closed at night there was as liberal an indulgence in buying as has been noted here at any general bargain day event in a long time. The business men had the satisfaction of experiencing a splendid response to the special shopping opportunities they presented. The event was a mutual satisfaction for those who came to buy and those who had something to sell.

The Providence Collegians won from the Service Battery at basketball in the state armory Saturday evening 49 to 37. There's more in that than appears in the score, for defeating the Service Battery team is a real job for any team. The Collegians, playing a fast and powerful organization were able to turn the trick, giving the army men one of their few defeats of the season. The second team of the battery also had a bad night, losing out to the Jolly Five team, made up of local players. In the big game Myers of the Collegians was the star, getting nine baskets. Gale, Keech and Poirier played a strong game for the batteryp.

There was a delay of about an hour in getting the big game started, this due to the fact that the Collegians experienced difficulties with their motor car while en route to Danielson.

Some relief from the serious drought came from the heavy rain of Friday night. Streams hereabouts showed the benefit of it on Saturday and Sunday. The water had reached such a low level last Friday that some mills along the Quinebaug were obliged to curtail operations.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard P. Morrison, who have been in the south for several weeks, have returned to their home in Danielson.

Miss Caroline Buteau has returned to Baltic after visiting here with Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Bessette.

John G. Benson of Fall River spent the week end with friends in Danielson.

EMILIEN DURAND KILLED WHILE CROSSING R. R. TRACK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 18.—Emilien Durand, 43, who conducted a grocery store on Battey street in this city, was struck by a New Haven train while crossing the track in a Ford truck Saturday morning and died from his injuries about thirty minutes later. His skull was fractured but he was still living when the Day Kimball hospital ambulance reached the site of the accident, but death resulted before the ambulance got back to the hospital.

He left his store at 9 o'clock to make deliveries in Thompson. About 10.30 he drove down the steep hill on the road from North Grosvenordale. From this hill an unobstructed view of the track is not possible until one is almost on it. The road was coated with ice and very slippery. Mr. Durand saw the train approaching and applied the brakes but the car skidded onto the track just as the locomotive passed. It was pulling train No. 710, northbound passenger from Putnam to Worcester. No stop is made at West Thompson but the train passes that station about 10.30. It was in charge of Conductor J. H. Breen, formerly of Putnam, but who now lives in Southbridge, and Engineer C. S. Wheeler of Webster.

Durand's light machine was almost demolished. Aside from a deep cut in the head, he was hardly injured otherwise. His knee was bruised and there were two or three abrasions on the arm and body. He was breathing when lifted into the ambulance but when taken into the emergeency room of the hospital life was extinct. Shortly after the body was removed to local undertaking rooms, where it was viewed by Coroner Arthur G Bill, of Danielson, and Dr. F. A. Morrell, medical examiner. Mr. Bill was in Putnam at the time conducting an inquiry into the cause of the death of Miss Anna McCauley, of Providence, killed in an automobile accident on School street Dec. 7. Dr. Morrell pronounced death due to a fractured skull. An inquest to obtain all the facts connected with the accident will be held by the coroner at a later date.

Mr. Durand was in his 44th year, strong, rugged, and in the best of health. He was noted as a very careful driver, and it is stated that this was the first accident in which he ever figured. His wife and four children, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Durand, survive him. The children are Lena, Sylvia, Edgar and Mrs. Fred Lapointe. The last named is the oldest and was married on Thanksgiving Day, 1924.

For a quarter of a century Mr. Durand had been engaged in the grocery business in Putnam, for 17 years of that time with his father, and for the past eight years on his own account. By his wide circle of acquaintances and friends here he was highly esteemed.

FIRST DIVIDEND CHECK PAID 1ST NAT'L DEPOSITORS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 18.—Beginning at 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon and continuing until 9 in the evening, 500 of the depositors of the First National bank were paid a first dividend check, representing 40 per cent. of their claims. There was not the rush that had been expected, only about 150 being in line when the bank doors were opened. They were taken care of much more rapidly than was first estimated, which was about 300 a day. Saturday's crowd was paid at the rate of nearly one a minute. All possible measures were taken to facilitate the work. The corridor of the bank was roped off so as to keep everyone in columnar formation. A printed sheet with concise directions was given each person at the door, and a detail of clerks made the necessary verification and obtained vouchers and receipts before the checks were given out.

There has certainly been a vast amount of preliminary work—obtaining proof of claim, figuring the amount due on each approved claim, making out 3,500 checks, forwarding them to the department at Washington for verification of the amount and for counter-signature, and then the personal payment to each creditor.

JEWETT CITY

Saturday the bargain was closed for the sale of the valuable and historic William McNicol property to Frank Goncharow of Brown avenue. The price to be paid is $35,000. Within the memory of the oldest resident of Griswold, no single sale of farm and residential real estate, has equalled the present transaction. In addition to the deeds to Mr. Goncharow, whose boundaries survey to about 12 acres, another sale was closed to Walter Monseau, which includes 23 building lots also laid out from the original farm. Incident to the rendering of values in the sale Mr. McNicol comes into possession of the large store and residence in the Belvidere section of Brown avenue. Originally the Douglas Tracy farm, later purchased by Archie McNicol contained about 165 acres, all land of exceptional value, except some cedar swamp on the northern boundary. William M. McNicol, who came into possession of the property at his father's death, is still holding in several separated parcels, nearly 100 acres of the original estate. The large brick house included in the sale, is of rare architectural beauty. It was built close to 100 years ago by Esquire Elisha Partridge, and is one of the three houses within the town of Griswold, constructed of brick that were made on the "place."

Over 50 years ago Douglas Tracy bought the property, his son the late Dwight Tracy, passing it to the late Archie McNicol. After it came into his possession, considerable money and time was expended to beautify and improve the residence. All the many evidences of the skill of the builders was kept intact, the soft shade of pink with which the brick were tinted, has been preserved. The added broad piazza goes to make a model rural home with many suggestions of comfort.

Mr. McNicol leaves Wednesday for a trip to California. His itinerary includes the trip through the Panama canal with stops at many points of interest along the route.

The sale of this fine piece of property, calls to the mind of one of the older residents of Griswold, that Squire Partridge was probably the only local man who came again to look things over, after he had passed to the great beyond. A somewhat erratic man, yet it is told that the colored men whom he hired to do various jobs about the farm and brick yard, thought well of the Squire and in a sort of crude way were devoted to him. At the foot of the then called "Crooked Hill," now known as "Hawkins' Hill," a pair of bars served to close the entrance to a large northern lot. To this gate, for the long western view it afforded, the Squire often came to gaze with evident satisfaction over the fertile acres of his estate. It is declared that the next night after his funeral, four darky friends returning from an evening trip to Honeville on coming down the long bends of "Crooked Hill," were astonished and not a little disturbed, to behold what appeared to be a man clad in the Squire's long coat and rough slouched hat, leaning over the bars, and moreover, there was his long cane resting against the lower rail. The hour was late, and a heavy fog moving up from the cedar swamp below the hill, seemed to lift the shadowy form of the old Squire and bear it away.

Local tradition tells that all the following season, on warm summer evenings, the well known form of Squire Partridge would come and lean for a moment over the "Crooked Hill" bars, where his once valuable possessions lay broad and silent before his view.

Superintendent A. A. Young of the Jewett City Water works has an engineer on the job making nightly tests throughout the several mains and street pipes of the system. The work is being done during the late hours of the night, as at that time, the delicate nitometer which is being used readily detects any waste or leakage which would be impossible during the normal drafts of the daytime.

Worthy Master Byron P. Kinnie of Pachaug grange, P. of H., No. 96, attended the state grange meetings in Hartford last week.

Members take notice! Interesting K. of C. meeting tonight.—adv.

Pachaug Grange, P. of H., No. 96, held its meeting in Grange hall on Thursday evening, Worthy Master Byron P. Kinnie presiding. During the business meeting, Harold Geer, one of the trustees of the grange, gave an interesting report of the financial condition at that date, showing the total amount expended in acquiring the property and erecting and equipping the new grange hall, also the present indebtedness. Worthy Lecturer Mabel Kinnie presented the following program: Reading, Harold Mell; song by the grange, addresses by five members, What Can We Do to Improve Our Grange, Mrs. Marion Briggs, C. T. Armstrong, Adam Medick Jr., Walter Hyde and Frank Mell. Song by the grange. Suggestions were offered by several members for improvement during the new year. A special effort is to be made to increase the attendance at meetings. Doughnuts, cheese and coffee were served by the committee in charge of refreshments.

Chief Thomas Wakely, John W. Blake and Louis Masse, will formally begin today (Monday) the drive to raise the necessary funds for providing a piece of fire apparatus, probably a $50-gallon pumper. Everything looks roseate, for even before a donation has been sought, there is $1125 offered which includes besides the $1,000 from the Aspinook company, $100 from the Jewett City Water company and $25 from the Jewett City Greenhouses.

Chief Howard L. Stanton pointed out in his address here Thursday evening that in a number lay the only hope of effective service and help in outlying districts. Particular attention is being called to the beautiful Sylvandale section of Lisbon, which in reality is an approach to Jewett City. Close to $100,000 in residential property is unprotected from fire loss in Sylvandale. It is in another town, yet, says Chief Stanton, with a pumper at the Quinebaug river or at the lower hydrant on South Main street, the fine property of Sylvandale, receives the safeguard of ample protection. It is believed that property owners in this sort of suburban section of the borough are looking with favor at a movement that must prove to them a benefit.

A brass bowl of exquisite Narcissi was greatly admired at the Conregationalist church Sunday morning. Seldom does an amateur raise so many blooms on such stocky stalks. The stones and shells in the bowl were also of unusual beauty having been gathered at the shore. They were sent to the church by Mrs. E. F. Burleson.

The public will soon have an opportunity to hear a series of two musicales, to be given for the benefit of the local American Legion. The first one is given by the Wilma Vance Entertainers. Dr. G. H. Jennings, a past commander, has charge of the series, with Commander Prentice Chase, Adjutant Gilbert Miner and Miss Rosanna DesJardines and Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, president and vice president of the auxiliary.

The beautiful bouquet of Japanese narcissi, carnations and Maude Adams daffodils at the Baptist church Sunday were presented by Mrs. George H. Prior. On a recent official visit to Ann Arbor, Mich., as international president of the King's Daughters these were among the floral gifts she received. Returning Saturday evening, she brought them all the way to place upon her own church altar.

CORONER BILL INVESTIGATES DEATH OF MISS M'CAULAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 18.—Coroner Arthur G. Bill of Danielson spent Saturday here examining witnesses relative to the accident that caused the death of Miss Anna McCaulay of Providence. The accident occurred in Putnam Dec. 7 and Miss McCaulay died two weeks ago at the Day Kimball hospital from the injuries sustained. She and a friend, Miss Ethelyn Roberts, both of Providence, but who were working temporarily at the Beachmont Worsted company plant, had gone riding in a car owned and driven by Miss Florence Roberts of Providence, a sister of Miss Ethelyn Roberts. Coming down School street, just as darkness fell, something went wrong with the car, and Miss Roberts and her sister alighted to try and locate the trouble. Miss McCaulay was just getting out when a car driven by Charles Letters, county game warden, came from the rear, and Miss McCaulay was caught between the two cars. Her leg was crushed so badly that immediate amputation was necessary, and death resulted two weeks ago.

The evidence taken at the inquest was not made public and Mr. Bill does not know how soon he will be able to render a verdict.

Mr. Letters has stated that there were no rear lights burning on the automobile and that he did not see the car until he was almost alongside it. His state license was automatically revoked at the time of the death of Miss McCaulay.

PLAINFIELD

On a dangerous curve between Moosup and Central Village the guard rail fence is completely down. The town authorities will doubtless see that this protection is put in place as a sturdy fence may save lives in case a car skids and starts over the bank toward the trolley track.

The total eclipse of the sun that is to occur at 9 o'clock a. m. Jan. 24 is looked forward to with much anticipation. The event brings to mind a similar event that was told and retold by a generation of people that have passed away. This eclipse was told of by a Goshen man born in 1821 and as a small boy he was going to school at the time, when it began to grow dark in the daytime. People were not informed as well in those days as now. School was dismissed, some people were thoroughly frightened and were heard to exclaim "the millennium day has come, thre millenium day has come."

"MAKING GOOD."

Strange ideas are held by many who set out to make good, but in the process of making good perhaps the strangest explanation is that which is advanced by the young man who held up the mail train on Long Island and got away with $10,000. He set out to earn his way and when the money didn't come fast enough through legitimate channels, when he wasn't able to prove to his wife that she "could have anything she wanted," when he didn't become a rich man before he was 25 he set out to get it as a bandit, to fulfill his ambition on someone else's money, to make good by becoming a criminal.

He isn't the only one who has looked down the narrow road of "making good" and gotten that same kind of a perverted view. He isn't the only one who had sought the possession of wealth at the expense of others and he isn't the only one who has resorted to crime instead of accepting the restrictions of legitimate acquisition of wealth. He was impressed by what a few of the criminal class have accomplished and gave no heed to the fact that most of the criminals are caught and he could expect nothing different.

Perhaps there will be a judge who will tell him that he did no different than should be expected. Perhaps he will be told, as one judge said to a Chicago bank clerk, that inasmuch as he was not getting a sufficient salary it ought to have been expected that he would dip into the institution's funds. Perhaps he will be encouraged to continue in his plan of "making good."

Certainly he has been impressed by the ease with which others have escaped rather than by the punishment which has been dealt out to them. Penalty for law violation didn't cause him to give it a second thought. What sort of a lesson is the treatment of his case going to leave with others who are contemplating the adoption of his method of "making good"?

RESOURCES AND CHEAPER POWER.

Something which the premier of Quebec should have attention called to is the proposition which is to be put before the public utilities commission of Maryland by Governor Ritchie who understands that there is a chance for the development of more hydro-electric power in that state than is needed there, or that a large power plant which is being constructed on the boundary between Maryland and Pennsylvania which is able to supply power in both states and he stands in favor of permitting such a plant to sell whatever surplus it has to consumers outside of the state.

This should be of interest to the premier of Quebec because it is just such a proposition that he has opposed in Canada, where considerable United States capital is being employed for the development of power plants for the transmission of electricity over high tension lines to New England points.

Quebec's premier contends that there should be no such transmission, that it wouldn't be possible to stop it when Quebec wanted it and therefore development beyond Quebec's needs should not be permitted.

It is on much the same ground that the state of Maine stands. It has plenty of undeveloped power rights, but it will not allow any surplus to be created for the purpose of serving the demands for cheap power from other neighboring states. This position is taken in spite of the tremendous waste that has gone on for years and that is certain to continue until proper development takes place.

The governor of Maryland takes the view that the utilization of the natural resources is highly advisable, and when there is more power generated than is required it should be disposed of to an adjoining state. It has the right kind of a ring and there will be no surprise if it makes a good impression upon the public utilities commission.

CUBA AND THE ISLE OF PINES.

It is one thing to negotiate a treaty and it is another thing to get it ratified. None realizes this more than Cuba and the Isle of Pines. For more than a score of years there has existed a treaty unratified between this country and Cuba concerning the Isle of Pines, a treaty in which Uncle Sam gives up his claim to that bit of land south of Cuba to Cuban control, but in all the years that have passed since the negotiations were completed it has been impossible to get this government's approval. The island has continued as if under Cuban jurisdiction, but the treaty has not been ratified.

Cuba and the Isle of Pines belonged to Spain. Following the Spanish-American war when the terms of peace were signed the Isle of Pines was not included within the boundaries of Cuba. It was left for future adjustment. Back in 1904, or 21 years ago last March, Secretary of State John Hay and the Cuban minister signed a treaty in which the claim of this country was relinquished to the Isle of Pines and it was to become Cuba's, the idea of establishing a naval base there having been abandoned and Cuba having allowed the United States to select two points on Cuban territory for such purposes.

Opposition to the ratification of the treaty has come from those Americans who went to the Isle of Pines after the war and who do not wish to become Cubans or live under the Cuban flag. They object to being turned out of America by treaty.

The Cuban contention is that the Isle of Pines was part of Cuban territory previous to the war, that it was not specified in the treaty of peace for that reason and that it would be an injustice to Cuba not to cede it. The supreme court of this country has held it to be an integral part of Cuba and on three different occasions has the treaty been favorably reported.

It is as the result of the third favorable report that it is now before the senate and with the Muscle Shoals matter out of the way it is due for action. It is time to approve the treaty.

STREET SIGNS.

As the result of the placing of new street and town signs in Wellesley, Mass., the Wellesley Townsman compliments the town for the attractive and legible signs and likewise for the aid which is thus given to those strangers who have no other way of being quickly informed.

Quite properly does it say, "Many people get their impression of a town by these little things, which do not bulk very heavily in the minds of the natives—who know every street in their town—but when they go into a neighboring town, they do wish that that town would put signs on its streets."

That is a sentiment that is frequently expressed. There are not many but what have indulged in something similar, and in these days when there are so many people going from town to town, strangers who are seeking friends or the avenues that will permit them to follow out the routes which they are traveling there is greater need than ever for properly and plainly marked streets. This applies as well to towns as it does to cities. It is important not only for the resident public's convenience but for the traveling public.

The city or the town without street signs indicates its backwardness and its failure to measure up to the co-operation that should exist among towns in this particular. It is an important traffic aid in congested sections and the day cannot come any too soon when all roads and streets are properly and legibly marked.

DRY COMMISSIONER.

The office of national prohibition commissioner is one that requires a strong man. In the announcement that has been made to the effect that President Coolidge has designated Colonel Arthur Woods of New York for that post as the successor to Roy A. Haynes it must be recognized that one who is thoroughly qualified for the administration of the duties of that office has been settled upon.

Colonel Woods has proved his efficiency wherever placed, but it was as police commissioner of New York that he made such a conspicuous success of a difficult job. The police commissionership of New York in his day could be either an honorary job or one in which there was a sincere effort to render real service. Colonel Woods was the latter type of a commissioner. He was always alert, always on the job and standing steadfastly for the best possible protection of the city by the police force. In the enforcement of law he was a leader and it was an unfortunate turn of affairs which made his continuance in that office impossible.

Because of his record in New York President Coolidge has excellent reason for picking him as prohibition commissioner. The conscientious and faithful manner in which he stood for law enforcement of New York makes it certain that he will be equally vigilant in the federal position, which is not to be regarded as the easiest job in the world. It is not his first experience in national service since he served the government during the war both on this and the other side of the Atlantic, but it is a service which he is in every way fitted to render, and from which there is good reason to expect satisfactory results.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There's no complaint when the predictions say snow and rain is delivered

The man on the corner says: No one has to waste any time building up an alibi for honesty.

The double somersault the senate did on the Muscle Shoals bill adds to the acrobatic feats of that August body.

Everyone who does a successful holdup job gets the credit of being Gerald Chapman. Perhaps he's the fellow who hit Billy Patterson.

Secretary Hoover has done much for the department of commerce and the work isn't finished. His desire to retain that post if any is logical.

Even though the wealth of the nation was estimated at over $20 billion two years ago there are a few who find it inadvisable to retire.

Before entering a career of crime become clever at something. A prisoner has recently been discharged because of the entrancing manner in which he could play the piano.

Russia should understand that its recognition by this government doesn't depend on a change in the secretary of state but upon changes in the soviet government of Russia.

When Massachusetts adopts the rule that persons do not have to be drunk to be charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, it follows the ruling set forth in Connecticut.

It is unwise to count the chickens before they are hatched, and therefore it is by no means certain that the small number of bills presented to the general assembly thus far foretell other than a busy session.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Four cups of flour equal one pound.

Bread used for making toast should be over a day old.

Rubber gloves are a great protection when doing any dyeing.

A little kerosene in the water will prove a dirt loosener when wiping up the kitchen linoleum.

Some people like a little vinegar in the hot sliced beets instead of so much butter.

Macaroni accompanies veal very well, particularly if served only with melted butter.

Place a cup of water on the stove and let it boil while you are cooking onions and there will be no objectionable odor.

If the tiles about the fireplace becomes dull rub them with a cut lemon dipped in salt and then wash with soap and water.

An electric iron by itself is harmless, but in connection with a woman, a doorbell and a forgotten switch, is apt to be the torch that burns down one's home.

Add half a spoon of vinegar to the cold water you use in making pie crust. See if you don't have a flaky crust as a result.

When boiling a chicken add to the water a couple of tablespoons of vinegar and an ounce of kitchen salt to each quart of water.

In soaping dish-water a soap shaker is very satisfactory not only because good suds are obtainable, but also because one can utilize small pieces of soap by placing them in the shaker.

If celery has become wilted stand it in the refrigerator in a pitcher of cold water containing a teaspoon of salt.

You can slice hard boiled eggs without crumbling them if you use a knife dipped in boiling water and wiped dry.

Grass stains may be removed from white goods by sponging with ammonia water. For silk, alcohol or chloroform is better.

FOR WINDOWS

Windows and mirrors may be washed with newspapers squeezed dry out of cold water containing a little ammonia, and wiped with dry newspapers crumpled until soft.

HOME MADE BREADCRUMBS

Now that cooler weather is here, breadcrumbs can be made safely in quantity and kept in a glass jar for future use. Put your stale bread in the colander and dry it out in the oven. When cold, put through the grinder. You will find them much more satisfactory and very much cheaper than the bought variety.

CLEANING BOTTLES

An easy way to clean bottles with small necks is to chop a potato into small pieces. Put the bits of potato into the bottle with warm water and shake vigorously. When the glass begins to shine remove potato and thoroughly rinse the bottle with cold water.

UNFIT WATER

When the water in the cistern seems impure, dissolve one pound of alum in one quart of water and pour this into the cistern, stirring with a long pole. Repeat the process in 12 hours, and then allow 12 hours more to settle. The water will then be clear and fit to use.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Pink cheeks that come from drinking milk will not wash off. How often have you seen a young lady, beautifully groomed and gowned, take out her face powder equipment and bring forth about the dirtiest powder puff possible and proceed to powder her nose. Warm soapy water would make that puff lovely and clean. And clear, soapy water would make it retain its fluffiness.

Women betray their age in various ways—by their mental outlook, their facial wrinkles, their hands, but perhaps most disastrously in their figures. Make-up can cover a multitude of blemishes, but nothing can successfully camouflage heavy hips, thighs and shoulders. Youth is slim and graceful; middle age is stout and slow—unless something is done about it.

The daily care of eyes, nose and mouth is simple. The eyes should be bathed in boric acid solution or a similar eyewash twice a day. Lashes and eyebrows should have a few strokes of a brush to keep them free from dust and face powder. All the nose needs is a little cream and powder to remove the shine. Teeth should, of course, be cleaned daily, and often a mouth wash is refreshing.

NO WASTE TO MILK

It is difficult at times to regulate the exact amount of milk required, but by no means let the surplus go to waste. If you find you have a quart or more on hand, make a rice pudding, a custard or a dish with a creamed sauce. Another pleasing way to use it is to have a slice of ham for dinner and bake it in milk in the oven. When the milk covering it cooks away, add more. Let bake for about an hour. Should your milk turn sour before you have a chance to use it, gingerbread, sour milk biscuits, hot cakes and cottage cheese are all good.

SCHOOL CHILD'S LUNCH

Sandwiches, the basis of all school lunches, can be made palatable and nutritious with other fillers such as cheese and nuts. Just a handful of dates will add zest to the simplest of lunches.

NO WASTE

When you open the can of baking powder punch through four of the holes instead of eight. You will find plenty of the powder will come out when shaken, but the box will certainly last longer at that.

PARING FRUIT

A silver paring knife is invaluable for paring fruits of all sorts. A steel knife will frequently cause discoloration and leave a disagreeable metallic flavor on the fruit.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Unbleached cotton, trimmed with bands of lacquer red, makes an attractive type of house dress.

Plaided materials are decidedly in vogue and one smart frock has a tunic of brown and fawn plaid velvet and a skirt of brown.

The newest sports costumes have a way of using the same material and design for the lining of the long coat as that which covers the little hat.

The newest hat crowns are the high square coachman or the telescope types, although many round ones are still shown.

Burnt peacock and ostrich quills are in demand these days for millinery. Nothing, however, displaces ribbon as the ideal trimming for the small hat.

Dante, or Italian red, is one of the new colors that is being featured for fall gowns and coats. Espinard green is also a new name on the color card.

Tiny pleatings arranged in bands and in V-shaped panels form the decoration on various new frocks. They are generally used without any other ornamentation whatever.

Metal cloth and metal braid bindings are one of the most popular finishes on silk and wool frocks. Slips of silver or gold cloth are frequently seen peeping from slashed skirts.

Silver lace and sapphire blue velvet are combined in one of the prettiest frocks of the season. There is a straight scant slip of velvet and over this a tunic of silver lace to which is attached a gathered flounce of lace.

The little high-crowned hats denied to conform to the features of each individual wearer are shown in all the delicate pastel shades as well as more vivid colors, and are destined for a pronounced vogue at the resorts in the south.

The neckline of one black velvet evening frock shown starts out with a modest neckline of the bateau variety but on either side, an inch below this bond, are two deep, diamond-shaped cutouts, between which dangles a heavy silver ornament on a silver ribbon.

Midseason hats are of satin in black or dark brown. An exceedingly smart model somewhat larger than the hats of the early season is of black satin with three large cornflowers made of taffeta caught to the brim.

VARIETY IN NECKWEAR

Neckwear has come to stay and no better indication of its continued popularity can be found than in the immense variety of dress accessories that find shelter under that name. Just as dresses themselves show a bewildering variety of fabrics and combinations of materials, so neckwear comes in almost every material from the finest laces, nets and chiffons to broadcloth and even leather.

The latter styles are largely the result of the boyish models that dominate the world of dress. The severe and smart flannels of the moment are best completed by linen or broadcloth collars and cuffs that content themselves with being simply smart and plain. These are usually shown in sets comprising a round collar fastening closely around the throat and neat cuffs that do not flare like the big gauntlets of last year. Sometimes they are edged with Irish crochet, sometimes small embroidered motifs appear on them, and then again they disdain all elaboration.

Something new in tailored neckwear are sets of striped linen, softly tinted stripes, severely plain except for rows of small crochet buttons. The cuffs to these sets are particularly convenient as they fasten with buttons and loops over the sleeve of either a dress or a coat.

SEWING HINTS

Before attempting to stitch heavy fabric such as canvas or khaki on the machine rub the hems and seams with yellow soap and the needle will penetrate easily.

Little girls' bloomers will last longer if cut alike, front and back, and a small tuck run across the upper front and back, and a small tuck run across the upper front over the seam. When the seat begins to wear, rip out the front tuck and put one in the back.

When the needle on your sewing machine has become dull stitch for several inches through a very fine piece of sandpaper.

A simple way to teach the small daughter to sew is to have her embroider with simple running stitches a design on a dishtowel. Designs consisting of a teapot or cup are most appropriate, as they denote the purpose for which the cloth is intended.

HEM MAKING

A piece of cardboard the exact width of the hem and about six or seven inches long is convenient as a marker when making hems. Start the hem and then insert cardboard, slipping it along as the hem progresses. This will insure hems of exact width and prove a big timesaver.

PEEP INSIDE

Frequently we see an embroidery pattern that is just the design we want, but because it is not made for just the type of work we are doing we do not buy it. Ask to see it opened as many patterns could be used very nicely for totally different sorts of hand work and time would be saved in searching for the exact pattern.

FOR WINTER DRIVING

People used to get a lot of fun out of the "one-horse sleigh." Now they obtain almost the same exhilaration from the automobile runabout with the top down. For winter weather driving, nearly all woman motorists select leather as an outer covering. The newest auto coats are suede or reindeer, as flexible as silk and topped and cuffed with fox.

A TINY MILK HOUSE

A wooden box outside the kitchen door, with a lid on hinges, is a splendid little house for the milk until you arrive downstairs to take it in. It keeps it clean and out of the sun or stormy elements until placed in the refrigerator.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Waitresses employed by London's largest restaurant firm are required to attend a training school for at least one month before they are put to work.

BREAD

When putting bread into the oven to bake be careful that the pan does not touch the sides of the oven. This will result in unsheaply loaves, as the bread will bake unevenly.

SMALL EGG BEATER

It is now possible to buy small egg beaters and cream whippers which will fit into a large sized cup that are most convenient when you are making a small quantity of dressing or pastry.

RECIPES

Raspberry Snowdrifts: One quart canned raspberries or one quart basket fresh raspberries, one cupful heavy cream, one teaspoon almond flavoring, one quarter cup powdered sugar, three egg sponge cake mixture. Drain juice from berries if canned berries are used. Bake any good sponge cake mixture in very thin sheets, with oven temperature 400 degrees to 425 degrees Fahrenheit. When cold cut with sharp knife into narrow strips about four inches long. Pile them log cabin fashion on dessert plates. Heap the centers with the sweetened and flavored whipped cream. Place the berries around the base with one or two on top to garnish.

Chocolate Pudding: Beat one egg, add one scant cup of sugar, one cup of milk, then one and one-half squares of chocolate melted. Add one and one-half cups of bread flour in which three teaspoons of baking powder have been added and sifted, one half a teaspoon of salt, and lastly one tablespoon of butter melted. Steam for two hours in a brown bread steamer. Serve with whipped cream or any good sauce. The following sauce is delicious with this pudding:

Beat one egg until very light, add enough confectioner's sugar to make of the consistency of thin frosting, then add one cupful of whipped cream. Flavor with two tablespoons of orange or strawberry juice, or any other flavoring.

Date Filler and Nut Filler: One-half cup (one-third package) dates, one-half cup figs, one fourth cup almonds, cream to moisten. Put fruit and nuts through a meat grinder, moisten with cream so mixture will spread nicely and spread between thin slices of bread. Figs may be omitted.

Dates and Peanut Butter: Grind dates and mix with equal part of peanut butter, mix well and spread between slices of slightly buttered bread.

Cortelyou's Job Shaken by Politics

For the second time George B. Cortelyou's position was threatened by politics, and the highly-educated scion of a distinguished family again began to look for another opening for a stenographer.

Son of a New York business man, he had attended the local school, Hempstead (L. I.) Institute and State Normal school at Westfield, Mass. Then he abandoned his plan of attending Harvard, and studied music in the New England Conservatory of Music at Boston. Next he studied shorthand, and becoming assistant teacher in a school of stenography, he took a clinical course at New York Hospital.

At 21 he became a general law reporter, and a year later was made private secretary in the appraiser's office in New York. A year afterward came a change in the political powers and he had to find other work. He became general stenographer, then assistant reporter to the Superior Court, studying law at night. At 26 he was married.

Three years later he went to Washington as private secretary to the Fourth Assistant Postmaster. Two years afterward Cleveland became president, and Cortelyou resigned and once more prepared to hunt another job.

Some one told Cleveland of Cortelyou's efficient work and Cleveland made him his stenographer, then executive clerk, despite politicians' protests that he was not of the same political faith. In turning his office over to McKinley, Cleveland recommended Cortelyou's work to the incoming who retained him.

Serving McKinley until the president's assassination, Cortelyou then had two years of strenuous service under President Roosevelt. When Roosevelt appointed him Secretary of Commerce and Labor when it was created, there was criticism that a "mere stenographer" had been chosen. Roosevelt replied by making him Postmaster-General, then Secretary of the Treasury, and backing him as chairman of the Republican National committee.

Today Cortelyou, at 61, is serving his sixteenth year as president of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York, and is interested in many other business enterprises.

SECRETARIES OF STATE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19—The resignation of Secretary of State Hughes serves to recall the fact that there have been 44 Secretaries of State since the founding of the government. Of these Daniel Webster and James G. Blaine each served two noncontinuous terms. Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, John Quincy Adams, Van Buren and Buchanan were secretaries of state who were subsequently elected president.

Secretary Hughes is not the first to resign the premier position in the cabinet. In the past the most significant and sensational retirements from the post were, perhaps, those of Thomas Jefferson from the cabinet of President Washington in 1794; Martin Van Buren from Jackson's cabinet in 1831; James G. Blaine from the cabinet of Benjamin Harrison in 1892 on the eve of the national republican convention, to become a candidate for the presidency, and William J. Bryan from the cabinet of President Wilson in 1915.

The first secretary of state was Thomas Jefferson, who served in the cabinet of President Washington from 1789 to 1794, when he was succeeded by Edmund Randolph, who in 1795 was succeeded by Timothy Pickering. Mr. Pickering also continued as secretary of state for three years during the administration of John Adams, being succeeded in 1800 by John Marshall.

Thomas Jefferson served two terms as president with one man as secretary of state, and that man was James Madison. Madison as president used two men as secretaries of state—Robert Smith of Maryland and James Monroe of Virginia.

Monroe as president for eight years had only one secretary of state—John Quincy Adams. Adams during his single presidential term had Henry Clay as secretary of state. President Jackson had four secretaries of state, who served about two years each. They were Martin Van Buren, Edward Livingston, Louis McLane and John Forsyth. Forsyth served under Van Buren as secretary of state for the full term.

Daniel Webster served as secretary of state under William Henry Harrison and on the latter's death continued in the same position under Tyler until 1843. To was succeeded for a brief term by Hugh S. Legare of South Carolina, who gave way to Abel P. Upshur of Virginia, who in turn was succeeded by John C. Calhoun.

President Polk had one secretary of state, James Buchanan of Pennsylvania, and Zachary Taylor during his brief term was served by John M. Clayton of Deleware. Fillmore had two secretaries of state Daniel Webster and Edward Everett. President Pierce was served throughout his term by William L. Marcy of New York, and Buchanan had two secretaries of state, Lewis Cass of Michigan and Jeremiah S. Black.

William H. Seward remained secretary of state during the most trying period of the nation's career and after serving under Lincoln through his time of office held over under President Johnson. President Grant had two secretaries of state, Elihu B. Washburn of Illinois and Hamilton Fish of New York. Hayes, Garfield, Arthur and Cleveland in his first term had each one secretary of state, William M. Evarts of New York, James G. Blaine of Maine, F. T. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey and Thomas F. Bayard of Deleware.

Benjamin Harrison had two secretaries of state, Mr. Blaine on his resignation being succeeded by John W. Foster of Indiana. Cleveland in his second term had Walter Q. Gresham of Illinois and Richard Olney of Massachusetts as his secretary of state.

McKinley had John Sherman of Ohio for a brief term and then William R. Day and John Hay. Roosevelt's premiers were John Hay, Elihu Root and Robert Bacon of New York, Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania served during the Taft administration. President Wilson had William J. Bryan, Robert Lansing and Bainbridge Colby. Charles E. Hughes came in with the Harding administration and held over under Coolidge.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Net Income

To determine net income, upon which the tax is assessed, the taxpayer must first compute his gross income. Regardless of the amount of net income a return is required of every individual whose gross income for 1924 was $5,000 or more. Gross income, as defined by regulations relating to the income tax under the revenue act of 1924, "includes in general compensation for personal and professional services, business income, profit from sales of and dealings in property, interest, rent, dividends, and gains, profits, and income derived from any source whatever, unless exempt from tax by law." Net income is gross income, less certain specified deductions for business expenses, losses, bad debts, depreciation of business property, gifts, etc., to be fully explained later.

Taxpayers may be divided into four general classes—the wage earner or salaried class, business, professional, and agricultural. All compensation for personal service received by a salaried person or wage earner is income, including commissions, bonuses, fees, pensions paid retired employees, and tips.

The gross income of the usual business consists of the gross profits on sales, together with income from investments and incidental or outside operation or sources. The return must show the gross sales, purchases and cost of goods sold. To reflect net income correctly in any business in which the production, purchase or sale of merchandise is an income-producing factor, inventories are necessary at the beginning and end of each taxable year.

The lawyer, doctor, architect, author, dentist, clergyman or other professional man must include all fees, salaries and compensation for professional services.

The farmer is required to report as gross income all profits derived from the sale or exchange of farm products and livestocks whether produced on the farm or purchased and resold and income from other sources. The market value of merchandise or groceries exchanged for farm products must be included; also profits from renting a farm on the crop-sharing basis, and the rental and sale of farm lands.

APPEALS TO FARMERS TO HELP CENSUS ENUMERATORS

Howard M. Gore, secretary of agriculture, is making an appeal to the farmers to give all the assistance possible to enumerators who are taking the census of agriculture. The enumerators are now at work in Connecticut.

The secretary's letter follows:

Department of Agriculture
Washington, Dec. 30, 1924.

To the Farmers of the United States:

The department of agriculture is vitally interested in the census of agriculture for which the enumeration is now in progress. Every farmer should also be interested in this work because this census will result in obtaining facts that will lead to a proper understanding of the actual conditions existing throughout the country.

The census is taken by the department of commerce in cooperation with the department of agriculture. The schedule of inquiry was approved by the department of agriculture and directed to determine matters of fundamental importance to the welfare of the agricultural industry. This census is needed as a basis for the annual crop estimates of the department of agriculture, and it is of great importance that the results be accurate. The totals of farm acreage, land utilization, livestock, crops, etc., will show actual conditions during 1924 and will be used for the preparation of estimates for each year until the next census.

This census is being taken primarily for the benefit of the farmers. I can assure them that all of the information contained on the census schedule will be treated as strictly confidential and will be used only for statistical purposes to show the totals for the different counties and states. All this information will directly or indirectly be of benefit to farmers and to farmers' associations and organizations throughout the country. It will help congress to legislate wisely in matters affecting the farmers' interests.

I desire therefore to appeal to the farmers to give prompt reply to all of the inquiries on the schedule and in every way possible facilitate the work of the enumerator, so that the census may be taken quickly and that there may be no delay in tabulating the figures and publishing the totals.

HOWARD M. GORE,
Secretary of Agriculture.

OBITUARY

Miss Mary Brennan.

The death of Miss Mary Brennan occurred Saturday morning about 4.30 o'clock at her home at 412 East Main street, following an illness of several days with pneumonia.

She was born in Norwich about 58 years ago and nearly all her life had been spent in East Norwich. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Brennan, one of the first families to locate on the East Side.

After receiving her early education in local schools, Miss Brennan learned the dressmaking art and for the past six years had been employed as dressmaker by the Perteous & Mitchell company.

She was a woman of likeable qualities and easily made many friends who learned of her death with sorrow. Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Elizabeth Morrison of New Haven and Miss Agnes Brennan of Norwich, and two brothers, William Brennan of Norwich and John Brennan of Dinton, Alberta, Canada.

Mrs. Mary L. Noyes.
(Contributed.)

Mrs. Mary L. Noyes passed peacefully away Thursday evening, Jan. 15. Born in Cambridge, Mass., in 1838, she spent her early life under the shadow of Harvard university and was the oldest living graduate of Cambridge Latin school. She married Rev. Charles Noyes, son of Dr. George R. Noyes, an American Biblical scholar and Hancock professor of Greek and Hebrew at Harvard college. She leaves a daughter, Mrs. Charles D. White, of Norwich, and son, George R. Noyes, professor of Slavic languages at the University of California. While her circle of intimate friends might not have been large, her interest in and devotion to them attached them very strongly to her.

It was the good fortune of the writer to consider himself and his family among that number. Every interview impressed him with her rare intelligence, cultivation, and ability to give clear expression to her thoughts, which took a very wide range over many fields of public interest. It is unusual to find the mind of a student accompanied by such charm of manner and personal loveliness.

Mrs. Noyes' gracious and vigorous personality has made an ineradicable impression on those who had the good fortune to know and honor her.

HOSPITAL TRUSTEES WILL APPEAR BEFORE LEGISLATURE

At the recent quarterly meeting of the trustees of the Norwich state hospital a committee of three was appointed to appear before the general assembly in behalf of the requests for appropriations for the hospital. The committee consists of H. H. Gallup of this city, ex-Governor Rollin S. Woodruff of New Haven, and Judge Frederick W. Huxford of Stamford.

Notes Held by L. A. W. Corporation.

In the report of the annual meeting of the L. A. W. Acceptance corporation, the amount of outstanding notes purchased and held by the corporation is $250,000, instead of $35,000. An error gave the latter figure in the published report of the meeting.

SCIENTISTS COMING TO NORWICH TO VIEW ECLIPSE NEXT SATURDAY

At least two parties of scientists are coming to this city next Saturday to take observations of the total eclipse of the sun. As Norwich lies in the path of the total eclipse, a belt about 100 miles wide, north and south, in which the sun will be totally dark for a few minutes, the people of this city and vicinity have an unusual opportunity and visitors from other places are coming here to enjoy this privilege.

Reservations have been made at the Wauregan house by Roger C. Fenn of the Thoreau Museum of Natural History at Middlesex school, Concord, Mass., for a party of eight who will be here to observe and photograph the eclipse. Manager Fred Watson expects that the roof of the hotel will be found an admirable spot for the use of the scientists.

Another reservation has been made by Rebecca Joslin of Boston, who likewise will come to observe the eclipse. Manager Watson has not yet been informed what institution she represents, but the reservation made indicates that she will be accompanied by an assistant.

Story of the Eclipse.

L. W. Ripley gives much valuable information about the eclipse and the best ways it may be observed, in the January issue of Connecticut Schools, which is published by the state board of education.

Mr. Ripley writes:

In the last two thousand years only fourteen total eclipses of the sun have been seen from the territory which is now New England. Of these two have occurred since the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers. The other twelve were seen by the Indians and the wild animals. On the 24th of this month the people of Connecticut are to have their last chance to see nature's grandest spectacle. If any of the babies born this year live to be a hundred years old they may see the next one which comes in 2024.

Almost everybody knows that the moon goes around the earth about once a month. On these monthly journeys it sometimes comes squarely between the sun and earth. If the moon were a little bigger than the earth, its shadow would cover the whole earth and there would be a total eclipse everywhere, but the moon is only a fraction of the size of the earth, and since the sun is enormously bigger than the moon, a long tapering shadow is cast by the moon in the direction opposite the sun. When the moon gets between the sun and earth, the tip of that shadow just touches the earth, and we have a total eclipse of the sun.

A good model of the whole thing can be made by letting a croquet ball represent the earth, and a slim black buggy whip be the shadow of the moon. Once in a while the tip of that whip brushes across the croquet ball and if it were inked it would leave a black mark. That mark would be the "shadow path" of the eclipse, and everywhere within it the eclipse is "total."

Nearly all of Connecticut is inside this path on January 24th. It just about skips the town of Thompson in the northeast corner of the same state. Parts of the towns of Putnam, Woodstock, Union and Stafford are also outside. Curiously enough this very portion of the state was the only one touched by the last total eclipse to visit Connecticut, that of 1806. At a little after 8 o'clock in the morning the moon will be seen cutting into the upper right hand edge of the sun. Of course the moon is seen as a perfectly black disk for its dark side is squarely toward us.

At 9.13 the sun will be wholly covered. The eclipse will all be over about half-past ten. There will not be much of special interest to see until a few minutes before the sun disappears. It should be possible to see the brightest stars come out a little after 9 o'clock and sometimes the corona is faintly seen before the sun entirely vanishes.

The instant the sun is wholly covered, the corona flashes out in all its glory, and we behold the grandest sight which nature gives to men. It is this corona which hundreds of people have gone half way around the world to see.

People will come to Connecticut this week from all over the world to see something which only lasts a minute or two. Most of these people have seen an eclipse before, and know what the sight is worth in time and money.

The Corona.

It is impossible to so describe the corona as to give a good idea of it. In general it is a pearl-colored halo of light appearing around the inky black moon. It is very close to the moon, growing fainter as it stretches off into the sky. It varies very much in shape from time to time, but it usually extends out much farther to the right and left than it does up and down. It seems to be made up of separate rays or filaments of light, some of which are much brighter than others, thus giving the corona a streaked appearance.

In 1900 the rays to the right and left were several times as long as those going up and down. The experience of trained observers during former eclipses would lead perhaps to the following suggestions:

What to Do Beforehand.

Get on a high hill which commands a clear view toward the northwest. If you are unable to reach a hill go to the top of a high building. Do not on any account attempt to see the eclipse from the inside of a building. If you must see it from a window let it be an east or south window, east preferably. You will never regret a walk of several miles to see it from a hill.

Remember that it is of no use to seek a high spot unless it gives a good view toward the northwest, for the reason that the shadow comes from that direction, and the rush of that shadow is one of the big things to see.

Smoke a piece of window glass by holding it over the lighted wick of a lamp turned up high enough to make it smoke. Smoke the glass unevenly so that there will be thick and thin places in it. This glass is for the use only before and after the total period. Don't bother with any kind of telescope or opera glass. You can see the eclipse much better without them.

When the sun is about half covered, hold up a piece of pasteboard not less than a foot square, having a smooth round hole in it about the size of your finger. If you let its shadow fall on something smooth, you will see the image of the partially eclipsed sun.

Just before it gets dark enough for you to see the stars, take especial pains to note the colors of the landscape and the sky in every direction. At one eclipse it was said that "they were magnificent beyond description."

As Totality Comes On
(The period during which the sun is covered.)

When the sun gets down to a thin crescent of light, turn squarely round with your back to the sun and watch for the coming of the shadow out of the northwest in a direction exactly opposite to the sun. That shadow will appear as a great dark something rising up from the horizon and rushing upon you with enormous speed. It will come at the rate of about thirty miles a minute.

The instant it hits you turn quickly around and——well if you can find anybody who did not see it, try to tell them what you saw.

Just before the shadow strikes, and as it leaves wavy bands of light and shade are sometimes seen moving across the landscape. Watch for them and note their width and direction.

Other Things to Look For.

On the very edge of the moon and sometimes nearly all around it, are seen pink or red patches or knobs of light. These are very irregular in shape and so small that it is easy to miss them. They are vast clouds of flaming hydrogen, reaching sometimes a height of more than two hundred thousand miles.

Stars.

During a total eclipse it is ordinarily dark enough so that the brighter stars may be seen. Within 40 degrees of the sun there will be about twenty-five stars which should be seen. Considerably above and to the left of the sun will be the first magnitude star Altair. Nearer the sun will be a number of stars not so bright. By far the most interesting objects in the class will be a group of nine off to the right and above the sun. The three brightest ones near together near the top of the group will be the planets Venus, Mercury and Jupiter. Not again in the lifetime of any person now living, will there be so good an opportunity to see these three planets so close together.

Of course there will be bright stars visible in other parts of the sky, but it will not be well to waste any of the precious moments hunting for stars which can be better seen at night, but be sure and look for the planets.

Comets.

Comets are sometimes seen at the time of an eclipse. During the eclipse of 1882 a comet appeared which had never been seen before and has not been seen since so far as known.

See if you can read a newspaper by the light of the corona. Notice whether or not it casts a shadow. Hang up a thermometer and see if the temperature drops during totality. If the air has been quiet, notice if a wind springs up; if so, notice its direction. If the sky is clear you will see the sight of your lifetime. Let us all hope for a clear day on Jan. 24th, 1925.

SEWED UP THREE HEADS AT POLICE HEADQUARTERS

Three jobs of sewing up gashed heads came to Dr. Louis T. Cassidy in succession Sunday night at police headquarters when three men from the Greeneville section were brought in by the police.

Filip Bosko, 34, and Frank Chernik, 39, had cuts mutually inflicted in a fight that took place in Chernik's home on North Main street, between Ninth and Tenth. A bottle, a piece of pipe or an axe were the weapons used, as near as could be made out from the confused accounts of the affair given by the participants.

Mike Yurasik, 45, had an extensive gash received when he fell near the corner of Central avenue and Seventh street. He was locked up on the charge of intoxication, and the other two men are charged with breach of the peace. The arrests were by Officers Riley, Sullivan, Quinn and P. Murphy.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Miss Matilda B. Randall is visiting in Brookline, Mass., with Mr. and Mrs. Gerard L. Parker.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Allen, of Huntington place entertained a dinner party of ten Sunday evening, in celebration of the thirty-second anniversary of their wedding, also the birthday of their son, Alfred Pierce Allen. The centerpiece, from which the guests drew favors by means of pink ribbons, was of pink roses.

A resident of Washington who retains her membership in Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., of Norwich, Miss Carrie E. Rogers, was in the brilliant assemblage of 800 at the Willard Hotel, when Washington society bade formal good bye to the retiring French Ambassador and Madame Jusserand, after 22 years. The event is said to equal America's farewell to Lafayette. Miss Rogers also assisted the hostess when Mrs. Ellis Logan, 1253 Irving street, N. W., gave a reception Monday from 3 to 6 in honor of Mrs. John Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

At a dinner recently at the Villa Margherita, Charleston, S. C., Mr. and Mrs. Horatio Bigelow, formerly of Norwich, announced the engagement of their daughter, Nancy, to John Melton Hudgins at Washington, D. C. Miss Bigelow attended Miss Lee's school in Boston and last year was a society bud at Charleston. She is a member of the Junior League of that city. Mr. Hudgins is a University of Virginia man, class of 1925. He is the son of Mrs. Horace Greeley MacFarland, and the grandson of Mrs. Francis Moran, both of Washington. The wedding is planned for late June and will probably take place at New London.

Saturday afternoon from 2.30 to 5.30 o'clock, Masters Charles Lanman and Austin Flint Hubbard, sons of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Hubbard, entertained about thirty friends at their home, Uplands, at a costume party. During the afternoon, various games provided diversion, as did also a grab-bag full of surprise gifts. Ice cream in animal forms, cake and candy were served, and there were chocolate favors for each guest. For guessing the greatest number of the characters impersonated, Deborah Parker won a book and Weston C. Pullen, Jr., was given a game. In the puzzle game, the winners were Kate Pullen, a toy typewriter, Allyn L. Brown, Jr., a whistle, and Weston C. Pullen, Jr., a pop-gun. In the Jerusalem game, Allan Mitchell was awarded a toy. In the donkey game the winners were Rose Schwenk, a puzzle, Billy Wilcox, an auto game and Letitia Parker, a harmonica. In the bean bag game Janet Pullen won a box of circus toys.

GOLDEN WEDDING SURPRISE FOR MR. AND MRS. J. W. DUNHAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Jan. 13.—Saturday evening Mr. and Mrs. John W. Dunham were given a surprise reception at their home in Mansfield Center, in observance of the 50th anniversary of their marriage. The affair was arranged by their three children, Mrs. Florence Lathrop of Mansfield Center, Mrs. Roger Dewey of Springfield, and Ernest J. Dunham of Mansfield Center. Over 50 of Mr. and Mrs. Dunham's friends and relatives were present. An orchestra made up of James Eaton, cornetist, Mrs. Minnie Eaton, pianist, and Mrs. James Inman, violinist, played. A reading especially planned for the event was given by Miss Helen M. Kelley of Dayville who also gave a piano solo. A cornet solo was given by James Eaton accompanied by Miss Lillian Dunham at the piano. A piano solo by Mrs. William McFall of East Hartford proved very pleasing and Silver Threads Among the Gold was sung by Miss Helen Kelley and Charles G. Hall. At the conclusion of the programme supper was served with the white-gowned bride of 50 years ago to cut the great, rose-wreathed wedding cake. The decorations and flowers carried out the color scheme of gold and white. The gifts included $150 in gold. Guests were present from Springfield, New Britain, Hartford, East Hartford, Willimantic, Wapping, Westerly, Coventry, Dayville, and Mansfield Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Dunham were married at Spring Hill by Rev. Mr. Glidden.

ISSUES FIRST NUMBER OF "FINISHING FACTS"

With the opening of the year of 1925 a new magazine made its appearance among the many employes of the United States Finishing company, entitled "Finishing Facts."

The magazine is published monthly at Providence to further the spirit of friendship and co-operation among the employes, numbering well over 5,000 in Rhode Island, Connecticut, Georgia and New York.

The magazine is being published under the direction of the advisory editorial board, comprising Andrew C. Imbrie, Harold V. McClennan, William T. Joyce and Harry Saul, is edited by Gardner Dutton and has the following local editors: Raymond B. Sherman, Norwich; Arthur O. Singsen, Silver Springs; Charles S. Kellogg, Pawtucket; James E. Batty, Queen Dyeing Co.; Earle Belknape, Sterling; Royce N. Pharr, Cedartown; John W. Logan, C. P. Darling Co., and Loretta Moran, New York office.

The first issue is a sixteen page affair, filled with news from the plants, poetry, good editorials, jokes and the never failing cross word puzzle.

Among the items of general interest to Norwich people appearing in the first edition is one on Safety First. This article cites the Norwich plant for leading all plants in safety for the past year. A picture of the Norwich Safety First committee is published, the members being Robert Donahue, Kenneth Berglund, Archie Molleur, Joseph Bobesin, secretary, Raymond B. Sherman, chairman, Andrew Clendennin, James Lockhart, Joseph Baron, John F. Rogers, manager, Philip Dufresne, Peter Tylinda, Anna A. Fitzpatrick, nurse, Emily Dearing, Rose Wunderlich, John W. McKinley, master mechanic, Amos Aubrey, Roy Hill, John Shegoda, John Salvador and Colin Turner.

Another item of interest tells of the 47 year service record of Robert Burniston, better known as "Bob," to his fellow employes.

He is the longest service man at the Norwich plant, starting with the Norwich Bleaching, Dyeing and Printing company in 1877, and is still going strong as a calander man.

J. R. Rogers, Norwich manager, writes a word of appreciation for the loyalty, desire to work efficiently and pride of accomplishment on the part of the Norwich employes.

Under the heading of group insurance it is shown that since April 20, 1917, Norwich has had 62 claims with $48,700 paid. Queen Dyeing with 64 claims and $53,900 paid, being the only plant approching this mark.

The entire work is fine and will be followed by bigger and better editions which are certain to contain many stories of interest and serve to carry out the purpose for which the magazine is published, "the furthering of the spirit of friendship and co-operation among the employes of the United States Finishing Co."

ENCOURAGING THE PUBLIC IN THRIFT WEEK

National Thrift week extends from Jan. 17 to 24, inclusive, its beginning marking the anniversary of Benjamin Franklin's birthday.

The postoffice department is calling the public's attention in a special manner to the value of the postal savings system, a branch of which is instituted at the local office as well as at postoffices of the higher classes throughout the country. As a further means of reaching the people of all nationalities the government has gone to the expense of printing leaflets in the various languages explaining the merits of entrusting money to the government's safe keeping. These leaflets may be procured for the asking at the postal savings window of the local postoffice. The government issues the postal savings certificates in the denominations of $1, $2, $5, $10, $20, $50, $100, $200 and $500. Persons 10 years or over may open an account which is free from outside interference, says Postmaster Casper K. Bailey.

In furtherance of the Thrift week idea the Chelsea Savings bank has a large poster in front of the bank, with a slogan, and 5,000 Thrift week circulars were placed in pay envelopes last week, while Thrift week letters were written to 125 school teachers. Assistant Secretary Arthur E. Story brought Thrift week to the attention of the ministers and the priests of the city, with the result that mention of the week was made in a number of the pulpits Sunday.

FOR SUPERIOR COURT ON HOLDUP CHARGE

Newell P. Vergason, 24, of Vergason avenue, Norwich Town, was bound over to the criminal superior court from the city court Saturday morning by Judge A. F. Libby when probable cause was found against him on the charge of highway robbery. In default of $2,000 bonds Vergason went to jail.

He was arrested Friday night at his home by Constable Lucius Fenton after he had held up Felix Perkowski of 7 Riverside avenue with a gun and compelled Perkowski to give up $40. Perkowski testified that Vergason met him in a path near the Saxton woolen mill, threatened him with the gun and made him throw his money on the ground. Vergason picked up the money and ran away.

Constable Fenton testified that Vergason admitted the holdup but said he got only $5.

Public Defender C. L. Stewart, who represented Vergason, entered a plea of not guilty for him, following which the two witnesses testified.

Some women are so curious that they will listen to advice just to find out what it's like.

CONNECTICUT AGGIES LOSE CLOSE GAME TO WESLEY MAN QUINTET, 31 TO 26

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, Conn. Jan. 18.—The Connecticut Aggies met their first defeat of the season Saturday night when the fast Wesleyan University five defeated the Storrs outfit 31-26. The game was one of the most thrilling court battles ever seen at Storrs, with the final outcome in doubt until the closing moments of the game. In the second half, the Wesleyan five staged a desperate rally to come from behind and overcome the Aggies lead, with McLane the Red and Black captain scoring the deciding points for his team. It was a game that was packed full of thrills from start to finish, and while the result was disappointing to the large crowd of Connecticut followers in the stands, the contest showed a high grade of basketball play. The Aggies led at half time, 16-11. Gerald Allard, former Putnam High athlete, played a great game at left guard for the Storrs outfit.

In the opening minutes of the game the Aggies played rings around the Middletown outfit, which seemed lost on the large Hawley Armory court. Captain Balock's men had the ball in their possession the major portion of the time during the first 10 minutes of play, but their inability to make good their many shots proved fatal. Time and time again the Nutmeg offense would work the ball down the floor and through the Wesleyan defense for an attempt at the basket, only to have the ball circle around the hoop and fall outside, where the tall Red and Black guards would recover it.

At this stage of the game, the Middletown outfit had difficulty in working the ball through Connecticut's five man defense, but on the chances offered, Wesleyan made good, sinking 3 baskets from the floor for a 6 point lead before the Aggie team connected once. Schofield scored first for Connecticut, and Captain Balock dropped another through the net shortly after. Then "Bill" Makowski, who played a great game for the Storrs outfit, put his team ahead 8-7 when he connected for 2 baskets from the floor in rapid succession. This seemed to put additional life into the Connecticut five, for the team found its eye for the basket in short order, and sank 4 more from the floor in the next few minutes, giving them what looked like a safe lead. Coach Lash of Wesleyan injected several fresh men into his lineup at this point, and the teams battled on more even terms for the remainder of the half.

Wesleyan got under way immediately with the beginning of the second half, in a desperate rally to overcome the Aggies 5 points lead. The teams for the first few minutes, though Wesleyan showed to a slight advantage, and in short time began to overcome the Aggies lead. It was in the session that work of Captain McLane and Umpleby, the two Cardinal and Black stars, counted heavily, for these two men cut through the Aggies for baskets when they were needed most.

McLane tied the score at 22 all when he dribbled into the basket in the final stages of the second half. A moment later he put his team ahead 24-22 with a pretty shot from the side court. Allard of Connecticut followed with a basket a few seconds later, knotting the score again, this time at a 24-all count. Connecticut followers brightened considerably a few moments later, when Schofield sent his team ahead, by caging a difficult shot from the side. Umpleby of Wesleyan now took a hand in the scoring, and his basket tied the score again, making it three times that the score had been knotted in just about as many minutes.

The Aggies did not score after this, as the few remaining minutes were all McLane's. The husky captain gave his team a slight lead when he made good his free throw from the foul line, and then sent the Wesleyan total to 31 by caging two more baskets from the floor in the closing moments of the game.

McLane was easily the big gun of the Wesleyan offense, as he connected for five baskets from the floor.

Makowski was the high scorer for the Aggies, getting five baskets from the floor, while Schofield, with 4 to his credit came next. Captain Balock connected for 3 from the floor, at the same time playing a great floor game.

Both teams sank 12 baskets from the floor, but the Cardinal and Black showed its superiority in making good its tries from the foul line. They connected for 7 of 11 tries, while the Aggies made but two of the same number.

Base Beats Newport

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 18.—Flashing a real fast offense in the first quarter, but later lessening the speed in its attack, the Submarine Base basketball five broke a four game losing streak by decisively defeating the Newport Torpedo Station in the first game of the Eastern Service league. The Sub Base total clambered to a new high total scored this season, reaching 47 before the last whistle blew while the visiting tars garnered but 18 in forty minutes of play.

WORLD'S CHAMPION WALKER ARRIVES HERE FROM ITALY

New York, Jan. 18.—For a brief time today the name of Paavo Nurmi, mighty athlete of Finland, was eclipsed with the docking of the Conte Verde, bringing to America for the first time Ugo Frigerio, Italian typesetter and holder of world walking records who will appear in the Millrose A. A. games in this city on Jan. 27.

Frigerio arrived bedecked in black and white checked cap, dark gray overcoat, light gray suit and tan shoes and was amused when reporters, scenting another international athletic sensation, descended upon him. The Italian was willing to talk and displayed some of the reticence that is part of his fellow European and Olympic record-holder who has shattered many world marks and established another in ten days.

Opposed to the little Italian in the Millrose meet will be George Goulding, great Canadian plodder, and Willie Plant, veteran of the United States. Plant, according to Frigerio, is the man who must be defeated as he believes that Goulding has passed the zenith of his power. Frigerio practiced for two days after sailing for Italy but seasickness overcome him, and he appeared wan after his experience.

The newest menace to American hopes is five feet, six inches tall and weighs approximately 150 pounds. His stride, he said, is the same he employs going to and from his work on the streets of Milan. In the Olympics last summer the 23-year-old pedestrian covered ten kilometers in 47 minutes 49 seconds.

Frigerio expects to remain in America about a month.

HARTFORD HIGH SWAMPS BULKELEY HIGH QUINTET

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 18.—Another blot upon the escutcheon of the Bulkeley basketball quintet, when the Hartford High school squad of basketeers registered a decisive victory at the expense of the Orange and Black, winning by a score of 39 to 4 Saturday night at the State Armory in the main affair of a snappy evening's program. It was the only thing which marred what was a perfect evening for all, with one of the largest basketball crowds assembled to witness the contest.

Equally important, and which was to decide the actual existence of this sport was the financial end of the game. Perhaps more attention was paid to the attendance than the contest, for it was the determining feature of the Bulkeley continuance of this sport and the enthusiasm which was crowded together with the support received, points towards the retention of this sport for the present at least if not for all time. The crowd was estimated to be in the neighborhood of 400 people. It was a typical Bulkeley night, the loss of the contest being the only thing which failed to make it a perfect evening.

Bulkeley showed signs of improvement, but that was early in the game and after giving a fine account of themselves in that period, failed to hold the snappy and well drilled Capitol City aggregation. Short snappy pass work was the means of Hartford's success. If this was a keynote to Hartford's success, Bulkeley failed to follow that idea out, and tired soon after the second period got under way. The defense tactics of Bulkeley were ephermeral to say the least, losing track of the Hartford players, who were fast penetrating a hereto impregnable defense.

Bulkeley in that first period showed characteristic qualities of the teams which have put the school on the athletic map of the state. Upon solving the Bulkeley methods of defense, the Hartford boys set out with a determined mind to send Bulkeley further into the depths of a losing rut. Hartford took advantage of every opportunity to score, registering all their points from in under the basket or close by. Bulkeley on the other hand, was trying longer passes, and if the ball was not intercepted it was fumbled, putting Bulkeley in a dilemma.

The offense of the Orange and Black function on several occasions, and with a little more luck the score would have been much closer. At least eight field baskets were missed, when the ball decided to roll around the hoop and then fall on the outside instead of the inner portion of the hoop. The switch of tactics did not favor Bulkeley, when long trys for the basket were made, and then the guard work of the Hartford players was good, allowing but one field goal, which was scored by Watterson in the second period. After this score, Bulkeley failed to register even a single score in a half of playing time.

Captain Laroureux with his running mate, Fydell were disasterous to the Bulkeley cause. Their playing at all times opening the offense of the Capitol City athletes, and their baskets scored were after nicely executed pass work. They were highly tuned to the task before them and never failed.

For Bulkeley, there were no outstanding stars, there was nothing impressive about the pass work, nor other phases of the game. Watterson broke through the Hartford defense and scored the only field basket of the game.

AGGIE FRESHMEN WIN EASILY FROM TAFTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, Conn., Jan. 18.—The Connecticut Aggie freshmen routed the Taft school five at Waterbury Saturday afternoon when in a onesided contest, they defeated the prep team 41-10. Coach Alexander's men forged to the front in the first few minutes of the fray, and at no time did the Watertown team appear dangerous. At half time, the Aggie yearlings were leading 20-4, and in the second half Coach Alexander made many substitutes, which undoubtedly prevented his team from rolling up a higher score.

The work of Captain Hadley, Eddy and Williams was a big factor in the Aggies scoring power, as between them they managed to connect for 15 baskets from the floor.

Announcement was made before the team left for Watertown that Harold Hadley, formerly Wilby High athlete, was elected to the captaincy of the Connecticut freshman five.

RITOLA WANTS TO MEET NURMI IN 5-MILE RACE

New York, Jan. 18.—(By the A. P.)—Willie Ritola, greatest of the Finnish middle distance runners in America until Paavo Nurmi left his native town of Abo to invade the western hemisphere, indicated last night as the Fordham University meet that a race with the peerless one over a longer distance might be made interesting than the events in which Nurmi has participated up to this time.

Ritola, twice defeated by his countryman at shorter distances, traveled five miles on an eight lap track eight seconds faster athan the time furnished by Hannes Kolehmainen in 1918, and his pace equalled that of the first mile a few days ago when Nurmi shattered three world marks at Madison Square Garden.

In the first meeting of the two, Ritola led until within two laps of the finish, when Nurmi broke away to win handily. Ritola had not spent his strength, but his finish was more like that of the long distance runner a steady grind to the end. That was what he accomplished Saturday night.

But Nurmi, it would seem, will confine himself to the shorter distance, from a mile to two miles, with each race presenting a different distance. He is the dictator, for his presence is necessary to any first class track meet while he is in this country. In fact it was reported some days ago that the oft-mentioned breach between the two stars of Finland had been widened until their followers had insisted that they run. In different events. This is what happened at the Fordham contests.

At the Brooklyn college games next Saturday night Nurmi will choose between a two-mile and 2,000 yard distance. Even Jole Ray, blond Chicago flier, whose records have been swept away by the Scandinavian invasion, will enter elsewhere than in Nurmi's event. Ray will compete in the Brooklyn one thousand, in this case meaning yards, not meters. Ritola will start from Scratch in a three mile handicap and his most dangerous rival appears to be George Lermond of Boston college, who was outdistanced in the two mile event of the Fordham meet.

Nurmi's was an easy victory last night. Seventy-five yards in front of him Ilmar Prim started. Fifty yards further advanced was Gunnar Nilson and 150 yards ahead of Peerless Paavo came August Fager. All of the Finn's opponents were members of the Finnish-American A. C. Nurmi simply drifted along, glanced at his watch at the end of each lap and finally circled the field without apparently increasing his pace. Stamina told the story. The others were unable to keep in stride.

Only once did Nurmi falter, the first time his stride has been broken in a New York race. As he was rounding a turn about midway in the race his left foot slipped, but he lost only a single step. It was his first race on the "flat," the track being set off the main floor by a thin strip of wood, but this appeared to worry him not at all. At the end he breathed harder than usual and his face was flushed, but he finished in good condition after breaking three records in New York, journeying to Chicago to break another and returning here to establish still one more. All in three nights.

DARTMOUTH LEADS IN COLLEGE BASKETBALL

New York, Jan. 8.—(By the A. P.)—Dartmouth, big victories over Yale and Columbia, leads the Eastern Intercollegiate Basketball league, with all teams having played at least one contest. Princeton, by virtue of its conquest of Columbia a week ago in its only game up to this time, is in second place. Yale and Columbia have each been defeated. But the New York institution has one victory to its credit, having beaten Penn, 4 to 11, on January 6.

FLOWERS AND WILSON MATCHED FOR 10 ROUNDS

New York, Jan. 18.—A contract matching Tiger Flowers, Atlanta, Ga. negro middleweight, with Johnny Wilson for a 10 round fight at the Commercial Athletic club of Boston on Feb. 26 was signed today by Walk Miller, Flowers' manager and Matchmaker Eddie Mack of the Boston A. C.

Flowers will next appear at Boston on January 27 when he is scheduled to box ten rounds with Tommy Robson. He is matched with Jamaica Kid for a 12-round contest at Dayton, O., February 4.

EASTERN CONN. BOWLING LEAGUE BANQUET TO BE HELD TONIGHT

Tonight at Naturalization hall, Taftville, the first annual banquet of the Eastern Connecticut Bowling league will be held. This banquet, which is to become an annual affair, marks the close of the league which began early last October. At the banquet tonight, the Peerless Five, winners of the league will be the guests of honor together with the various proprietors of bowling alleys in Mystic, Westerly, Niantic, Willimantic, Jewett City, Danielson and Putnam who are invited to be present. The banquet is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

The Eastern Connecticut league has been means of reviving bowling in the eastern part of the state until it has become the leadink wintr sport. To promote this interest a two-man tournament is to be started within the next few days which will be followed in turn by the annual individual championships with which the season will terminate. Much credit for building up the interest in the bowling game is given to Fred Dugas and Roy Fillmore, president and vice president, of the Eastern Connecticut Bowling association, who have worked hard in bring about the league and piloting it through a most successful season.

At tonight's meeting President Fred Dugas will act as toastmaster and there will be speeches from the captain of the winning team, a representative from a prominent bowling supply house and others. The prizes for the league will also be awarded at the meeting.

There has been some real spectacular bowling during the league with MacKenzie of Moosup the shining star. Mac takes the individual high single with 169 and also the high three with 376. Everett Peckham of the Aetna team rolled 396 in one match, but, as the league rules say that a bowler must participate in at least two-thirds of the games played in order to be eligible for a prize, he is out of the money. Peckham rolled in 45 games. Again this rule hits Frank Zeraiski in the matter of high average.

Zeraiski, a member of the Palace team has an individual average of slightly over 107 but has rolled in only 48 games so the prize goes to Fillmore with 105-81.

The ten leading bowlers who have rolled at least two-thirds of the games played are as follows:

Fillmore (A)	83	8796	105-81
Morin (P)	90	9447	104-87

MOORE SWEEPS ICE IN LONG ISLAND MEET

Long Branch, N. J., Jan. 18.—Joe Moore, Middle Atlantic outdoor champion and international indoor champion had every thing his own way in the feature skating event here today under the auspices of the Long Branch Ice Boat and Yacht club—the 220 yard dash for men.

Lew Morris, who surprised the sporting world a week ago in New York by winning the silver skates derby from Moore suffered a fall in one of the preliminaries, and without this competition Moore had no trouble in taking the race.

Leslie Boyd, of the Briarcliffe Lodge Skating club of Briarcliffe, N. Y., was second, and Samuel Goldber, of the Iceland Skating Club of New York, third. The winner, who is also a member of the Iceland Skating club, made the distance in 22 1-2 seconds. There were 48 entries.

Another Iceland club member, Elsie Muller, took first place in the 220 yard dash for women. Her time was 26 3-5$ seconds.

Miss Muller also won the 440 yard dash for women. The winner's time was 54 3-5 seconds.

ICE AND SNOW PREVENTS BULKELEY-DEEP RIVER GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 18.—Friday's storm cancelled the engagement the Bulkeley basketball team had with Deep River High at the latter's home town. Travelling in two automobiles toward what was to be their destination, it took one of the automobiles three hours to reach there due to the slippery condition of the roads caused by ice and sleet, while the second car containing the coach and a number of the regular players was ditched outside of Lyme and could not reach Deep River. The game was cancelled over telephone, while the entire town turned out to witness the game.

In order to not disappoint the spectators, three Bulkeley subs and one regular together with a stranger from the home town, played the Deep River five and lost by the score of 37 to 6.

DUNDEE ON WAY TO AMERICA FROM FRANCE

Paris, Jan. 18.—(By the A. P.)—Johnny Dundee is on board the steamer Paris bound for New York. Confirmation of this fact was received today by M. Boyer who was promoting the fight between Dundee and Fred Bretonnel, scheduled here for January 27, in a wireless dispatch from the captain of the Paris.

Boyer said tonight that as consequence of the alleged breaking of his contract by Dundee he would demand the American boxer's disqualification by the International Boxing Union. Boyer said he would endeavor to have disqualification effective in every country of the world.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

Little Wendy Wigsleby

When the sun of Spring is shining on the slopes and on the lea
A child comes romping through the light—it's Wendy Wigsleby.
She won't be still, she can't do this,
she can't do that—but O,
The way she shines before the gates,
like something filled with glow!

It's something in the Spring, I guess, that makes her giggle-wig)
And then, of course, I must confess,
she is not very big:
Not little as a pixie is, or a gnome or
wight,
But little as a fairy in a dream of
Spring at night.

She twists and turns, she leaps and runs, she won't be still—ah, me,
I wonder what her mother does with Wendy Wigsleby!
It's let's play this, and let's play that,
and she will be my death,
She wiggles so, she giggles so—I'm almost out of breath.

The Toady Frog

Going home from school one day
Along a country road.
I didn't see what I was doing
And stepped upon a toad.

I had crushed the little hopper
So deep within the sand:
At night I missed his singing,—
He was leader in the band.

I told at school the story
About the Toady Frog,
And when I looked around
He was sitting on a log.

I said that I was sorry,
He bowed and hopped along.
That night I heard him singing
The old familiar song.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

Silence is a virtue and too much talking is a vice. That does not mean that we should always be silent. There are times when it is very necessary that we talk and air our opinions, but the fact remains that if we do too much talking we are liable to do more harm than good. It is very easy to say too much and very hard, sometimes, to keep from saying too much.

There is nothing in this world that makes a person sorry more often than words, especially harsh words, spoken thoughtlessly or in anger. Words often spoken are beyond recall. We can take them back figuratively, but we can never actually recall the words themselves. So we should be very careful to let free only those words we know are harmless.

A few quickly spoken words, hurled at random in a fit of anger may do more harm than we can undo in a life time of repentance. Do not always have something you just you must tell to others, for if you do you will talk not only in season but out of season.

It is a good thing to be a good listener and be able to say the right things when silence would be unjust and cowardly, but do not forget that a steady stream of words is no sign of wisdom. It may be on the other hand, a sign of ignorance and poor taste. There is a proverb that it is well to remember. Those who say what they like must hear what they don't like.

Ignorance usually talks long and loud and, generally, is always saying things which are not so. If you have an opinion upon everything forget to let anyone discover the fact for it is a discrediting habit. If you want to get the name of a "smart Alec" just talk every chance you get and be sure to say a great many things which are not so. Never be afraid to say "I do not know" for men will then believe you when you say "I do know."

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Description of Lebanon

Dear Uncle Jed: I thought this time I would write about Lebanon. The town of Lebanon lies in the northwestern part of New London county. Lebanon is bounded on the north by Tolland and Windham counties, Connecticut, on the east by Windham county and the town of Franklin, Norwich and Colchester and Tolland county.

The surface of Lebanon is moderately hilly, and the soil is fertile and it is well adapted to agriculture. It is one of the leading agricultural towns in the county.

The territory which is now the town of Lebanon was called by the Indians, Poquechaanney, and it was originally claimed by the Indian chief, Uncas.

The first land within the town limits was Major John Mason. In 1659 he was given 500 acres of land by the general assembly of the colony. He might take this land as he should choose in any unoccupied territory in the colony. He selected his 500 acres of land in the southwestern part of the town and it is now the society of Goshen.

In 1666 the general assembly gave Proprietor James Fitch who came from Saybrook to Norwich, 120 acres of land which adjoined Mason's tract.

James Fitch was a son-in-law of Mason's and he also was the first pastor of the church in Norwich while he stayed there.

The first inhabitants of this new country had to work and struggle with inconveniences and hardships.

Most of this territory was covered with trees and some of them were cut down and dwellings were made out of them and some of the soil was tilled and after a while people made good living.

In 1774 many men of character and enterprise came to Lebanon to live.

In 1784 captain Joseph Trumbull came from Suffield to Lebanon. He was a very intelligent man. He became a printer and afterwards a trader.

In 1743 there was a school here which Trumbull established and it was controlled by twelve proprietors and the school was taught 37 years by Nathan Tisdale.

Lebanon was a very important business center as cloth, leather, boots, shoes, saddles, harnesses, axes, hoes, scythes and barrels were made here.

My Horse

Dear Uncle Jed: My horse eats hay. He works. He pulls hay he plows the ground, he mows the field. My horse is white, he is getting older and older. He carries one cord or two in a day. He eats oats and hay. He likes it. Then when my brother is through with him he goes and lies down in the field. He likes to work.

Sometimes at night we go to the store with him, he puts his head down because he can't see. He has to go a long way to the store. When we go back he has to carry a big load from the store. When he gets back from such a long way we let him go in the barn to rest.

I like my horse because he gives me rides. When he is very, very hungry, and tired, he eats first, then he takes a long nap. Then he gets to work again. He likes his master.

When this horse dies I think we are going to get a little horse. Little horses are very wild. When you are giving him something to eat or backhim up, he might step on your feet.

A Storm at Sea

Dear Uncle Jed: Last summer mother, dad and I decided to go on a trip to Canada. Many other people were bound for Canada and were on the same boat. The days were bright and sunny until we neared the coast of Nova Scotia.

A mighty, roaring gale arose which foretold a coming storm. This gale kept up for five minutes. I stayed on deck until a crash of thunder went through the sky and before I could go into my cabin the raindrops came down with full force. The best thing for me to do was to go into my cabin.

Looking out of my window I could see to captain telling the sailors and mates what to do. The waves, which were calm the day before, were now made furious by the mighty wind. Every once in a while the thunder would be repeated. I began to long to see the sky as clear as it was the day before but it seemed that the sky would be that dismal gray forever. All at once the wind gave a great roar which tossed the boat from side to side. I surely thought that this would be the end of me which made me think of everything at home and that I would never see them again.

I then turned to the window and to my delight I found the sky turning from that dismal gray to a bright blue. Where it was dark before it began to appear light again. After the wind had stopped and the rain had ceased we began to make our journey onward with only a memory of the past.

My Christmas Surprise

Dear Uncle Jed: I could not wait for Christmas. I wanted Santa to bring me a walking and talking doll and doll carriage most. I went to bed early so I could get up before any body else. My sister went downstairs Christmas morning and brought up her stocking and mine. After awhile we all got up and went down to the tree where our presents were. When I got to the parlor door I was surprised to see a nice big walking and talking doll. As I didn't expect Santa would bring the doll and carriage I was quite pleased. I thought I had a very nice Christmas. I hope other little girls and boys had as happy a Christmas as I had.

My Pet Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my pet cat. My pet cat is very fond of me. When he sees me he always uses his tail, because he knows I always have some candy in my pocket. I always give my cat a piece of candy every day. And at noon hour he is always waiting for me on the steps. My pet cat's name is Pussy. Pussy catches birds. He likes to eat them. Every day I give Pussy a saucer full of milk. His fur is very fluffy.

From a Maine Wide Awake

Dear Uncle Jed: I had a very happy Christmas. I received many presents one of which was a tennis racket which I highly prized. There was eight inches of snow so I went skiing with a bunch of boys. Six days after Christmas was my birthday. I received a jackknife. Wishing you and all the Wide Awakes a happy New Year.

My Fishing Trip

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about the fishing trip I went on last summer. One sunny Friday I got out my fishing rod, line, hooks and dug some worms for bait. I walked down the railroad track until I got to the dock. I walked out on it and sat down as it was low tide. I baited my hook and put it in the water.

After waiting five minutes I caught a fish. It was a tom cod. I caught another and another until I had ten of them. Then I caught an eel and another tom cod.

I began to feel cold and hungry so I started for home. When I got home I cleaned the fish. My grandmother cooked half of the fish for dinner and we ate them. When supper time came she cooked the other half. We ate every one of them.

You don't know how they tasted. I think they tasted better because I caught them myself.

Rose, The Shepherd Girl

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to the Wide Awakes. I am going to tell you about Rose the Shepherd Girl.

There once lived long ago in the foreign land a sheep dealer who owned a large farm. He was wealthy and had many treasures. There was one treasure that he loved best of all, and that was Rose.

Rose was a beautiful little girl, rosy cheeks, and great long curls. She had a very sweet temper, in fact everybody loved her.

Many times she would go with her father to watch the sheep. Rose had a little pet of her own which her father had given her not long ago. One day while she was with her father, Rose saw that her little pet had disappeared. She did not tell her father but went to look for it.

She wandered far but could not find him. It began to grow dark. What should she do? She could not find her way back. All of a sudden she heard something and what should she see but her little sheep. How glad she was! But now there was another question. How could they find their way out? Rose saw a light in a distance. She took her sheep and went to the house. But to her surprise it was her father's house. She had wandered around the woods so far as to come to her own door again. Rose never wandered away again.

A Clever Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: Must tell you about our one man farm. I had many intelligent pets. I had a goat which was angora and I drove every day. She would sit up and beg for her feed. I had bantams that would fly on my shoulders. I also had a little dog named Queen. She did think she was a queen. But dad had the best in the world. His dog's name was Shep. At 4:30 p. m. he would round up all the chickens around the barn for their feed, and I would say, "Shep go get the horse and cow." And Shep would be back in a short while with Lulu, the horse and Molly, the cow. This dog Shep saved Lulu one night. Somehow Lulu got caught in her manger and wedged so she could not move. So, Shep, knowing that something was wrong at the barn came scratching at the door and with his loud bark to arouse someone, but could not. So he came over to where dad slept and scratched on the window. Dad thought the dog had gone wild. So he went out and found Shep going back and forth to the barn, and when dad found Lulu she was almost dead. Her neck was caught. I suppose Lulu got frightened and that is why she got caught that way. So Shep saved Lulu's life. I can't speak enough for Shep. Having sold our farm now I miss it a great deal.

Our Christmas Entertainment

Dear Uncle Jed: I thank you for the book you gave me. I have read it all through. I like it very much. In our school we have got quite a number of books, from you. I am going to write another story and see if I can get a book. I am going to write about Our School Entertainment.

Friday night, December 19, 1924, we had an entertainment at our school. We all spoke pieces, sang songs, spoke dialogues and then came the presents and candy.

My sister counted fifty-three with the children and all. All of the parents were at our entertainment and many others. We had a good time.

I got a bottle of perfume from my teacher. I won the spelling prize and I got a box of handkerchiefs. I got a game of Old Maid from a friend of mine and a book from another friend of mine. We got home about half-past eight.

Th Merit of Good Work

Dear Uncle Jed: May I tell the Wide Awakes a story? Once upon a time a judge had a little farm. One morning he sent to the village for a carpenter and a young man came with his tools.

The judge gave the young man some rough boards and told him to make a rough fence. The judge said that the fence was to be covered with vines and could not be seen from the house. He did not care how it would look. "I will give you two dollars for the work," said the judge. Then he went for a walk.

When he retired from his work, the judge found that the carpenter had carefully planed each board and they were numbered ready for nailing. The judge was angry because he thought the carpenter was trying to make an expensive job of it, but he said nothing.

When the fence was finished it was the best piece of fence on the farm. "How much do you want?" asked the judge. "Two dollars," said the man. "Why did you lay out all that work if not for money?" asked the judge. "For the job, sir," said the carpenter. "I never do rough work. And he took his two dollars and went away.

Many years afterward the judge had the contract for the building of some splendid public buildings. There were many master builders who wanted the contracts but the face of one caught his eye. It was the man who repaired his fence. The judge knew just what kind of work to expect from him. So he gave him the contract and it made him a rich man.

Hunting and Fishing

Dear Uncle Jed: Once as I was walking through the woods, a shadow appeared in front of me which made me turn quickly with my gun in my hand. I lifted my gun and shot at it. After looking the animal over I saw it was a fox. After walking on some skunk holes appeared in sight. I put a trap in it and went on for a little way when I heard a rustle. Then what ever there and saw a partridge which I shot at and took it to the camp. Upon reaching the camp I decided to go fishing. My fishing rod was packed up and I went to a brook. Within an hour I caught a string of trout. After going back to the camp and frying them. I ate them.

My Dog

Dear Uncle Jed: We have a dog named Laddie boy. He runs after the cats and wants to kill the cats. So we tell him to stop it, and he comes right up to me, and begins to play. In the spring we are going to make him kill woodchucks.

Our farm is full of them. We once had a dog that killed woodchucks. I tied him up, and the dog must have broken his back. He died the next day, and we buried him. So we put a head stone on his grave.

A Bad Time To Be Absent-Minded

The absent-minded seem to me
Asleep while yet awake to be.
—Peter Rabbit.

To be absent-minded is to be thinking so hard of one thing that you forget everything else. There are times when this may not matter, but there are other times when to be absent-minded is dangerous. It may get you into all kinds of trouble. It is best not to be absent-minded at all.

The great snow storm had been followed a couple of days later by a short, light rain, and then the weather turned very cold and a crust had formed over the snow. Peter Rabbit wanted to visit. First he decided to go to one place, then he changed his mind and decided to go to another place. No sooner had he made up his mind to this than he thought of a third place and once more was undecided.

With this Hooty spread his great, broad, silent wings and flew straight toward Peter.

"I don't know which place to go to first," said Peter to himself. "I want to go to all three first, but I can't do that and I can't make up my mind which one to choose."

It was then that Peter Rabbit became absent-minded. He was so busy trying to make up his mind that he forgot everything else. There he was right out in the open, easy for sharp, hungry eyes to see from quite a distance away because his dark coat showed up against the white snow so plainly. Yet instead of hurrying his fastest to reach shelter, Peter actually stopped once or twice as he tried to make up his mind where to go. He had completely forgotten everything else.

It was a bad time to be absent-minded. Yes, siree, it was a bad time to be absent-minded. There were too many hungry people out looking for a dinner. Hooty the Owl was sitting on the top of a tall, dead tree just within the edge of the Green Forest. He could look out over the Green Meadows, which of course, were not green now, but all white. His keen eyes discovered a little brown spot bobbing along over the snow. His great yellow eyes grew fiercer looking. "That looks to me like Peter Rabbit," muttered Hooty. "He's coming this way, and he doesn't seem to be in any hurry. If he keeps on the way he's headed now he'll furnish me a dinner. Hello! There's that sly thief, Reddy Fox. He sees Peter, too. If I don't watch out he'll get that Rabbit dinner instead of me. What's the matter with Peter Rabbit anyway? He acts as if he didn't think there was an enemy in the world. Well, I can't let Reddy Fox catch him."

With this Hooty spread his great broad, silent wings and flew straight toward Peter.

Soils

Dear Uncle Jed: I would like to tell the Wide Awakes about the soils. There are several kinds of soil in different parts of the middle Atlantic states. In order to understand them, let us first consider what soils are and how they are made. A soil is fine, earthy matter in which plants will grow. It may be mixed with coarse or even stony materials, or it may be entirely fine and free from stones. If the soil is sandy the farmer calls it a light soil. Water readily rains out of such soils and plants growing in them often suffer from lack of moisture. Sandy soils are in many cases less fertile than others. If the soil is clayey, the farmer calls it heavy. Sometimes it holds too much water, and care must be taken not to work it when it is wet or it may bake under the sun's heat into hard lumps. If the soil is a mixture of sand and clay, it is loam. Many of the soils that are the most productive are loams.

Rubber

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell the Wide Awakes a story about rubber. Rubber was first seen by Columbus and his men on their second voyage. When they landed on the island of Hayti they saw some little Indian boys bouncing some rubber balls. The Indian boy gave Columbus some which he took back to Spain where the children there played with balls that were made of rags or wool.

The Hevea tree grows sixty feet tall and when full grown is eight to ten feet around. It rises as straight as straight as an elm, with high branching limbs and long, smooth oval leaves. Sprays of pale flowers blossom upon it in August.

One day Charles Goodyear, a Connecticut hardware merchant of inventive turn of mind, went to a store to buy a life preserver. He could find only imperfect ones, but they drew his attention to the study of rubber.

The United States leads the world in the production of rubber goods. Some of the uses of rubber are belts for men, women and children, bathing caps bathing suits, shoes, boots and many other articles.

Going Ice Skating

Uncle Jed: One winter morning I arose and looked out of the window to see whether the ground was frozen. I dressed, ate breakfast and soon started for school. When I came home from school I went to the back of the house where the pond was to see if it was frozen. After waiting for it awhile I felt it was safe so I went home to get my skates. Not being able to find them I asked my mother where they were. When she learned what I was going to do she told me not to go but like other disobedient boys I took the skates and did go. I put them on quickly and went on the the pond. Every while I would slip but nothing happened and I got up again. The last time however the ice broke and I fell in. I was soaked but able to get out. I ran out, took off my skates and ran home as fast as I could. When I came home my mother asked. "What's the matter?" When I told her what happened she got me other clothes and said, "You see if you obeyed me you would not have gotten into all of this trouble." I promised her that I wouldn't go any more, when she said not to.

A Doll and A Teddy Bear

The color of her hair is black tied with a red ribbon. Bertha can say ma-ma, she can walk and when I lay her down she closes her eyes. She has a bed to sleep in at night. Bertha has somebody to play with while I am in the South Ashford school. My dolly plays with my teddy bear on the couch. I don't think they ever get angry, because when I get home they are lying side by side just as I left them. I know they teach me a good lesson because they sit quiet when I am in school. I must sit quiet and then I know I shall learn my lessons well.

A Little Match Girl

Dear Uncle Jed: I have never written to you before. So here I am writing you a short story. Many, many years ago in the busy streets of London lived a girl with her father. The poor girl sold matches for a few crumbs of bread. With her matches she would be seen most every day pacing the busy street of London trying to sell her matches. When she had sold all her matches she would go home, and her wicked father would beat the poor child until she gave him the money. He would give her a few crumbs of bread. And send her off to sell matches again.

One Christmas night when she was walking home she had but a few boxes of matches left which she could not sell. As she was going home she took her time and she looked through the great windows of the stores. She saw Christmas dainties which some boys and girls were going to have. A few tears rolled from her eyes for she wished she could go where Santa Claus lives. She soon reached her humble home and sat down on the door step.

She thought of a good plan. She said my hands are very cold so I will light my matches, one by one, and warm my hands. After her matches were all gone she felt sleepy, and soon fell asleep.

In the morning as a lady was passing by she saw the little girl stiff, and dead.

Christmas

Dear Uncle Jed: The reason we keep the twenty-fifth day of December as a great holiday is because Christ was born on that day. Both young and old look upon Christ as a great man.

The shepherds who were tending sheep saw a bright star shining over the barn and gathered what things they had to give to Him, for they understood a Great child had been born. Ever after that people have been giving each other presents.

We should all remember it is more blessed to give than to receive.

He thought it would be nice for us to have some. So he got some little trees and set them out. Then he got some shoots from on the trees, he put sand with water in a glass to see if they would root.

He did this about Dec. 9, before the ground was frozen. Now the shoots are rooted and are coming out in leaf. He is going to put them in a box of dirt until winter is over, then he will plant them out of doors.

My Christmas Vacation

Dear Uncle Jed: I had been buying Christmas presents and looking forward to Christmas for many days.

The Monday after we got out of school I helped my mother clean the house. Christmas eve my aunt, uncle and two cousins from Groton came up. After we had eaten supper we had the Christmas tree. My brother got a big chemical set. My boy cousin got a big tool box. My girl cousin got some books and some games. I got a Hawaiian guitar, an alarm clock, five baking dishes, a Bible, a cup and saucer, a box of candy, and a handkerchief. We went to bed at ten o'clock, but didn't go to sleep until after half past eleven. The next morning we got up and ate breakfast. Then we went down to our pond and played on the ice. Then we went up to dinner, and a mighty fine dinner, too, of chicken, potatoes, turnips, onions, celery, cranberry sauce, pie, nuts, grapes, and apples. My cousins went home about four o'clock. The next week I made cake in my new dishes. Every night after I got my work done I practiced on my Hawaiian guitar. I use my cup and saucer every day. My alarm clock keeps good time and wakes me up every morning. In church we have a mountain to climb, a contest between the four junior classes.

I am very thankful for my Christmas presents and hope all the Wide Awakes had as good a Christmas as I did.

Samuel Johnson

Dear Uncle Jed: I wonder how many of our Wide Awake Circle realize how important and interesting some of our English writers works are. I am going to tell you about Samuel Johnson and I hope you will all enjoy reading it.

Samuel Johnson, one the most eminent English writers of the eighteenth century was born on the eighteenth day of September, 1709.

The boys features, which were originally noble and not irregular were distorted by his malady.

Samual acquired knowledge with such ease and rapidity that at every school to which he was sent he was soon the best scholar. From sixteen to eighteen he resided at home, and was left to his own devices. He learned much at this time, though his studies were without any plan or guidance. He ransacked his father's shelves and read what was interesting and passed over what was dull. An ordinary lad would have acquired little or no useful knowledge in such a way, but much that was dull to an ordinary lad was interesting to Samuel Johnson.

Samuel entered Pembroke College of Oxford and on the first day he surprised his teachers by quoting a saying from a Latin grammarian who lived in the early part of the fifth century. One of the most learned professors among them declared that he had never known a freshman of equal attainments.

Samuel Johnson was very poor and in the autumn of 1731 he was under the necessity of quitting the university without a degree.

Johnson could not find any way of earning a livelihood. He became an assistant teacher of a grammar school in Leicestershire.

Samuel Johnson was a great prose writer and wrote many books. Some of them are, Vanity of Human Wishes and the Spectator. He died on the thirteenth of December, 1744.

NEW LONDON PASTOR TAKES MEANS TO TEACH TEN COMMANDMENTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 18.—Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the First Baptist church, from his observations, has come to the conclusion that many, very many persons, cannot repeat the Ten Commandments. Indeed it is his opinion that there are few who can repeat any of them, word for word. So he has taken a novel method of acquainting his congregation so that it is safe to assume that there are more people familiar with them now than there were before Rev. Mr. Howe resorted to a method of refreshing the memory of his congregation. He is to repeat the plan at future evening services.

Two breaks occurred here Saturday night, but only in one instance was plunder obtained, although the thieves ransacked both places visited.

At the residence of Mrs. Julia Driscoll, 36 West Colt street, the thief forced a bedroom window through which he entered and thoroughly ransacked the house. That the crook was in search of money or plunder of real worth was evidenced from the fact that a diamond ring and $1, all pennies, comprised the loot obtained.

The other place visited by thieves was the residence of Miss Rose F. Rorke, 38 Jay street and the entrance of the house and the search for plunder by the thief occupied but a half hour. Miss Rorke left her home about 5 o'clock and returned a half hour later. When she entered the house, she discovered a window on the side of the building smashed and an investigation revealed that the thief had not only visited the ground floor, but had gone to the upper floor in his search to obtain something of value. So far as is known nothing was taken from the house, although a dresser on the ground floor was searched as was a sideboard on the second floor, where a considerable quantity of silverware was kept and where Miss Rorke also kept papers of personal value.

The breaks were reported to the police.

Ralph Goldie, of Montauk avenue, and Mrs. Dell Eastland, Best View, Waterford, patients at Lawrence hospital, were able to return to their respective homes Saturday.

The funeral of Thomas J. Lavin, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Lavin, 249 Huntington street, was held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by many mourners, among whom were Troop 10, Boy Scouts, of which organization the boy was a member and by his classmates at St. Mary's Parochial school. The solemn mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Raymond O'Callahan, with Rev. Timothy M. Crowley, deacon and Rev. Alexander Wollschlaeger subdeacon. The bearers were members of Boy Scouts, Richard Mansfield, Cornelius Harrington, James Watterson, Stanley Samuels, Joseph Leahey and Ainsley Slodden. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery, the Boy Scouts and the classmates of Master Lavin accompanying the body to its final resting place.

J. Roland Brantner, 31 Bliss street, has fully recovered from a severe attack of tonsilitis, which has confined him to his home for several days.

Mrs. Matilda Grancher, about 70, widow of Julius Grancher, died Saturday at Norwich State Hospital, in which institution she had been under treatment about two years. Mrs. Grancher, formerly resided at 15 Jay street and is survived by a son, Alois F. Granger, this city, and by a daughter, Mrs. Emma F. Riotte, Summit, N. J.

Mrs. Eliza Cooper, colored, died at Home Memorial hospital Saturday forenoon, where she had been under treatment but a short time. Mrs. Cooper who is survived by a brother, Samuel Hughes, had been employed at the institution as cook.

Christopher C. Miner, 60, died Saturday at the residence of his sister, Mrs. Charles B. Graves, Highland apartments, 43 Granite street. He was a native of New London and was a graduate of West Point. Besides his sister, Mr. Miner is survived by a brother, Lawrence W. Miner, of this city.

The two-masted schooner Douglas P. Conrad was towed into port Saturday morning by the United States Coast Guard destroyer Jouett following the destroyer being called to the assistance of the craft off Rum Row. The Conrad was at the mercy of the sea and tide because of the schooner having lost her rudder. The craft is now moored at the state pier and it is possible that charges of violation of the navigation laws will be levied against the master, because the schooner is believed to have been off Rum Row for the purpose of obtaining a cargo of liquor from the supply ships there and was on that mission when she lost her rudder.

The Conrad was sighted early Saturday morning by the crew of the Jouett flying distress signals, while the destroyer was searching the New England shores in quest of rum-runnture. Going alongside the schooner, officers boarded the craft and the nature of the schooner's distress became known as did the fact that the schooner was in foreign waters and without the master having filed manifest or obtained clearance papers. When the schooner was picked up she was between Montauk Point and Block Island.

Carl Plimton, a youth residing at 28 Starr street, reported to the police Saturday night that he had recovered his bicycle, which was stolen several days ago while the owner was at the Y. M. C. A., Meridian and Church streets. Plimton declared he regained possession of his bicycle when he found it in possession of a Polish boy on Golden street.

An automobile owned and driven by Louis B. Doane, 549 Ocean avenue, struck and injured a dog on Squire street this forenoon. Doane placed the dog in his automobile and took it to the office of a veterinarian for treatment.

An automobile owned by Arthur L. Kebbe, 251 Williams street, and driven by Harold M. Winslow, collided with an automobile, owned by the Morris Tobacco company on Golden street, Saturday afternoon. The machine was parked by the curb and was damaged, as was the machine owned by Keebe. Winslow lodged complaint with the police, alleging that Charles Antis, 32 Squire street, was responsible for the accident because Antis in driving his car through the street, crowded the machine operated by Winslow and forcing the latter car against the side of the tobacco company's car. Traffic Officer John Courtney was assigned to investigate the complaint and learned that Winslow was entirely at fault for the accident, inasmuch as Antis was driving on his right hand side of the highway.

Three drunks were gathered in the police dragnet Saturday night and Sunday. One of the three, Louis Spencer, was taken into custody this forenoon by Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Dennis Cavanaugh when Spencer was found on Howard street, in a near-helpless condition. When searched at the police station a quart bottle of whiskey and a soda bottle of whiskey were found in Spencer's possession.

The police have begun a crusade whica, if continued, will prevent youths from loitering about the pool rooms as they have been allowed to spend much time that should have been used by them in some pursuit beneficial to them. Saturday a pool room proprietor on Bank street was prosecuted for allowing minors under 18 to frequent and play the game there. Sergeant Hick was complained to by the parents of a boy under 18. The officer went to the pool room designated and found the lad and others there. Then he brought complaint against the proprietor of the place, alleging infraction of the statute that forbids having minors in such places. It turned out that the proprietor of the room could not read the text of the license and that he did not realize its provisions. His son was in charge of the place, but he has just turned 18 and he has been in charge of the pool room for some months. A fine of $10 was imposed in the police court and warning was given that a second offense would bring a severer penalty, or perhaps the revocation of the license for the place.

Morris Lubchansky, a carpenter with a contract to alter the fixtures of a State street store, was in the police court Saturday for driving a horse attached to a wagon on the left hand side of State street. He was represented by counsel and put up a unique defense that led to a suspended judgment. Lubchansky claimed that he had loaded his wagon to which the horse was attached and that before he was ready to start the horse, the animal left the place where the wagon was loaded and proceeded along the street. Policeman Courtney held up Lubchansky and had him in court for violation of the traffic ordinances.

Frederick R. Swanson of Connecticut avenue has been engaged by the K. of C. minstrel committee to stage the coming minstrel show.

Warren Washington, colored, 69 Hempstead street, recently became host to "Sunny" Johnson, also colored, of Pierce street, Westerly, and today Washington lodged complaint with the local police that Johnson had made a raid upon Washington's wardrobe and taken much of the effects of the owner. Johnson went to visit Washington last Monday. Today, while the former was at his employment, it is alleged that Johnson stole a gray suit of clothes, pair of shoes, shirt and two pairs of hosiery belonging to Washington. When Washington returned home about 7 o'clock he discovered the theft and at once reported his loss to the police. Sergeant John Cavanaugh, who was assigned to the case, ascertained that a negro answering Johnson's description had been observed about the union station shortly before the departure of the 10.01 train for Westerly, but had not been seen there since. Johnson, who is described as being about 42, five feet six inches in height, medium build, and wearing tortoiseshell glasses, is believed to have gone to Westerly, and the police of that place have been requested to apprehend him. Johnson is a barber by occupation.

A fire early Sunday morning threatened to destroy the wooden structure 24-26-28-32-36 Bank street, owned by Edward Burkle and occupied by N. Giasakopoulus, bootblack, Peck's restaurant, Capitol haberdashery, Champion Shoe Repairing company, and Fifth Avenue Candy Kitchen. The blaze was confined to where it originated, in the Capitol haberdashery, and the loss was confined to that place, although some of the other places of business suffered slight damage by water.

The fire was discovered a short time following the closing of the haberdashery store and was located in the upper part of the place, which is used for storage purpose. The fire was burning briskly and as the structure is an old one an alarm was rung in from Box 28, corner of State and North Bank streets. With the arrival of the department, and because of the age of the building, several streams of water were emptied upon the burning mass. After a half hour's work the firemen subdued the flames, but not until the Capitol store, the Champion Shoe Repairing company and the Fifth Avenue Candy Kitchen had sustained losses, principally by water.

The fire, it is believed, started from spontaneous combustion.

Connecticut Industry
— AND THE —
New Haven Railroad

The future economic welfare of Connecticut depends largely upon the relations between the industries of our State and the New Haven Railroad. Recognition of their mutual interdependence is one of the encouraging signs of the time.

To keep its pre-eminence in manufacturing, Connecticut Industry must continue to grow. But it cannot grow unless there is proportionate growth in the transportation facilities by which its raw materials are brought in and its finished products carried to market.

Connecticut Industry must have transportation service that keeps pace with that available to its competitors. It will not enjoy such service unless the New Haven Railroad is in position to spend money for continual betterments in its facilities.

The New Haven Railroad must have in hand on April next the sum of $23,000,000 for re-financing the maturity of its so-called French loan, due and payable on that date. Many months ago the Directors of the New Haven Railroad and the Directors of the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut began to consider together how this obligation might be met without so straining the company's cash resources as to interfere with expenditures needed for improving its transportation facilities.

The deliberations, in which representatives of Industry in Massachusetts and Rhode Island also participated, resulted in the decision by the Railroad Company to issue $23,000,000 worth of six per cent. re-financing bonds, and the decision by Industry to support the loan by subscribing to the bonds.

For manufacturers thus to support such a bond issue is something new in railroad finance. It means that there will be no discount or commissions on a single bond subscribed for; that for each $1000 bond issued the New Haven Railroad will get exactly $1000. The money ordinarily paid out in underwriting charges will in this instance be applied by the management to improvements and betterments for the purpose of making and keeping the property adequate for the transportation requirements of Industry.

It means that Connecticut manufacturers are insuring themselves against inability on the part of the New Haven to better its service to the industries of this State. It means that the foundation has been laid for closer and more reciprocal relations between Transportation and Industry in their further development, and that with the same faith in itself that it has had in the past, New England will continue to provide for its own.

The banking houses of New York and Boston and the territory between, have manifested their approval of the re-financing plan and the security offered by taking large blocks of the new bonds at par without any underwriting commission or allowance. Members of the Manufacturers' Association of Connecticut have already subscribed nearly $1,000,000.

It is indeed gratifying that in a matter of such vital importance to all southern New England the Industries in Connecticut, Massachusetts and Rhode Island have found it possible to co-operate with one another and with the New Haven Railroad for the common good. We believe that such co-operation promises much for the future and that it deserves the hearty support of every citizen, every business firm and every financial institution in this territory.

POETRY

SLEEP.

"So He giveth His beloved sleep."
—Psalm cxxvii 2.

He sees when their footsteps falter, when their hearts grow weak and faint,
He marks when their strength is failing,
and listens to each complaint;
He bids them rest for a season, for the pathway has grown too steep;
And folded in fair green pastures,
He giveth His loved ones sleep.

Like weary and wornout children, that sigh for the daylight's close,
He knows that they oft are longing for home and its sweet repose;
So He calls them in from their labors are the shadows around them
creep,
And silently watching o'er them,
He giveth His loved ones sleep.

He giveth it, oh, so gently! as a mother will hush to rest
The babe that she softly pillows so tenderly on her breast.
Forgotten are now the trials and sorrows that made them weep;
For with many a soothing promise
He giveth His loved ones sleep.

He giveth it! Friends the dearest can never this boon bestow;
But He touches the drooping eyelids, and placid the features grow;
Their foes may gather about them, and storms may round them sweep,
But, guarding them safe from danger,
He giveth His loved ones sleep.

All dread of the distant future, all fears that oppress today,
Like mists, that clear in the sunlight,
have noiselessly passed away;
Nor call nor clamor can rouse them from slumbers so pure and deep,
For only His voice can reach them,
Who giveth His loved ones sleep.

Weep not that their toils are over, weep not that their race is run;
God grant we may rest as calmly when our work, like theirs, is done!
Till then we would yield with gladness
our treasures to Him to keep,
And rejoice in the sweet assurance
He giveth His loved ones sleep.

—A. M. W., in Golden Hours.

A SEA LYRIC.

There is no music that man has heard
Like the voice of the minstrel sea,
Whose major and minor chords are fraught—
With infinite mystery—
For the sea is a harp, and the winds of
God
Play over his rhythmic breast,
And bear on the sweep of their mighty
wings
The song of a vast unrest.

There is no passion that man has sung
Like the love of the deep-souled sea,
Whose tide responds to the moon's chill light
With marvelous melody—
For the sea is a harp, and the winds of
God
Play over his rhythmic breast,
And bear on the sweep of their invisible
wings
The song of a vast unrest.

There is no sorrow that man has known
Like the grief of the wordless main,
Whose Titan bosom forever throbs
With an unrancorded pain—
For the sea is a harp, and the winds of
God
Play over his rhythmic breast,
And bear on the sweep of their mighty
wings
The song of a vague unrest.

—William Hamilton Hayne.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

New York, Jan. 19.—Stock prices rallied briskly in the closing session of the week after several days of reaction in which a number of issues were carried 2 to 6 points below their recent highs. The reaction, which did not appear to be based on any new developments, was generally described as a correction of a weakened position.

Money rates, which stiffened perceptibly in the early part of the week as loans were called by banks to strengthen their reserve position, eased again on Friday when he readjustments apparently had been completed, and out of town funds flowed into the market for temporary investment.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was a sharp break in Italian lire on reports of unfavorable political developments in Rome followed by a brisk recovery on the announcement that Premier Mussolini had obtained an overwhelming vote of confidence from the Italian chamber of deputies. De mand sterling held fairly steady around $4.77. Exchanges to the northern European countries responded favorably to the extension of credits extended by local bankers to the government's of Denmark and Finland.

TAFTVILLE

Saturday morning every street in the village was ice covered and traveling by automobile or horse-drawn vehicle was almost impossible until the sun melted things up about noon. Especially were the hills dangerous spots. Chains failed to hold automobiles at all, and cars were skidding in all directions, although no serious accidents were reported. Horses not shod for such weather came to grief when they ventured out of the barns. Those who owned horses were unable to get them to places where they might be shod. As a result deliveries of milk were late, and many out of town business men did not come into the village at all. The only people who seemed to enjoy the slippery condition of the roads were the youngsters of the town, who skated and slid all over the town. There was a great deal of satisfaction in the amount of rainfall Friday evening, as this will help the Shetucket river and the local reservoirs which supply the village.

Miss Mary Greenhalgh was the leader of the Young People's society meeting at the Taftville Congregational church Sunday evening.

Robert Turcotte of South A street has resigned his position with the Ponemah company.

Miss Helen C. Aberg and Miss Dorothy Wood, who spent the week end at their homes in the village, have resumed their studies at the Willimantic State Normal school.

Earle M. Wood of North Third avenue has returned from Boston, where he has been attending a conference of smeltins of the K. O. K. A. The conference was presided over by the regent of the province, Merle T. Barker, of Taunton, Mass., who visited the local castle last summer. It was decided to hold the provincial conclave at Malden, Mass., on Feb. 23, and each castle in the province is expected to send delegates to the event.

Troop 4, Boy Scouts, held their regular weekly meeting in their rooms in the Sacred Heart school building on Hunter's avenue Friday evening.

NORWICH TOWN

The Neighborhood Whist club was entertained Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Buckley of Town street. There were three tables in play. The first prizes were won by Mrs. Frederick Ross and Benjamin L. Kennedy. The consolation awards fell to Miss Etta Walker and Miss Rose Matassa. At the conclusion of play Mrs. Buckley, assisted by her daughter, Miss Dorothea Buckley, served sandwiches, cake and cocoa.

Following an absence of three months from her duties at the Backus hospital, as a member of the nurses' training class, due to a serious illness, Miss Viola Turnbull returned Wednesday. During this period Miss Turnbull was at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Turnbull, of Wauwecus Hill.

The Birthday club was entertained Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Peck of Otrobando avenue in recognition of Mrs. Peck's birthday, which date fell on Saturday, the 17th. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred White of Leffingwell, Mrs. Hattie Rudge of Preston City and Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Miner and Mr. and Mrs. William Young of Norwich Town.

At 1 o'clock the hostess served a delicious dinner of fruit cocktail, soup, salad, chicken a la Maryland, wheat bread, graham bread, mashed potato, mashed nurnip, onions, pickles, jelly, coffee, fancy cookies, cake and ice cream.

The other members of the club are Mrs. White and Mrs. Miner, who with Mrs. Peck for several years have observed each others' birthdays in their respective homes.

Mrs. E. A. Watrous and children, Miss Marion, Darolin and Irving Watrous, and Mrs. Watrous' mother, Mrs. W. Irving Mott, of 52 Otrobando avenue, left recently to pass the remainder of the winter at Orlando, Fla. Mr. Watrous preceded his family by ten days, having made the trip by automobile.

ALLENTOWN SUPERINTENDENT VISITED STATE HOSPITAL

Dr. Henry Klopp, superintendent of the Allentown state hospital, Allentown, Pa., visited Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox at the Norwich state hospital, coming here from Wethersfield, where he spoke last week before a meeting of the Connecticut Society of Executives by invitation of Dr. Wilcox. Governor John H. Trumbull and the members of the board of finance attended the meeting to hear Dr. Klopp speak upon the subject of purchasing.

WEEK OF VISITATION EVANGELISM BEGUN BY FOUR CHURCHES OF CITY

Rev. Earl Kernahan, D. D., of Boston, opened a week's campaign of visitation evangelism in this city Sunday evening at a union service held at the Central Baptist church. The churches uniting in the campaign include the Central Baptist church, Greeneville Congregational church and Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. The church auditorium was well filled by the congregations of the various churches uniting in the service. With Rev. David A. Pitt, D. D., pastor of the Central church, leading, the service opened at 7.30 o'clock. Rev. J. Harlew Graham, pastor of Trinity Episcopal church led in the scripture reading and prayer was offered by Rev. Edward C. Dunbar, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The offering was taken to help defray the expense of the week's campaign. Just before the offering Dr. Pitt said that this new form of evangelism differs considerably from the old style of evangelism. We hear a great deal less about money than we did in the old style campaign, he said. He expressed the wish that there would be a fine offering as an expression of the interest of the congregation in the campaign. In speaking of the meetings to be held this week, Rev. Mr. Graham stated that the meeting scheduled for this (Monday) evening will be the most important of the week. He urged all to make an effort to be present. With reference to the campaign itself he said the matter of success depends on the number of calls made. Dr. Kernahan, whose campaign in this city was so successful, was presented by Rev. Dr. Pitt.

I am getting so I feel very much at home when I speak to a congregation in Norwich, said Dr. Kernahan. I am not going to preach in a forma' sense; I am going to talk to you. Very shortly after I started this kind of work, some one asked me if it didn't get monotonous. I said that when my work becomes monotonous I will have to discontinue it at once.

The more I become acquainted with the people of our country, the more I become convinced that many people are outside the church for the simple reason that the church is too inactive. More and more my work is becoming a joy to me I am convinced that Jesus is just absolutely bound to succeed in the redemption of this world. All we have to do is to hold Jesus before the people.

The thing I wish to bring to you is a declaration. That declaration is, "We must work." If we do not do this work by personal contact it will not be done. Let us be as precise as the business man; cast off the system that doesn't work and take on the system that does work. If we do not do this work America is doomed. The time has come when the Protestant church must care for its people just as the Roman Catholic church cares for its people.

It has come time when, if we are to save America we must carry religion to the people, in an irresistable manner. We are talking ultra-democracy everywhere, in industry, education, in our government. Democracy is safe only when the heart and brain of the average citizen is safe. You and I are responsible for a great mas of people.

We need to be more definite. We need to be more persistent. I suppose that if you made a list of the outstanding men of Norwich and then take from that list the names of those who belong to the church, then as you carefully inspected the names left you would probably come to the conclusion that they are not irreligious by choice, but that they allow other interests to take up all their time. It is no good for the minister to wear himself out in the pulpit. The best people to bring these men into the church is you, you who live near them. You are the folks to do it.

Another reason we should do this work is because of religious confusion. Right now there is a confusion in the minds of Christians themselves. The only way to clarify this situation is by taking the message of the church to the people. We must do this work because of sin. The only way to help the sinners outside the church is to go to them, sit down with them, as Jesus did, and convince them that you are back of them.

The meetings scheduled for the week are as follows:

Monday, 6.15 p. m.—Supper in Central Baptist church for evangelistic teams.

Tuesday, 6.15 p. m.—Supper for evangelistic teams, place to be announced.

Wednesday, 6.15 p. m.—Meeting in Greeneville Congregational church for evangelistic teams.

Thursday, 6.15 p. m.—Meeting in First Baptist church for evangelistic teams.

Friday, 6.15 p. m.—Meeting in Trinity M. E. church for evangelistic teams.

Friday, 6.15 p. m.—Meeting in Trinity M. E. church for evangelistic teams.

GIVEN SURPRISE FOR HER 64TH BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Archibald H. Kyle, one of the "old settlers" of Taftville, but now residing with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Clarke, of 260 Asylum street, was given a surprise birthday celebration Sunday. A dinner was served in her honor and occupying the center of the dining table was a large birthday cake with the words "Mother, 65 years." The afternoon was passed with a program of instrumental and vocal music and in renewing old time acquaintances.

Present at the gathering were four lifelong friends of Mrs. Kyle—all residents of Taftville—Mrs. Bridget Flynn, Mrs. John Brennan, Miss Nellie Ford and Miss Katie Ford. The party was arranged by Richard Kyle and Mrs. Harry L. Clarke, son and daughter of Mrs. Kyle. Mr. Kyle, Sr., was employed by the Ponemah mills for 47 years and is now leading a retired life.

KEEPS TRAVEL SAFE BY SANDING ROADS

Supervisor H. T. Gorman of the state highway department is kept busy these days sanding the roads in this district, which comprise all the towns in New London county with the exception of Lyme and Old Lyme. The total mileage that he has to look after covers about 225 miles, and it is a superhuman task to cover it all and see that traveling conditions are made safe at all times. On Friday night last a gang of his men worked sanding Fox hill on the East Side until nearly midnight, and for the past few weeks the men have been working at all hours of the day and night.

The general public has appreciated the special efforts that the department is making, and their counsel and sympathetic suggestions have been a source of encouragement to all the men.

HOURIGAN POST WHIST FOR VETERANS' FUND

Richard E. Hourigan post auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held a whist party Friday evening at the home of Mrs. C. R. Hoeick, 33 Rogers avenue. There were six tables in play and the prizes were awarded as follows:

Ladies—First, Mrs. L. Hull, Jr., towels; second, Mrs. E. Peckham, cut glass vase; consolation, Mrs. Rose Becker, box of chocolates.

Men—First, Ted Gladue, woolen stockings; second, George Gladue, ash tray; consolation, Leo Jacques, ash tray and cigar.

The door prize was won by Mrs. Rose Becker, and was a large cake. A good sized sum was realized for the disabled veterans' fund. At the close of the whist, refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

CONSECRATION SERVICE AT UNIVERSALIST CHURCH

The initial service of Young People's week of the Universalist church Sunday evening at the Church of the Good Shepherd admitted nine new workers to one of the most active unions of the city. The service was impressive, and was conducted by the president of the union, Miss Bertrice Green. During it each member lighted a candle, representing their pledged loyalty to the union and the work they are carrying on.

The coming week, with its activities, promises to be one long remembered by the young people.

STONINGTON DRIVER BLAMED FOR SUNDAY COLLISION

(Special to the Bulletin)

Westerly, R. I., Jan. 18.—Frank J. Shannon, of Stonington, driving a Ford truck on the Boston Post road below Cross Mills was in collision with a Chevrolet sedan, 37,187 R. I., owned and driven by Leonard C. Campbell, of Allentown, R. I., Sunday afternoon about 4.30 o'clock. Shannon was accompanied by George B. Riley and James Robinson and was reported as operating the truck toward Westerly without proper number plates and while under the influence of liquor. In the sedan were Mr. Campbell's wife and daughter, Jennie Card and children and they were proceeding toward Wakefield.

Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell of Westerly was called to the location of the accident, about 6.30 o'clock and making examinations, found that the wheel of the Ford truck was a foot over the white line on the left side of the road, on the curve near the residence of Ed. Crumb and that the Campbell sedan had been pushed over on the grass at the edge of the road, with both left hand fenders smashed, running board split and left forward hub cap knocked off. The Ford truck had a broken wish-bone, forward axle sprung and both forward wheels smashed.

Shannon was brought to Westerly by Sheriff Mitchell and was presented before Acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, Jr., about 8 o'clock, on complaint with operating without proper number plates and under the influence of liquor. He entered a plea of guilty and paid a fine of $10 and costs on the charge of operating without proper number plates. On the complaint of operating the machine under the influence of liquor, the plea of not guilty was entered and he was placed under bonds of $500 which were furnished by his attorney, A. T. Ledwidge, for appearance at next Friday's session of the third district court in Westerly.

SPIRITUAL BOOKKEEPING ADVISED BY FR. REILLY

Preaching at the 10.30 mass in St. Patrick's church Sunday, Rev. John J. Reilly declared that all might profit by the custom of the merchant who, following New Year's, begins to take inventory, to examine his stock, to make his plans for the coming year.

The preacher advised similar preparation—spiritually—on the part of each of his listeners. This is the acceptable time to reflect upon the year just closed—to consider one's actions, motives, activities and attachments.

Attention was directed to the fact that, while all may greet the beginning of another year with gladness, none can be sure of being alive to greet its end. Each new year is but the pathway to eternity—that mysterious state which has puzzled and perplexed and baffled the thinkers and philosophers of all time. What each does know, however, is the truth that for him eternity depends upon his use—wise or otherwise—of the time which is granted him here.

If the past twelvemonth has been marked by neglect of God, abuse of His graces, lack of charity, now is the time, during the spiritual inventory, to make a firm resolution that the new year will not be marked solely by a half hour given to God every Sunday, a few minutes, perhaps, morning and night. The preacher left with his auditors the parting reminder that "to be good is all that is worth while in this world," wherein every change is but a warning to man of his own decay.

The day's epistle was Romans 12: 6-6, and the gospel John 2: 1-11, the miracle in Cana of Galilee.

The high mass was sung by Rev. Myles P. Galvin. Mr. Farrell directed the volunteer choir in a pleasing arrangement of numbers during which the solos were well sung by Mrs. Farrell and Frank R. Murdy.

STOECKEL PROPOSES TO REVISE AUTO LAWS

Motor Vehicle Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel has issued a pamphlet, Bulletin No. 15, in which he discusses propositions relating to his department, for legislative action at the present session. He says that the scope of his discussion is not complete and says that it is limited to measures that will occasion opposition and controversy. There will be a measure relating to the taxation of certain types of motor vehicles. He points out that public service motor vehicles must be more carefully classed and defined and that all should have insurance qualifications for the safety of those who ride in them. Jitneys should be taxed on a more adequate basis. The fees paid by commercial motor vehicles owned by individuals and by transportation companies are not large enough. But the commissioner says that some classes of commercial motor vehicles are now overtaxed. He may ask for 30 traffic officers.

New Plan of Taxation.

Commissioner Stoeckel says: "A new plan for taxation of motor vehicles will be introduced as an educational measure, principally to try out sentiment, and as an alternate proposal for those who see injustice in the present system. The projected new method is based on charging an adjusted flat rate on pleasure cars, leaving commercial motor vehicles to be taxed as they now are, and making up the deficiency, if any, by an addition to the fuel tax, commonly called the 'gasoline tax.' It is not a plan to raise more money, but to determine whether a more equitable method can be devised for its collection, and to save administrative costs by providing a simpler and easier method for registration.

If any of his recommendations should become law, the commissioner says that "it is the intention to ask the legislature to allow the department of motor vehicles a sufficient appropriation to enable it to arrange with the state police department for the qualification and maintenance of and supervision over a group of officers to be especially trained in motor vehicle work. This group should include men already designated for motor vehicle operators' examinations and enough more to insure proper motor vehicle discipline. It will be recommended that provision be made for 30 traffic officers."

Showing of License Cards.

Continuing, the commissioner says there is in the law a provision which is somewhat doubtful in construction but which seems to carry an authentic meaning to the effect that no operator need show his license to an officer or other person except after an accident, and that otherwise the officer has no right to demand it. Authority for an officer to demand to see an operator's license is essential. The state loses money each year through the fact that many unlicensed people drive in defiance of law, feeling that no one will stop them to examine into their driving qualifications. It impedes enforcement to deny this authority to an officer. All regular police officers at least, or perhaps it might be worded uniformed officers, attached to a city or state police force, ought to be authorized to demand to see the qualifications of every operator, whenever it is thought necessary."

Financial Responsibility.

Commissioner Stoeckel discusses a plan of financial responsibility for owners of motor vehicles. He says:

Study and examination into its possibilities may result in the presentation by the department, without recommendation, of such a bill. In general terms this will provide that no owner or person entitled to register a motor vehicle shall receive such registration until he shall have demonstrated to a proper state authority that he is financially able to respond to any judgment secured against him if found to blame for personal injury or property damage. The probable mechanics of such an act might be summarized as follows: Out of every 100,000 Connecticut registrants 48,000 are already insured; out of the remainder, probably all except 5 per cent. could obtain insurance if they applied for it. Five per cent. includes those who have committed wilful offenses and those others who, by their driving records, have shown that they are in the doubtful class as to fitness to register.

The administration of such an act in the first year would probably bring into the department, for financial qualification by other means than insurance, approximately 5 per cent. of the whole registration. This would mean an examination to the qualifications and a determination as to approximately 15,000 people. By such an act the registrant is made responsible for control of the operator, so operators' statistics are applicable and can be used in determination under it. Financial qualification by other means than insurance would naturally take a course similar to that followed in putting up banking security. If insurance could not be secured by an applicant for registration, he could qualify by filing a bond, by deposit of cash or collateral, in some instances by a real estate bond, possibly by endorsement, or by other methods which would satisfy the requirements. It is extremely probable that in instances where financial qualification could not readily be obtained by an intending registrant, he would put title of his car in someone who could qualify. So the work of the department, in connection with determining financial qualification might be less than estimated. This bill, as presented, has many arguments against it. It is claimed to be discriminatory against the poor man; it probably would raise rates of insurance, and it would be expensive to administer. Expert opinion is generally against it, but, on the other hand, it provides a process which goes to the root of situations. It makes the owner responsible for the use of his car and establishes an enforceable liability under which recklessness, bad driving or an accident is sure to cost the man to blame enough money to act as a deterrent."

COLONIAL PLAY GIVEN BY CHILDREN OF REVOLUTION

The Children of the American Revolution were entertained Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles H. Standish, Jr., of 124 West Thames street. The usual business meeting was held following which the children and their mothers were entertained by a most interesting account of shipbuilding in Norwich, given by Mrs. Elisha E. Rogers. The history of shipbuilding was traced by Mrs. Rogers from its start in 1634 until it ended here. She named many of the ships that were built and launched from the shipyards, located in the old days, in Thamesville.

Following this talk members of the Children of the American Revolution Dramatic club gave a most delightful little colonial play, which was prettily enacted by the children. The cast comprised the following: Emily Bidwell, mother; Agnes Greenman, Edward; Dorothy Prentice, Ruth; Esther Gilbert, Hester; Marion Mitchell, Prudence; Marion Wightman, Patsy; Dolly Edmunds, Betty.

Following the play refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Arthur M. Thompson, Mrs. Frank L. Royce, Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer and Mrs. Myles E. Standish.

Thirty-three members of the society were present and enjoyed the meeting and entertainment of the afternoon.

CHILDREN FOUND PLAYING WITH VERGASON'S REVOLVER

The revolver which was used by Newell P. Vergason, of Vergason avenue, Norwich Town, in holding up Felix Pakowski of Norwich Town, relieving him of $40 was found Saturday afternoon through the hands of a child. Mr. Fenton had been searching the woods in the vicinity of the hold-up in the afternoon in the endeavor to find the revolver that Vergason said he had thrown behind the house of John A. Browning but which had not been found by the constable. Unable to find the missing revolver in the woods Constable Fenton was on his way home, when, in front of John A. Browning's home, he noticed five children, one of them with a revolver in his hands endeavoring to discharge it. At about the same time Mr. Browning saw the youngster with the gun and secured the weapon from the child. The revolver was handed over to the constable.

When the gun was examined by Mr. Fenton he found that it contained four loaded cartridges with three of the revolver's magazine cells empty.

Scout Investiture at Canterbury.

Scout Executive F. A. Benton, assisted by Troop No. 1, of Plainfield Congregational church, conducted a tenderfoot investiture at Canterbury Saturday night.

Cecil L. Butler and a patrol of scouts from Plainfield were awaiting scouts from Norwich at the home of Rev. Ralph E. Knight at Canterbury. Mr. Knight who is scout master of Canterbury Troop No. 1, had also assembled his scouts, parents, and troop committee men, nearly filling his home to capacity.

Seven scouts were invested with the tenderfoot badge at this ceremony. This troop was welcomed to the Norwich council, and Mr. Knight closed the meeting with a fine appeal to his scouts.

SENATE PAID TRIBUTE TO LODGE, BRANDEGEE, COLT

Speaker After Speaker From Both Sides of the Chamber Expressed Appreciation of the Services of Three Veteran Members—At Times Keen Emotion Displaced Formal Prepared Address—Mrs. Coolidge Occupied a Seat in the Presidential Row.

Washington, Jan. 19.—In an atmosphere of solemnity unusual even to that grave body, the senate today paid tribute to the memory of Senators Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, Frank B. Brandegee, of Connecticut, and Lebaron B. Colt, of Rhode Island.

The center-aisle division between the two parties was forgotten, differences as to political theory were laid aside, and personal disagreements were obliterated as speaker after speaker arose on both sides of the chamber to express appreciation, as a citizen and as a senator, of the services of the three veteran members.

Each of the three had long careers in the public service, paralleling in many cases, those of the speakers, and evidence of keen emotion crept frequently into formal prepared addresses. The gallery audience reflected the atmosphere of the chamber, most of those who took their seats when the senate convened at noon remaining through the long session.

Mrs. Coolidge occupied a seat in the presidential row with Mrs. Gillett, wife of the speaker of the house, and members of the families of Senators Lodge and Colt were in the same section. In nearby seats were many who had been identified with the late senators in their life at home, who had traveled to Washington to join in the tribute.

With one exception, the speakers emphasized the non-partisan, warmly nationalistic purposes of the three senators when any point arose affecting the country as a whole. Those who had opposed Senators Lodge, Brandegee, and Colt on various matters declared this characteristic was present throughout their careers.

"Another legislative soldier gone from the field of battle," was the tribute of Senator Underwood, democrat, Alabama, to each of the three deceased members.

"Whether comrades with us in the fight for our conceived principles," he said, "or combatants against our ambition, we recognized they were good fellows, possessing more than average ability and integrity to a marked degree."

Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, declared that "with a mind above mere partisanship," Senator Lodge consistently kept his attention and energies upon national policies, and Senator Butler, republican, who succeeded to the seat which his death left vacant, described him as "a representative of a broad and richly cosmopolitan nationalism."

Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, asserted that in his controversy with President Wilson over the treaty of Versailles, "the differences were fundamental both as to philosophy and practice, but personal rancor never entered it."

Senator McLean, of Connecticut, offered a resolution of sorrow for his former colleague, Senator Brandegee, who, he said, contributed more than any other member to defeat of ratification of the Versailles treaty.

As a fellow committee-member and personal friend of many years, Senator Overman, democrat, North Carolina, emphasized Mr. Brandegee's "unassuming dignity and incorruptible power" and Senator Shields, democrat, Tennessee, also paid tribute to his firm stand for the constitution and a strong federal authority.

Senator Bingham, republican, Mr. Brandegee's successor, making his first speech in the senate, described him as having had "the genius of common sense," he recalled that Senator Brandegee's first speech in congress also had been in memory of his predecessor.

Senator Gerry, democrat, Rhode Island, epitomized the character of Senator Colt, as "above all things, fair-minded."

Mr. Colt's successor, Senator Metcalf found in his career, "an example of the value to a nation of the mature powers of those rich in years."

(Eulogies delivered by Senators McLean and Bingham are printed on Page 10.)

CHANCELLOR LUTHER'S STATEMENT TO REICHSTAG

Berlin, Jan. 19.—(By The A. P.)—Unequivocal recognition of the republican constitution of Weimar as legal and as the basis of which his cabinet was founded and retteration of Germany's intention loyally to fulfill the provisions of the London agreement were the outstanding declarations of Chancellor Hans Luther's inaugral statement to the reichstag this evening.

The new chancellor announced that any attempt to alter the republican constitution by force or other illegal weapons would be sternly resisted and dealt with as high treason. Germany's adoption of the Dawes reparations plan and all it implies, the chancellor believed, also entitled Germany to expect a reciprocal measure of loyalty on the part of the other contracting parties to the pact of London.

Non-evacuation of the Cologne zone by the allies, however, was in his opinion, plainly in contradiction to the letter and spirit of the London agreement, the new government intended to propose an early inauguration of negotiations for a speedy settlement of the Cologne situation.

Referring to the administration of the Dawes plan through Seymour Parker Gilbert, Jr., Dr. Luther informed the reichstag that the agent general's organization was functioning smoothly and receiving the complete co-operation of Germany's official quarters.

Both with reference to its position on foreign issues and internal policies the new cabinet's programme, as revealed by Dr. Luther's statement, is viewed in various political camps as an effort to reconcile the acute partisan differences growing out of the present crisis.

Dr. Luther dealt with internal affairs, such as unemployment the house problem and revaluation. On the last mentioned point he explained that bills would shortly be submitted which would take into account the justifiable wishes of those who had suffered through depreciation of the currency. He also foreshadowed simplification of the present taxation system, promising that the government would continue to abolish superfluous taxation. Nevertheless, the tax burden of the German people must remain extraordinarily high.

The chancellor made an appeal for unity as the only means for Germany to recover and to assure a peaceful future.

FLOOD SITUATION IN THE SOUTHERN STATES

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 19.—(By The A. P.)—No further deaths had been reported tonight as the result of the flood situation in several southern states, but the steady downpour of rain caused rivers and creeks to continue to rise, seriously crippling railroad and motor traffic.

At Macon, Ga., railroad officials announced that not a train was moving south of the city while service on the Southern Railway tracks between Atlanta and Macon and the latter city and Jacksonville, had been abandoned as a result of high water.

More than five miles of passenger trains, chiefly westbound, were strung along the tracks at 7 o'clock. The loss on the building and contents is estimated at $20,000.

HEARING ON EJECTMENT OF FARM CARETAKER

East Hampton, Conn., Jan. 19.—It was expected today that the hearing on the question of ejectment of Herbert Lyman, caretaker, from the farm of the late Phoebe Simons, would be held tomorrow although there was a report that the matter would be settled amicably.

Lyman who has been on the farm for nineteen years during which he says, he received no pay, from Mrs. Simons, claims to be in spiritualistic communication with Mrs. Simons almost nightly and that she has advised him to stay on the place although it has been sold by the administrator.

Lyman, who is said to have $2,000 on deposit in a bank, says that he had maintained himself for many years on money saved while he was a mechanic in a bell factory here, and as caretaker for many years of the estate of Dr. Thomas Brennan, of Long Island, which is on the shore of Lake Pocotopaug. Had it not been for his savings, Lyman says, he would have been penniless now. He claims that not only did he receive no wages as caretaker but he spent some money in her behalf during the nineteen years he was handyman on the farm.

Mrs. Simons left no will and a daughter is her heir. The administrator of the estate, Postmaster Hill, sold the place and is now trying to have Lyman leave it. There have been two postponements of the hearing as to ejectment proceedings.

TRAPPER WAS FROZEN TO DEATH IN MANITOBA

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 19.—Frozen to death in a tiny log cabin more than 200 miles north of Winnipeg, the body of Ernest A. Nelson, 53, a trapper, was found on Saturday by provincial police, according to word reaching here today.

In the trapper's hand was found a farewell note to his wife, who lives in Brandon, which had been written on Christmas day. The dead man was fully clothed, and in one corner of the cabin were the remains of a burned-out fire. The body was shrouded with a fine mantle of snow which had drifted through holes in the cabin roof. A week's supply of food was found in the shack, in addition to a number of skins which indicated they had been captured a short time before his death.

Nelson had been trapping in the north country for many years, and it is believed that he was taken suddenly ill and perished from the extreme cold.

JUDGE BROWN DISMISSED APPEAL OF GEO. A. WILCOX

New Haven, Jan. 19.—Judge A. L. Brown of the superior court today dismissed the appeal of George A. Wilcox of Madison, who claimed that the assessors of his town had over assessed his property. The question also was raised whether a 1921 tax list handed in by Wilcox was a valid one because, instead of filling out an inventory he had written across the form "No Material change since 1921." The assessors assessed 10 per cent. as a penalty after entering items at values which they set on various items. The court held that the valuation of the assessors were fair, and dismissed the appeal on this point, and on the one as to the penalty.

Cold Wave Persists in Northern New England

In Some Sections the Thermometers Registered 50 to 56 Degrees Below Zero.

Boston, Jan. 19.—A cold wave, which swept in almost without warning from the maritime provinces of Canada and the north Atlantic, gripped northern New England today, driving the mercury to records of 50 and 56 degrees below zero. Temperatures in some places were reported as the lowest in 27 years and in other localities the mercury reached points said to be the lowest on record.

That the extreme cold would be eased somewhat tonight was indicated by the weather bureau which predicted that Tuesday would be "not so cold" and that the fair weather would be succeeded by increasing cloudiness.

The coldest spot reported in New England was Fort Fairfield, Me., near the New Brunswick border, where an unofficial temperature of 56 degrees below zero was registered. The drop in temperature was the greatest that the thermometer had shown in eight years. This low reading was corroborated by reports from many parts of the neighboring towns of Caribou in Aroostook county where temperatures of 55 were recorded. Towns as far south as central Maine reported records of 50 below. The state hospital at Fairfield reported a reading of 50 degrees below zero.

Although Massachusetts shivered, extreme temperatures were not reported. In Boston early today the official thermometer showed a temperature of 7 degrees above zero.

In Vermont and New Hampshire, however, the cold wave was little less severe than in Maine. In Colebrook, N. H., close to the Canadian border, the mercury sank to 42 degrees below; Barre, Vermont reported 36 degrees below; Gardiner, Me., had an official record of 35 below; Franklin, N. H., reported 42 below, and Concord in southern New Hampshire had an official reading of 16 below.

NORTHERN LIGHTS WERE BRILLIANT IN VERMONT

WOULD CREATE FUND TO MAKE 'CHURCHES CHRISTIAN'

New York, Jan. 9.—Artur Nazh, clothing manufacturer—"Golden Rule" Nash, of Cincinnati—diagnosed the Christian church's ailment as "denominational cussedness" rather than "consciousness," tonight and subscribed to a proposed fund to be spent in "making the churches Christian."

He was one of the speakers at the Universalist laymen's dinner at the Hotel Commodore, where a campaign for a fund of $,000,000 was opened. This fund, to be subscribed over a five-year period, is to be spent in rehabilitating the church's property in Japan, augmenting the superannuated pastors' fund and in the construction of a national church in Washington, D. C.

Putting his check for $1,000 on the table, Mr. Nash said he would add $99,000 to the amount at the rate of $20,000 a year for five years if the churchmen of any denomination would raise $800,000. He proposed that this fund be spent in the advancement of the brotherhood movement throughout the United States, irrespective of creed or denomination.

Much of the $1,000,000 fund, Mr. Nash proposed, could be spent for the benefit of all denominations throughout the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, an organization in which the Universalist church is not represented. The raising of the fund, and its expenditure, he said, will be but a start in this field of endeavor, as he believed that churchmen of all denominations, Protestant and Roman Catholic, would get behind the movement.

Mr. Nash spoke to an audience of Universalists from all parts of the east and middle west, including Owen D. Young, international reparations commissioner; Richard E. Sykes, president of St. Lawrence university and Brooklyn Law school; Joseph M. Tilden, president of Lombard college, and Frederick D. Underwood, president of the Erie railroad, who were guests of honor.

"I am asking you tonight," Mr. Nash said, "as the leaders and recognized representatives of the Universalist church, to bring the denomination and lay it on the altar, very literally give it up, crucify it, or whatever may be necessary for its elimination as an institution in itself. What the answer to this will be, I do not know. I do not care. I have no right to ask."

Paris Agreement Discussed in Senate

Secretary of State Hughes Gives Assurance That No Reservation Was Violated.

Washington, Jan. 19.—The administration took steps today to allay apprehension as to the effect of the Paris reparations agreement, but senate irreconcilables on the Versailles treaty made it clear that an inquiry into the whole subject would be pressed.

Secretary Hughes, in a formal statement issued with White House approval, declared the agreement put the United States "under no obligation, legally or morally," with respect to the enforcement of reparations payments, and that it neither "surrenders nor modifies any treaty right of the United States."

While there appeared to be every desire at the state department to regard the Paris negotiations as a closed incident, Chairman Borah, of the senate foreign relations committee, and Senator Johnson, republican, California, asserted that Mr. Hughes' statement was in direct conflict with the views expressed by foreign statesmen. They added that efforts for a senate inquiry would be continued.

Senator Johnson, who is author of the resolution calling for a copy of the agreement, now en route here from Paris, said he hoped Mr. Hughes was right and the foreign statesmen were wrong as to whether the agreement did in fact draw the United States into European entanglements, adding:

"Only the facts and all of the facts will clarify the atmosphere and satisfy our people."

Secretary Hughes said it was necessary for the United States to take part in the conference with the allied and associated powers to protect its interests in reparations out of which American claims are to be paid.

He also said American participation in the conference did not violate the reservation attached by the senate to the treaty of Berlin, and that the agreement itself did not provide "for sanctions or deal with any question that might arise if the contemplated payments should not be made." In that event, he added, the United States will be as free as it ever was to take any course it may think advisable."

Simultaneously with the issuing of the statement, the state department reiterated its denial that, in signing the agreement, Ambassador Kellogg, secretary of state designate, sought to attach a reservation that the agreement was not to be regarded as committing the United States on the reparations question. The statement did not, however, deny published reports that the ambassador had contended for such a reservation of the preliminary conversations which preceded the conference.

HOOVER APPEARS BEFORE AGRICULTURAL COMMISSION

Washington, Jan. 19.—Secretary Hoover, called today before the president's agricultural commission to express the viewpoint of commercial and industrial interests on farm problems, declared the best guarantee of prosperity in the industry would be the balancing of production and American consuming power.

National policies could be adopted, he said, which would bring about this balance and leave the American farmer free from the necessity of exporting large quantities of principal products, with the consequent holding down of his prices to world levels.

"We import agricultural produce that we could better produce at home; we export foodstuffs and other agricultural products," he asserted. "Our farmers, caught both ways, suffer in both directions from competition of cheaper labor and lower standards of living abroad."

Nevertheless, he continued, there is "within the region of practical possibility," a national policy which would work effectively to reduce the output and stimulate home consumption of agricultural products which hitherto have shown a surplus for export."

BRITISH SEAMEN HELD ON CONSPIRACY CHARGES

Hoboken, N. J., Jan. 19.—U. S. Commissioner Stanton today held Captain St. Clair Tanner and six of the crew of the British schooner Patara for the federal grand jury on charges of conspiracy. The men were arrested after coast guards reported finding them furnishing liquor to a rum runner motor boat 30 miles off the coast on December 22.

The question of United States jurisdiction on the high seas in conspiracy cases is involved, Commissioner Stanton said. He explained that the men were charged with conspiracy because under the Anglo-American liquor treaty they could not be held on charges of violation of the prohibition act when outside of the 12 mile limit.

Captain Tanner was held in $1,500 bail and each of his six men in $1,000 bail.

SENATE VOTES AGAINST ELEVATION OF BIG GUNS

Vote of 45 to 22 Sustains Disapproval by President Coolidge—Senator Johnson of California Was Only Republican Member to Vote For Elevation—Eight Democrats Sustained Views of the President by Voting With the Republicans.

Washington, Jan. 19. — Elevation, for the present at least, of the big guns on 13 of America's battleships, opposed by President Coolidge, received the emphatic disapproval today of the senate.

The vote was 45 to 22, and came on a motion by Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, to suspend the rules for consideration of his amendment to the pending annual naval supply bill authorizing an appropriation of $6,500,000 for the gun elevation.

Only one republican, Johnson, of California, supported the motion, which would have required a two-thirds majority. Eight democrats, including Senator Swanson, of Virginia, ranking minority member of the naval committee, and one farmer-labor, Shipstead, voted against it. The roll call follows:

For the McKellar motion:

Republican—Johnson—1.

Democrats — Bayard, Broussard, Copeland, Dial, Edwards, Ferris, Fletcher, Gerry, Harris, Heflin, Kendrick, McKellar, Mayfield, Overman, Pittman, Ransdell, Reed, of Missouri; Sheppard, Simmons, Walsh of Massachusetts, and Walsh of Montana—21.

Total 22.

Against the motion:

Republicans — Ball, Bingham, Brookhart, Bursum, Butler, Cameron, Capper, Couzens, Cummins, Curtis, Dale, Gernald, Fee, Frazier, Hale, Harreld, Howell, Jones, of Washington; Keyes, McLean, McNary, Metcalf, Moses, Oddie, Pepper, Phipps, Reed of Pennsylvania, Shortridge, Smoot, Spencer, Sterling, Wadsworth, Warren, Watson, Weller and Willis —36.

Democrats—Bruce, Caraway, Dill, George, King, Neely, Ralston and Swanson—8.

Farmer-Labor—Shipstead—1.

Total—45.

In offering his resolution last week, Senator McKellar took the lead in what became a fairly general assault from the democratic side on the administration's position with reference to gun elevation and also on the Washington arms conference. Both were deferred by Chairman Hale, of the naval committee.

When the Tennessee senator called up his amendment today, Senator Hale made a point of order against it on the ground that it was similar to that approved by the senate two years ago and also that it authorized an appropriation not approved by the house and by the budget bureau. Mr. McKellar then moved to suspend the rules so his amendment might be in order.

Senator Hale told the senate he thought it unwise to "take affirmative action while a protest of a foreign government in this matter is pending." He was referring to formal representatives made by Great Britain that gun elevation would be violative of the naval limitation treaty.

Senator McKellar replied that senate action would assist in the settlement of the issue and would strengthen the arm of the American government in dealing with the subject. He also explained that there was no intention to have the funds used immediately but merely to have them available, and argued that Japan had elevated the big guns on her battleships while the rifles on 13 of America's 18 battleships were outranged by the guns of both the British and Japanese battle fleets.

DID A JUROR DROP HALF PINT OF LIQUOR IN COURT?

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 19.—Just as the jury in the case of Julia Rose, a negress, charged with selling liquor was filing out to the jury room in federal court here today, there was a dull thud, and laying in the way of the jury on the soft carpet was a half pint of liquor.

S. C. Burgess, a general prohibition agent, won over a half dozen other attaches and officials in a dive for the bottle.

"Where did this come from?" Judge Groner demanded.

Burgess explained he found it on the floor.

"Did one of the jurors drop this?" the court asked.

Nobody knew. Before anything further happened, the jury reported back a verdict of guilty and the incident was closed.

SENTENCED TO DEATH AT A "BOOTLEGGERS' TRIAL"

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 19.—The story of a "bootleggers' trial" in which they were sentenced to death by a jury of alleged rum-runners and were about to be thrown into the Hudson river when saved by the intervention of the so-called "King of the Bootleggers," was told today by Thomas Heagney, Weehawken fireman, and John Dorsey, also of Weehawken, in the trial of 12 Hudson county men on indictments charging conspiracy to violate the prohibition law. Those under indictment are William Griffin, Jersey City broker, alleged leader of the gang; Police Commissioner Harry J. Stearns of Weehawken, Captain McNamee of the Hudson county police and two lieutenants and seven patrolmen of the Weehawken police.

Heagney testified that with Dorsey he went to the foot of Baldwin avenue, Weehawken, on the nights of Aug. 27 and 28 last. He said Lieutenant Dillon of the Weehawken police—now Captain Dillon—and Patrolman Vollmer were there, and that Dorsey had a long argument with one of the men. Dorsey told this man, Heagney testified, that if any booze were brought ashore that night he would have all present arrested. Several trucks were there at the time, Haegney said, loading up with what appeared to be cases of liquor.

The next night, Heagney testified, he went to Weehawken police headquarters with Dorsey and with Patrolmen Grunewald, Hennessee and Lewis, all defendants, to complain against the rum-running. Lieutenant Kelling, another defendant, was at the desk and refused to entertain the complaint, chasing the two men out of the building, Heagney testified.

As they were about to drive away, Heagney went on, a stranger jumped on the running board of their automobile and said he had twenty thousand dollars in his pocket. They stopped the car, Heagney said, only to find themselves looking down the barrel of a revolver. At the point of this revolver they were taken back to the docks, the witness said, and there underwent a "bootleggers' trial," being found guilty, and sentenced to drowning. They were taken to the edge of the river, he said, when a man he "believed" was Griffin put a stop to the violence and let the two men go.

Dorsey's story was substantially the same. The leader of the gang told him, Dorsey said, that it was all right because he was "seeing Stearns." This leader, Griffin testified, "looked a lot like Griffin."

The trial will be resumed tomorrow morning. The state has several more witnesses. Tonight the jury was locked up in a hotel room.

BILL HART WORSTED IN LEGAL BATTLE WITH WIFE

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 19.—William S. (Bill) Hart, two-gun film hero, who has shot his way to numerous "happy endings" on the screen, today failed to register success in the superior court here when his wife, Winifred Westover Hart, from whom he is separated, took the decision in their legal battle over her right to return to work befroe the camera.

The court broke the allowance agreement which barred Mrs. Hart from appearing in pictures and, at the same time, permitted her to retain the trust fund settled on her by Hart, and to use her married name.

The trust fund of $103,000, established for his wife by Hart, yields her an income, according to testimony in the cause, of $387.50 monthly, while another trust fund for their baby boy gives him $387 monthly. Mrs. Hart contended that this income was not sufficient to keep her.

Miss Colley endorsed all the leading instructors and musicians in the country today in saying that it is the right of every child to be taught music as a means of expressing himself. This applies not only to the child born with natural musical gifts, but to the rank and file of the class as a whole, in which it cannot be too often said, one never knows just exactly with whom he is dealing. Miss Colley believes the three branches of music with which the children should be familiar from the first grade are song singing, sight singing (that is, an understanding of the music page) and song listening. She illustrated this at the piano by playing sharply contrasted bits of classical music, "The Soldiers' Chorus" from Faust, the "Meditation" from "Thais," one of the Lt preludes of Chopin and Grieg's "To spring," and accompanying each with the question, as one would put it to a child "What does this make you want to do?" "Think of name of your own for this piece of music while I play it" and so on. It is most necessary not only to make the children sing, but to make them want to sing and what good is singing if you don't understand it? Music is now coming to be recognized in America as a necessary part of the school curriculum as arithmetic or reading, that kind of music through which the child or the grown person finds his own voice, understands the music page and increases his capacity for expressing himself and enjoying life. And apropos of the appreciation of things one might add the story Miss Colley told of visiting a room in which the children had just finished that poem of Tennyson's ending with "for men may come and men may go, but I go one forever." The inevitable boy in the front seat was on his feet going through a long and involved sentence and his companion behind him pulled at his shirt with "Hey, sit down! You're not Tennyson's brook!"

Marshall Bartholomew, composer, lecturer and singer, of New York city, is to address the Woman's club and their guests at a recital given by him tonight (Tuesday) in High school hall, through the courtesy of Mrs. William A. Buck. Mr. Bartholomew is the conductor of the University Glee club of New York, director of musical activities at Yale University and head of the voice department of the Seymour School of Musical Re-Education. During the war he worked in war hospitals and prison camps of Germany, Russia and Siberia, where he studied particularly the effect of music relieving misery, homesickness and disease. He is one of the people who believe beyond the possibility of doubt that the music that means the most to new people is that which they make themselves, no matter how crude or untrained, and working especially to break down the disastrous custom of letter the few talented individuals make all the music while the millions go inarticulate. In his work among road gangs of negroes in the south, in jails, reformatories and penitentiaries, prison war camps, schools, colleges, factories, the East Side, in New York, factories, daughter houses, department stores and railroad yards, in fact in almost any part of the world where a few people might be gathered together, he has learned from them about the music of their particular locality and station in life. He is to speak on negro songs, of which he will give illustrations in solo.

THUMB NEARLY BITTEN OFF IN COLUMBIA BATTLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Columbia, Jan. 19.—As the result of a bite and kick battle which lasted but a few minutes but caused quite severe injuries to Frank Postemski and Louis Rosinski, two Polish residents of Columbia, Postemski was presented before Justice of the Peace Hubert P. Collins of the Columbia town court Monday forenoon and fined $5 and costs for disturbance of the peace. Postemski, who is alleged to have been the instigator of the pitched fight refused to pay the total assessment of $16.41 and took an appeal to the superior court. Postemski and Rosinski went calling on a fellow countryman, Antoni Szandurski, a resident of the Old Kahlenberg place on the Columbia road, Sunday evening. The visitors arrived about 7 o'clock and their host was still milking his cows, so the three remained in the barn. Everything appeared peaceful until Szandurski had occasion to leave the barn to carry milk into the house. He had hardly left when he heard one of the men call out in native tongue, "Well, what do you want of me." The retort was to the effect that nothing was wanted but that if trouble was wanted it would be furnished on the spot. A fierce struggle ensued. Teeth, fingernails and an 18-inch, two-by-four club were put into play. Postemski had one of his thumbs nearly bitten off and four painful cuts about the head. His antagonist was bitten on the forehead, just over the right eye. A piece of flash about the size of a 25-cent piece was taken off. The wound was lined with teeth marks. The club was picked up from the floor by one of the party and used freely. Both men are said to be exsoldiers in the Polish army where teeth are used as a last resort in fighting. Szandurski rushed into the barn and ended the combat a few minutes after it had started but to Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover, who was called and made the arrest it appeared that the contestants had been battling for several hours, if their injuries were any criterion. Postemski was taken to the office of Dr. Charles H. Girard in this city. Several stitches were taken in his thumb and head wounds. It is said that the ill feeling between Postemski and Rosinski dates back over a period of three years. It appeared that Rosinski was constantly persecuting his enemy and a paper was finaly signed before a lawyer whereby Rosinski agreed never to molest Postemski again. It is believed that Postemski has been taking advantage of this gentlemen's agreement and officials of the town will conduct a further investigation of the case. According to the attending physician the blows engaged during the brief but ferocious encounter would have rendered the average man utterly unconscious.

WESTERLY

Feeling a stinging sensation in his heel Norman R. Lewis, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Lewis, of 84 Moss street, Pawcatuck, while skating on an ice pond in Saimonville, last Saturday afternoon, was surprised to see blood coming from a hole in his boot. On pulling off his boot it was discovered that a bullet had entered his heel, but at the time there was not heard the report of a gun from which the stray bullet must have come undoubtedly caused by the careless use of firearms in the hands of parties unknown. He was taken to the Lawrence-Memorial and Associated hospital in New London where the bullet was removed and the young lad reported to be comfortable.

The Palace theatre has secured for the headline vaudeville attraction for the Thursday, Friday and Saturday Ian Tieman (almost) and his eight comedians. The Tiemans comedians, vaudeville instrumental quartette and purveyors of popular music from the days of symphonic syncopation to the jazziest of jazz. This organization was originated in the A. E. F. for the purpose of entertaining the sister soldiers in France and many interesting incidents are told of the experience of Ian Tieman and his gang while playing at the red Cross, K. of C., Salvation Army and Y. M. C. A. huts "over there."

Ian Tieman does not try to take all the honors himself, but gives to the other boys ample opportunity to display their talent. In view of the fact that they have taken advantage of this opportunity successfully, the offering has been received enthusiastically every place that it has been shown. There is no other act in vaudeville anything like this one; it is refreshingly different-just eight clever boys.

Broadway Theater

No more and engaging program has ever been seen at the Broadway than the one that pleased an enthusiastic capacity house at the Broadway theater yesterday. Every act scored an individual hit and collectively made a great variety program.

Monsieur Herbert started the program with a novelty musical act. The source from which he derives music is unique as well as pleasing.

Following came Jean and Myrtle Moore in Bits of Hits of Broadway Good voices and a knock of putting over songs gained a great reception for this team.

Just like father is a comedy by Rew Hodgdon, featuring Clem Bevins Steward Good and Virginia Holland. It is a real comedy offering with music which scored highly.

Some more comedy followed at a fast and furious pace when Art Hall and Abe Shapiro presented How Does He Stand It. If you want to laugh here is your chance.

The five Spinettas closed the program. This is the first American appearance of these upside down dancers. They came here direct from the B. F. Keith Palace theater, N. Y., and judging from the reception they received, their act is already the talk of the town.

Betty Compson was seen in the Paramount picture, The Female.

Watch for vaudeville program for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

NEW YORK CORSET SPECIALIST AT CARON'S THIS WEEK

An event to which fashionable women look forward with interest is the coming of the Royal Worcester Corset Company's representative to Caron's Specialty Shop, 146 Main street. Miss M. C. Killoran, from the Bon Ton Salon, New York, has arrived to demonstrate and fit the spring models. A set of artistic corset forms in stunning jade in the display window gives a good idea of the newest modes.

The very low, semi-rubber top characterizes the new Bon Ton. The wraparound model is a winner, especially Model 836, the salvation of the woman with full figure. This has the semi-elastic top, elastic sections at side, graduate steel and elastic thigh-reducer. Then the "undabelt" model, for full figures, also for surgical purposes to preserve the figure, is a splendid, practical garment. The favorite tint is still flesh and the materials broche and coutil. Front lace corsets never lose popularity. Bon Tons priced from $3.50 to $10.50, also Royal Worcester and Adjusto from $3 to $5 are on display. A superb line of brassieres to wear with these models, also with the new girdles, is shown.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

GILBERT & SON BUY OLD Y. M. C. A. BUILDING

An important deal in Norwich real estate was accomplished Saturday through the office of John A. Moran, when S. Alphaus Gilbert, and Walter E. Gilbert, purchased for their furniture business the handsome building on Broadway, formerly occupied by the Y. M. C. A. Owing to a steadily increasing business, larger and more central quarters were found necessary. The purchase was made from Max and Harry Rosenthal of New York and Chicago.

The front of the building will be made over with large windows, making an adequate display for furniture, rugs, and wall paper. The interior will be entirely remodeled. Elevators will be installed for passenger service and freight.

The reputation of the Gilbert firm, for furniture of quality, has been established for considerably over fifty years in Norwich and vicinity. This handsome building of pressed brick and lime-stone finely reflects the standing of the firm.

Improvements will be started as soon as the weather permits.

The old Y. M. C. A. building has remained unoccupied since the Association moved into its new building on Main street about five years ago.

Rosa Ponselle

Several outstanding factors touching the widely heralded appearance of the Metropolitan Opera company star, Rosa Ponselle, indicates that it will be an event reflecting some genuine high lights.

There are reasons for anticipating them. The first is the voice of the singer, which is considered by experts as being so individual that no other dramatic soprano of the present day is quite like it. That will serve as one magnet to attract people to the armory next Thursday evening. Nearly everyone responds to a large and beautiful voice, and that is a soprano which, into the bargain, is of dramatic timbre with an abundance of high tones, the attraction is enhanced.

Still, it is not through her rare voice alone that Miss Ponselle has worked her way to the forefront. Coupled with that it was her interpretative gifts which won instant recognition at the memorable debut in opera. And, last but not least is the knowledge that Miss Ponselle will favor us by singing the very same aria which brought a Metropolitan opera audience to its feet.

Even in the days when she sang in a small Meriden church choir Miss Ponselle was talked about for her sympathetic understanding of whatever music she sang. Now that she is a reorganized artist of several years standing, it is to be assumed that her command of style, and her authority are of an order to be expected from a leading soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co.

Bread Theater

When setting forth the qualities of a motion picture, an abundance of super-superlatives is the thing most needed, according to the unwritten law of motion picture publicity and advertising men. A photoplay is always the "most stupendous," "most beautiful and spectacular" and the "greatest ever produced."

With regard to Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall, the screen production of Mary Pickford, at the Breed theater today the use of these well-worn superlatives is justified. "Never since Miss Pickford started her screen career has she assembled such a cast of players." Weeks were spent in the selection of the cast. Sets that for beauty and reality cannot be adequately described were constructed after thorough study and research had been made. On the screen one sees the impressive castles of early England set in the landscap

DANIELSON

Until within the past few days the present winter has not been a difficult one for wild game birds in territory hereabouts, because the ground has been practically free of snow and ice nearly all of the time and the birds had no great difficulty in obtaining their food supply. This fact linked with the shutting off of hunting during the open season just fall because of the danger of forest fires is taken by some hunters as indicating there will be compensation during the hunting season of this year because of increased flocks of pheasants, partridge, woodcock and quail—unless what remains of the winter brings ice conditions that will make it difficult for the birds to find food.

When the state highway department resumes its construction of the state highway between Danielson and Putnam some time this year in all probability a great many in Killingly would be pleased if the next stretch were built from where the cement highway now ends at Morin avenue, at the northerly boundary of the borough, on toward Dayville Four Corners. The old macadam over this stretch of highway has withstood the travel of many years, travel now of a heavier nature than the road ever was intended to carry. The road is battered and patched between the borough line and Elmville and breaks down every spring. Only a little more than four miles of the new cement highway remains to be built to make the route complete between Danielson and Putnam and it has been announced that this will be built in due time, likely some of it this year. The cement road running out of Putnam ends about a mile above Attawaugan center.

Special Officer Christopher Andrews slipped and received a bad fall on the ice during the early hours of Monday morning while engaged in doing substitute duty for Night Officer John Cebert, who was relieved on account of illness. Officer Andrews was badly shaken up and received a bruised hand and other injuries when he fell, but was able to continue at work.

In two weeks—on February 2, to be exact—the groundhog is supposed to make his appearance, look over the weather situation and forecast by whether he remains out or goes back to his burrow the winter's duration. If he remains out, the back bone of winter will be regarded as broken; if he returns, this is taken as indicating that six weeks of winter are still ahead in this particular place the woodchuck plays the role of groundhog. Unless conditions change rapidly in the next fortnight, the woodchuck will need assistance in getting through the frost that has deeply penetrated the ground.

Committees of the organizations for the year are to be named when members of McGregor, Woman's Relief corps hold their meeting Wednesday evening. The committee appointments are always of special interest to the members, a fact that will assist in bringing out a large attendance for this meeting.

Coroner Arthur G. Bill hopes that he may be able to complete today (Tuesday) his inquest relative to the death of Miss Anna McCauley of Mechanicsville. Witnesses in this case were examined at Putnam last Saturday, but Coroner Bill has yet to investigate further.

Manufacturers who depend upon water for some of the power in operating their plants said Monday that the rain of the past week end helped relieve the shortage that has been experienced for weeks, but did not aid materially in restoring the normal volume of water pressure. Unless further rain comes within a few days curtailment of operations such as have been practical recently will again be necessary. The fact that freezing weather continues helps make the situation more irritating, for great quantities of water are now represented in heavy ice that covers the rivers.

Monday morning, the funeral of James McGorty was held from his home in Elmville with funeral services at St. James' church at 9.30. Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. Orient Heights is mentioned as one of the desirables places from which to view the eclipse in this immediate vicinity next Saturday morning it is not only high ground, but also commands a fine view to the northwest, from which the great black shadow will come rushing with lightning speed as the light of the sun becomes wholly obscured. Many people plan to go to the heights to view a sight that no person now living will ever see in this section again.

PUTNAM

If endorsed by the city council at its February meeting, two bills will be presented to the general assembly asking for amendments to the charter, one of which will increase the pay of the city court officials; the other will provide for a salary of $500 a year for the mayor, $10 to the alderman-at-large for each of the twelve monthly meetings a year that he attends, $5 to each of the councilmen, authorizing the council to pay the chairman of the highway committee a salary not to exceed $200 a year.

The increased pay for the judge of the city court is from $500 to $750; for the assistant judge, who also serves as clerk of the court, from $350 to $450, and the city prosecuting attorney from $500 to $750.

These salaries would be effective from Jan. 1, 1926, and the mayor and members of the present council would not benefit by it, unless re-elected next December.

The committee of the council is desirous of having the public informed of the action which it will ask the council to take at its next meeting.

Following the appearance before the council, at its last regular meeting, of Attorney Archibald Macdonald, Jr., requesting an increase in salary for the city court officials, the common council authorized the mayor to appoint a committee to consider the matter of revising the city charter to make such an increase possible.

The committee has held a number of meetings, has caused to be drafted two bills for presentation to the general assembly, and has prepared a recommendation for presentation at the meeting in February.

In order that the citizens of Putnam might have opportunity to discuss the matter, the committee, feeling that the people of Putnam had a right to know what was proposed, wishes the report of the committee to the council to be made public before the council meeting.

The committee's report is a plain statement of what it proposes to do, and is as follows:

"The committee appointed by the mayor, upon vote of the common council, following the appearance before the council at its last regular meeting of Attorney Archibald Macdonald, Jr., who requested that the officials of the city court be granted increases in salary, held several meetings to consider necessary amendments to the city charter.

"The committee unanimously agreed, voted and recommend that the salary of the judge of the city court be increased from $500 per annum to $750 per annum; that the salary of the prosecuting attorney be increased from $500 to $750 per annum, and that the salary of the deputy judge and clerk of the city court be increased from $300 per annum to $450 per annum.

"The committee also thoroughly discussed the advisability of the payment of salaries to future mayors and members of the common council.

"Believing that the time has arrived when, due to their increased burdens, responsibilities and demands upon their time, the mayor and members of the common council should, in some measure, be compensated for their services to the city, the committee has unanimously agreed, voted and recommends that the salary of the mayor of the city of Putnam be $500 per annum; that the alderman-at-large receive $10 for each of the twelve regular meetings of the common council he attends each year; that each alderman receive the sum of $5 for each of the twelve regular meetings he attends each year, and that the common council be empowered to fix the salary of the chairman of the highway committee at a sum not to exceed $200 per annum.

"The committee has caused to be drafted two bills for presentation to the general assembly so amending the city charter that these recommendations as to salaries may become effective Jan. 1, 1926.

"The committee is also unanimous and emphatic in recommending that the city ordinance be completely revised."

The committee has already drafted the two bills for presentation to the general assembly, and they will be introduced at once, as the time for receiving new measures expires Jan. 31.

The funeral of Emilian Durand, the Putnam grocer who was killed Saturday when his delivery truck was struck by a New Haven train, is to be held today (Tuesday).

From an examination of Mr. Durand's machine, it was found that he had applied the brakes, evidently having seen the approaching train, and tried to keep it from going on the track. He was one of the best known business men in the northern end of the city. For 17 years he was an assistant to his father, George M. Durand, in conducting a grocery store. Seven years ago he opened a store for himself on Battey street and had been very successful. His parents, his wife and four children survive: Mrs. Fred Lapoint, who was married on Thanksgiving day of last year, and Lena, Sylvia and Edward.

Rev. John C. Stoddard, whose differences with influential members of the First Baptist church of this city have appeared at some length in the press during the past two months, preached his farewell sermon Sunday. The church will be closed next Sunday, Jan. 25, after which Rev. Dr. Lockwood of Boston will become temporary pastor of the church.

Superior court will resume its sessions at 10 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning, at which time the hearing of the case of the state vs. Charles Brzuch, charged with violation of the liquor laws, will be resumed.

REP. F. L. HUTCHINS DIES AT WORCESTER HOSPITAL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 19.—Frederick L. Hutchins, 63, representative from the town of Thompson to the general assembly, died at the Memorial hospital, Worcester, Sunday, following a surgical operation. He was taken ill Wednesday last with an acute attack which manifested itself in a swelling in the neck which interfered with his breathing and swallowing. Tuesday he was taken to the Day Kimball hospital here, where it was advised that a specialist be consulted, and the following day he was removed to the Memorial hospital, where an operation was immediately performed. This proved of no avail, death resulting Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Hutchins was elected in November to fill his second term. He attended the organization of the legislature Jan. 7 and was elected chairman of the committee on prisons, and a member of the committee on senatorial and congressional districts.

Mr. Hutchins was apparently in good health until his last illness. He came to Thompson about fourteen years ago and for a time was lessee and manager of the Vernon Stiles inn but for several years past was not actively negaged in any business.

Besides his widow, four sisters and three brothers survive. The former are Mrs. Earle and Mrs. Carter, who live in California, Mrs. Carpenter of Seneca, N. H., and Mrs. Noyes of Laconia, N. H. The brothers are John Hutchins of Stratford, Conn., Frank of Pittsfield, N. H., and Warner of Philadelphia.

Speaker E. L. Darbie of Killingly, of the house of representatives, said Monday afternoon that he had appointed a committee of nine members of the house to attend Representative Hutchins' funeral this (Tuesday) afternoon. Representative Clark of Canterbury is chairman of this committee and associated with him are Representatives Desaulniers of Thompson, Baker and Johnson of Woodstock, Rich and Pechie of Putnam, Potter of Brooklyn, Buck of Ashford and Windhorst of Warren, in Litchfield county.

Though the legislature was not in session Monday, Speaker Darbie made arrangements by telephone for members of the committee to attend the funeral. In the house today (Tuesday) memorial resloutions pertaining to the death of the representative will be introduced late in the session and a motion made for adjournment in respect to the memory of Representative Hutchins.

Passengers traveling between Jewett City and Norwich are taking note of the unusual number of shelldrakes that are enjoying the icy waters of the Quinebaug. A flock of 16 was seen in the river bend below the seven-mile curve. It is of interest to watch these hardy visitors rise from the water, also to see them strike the surface after a long flight. Barring these two operations, there is nothing to it; on the wing they are like an arrow from the bow. They can pass a trolley if they wish, as though it were anchored to the rails. They are protected by law, but it is needless energy expended by the lawmakers. Not one hunter in fifty ever shoots one, for they are exceedingly hard to come at. If one is shot, it is ten to one that it cannot be retrieved. One trial at stuffing and roasting Mr. Shelldrake for the table is ample. In spite of culinary skill, he tastes like a codfish stewed in kerosene, and boiled owl must play a second part, when it comes to being "tuff"!

During repairs at the railroad crossing, Saturday, a flagman was stationed nearby that all approaching traffic over the state road might receive due warning.

Because it became a self-evident fact of need, the station platform is now lighted Sunday nights. Now, says the observant citizen, if they would take off the dinky gas flappers and let a train do a train's job, we should think the N. H. railroad company was not so bad!

ANCIENT HOUSE AT GIANT'S NECK BURNED

Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed a house owned by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Brockett in the summer colony at Giant's Neck, East Lyme, early Friday night. The house which was located on what is known as The Farm was an old structure, probably built about 100 years ago and its furniture was mostly antique. The loss is estimated at $2,000.

Edwin Luce, who lives about a mile from the Brockett house gave the alarm to the Niantic fire department, which arrived upon the scene in about ten minutes despite the slippery conditions of the road. The house was practically burned to the ground, however, when the firemen arrived. It is thought that the fire was started by tramps who sought shelter in the house from the storm.

COASTING ACCIDENTS.

It was only a few days ago that there was a fatal accident on the Colchester road when children sliding down hill collided with a vehicle in the highway.

Middletown reports its first coasting accident of the season where a boy in trying to avoid two others was thrown off the sled and killed when he struck a pole.

At Lebanon, Pa., a girl was instantly killed, and another was reported to be dying, as the result of sliding directly in front of an electric car.

These are only a few of the many coasting fatalities and accidents that have been recorded thus early in the winter, but they serve to accentuate the danger which exists, especially where the hills used for coasting are used for vehicular traffic and where they intersect other streets.

There is no desire to curb the pleasure of children. There is no wish to deny them the delightful and exhilarating fun of sliding down hill, but there is good and sufficient reason for throwing as many safeguards about them as possible and to apply such restrictions as are necessary to protect them against death and injury.

In view of the youngsters who are permitted to slide on hills, which in themselves are entirely safe for them, but which mean that they must dart out of blind corners into the path of automobile travel or possibly in front of a trolley car, the wonder is that there are not more accidents and deaths than there are. The kiddies are oblivious to danger. They are intent upon their sliding and giving no thought to the possibilities of swiftly moving machines. They do not understand until it is too late that there is anything else for them to do but slide, and it is under just such circumstances that the deplorable tragedies occur, and it is because they do and because there is good and sufficient reason for preventing them that there is so much said and urged in behalf of protection. Prevention is certainly preferable to injury or death, and enough accidents will occur when the greatest care is exerted.

THRIFT WEEK.

Thrift week is with us once more, and it must be said that its object is so highly commendable that it should receive the attention of many more than will probably give it a second thought.

Special weeks are too often considered as intended solely for the school children. The opportunity for planting there the seed that will develop into a well grounded opinion later on cannot be overlooked, and certainly whether it concerns patriotism, safety or thrift the idea is a most excellent one of getting it before the children correctly and persistently for the future benefits.

But there is no reason why it should be restricted to the children. For the same reason that it is desirous for them to understand its importance in the present as well as the days to come, it is equally desirable that there should be a general and better recognition of thrift on the part of the general public. It ought not to be overlooked and sidetracked and brought into operation only when the children are able to make use of it.

Waste is one of the great tendencies which needs to be curbed. This doesn't mean that a person must be penurious or niggardly, but that consideration should be given to taking care of what is possessed, to looking out for the rainy day, to eliminating extravagance, to saving when there is a chance to do so and to recognizing the importance of looking after one's self before the time comes when it cannot be done.

Thrift week has its value in directing the attention of those who need it but have never practiced it to what it has in store for them, and to the many instances of individuals who would be in far different circumstances had they been willing to insure their own independence instead of following policies that have made them dependents. There is no danger that there will be too much said or urged in behalf of thrift.

TACKLING SOUTHERN PROBLEM

What must be regarded as an excellent move in the right direction is the work that is being done by or through the activity of the commission on interracial cooperation. This commission has its headquarters at Atlanta, Ga., a most fitting place for the conduct of such work, and by its report claim is made for a valuable contribution to the marked reduction in lynchings. Considering the contentious position Georgia has held among the states as an exponent of lynch law, it is not surprising that public sentiment has crystallized to the point of suppressing it, and there is evidence of real advancement in a study of the best method of upholding law and order when interracial cooperation is undertaken instead of trying to better conditions through race antagonism.

Through the efforts of this commission provisions are being made for better schools for the Negroes, better sanitation, more playgrounds and libraries, improved conditions of travel and other advantages which are certain to play an important part in the development of the colored people.

Whenever there has been reference made to the conditions which existed in Georgia regarding lynching, and that has its particular bearing upon the treatment of the colored people, the claim has been made that the better element of the state did not countenance the lynch spirit. That better spirit has been a long time in asserting itself, but if it has gotten into action and is being pursued with the indicated sincerity the very thing which has so long been needed is apparently well underway.

The south has labored under its own ideas regarding the treatment of the Negroes for a long time. The work of the commission, directed as it is by southerners, indicates a change of view and a grasp of the situation which is most encouraging. The results as viewed by the commission itself are decidedly impressive. They show the good results of what has been accomplished but they also emphasize the need of bearing down harder and keeping everlastingly at it.

TRIBUTES TO SENATORS.

Not only fitting but deserved where the tributes that were paid to the late Senator Frank B. Brandegee in the United States senate Monday. How general was recognized the worth of the former Connecticut member of that body is reflected in the bipartisan eulogies. There was full appreciation of the stalwart mind and the sound judgment that were so often displayed by him. Value was attached to them and due weight was given to what he had to say, even though his voice was not the most frequently heard on the senate floor. Those who worked with him, in committee room as well as in the senate, know what a service he rendered during the years he was at Washington. There was no ostentation. There were no flourishes. It was keen, analytical conviction, based upon seasoned judgment that he gave, and he gave it briefly and to the point. Effective speaker that he was, there was no beating about the bush. He was the substantial sort of a senator who made a lasting impression, both for what he had to say and the way he said it.

Not a bit overdrawn were the eulogies, and while there were those who were paying tribute to Senator Brandegee there were others, with equal feeling and reason, who were presenting memories of such a national figure as the late Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts and of the late Senator LeBaron B. Colt of Rhode Island.

A trio of rugged New Englanders was removed by death from the upper house of the national legislature within a short period. The loss of their services means much not only to this part of the country but to the nation in general.

HOOVER'S DECISION.

There are reasons for believing that Secretary Hoover has made the right decision in expressing his desire to remain at the head of the department of commerce instead of accepting a transfer to the department of agriculture. It is nevertheless a compliment to his ability as a cabinet member that he should be invited to undertake the important task of getting as successful results in another department as he has obtained in the commerce department.

Secretary Hoover took the post of secretary of commerce when that department was not considered as important in its accomplishments as it is today. He has brought his organization knowledge and his understanding of foreign conditions to bear, and he has gone deep into the work of his department with most gratifying results. That he has made progress toward a goal for which he set out four years ago is not enough. He is engaged in no small amount of reorganization, and while a job well begun is half done, he takes the right view that he should remain with it until it is completed.

If it is possible for the country to get greater benefit from the commerce department, let us by all means have it. This in no ways belittles the task ahead of the agricultural department, where Mr. Hoover could be expected to put forth the same degree of devoted attention, but the old idea of not changing horses while crossing a stream is still a good one, and there will be a general recognition of it in Mr. Hoover's decision to remain where he is.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 19.—The incoming of Governor Hiram Bingham of Connecticut into the senate has drawn attention to the number of governors who have been elected to the congress now in session.

Eighteen of the 48 states are today represented in that body by men who have served as governors of their respective states and in some instances both of the senators from a state have so served, making the number of former senators to sit in the senate today 24 out of the total of 96.

Moreover the president of the United States, Calvin Coolidge, was governor before assuming the high offices of vice president and president.

In several states it has long been the practice to try out a man as governor before electing him to the senate, and in others it has been regarded as detrimental to political interests to put up an ex-governor for the office.

Three states now are represented entirely in the senate by men who are ex-governors. They are: New Jersey, with Edge, republican, and Edwards, democrat, represent; Connecticut, with McLean and Bingham, both republicans; and Wyoming with Warren, republican, and Kendrick, democrat.

States represented by governors are Arkansas, Robinson; California, Johnson; Florida, Trammell; Idaho, Gooding; Indiana, Ralston; Iowa, Cummins; Kansas, Capper; Kentucky, Stanley; Maine, Fernald; Massachusetts, Walsh; Michigan, Ferris; Nevada, Oddie; New Hampshire, Keyes; North Dakota, Frazier; Ohio, Willis; South Dakota, Norbeck; Virginia, Swanson; Wisconsin, La-Follette. It is notable that out of the 18 states so represented, the three New England states of Connecticut, Massachusetts and New Hampshire have sent either one or both senators as their senatorial representatives.

It's been a week of routine work in congress for the most part. The appropriation bills are well advanced and there is nothing in the way of obstruction or the forcing of a special session in sight. The president will insist on a quiet, dignified inauguration. He does not object to a suitable military escort to the capitol, but he has put his foot down firmly against a big parade, a blare of trumpets, and the sending of great military organizations from distant states. Nor will he countenance a ball or anything of the sort as a part of the official proceedings. There will be a great charity ball that night, but it will be unofficial. That is not only in keeping with the president's desire for a simple ceremony, but it will also conform to the semi-mourning of the president's family. At the end of a six month period after the death of their beloved son, President and Mrs. Coolidge resumed the state social functions at the white house, and Mrs. Coolidge has attended and given at the white house a number of musicals. But they have cut out the theater, dances and all gay functions and evidently intend to do so for some time to come. Their son John attended a number of gay little affairs for the younger set when here for the Christmas holidays, but the President and Mrs. Coolidge have no desire to enter into gaiety this winter, except as it becomes a part of the executive duties to do so.

New Hampshire is raising a vigorous protest against the proposed abandonment of certain branches of the Boston & Maine railroad in that state and this week the attorney-general of New Hampshire was here in conference with the interstate commerce commission bringing a formal protest from the governor of the Granite state. As a result no action can be taken by the railroad until after hearings are held.

At the state dinner given this week by President and Mrs. Coolidge for the diplomatic corps, 45 countries were represented. Seven were ambassadors, 24 were ministers and a notable incident was that 15 countries were represented by charge d' affairs, there being either vacancies or absences of ambassadors or ministers from those 15 nations.

Among them were China and Japan, the others mostly from the South American states. Seniority of service gives precedence in all diplomatic functions, and so rapid have been recent changes that the ambassador from Germany becomes third in rank with the incoming of the new French ambassador only Spain and Belgium outranking him in point of service.

The speed with which President Coolidge makes his appointments after vacancy in high offices is the wonder of the town. "Cautious Cal" is not a suitable nickname any longer, or perhaps it is better to say that the president's bump of caution is working over time, and he sees the wisdom of selecting a successor before he makes known the proposed change. It works out well so far, for instead of being beset with petitions, or what is best from a political standpoint, as viewed by local party workers, the president goes his own way, picks out the man he believes will fill the bill and then makes the double announcement. Never before in white house history has this been done. It's a sort of 'look before you leap' policy that seems especially fitted to the Coolidge temperament. McKenna quit the supreme court, and the president named Stone as his successor the same day. That left Stone's place vacant and the president named Warren before the day had passed. When Hughes' resignation was made known, the announcement that Kellogg had been selected and had accepted were published in the same paragraph. And so it has been all the way down the line, even to the retirement of Secretary Slemp and the naming of Sanders in his place. Frank Stearns says there is nothing unusual in it, or that is the president's policy; and it does away with the notion that Coolidge is slow of action. He is unquestionably deliberate when occasion requires, but he doesn't jump the fence till he knows where he will land on the other side.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Heads of Families

In order that they may take full advantage of the exemptions provided by the revenue act of 1924, taxpayers are reminded that a single person if he or she is the head of a family is allowed the same exemption as a married person—$2,500. Under the preceeding act this $2,500 exemption was allowed only when the net income was 5,000 or less. If in excess of $5,000 the exemption was $2,000.

A head of a family as defined by the latest income tax regulations as a person who actually supports and maintains in one household one or more individuals who are closely connected with him by blood relationship, relationship by marriage, or by adoption, and whose right to exercise family control and provide for these dependent individuals is based upon some moral or legal obligation."

Mere support of relatives does not entitle a taxpayer to a status as the head of a family. The dependent must be a member of the taxpayer's household. In addition to the personal exemption of $2,500 a head of a family is allowed a credit of $400 for each person depending upon him or her for chief support if such person is under 18 years of age or incapable of self support because mentally or physically defective. Such dependent need not be a relative, nor need he be a member of the taxpayer's household.

Following are examples of the exemption and credits allowed a head of a family: A son supports in his own household an aged mother and two sisters both under 18 years of age. The son's net income for 1924 was $4,000. He is allowed an exemption of $2,500 as the head of the family, plus a credit of $400 for each head of the three dependents, a total of $3,700. A son living in New York supports an aged father living in Baltimore. The son's income was $3,000. If single he is allowed only an exemption of $1,000 and a credit of $400 for his dependent father, the latter not being a member of the son's household.

A widower with one dependent child had a net income for 1924 of $3,000. He is entitled to the exemption of $2,500 as the head of a family, plus the $400 credit for a dependent.

Atterbury Earned 50 Cent a Day

After William W. Atterbury, the Yale graduate had determined not to be a burden to his family, he learned what hard work, self-denial, and subordination really were.

Son of a lawyer who gave up money-making for religious work, the boy was taken from his native New Albany, Ind. to Detroit, where he grew up with a greater love for the out-of-doors than for books, and was "fired" from public schools for fighting the teacher.

Completing the mechanical engineering course at Yale at 20, he started as special apprentice at the Pennsylvania Railroad shops at Altoona, Pa., at 50 cents a day. Soon afterward his father died and William made the resolve to support himself.

By working overtime to make extra money whenever possible and by sleeping at night in the bed that was used by the night watchman during the day, he was able to eke out a living. Then came a dispute with his gang foreman, and Atterbury was told by the shop foreman that even though he were right, he must respect authority.

At 23 he was made assistant road foreman at Philadelphia, then he was sent to Pittsburgh and later to Wilmington, Del. As master mechanic of the shops at Fort Wayne, Ind., he learned train dispatching at night. Only 28 when the great strike of the American Railway Union threatened to tie up the road he ran the engine and turned the switches for the first train, and kept his line open longer than any other railroad.

Made general manager of the Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburgh at 37, he was the youngest man that had ever held a similar position. Made fifth vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad in charge of operation, at 43, he continued to rise, and when the United States entered the World War, he was second vice president. His direction of the construction and operation of military railroads in France won decorations and offers to remain in the country, but he returned to Pennsylvania System and evolved the employees' representation plan that won him fame.

And he is scheduled to become president of the Pennsylvania System this year.

THE HANDY MAN

"My husband is a lot of use around the house," the bride told her caller proudly. "And I don't say it because he's new and mine and all that, but because he really is of considerable comfort. He can mend screens and put back doorknobs when they fall off and paint the kitchen floor and do a thousand things I never dreamed of. I knew I'd married a smart man, because everybody told me so, and I had an idea of it myself, but I didn't imagine he was so clever around the house. But my dear, I do want to tell you what he did the other evening."

"I'll be delighted to hear it," said her caller with interest.

"I've been very enthusiastic," laughed the bride. "In fact, I've been wild enough to suit anybody, I guess, and maybe I talked too much about Billy's clever ways to people who dropped in. Anyhow, I made the mistake of talking about his smartness when he was present and he grew real puffed up about it all. Once or twice I heard him telling folks himself that he was quite a wonder about doing things and I know they were much amused at him. I thought that was as bad as having a smarty child, so I set myself to see what I could do to take him down a peg."

"You cruel girl!" laughed the caller. "Why not let him boast a bit about his smartness? It wouldn't hurt him any."

"It hurts me," chuckled the bride. "I don't mind his being smarter than I am in his own line, but I declare that I can't stand his outshining me at my own job. It wouldn't do at all.

"I'm a good cook if I do say it as shouldn't," continued the bride, "and last Sunday I decided I'd ask Billy's uncle and aunt over for supper. I suppose I ought to call it tea, but they always call it supper and we did not have a drop of tea, so I'm going to stick to the old name.

"Well I had a perfectly nice supper all planned out. And I made the salad and other cold things early so that there would be no rush at the last. It was just as well I did, because I was telephoned to in the middle of the afternoon and told that a cousin of mine was passing through and wanted me to come down to the station to visit with her for an hour or so. I went, but being afraid I might be late in getting back I left Billy in charge of the percolator. I told him to start it at a certain minute and I showed him where to connect it and how to turn the chandelier button and the key at the percolator and all that. He was quite boastful of his skill at starting percolators, though he had never done it in his life, and I felt feeling quite comfortable with him there to welcome his family if they came early."

"You are a good manager," said the caller admiringly. "Did you have a nice visit with the cousin?"

"That part was lovely," the bride said. "But when I got home I found a distracted husband and the percolator was as cold as ice. It was past time for the guests to come and I was surprised and quite dismayed to see how excited he was.

"He said he'd been working over the darn thing for an hour and he'd tried everything he could think of but he couldn't make it work. He had even called up five different friends of mine to ask about starting percolators and they had given him directions enough to fill a book. It put an end to his bragging any more about his being a good house man for all the crowd jokes him about it every time they see him now. It took me five minutes to go over all the different points of the thing and see what was wrong and I discovered the trouble just as his relatives were ringing the bell."

"Smart girl," cried the caller. "You must be quite a mechanician to know more than all those other girls."

"Oh no," laughed the bride modestly. "They just didn't think it was necessary to tell him to turn on the electric light key switch over the door, that's all."—Chicago News.

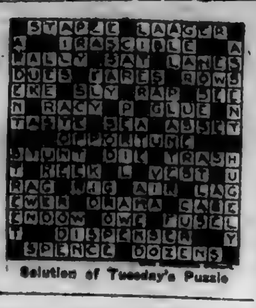
IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, who may be the first woman to sit as a federal judge, is now Assistant Attorney general of the federal government. Since her appointment to this post four years ago she has been in charge of the division handling cases having to do with prohibition, employees' compensation and tax laws. Her record of service has been such that her appointment by the president to the vacancy in the federal court for northern California would create no surprise. Mrs. Willebrandt is a native of Kansas and received her education at the Arizona Normal school and the University of Southern California. Her first vocation was that of a school teacher. While thus engaged she took up the study of law and after being admitted to the bar began practice in Los Angeles, where she appeared in many hundreds of cases as "public defender of women."



Solution of Tuesday's Puzzle

CHILD TRAINING

YOUR CHILD'S IDEA OF THRIFT

Edith Lockridge Reid

When you give your child his school allowance on Monday morning does he have an idea where it came from? When you take your daughter downtown and buy her a new coat, does she think that the "Charge it, please," settles the account?

Just recently Richard wanted to buy a second-hand bicycle which a chum had to sell, but his father told him he didn't have the money to spare. "Well, give me a check," said Richard, and when Daddy explained that there wasn't any more money in the bank, Richard insisted, "Why there is, too. I saw my teacher come out of there this noon with some dollars they had given her."

Now Richard doesn't belong to an illiterate family, nor to a poverty stricken one either. His father makes a deposit in the savings bank each time he receives his salary check, although he may run low on his checking account the last of the month. But Richard, although past nine years old, still thinks that banks exist in the community to pass out money per order by check.

Teaching thrift is not only a parental duty, but it is a civic obligation which the family owes to the community. To be sure, it takes more time and patience to divide up the savings account into respective accounts for each member of the family, but any moral training takes effort. Why not give five-year-old son his ten or twenty-five cents a week and then take him down to the bank and show him where to put half of it or a fourth for safe keeping? If he spends the remainder for candy on the way home, let him learn the consequences of such procedure by going without luxuries of that sort the rest of the week.

Good habits are so much easier taught when the child is still in the home or at least in his very early school years because then he has fewer distractions and temptations, and his mind is most impressionable. If we can succeed in getting the child to follow a safe and sane schedule while directly under home influence, there is a pretty good chance of his keeping to it.

The mother who hands out her children pennies and nickles without restriction during their babyhood, will find them demanding dollars in later years with no appreciation whatever and with no idea of their value except as they translate it into terms of icecream sods and frills.

Thrift involves more than the mere putting of money into the bank from a stated allowance. It is moral training in self-denial, promptness, reasoning, and a right attitude toward the family finances and home comforts. Children taught to save intelligently make better men and women; they are usually successful in business and are self-reliant and contented.

Take your boys to the savings bank next week when he gets his allowance, get him a deposit book like "big folks" and watch his eyes shine.

Recently our Elinor opened a savings account and a few days afterwards when a new little neighbor came over to get acquainted, Elinor said, "Don't you want to trade at my bank?"

So the thrift habit and its influence may easily spread. The time spent in teaching the child to save is a good investment and will always bring its own reward.

Stories That Recall Others

Just Tickled to Death.

Evidently Jack had been cautioned by his mother to show his appreciation of any gift he might receive for Christmas. At a party at the home of a neighbor, Jack was not forgetful of his mothers admonition. The presents were being distributed and even before Jack, who is only four years old, had received one, he tip-toed up to one of the ladies who was assisting and lisped: "You know we got to be pleased with whatever we get."

Generosity Itself

A guest had arrived at the Jones home to spend the holidays and Bessie was not only quite attentive to her mother's old friend whom she had not seen before, but wished to make as much of an impression as possible.

Mrs. Jones who was downstairs, heard hurried footsteps coming toward her, and looked up to see what was causing such haste on the part of her small daughter.

"Muvver," said Bessie, "her's forgotten her 'toof' brush and which one shall I tell her to use?" Mrs. Jones decided her efforts to teach Bessie to be generous had not been in vain.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

Peter's Rude Awakening

The ugly brambles have their use
And for existence good excuse.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit, trying to make up his mind just where he wanted to go, was so absent-minded that he had wholly forgotten everything else. At times he almost forgot to keep on hopping. Not once did the look back to see if he were being followed. Not once did he look to the left or right. So he didn't see Reddy Fox coming swiftly behind him, and he didn't see Hooty the Owl coming on great, silent wings from the Green Forest. Reddy Fox saw Hooty, and Hooty saw Reddy Fox. Each wanted Peter for dinner. Reddy started to run faster and in doing this he became just a wee bit careless about the matter of making no sound.

Reddy put his claws into the frozen snow to keep from slipping. They made a little scratching noise. Peter heard it and looked back over his shoulder. Then Peter came out of his absent-mindedness. He bounded forward and at the same instant he saw what looked like a great moving shadow. He knew it was Hooty the Owl. It was a rude awakening. Yes, indeed, it was a rude awakening, and Peter's heart was in his mouth, or at least it seemed so to him, as he made those long legs of his go just as fast as he knew how.

It was a fortunate thing for Peter that that awakening came when he was only a short distance from a bramble-tangle on the edge of the Green Forest. If he could reach that he would be safe. But could he reach it? Reddy Fox was almost at his heels. Hooty the Owl was already reaching for him with those terrible great claws of his. There was just one thing to do, and Peter did it. He dodged. He dodged just in the nick of time. The tip of one of Hooty's great wings actually brushed against him.

Reddy Fox had been expecting Peter to dodge, and Reddy had turned almost as quickly as Peter had. Peter had hardly straightened out again on his way to the bramble-tangle before Reddy was at his heels. Again Peter dodged. This time he dodged just as Reddy made a long jump which he had expected would catch Peter. Reddy had to stop and turn, so Peter gained a little. But by this time Hooty the Owl was once more almost above him and ready to swoop and clutch him with those great, cruel claws. They actually touched him as Peter dodged for a third time.

This time Hooty was between Peter and Reddy Fox. Reddy lost his temper. He snapped at one of Hooty's big wings. But he let go in a hurry, for Hooty managed to strike him with that big hooked bill of his and it hurt. Then both resumed their chase of Peter.

But this had given Peter the chance he needed. Before either of them were within striking distance of him Peter plunged headlong into that bramble-tangle through a little opening that was just big enough for him, but not big enough for Reddy Fox. Peter was safe. When he had regained his breath and his heart had stopped thumping so hard with fright he actually chuckled as he listened to the quarrel between Reddy Fox and Hooty the Owl, each accusing the other of having cheated him of a dinner.

WILL DIM TROLLEY LIGHTS FOR ECLIPSE

Because of the great amount of public interest in the coming eclipse of the sun on January 24th, the Connecticut company has issued instructions to the operators of its cars throughout the state that lights on the trolley cars are not to be turned on at any time during the eclipse. As soon as the darkness becomes such as to make operation unsafe, operators are instructed to bring their cars to a stop and remain at a standstill until daylight conditions again become such as to make operation safe. These instructions have been given with the idea of co-operating in the effort to make it possible for everyone to see the event of a total eclipse of the sun which has not occurred in this locality and will not occur again during the present generation.

SAYS FREIGHT RATE ADJUSTMENT WOULD COST NORWICH OVER $100,000

A freight rate adjustment that will bear heavily upon New England and which it is estimated will cost Norwich from $100,000 to $300,000, if it is put into effect as proposed, was the principal topic for the January membership meeting of the chamber of commerce which was held Monday evening at the Wauregan house with supper at 6.15, and W. F. Price of Glastonbury, traffic manager for the J. B. Williams Co., and vice president of the New England Traffic league, as the speaker.

Mr. Price explained what is involved in the eastern class rate investigation and told of the traffic league's plan to appear in opposition to the proposed rates as well as to present a constructive plan of its own in substitution. The traffic league is endeavoring to raise $30,000 to finance the expense of its appearance before the interstate commerce commission and is inviting chambers of commerce to contribute towards this fund.

During the meeting Swahn's orchestra furnished music and C. E. Carpenter was song leader for the 75 men at the tables.

Against 20th Amendment

President Arthur E. Story opened the business part of the evening by asking for a vote upon the referendum upon the 20th amendment, the so-called child labor amendment to the U. S. constitution.

The members voted their opposition to the amendment, with but one dissenting voice.

On Shantok State Park

President Story spoke of the establishment of state parks and called upon Arthur L. Peale to speak of the proposed Shantok park at Massapeag. Mr. Peale described what had been done in this line by the preparation of a bill for an appropriation of $15,000 to secure the O'Brien farm and the development of Shantok park in order to preserve these historic spots.

Spoke on Freight Rates

President Story presented Mr. Price, who was given a rising vote of thanks after he had concluded his address upon the freight rate subject and was asked a number of questions at the end of his talk.

He spoke as follows:

At no time in the history of New England have we had an adjustment of rates as important to our prosperity as the present. No responsibility should be put on the railroads for the present situation. It is the result of a direct action on the part of the interstate commerce commission. The commission has distinctly stated that this adjustment of rates is not a revenue measure. In other words it is not a question of whether the railroads should or should not receive more money.

The commission's action was made necessary by the present rate situation in official classification territory. This territory covers all points south of the Canadian border, east of the Mississippi river and north of the Virginia-Tennessee state line. Within this territory there are three rate groups—the New England group extending from the Atlantic to the Hudson river; the Trunk line territory from the Hudson river west to the Buffalo-Pittsburgh line; the Central Freight Association extends west from the Buffalo-Pittsburgh line to the Mississippi river.

Already the commission has investigated and laid out an orderly system of rates in two of these territories; that is, central freight association territory and New England territory. The rates in these two territories are based on mileage. Furthermore, they relate one to the other. For example: The rates in New England are the same as those applying in the Michigan lower peninsular in central freight association territory; also the rela exists one class to the other. In both territories the relationship of class rates is as follows:

First, 100 per cent.; second, 85 per cent.; third, 67 per cent.; 4th, 50 per cent.; fifth, 35 pe rcent.; 6th, 28 per cent.

From this you will see that there is an orderly, systematic, as well as a related rate structure in New ngland and central freight association territory.

Between these two territories lies the trunk line section. The rates in trunk line territory are not based on mileage. There are hundreds of violations of the fourth section of the act to regulate congress. There is no relationship between classes; in fact, the least that can be said about trunk line rates are that they are a hodgepodge. The condition in the trunk line territory is reflected in the rates applying from one territory to the other.

It is self-evident to anyone who is interested in rates that this condition cannot remain. It would be an illusion to expect to retain the same structure as exists today. Because the commission declares that this is not a revenue measure, any adjustment means there will be increases and there will be decreases. In other words, it is a give-and-take proposition.

The railroads have proposed to adjust these rates by publishing about fifteen rate structures. There is no use in going into all of them. Roughly, they are a mileage scale in both New England and Trunk line territory; also from New England to trunk line territory. The rates from New England and from trunk line territory to central freight association territory; that is, points west of the Buffalo-Pittsburgh line will remain on what is known as the percentage basis, New York to Chicago being 100 per cent., points west increasing, as for instance, St. Louis being 117 per cent., points beyond decreasing, as for instance, Detroit Mich., being 78 per cent.

The change they propose in these central freight association rates is to bring the relationship of one class as against another in line with the relationship shown by the commission in both central freight and New England territory; that is, 100 per cent. first class, 85 per cent. second class, 67 per cent. third class, etc. They arrive at this arrangement by taking the present fifth class rate calling that 35 per cent. and working up to first class of 100 per cent. and down to sixth, 28 per cent. It results in a raise in the first four classes. It results in a decrease in the sixth class with plenty of exceptions to this.

The affect of the railroads proposal is to put the burden of increase on New England shippers, especially to put it on Connecticut manufacturers. Manufactured articles as a whole take the first four classes. Connecticut is known as containing probably the biggest shippers of manufactured articles in America.

The proposal of the railroads raises the rates on the first four classes. The railroads' rates afford some decreases, but the percentage applying in New England is so small as to have no bearing on this case.

Let me give you a few rate comparisons showing the freight rate in cents per 100 pounds in the six classes:

Of course, points west of the Mississippi river will be correspondingly increased because the rates are made up on the combinations, one of which receives the increase.

Just what this increase means to a community is indicated by the fact that Bridgeport has estimated that these proposed rates will cost them somewhere around $700,000 a year, Hartford has estimated $300,000 a year. New Britain has estimated $300,000 to $500,000.

In view of the estimates made by other sections, it is reasonable to assume that Norwich's increase will not be less than from one to three hundred thousand dollars a year. Any firm can estimate the approximate amount of increase to them by figuring 10 to 15 per cent addition on the present freight paid. With a retail merchant, he can pass the additional freight on to the customer, but the fact remains that if you pass on $100,000 freight to the customer, the customer has got to earn one hundred thousand dollars more in order to buy the same amount of goods. In the case of a manufacturer, and this applies whether the shipment is prepaid or collect, it means he has got to absorb this increase in freight or else restrict the territory of distribution.

Under the present rate structure, the manufacturer may be able to sell goods as far west as Kansas City. Under the new structure, he could hardly go further west than St. Louis. The automobile interests throughout Michigan have practically notified the manufacturers in New England that if these increases go into effect the New England manufacturer has got to absorb them, otherwise they will purchase from local industries. It is reasonable to assume that similar action will be taken in many other kinds of business.

This brings us to the question of what is to be done about the proposition, and that is the one thing that has brought me down to Norwich.

You can either stand stationary and let the present rates go into effect or you can co-ordinate and support both morally and financially other communities and other industries in not only opposing these increases (which in itself is not sufficient, as it is very much similar to destructive criticism) but in working up and presenting to the commission a rate structure which better accomplishes the commission's desire and gives New England protection necessary to her welfare.

There is just one organization which is in a position to handle a matter of this character, and that is the New England Traffic league. This organization is composed of manufacturers, retail merchants of state manufacturers and industrial organizations and chambers of commerce throughout New England.

The New England traffic league has already filed opposition. It has employed counsel and has taken out of its own treasury $5,000 as the basis for raising the funds necessary to protect New England in this case. It has estimated that the total expense will be around $20,000. This expense is used entirely for employment of counsel, statistics and exhibits to be placed before the commission. The work of individual members, such as myself and other traffic men, is contributed gratis.

With the $5,000 as a basis, they have called upon the individual manufacturers, chambers of commerce and other organizations to build up the necessary $20,000.

The amount an organization should give depends entirely upon the amount that they have involved in this rate case. The man that has $5,000 involved should not pay as much as that man that has $20,000 involved. The contribution should range from $25 up.

What I am doing here tonight was done at the New Britain Chamber of Commerce. They organized a committee who raised funds not only from members but others who were affected. Last Monday they presented to the treasurer of the New England Traffic League their check for $1,000 with the statement that if more was necessary they would go out and get it.

What we would like to have you do is to get behind it in Norwich and get all the contributions possible. When the total sum has been raised, send the check to F. W. Hunt, secretary of the New England Traffic League, at 200 High street, Boston, Mass. Any amount remaining after this case is heard will be prorated and refunded to the original contributors.

Before closing, I am going to add just one more thing. I was in Boston recently attending an executive committee meeting with Mace Mangham, the attorney representing the New England Traffic league. It is impossible for me to give out information, but this much I will say: That I have seen a number of similar cases in the last fifteen years, but the one the league will present to the commission in this case is, in my estimation, the strongest ever presented to the commission. It is a constructive case and one which, when compared with the rate proposed by the railroads, will save Norwich hundreds of thousands of dollars.

To present this case, we will have to have pretty close to $20,000 and we are depending upon the interests of New England to furnish the necessary funds to do this work in their behalf.

Norwich Chamber Has Contributed.

Child Labor Amendment.

C. Edward Carpenter, who had been the only one to vote against registering opposition to the 20th amendment on the vote early in the evening, brought up the subject again and the original maker of the motion against the amendment, Nelson Parker, agreed to have it reconsidered in order that there might be discussion as Mr. Carpenter believed the matter had been acted up too hastily.

Mr Carpenter spoke strongly in favor of the amendment, arguing that the law wouldn't affect Connecticut but that those having the welfare of children at heart ought to support it for the sake of the million of children of from 9 to 12 who can legally be employed in the south, 60 hours a week.

Mr. Parker spoke against the amendment and quoted what he said he had heard Principal Tirrell say that the children of today don't have enough to keep them out of mischief. He also said the amendment will block the apprentice system. Edwin W. Perkins said that the whole question was whether we wanted the federal government or the state legislature to make laws governing our children. The 20th amendment will give the federal government a chance to make the child labor law.

After others spoke the vote was again taken and was again opposed to the 20th amendment.

The corporation has closed a surprisingly good year and starts the new year with a large number of orders on hand indicating that the factory will soon be operating to full capacity.

A new corporation has just been organized which will have a great bearing on The H. H. Allyn Rubber corporation. This latter organization has been located in Norwich over a year now and has met with wonderful progress insofar as it has brought the name of Norwich before a great many thousand people throughout the United States and placed a Norwich product from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The formation of this new corporation, which is to be known as The Allyn Sales Corporation, will place the H. H. Allyn Rubber corporation in a position to work its factory to full capacity the year around, as the sale of the entire production will be assured through this connection.

The officers in this new venture are Fred L. Patten, president, who is now sales director of the manufacturing concern; J. Patterson Harris, secretary, and F. Stanley Lincoln, treasurer, both of Bridgeport. Mr. Lincoln and Mr. Harris are sales managers of considerable renown, and are well known to the trade throughout the country.

The new corporation is a $250,000 venture and its headquarters will be New York city.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

WEST ENDS OF BRISTOL WILL OPPOSE TAFTVILLE ARMY-NAVY CLUB TONIGHT

The Army and Navy team of Taftville are in for the hardest game they have played this season when they line up against the famous West Ends of Bristol at Taftville tonight, Tuesday. It will mark the second meeting of these two teams, the Bristolites chalking up a victory in the first encounter after a tough rub. The Army-Navy team is out to change things tonight and hand their rivals a setback.

In the lineup of the West Ends are Tommy Tracy, former Dartmouth player, and Dewey Carpenter as forwards, "Joe" Rogasky of the Terryville American Legion flingers in the tap position and Capt. Bill Shuby and Coach Heinie Carrington of the Waterbury Kaceys, and former Columbia college star, in the back court. Johnny Moore and Bill Tanner complete the lineup, which is one of the strongest in New England.

The Army and Navy five have had stiff practice sessions and feel a victory coming, as they are in top form. Fans seeing them in action last week noticed that they were pulling fast teamwork and are fast coming up among the best in the state. The encounter tonight is slated for a real battle and local fans are asked to back the home team from the stands.

There will be a slight change in the lineup for tonight's game, as Mondi

Harry Mills, who is rated one of the best cage-makers in the state, will be tapping the leather, while the Coleman brothers and Eddie Murphy will make things lively in the backfield.

In the preliminary game the Army-Navy Seconds are matched with the Masked Marvels. The Seconds will appear in their new uniforms of blue and white and will endeavor to christen them by winning from the unknown marvels of the court.

CONN, AGGIES AGAINST TRINITY QUINTET TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin)

Storrs, Conn., Jan. 19.—The Connecticut Aggies will play Trinity Tuesday night at Storrs in the first of the two games that have been scheduled between these two Connecticut rivals. Following their first setback of the sean when they fell before Wesleyan last Saturday, the Aggies will make a strong bid to return to the victory column by trimming the Hartford Collegians.

Coach Dole held a long and intensive practice session this afternoon, in which the final preparations were made for tomorrow night's game. The Aggie mentor was far from satisfied with the showing of his men in the Wesleyan game, and work today was devoted to correcting the various faults which cropped out at that time.

The basket shooting of the team from the floor has been off, the team missing many apparently easy shots. The shooting from the foul line has been ragged also, and had the team been able to connect with greater regularity Saturday, the score would have told a different story. Dole drilled his men for a long time on this phase of play and the shooting of the team showed to much better advantage.

Twenty minutes of fast scrimmage topped off the workout of the squad. Dole did not shift his lineup from that used Saturday, using Captain Bulock and Schofield at forwards, Eddy at center, Allard and Makofski as guards. This is the same lineup that Dole has used thus far this season, and it is the one that will take the floor against the Hilltoppers from Hartford.

Connecticut is especially well fortified with capable reserve material for the Trinity game, as there are a number of men on the squad who are seasoned veterans that can be called upon in the pinches. In Seymour and Greer, Coach Dole has a capable pair of substitute forwards. Seymour played regularly most of last season, when he made his letter. Bitgood, Danielson boy and O'Brien, are both letter men that can be called on whenever substitutions are necessary in the back court. In case a substitution is necessary at center, "Bill" Makofski will be moved up from a guard berth, as he has had considerable experience in that position.

The Trinity game will be the fourth this season for the Aggie team. New Hampshire was defeated 23-19 in the opener at Storrs, Springfield was whipped 26-16 on its own court, while the Storrs five fell before Wesleyan at home last Saturday. In addition to the Trinity game, the Aggies will tackle a tough opponent this week, when they stack up against the fast Army five at West Point next Saturday.

The Trinity lineup for the Aggie game has not been announced as yet, but in view of the record made to date by the team it is thought that the Aggies will be able to overcome the best that the Hartford Collegians can offer.

Coach Alexander's freshman team will journey to Suffield Wednesday to tackle the strong Suffield school quintet. Of interest to Danielson is the fact that "Pop" Williams, formerly a star athlete at Killingly High, will jump center for the Aggie yearlings. "Pop" has made a name for himself as an athlete as a member of the freshman football and basketball teams at Storrs, and it is expected that he will develop into a star of the first order when he goes out for varsity teams later on.

BULKELEY TRACK TEAM TRAIN FOR HARTFORD MEET

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 19.—Bulkeley track men assembled this afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium to prepare for the coming dual meet with Hartford Public High school to be held at the Capitol City on February 21. Because of the large number of aspirants for places on the team, the squad had been divided into two sections, with Monday and Thursday afternoons being devoted to individual instruction at the gymnasium, while on days not specified above, the track men will perform on the road in the open.

Coaches Frank B. Hamlin and Thomas R. Cook, took charge of the squad which reported this afternoon. More emphasis was paid to jumpers than dash men this afternoon, the instruction period on Thursday being probably devoted to instruction in dashes and long distance work.

In this track meet in which the four classes participated, those connected with the football squad were not allowed to participate in the meet. However, George H. Sheffott, who is Bulkeley's best bet in the dashes and Norbert Le Blanc who took the spectators by storm with his brilliant performances of long distance running will be available for the dual meet with Hartford.

Besides the dual meet with Hartford High, Bulkeley will send a representative to the Yale interscholastic meet, which will follow closely after the inter-class meet which will be held at the state armory.

CHAPMAN TECH OUT TO BEAT PLAINFIELD HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 19. Encountering a surprise defeat at the hands of Windham High at Willimantic last Friday, Chapman Tech will make a home stand with Plainfield High attempting the invading. The game will be played at the Chapman Tech auditorium on Thursday evening.

Plainfield with a 33-30 victory over the Red and Black is encouraged by the degree of success attained in the first game of the home and home series to attempt to make it a clean sweep of the series. But the defense which was notably lacking in the function of the Chapman Tech back court men has been established once more to that efficiency which bids fair to draw out ahead in the game on Thursday.

Tech is beginning to assume her mid season proportions, with improvements noticeable with each succeeding contest in which the Red and Black engages in. The quintet is evenly balanced from every angle, with a fine offense and defense player in their pivot player. Flashing two forwards, with dead - eye accuracy in hooping them, Chapman Tech will prove more troublesome Thursday to Plainfield than in the previous contest.

ROLLO-SHEFLOTT TEAM WINS AT BILLIARDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Moules and Edward Neary, by a score of 50 to 32 in the only match played this evening. The second match had to be cancelled until a later date, due to the non-appearance of two players who were matched to play this evening.

EASTERN CONN. BOWLING BANQUET PROVES GREAT GET-TOGETHER AFFAIR

The Eastern Connecticut Bowling league wound up Monday evening with a real live banquet held at Naturalization hall in Taftville, with about 60 members and alley owners of Eastern Connecticut present.

"Chip" Dugas alley owner of Norwich and Taftville, presided over the session and as usual kept things lively throughout the evening being as adept at handling the affair of the evening as he is at handling the little round ball that has smashed him through to victory in many a bowling tourney in this end of the state.

The get-together started early in the evening with a chowder served by Chef Benoit who as usual looked after his charges and saw that everyone had their fill. After the chowder there was a short business session, at which, there were talks on bowling by Roy Fillmore, manager of the Aetna alleys of Norwich. MacKenzie of Moosup and Capt. Belcher of the championship Peerless five of New London.

All three speakers talked for the good of the bowling game for Eastern Connecticut and mentioned in particular the two-man bowling tournament that is to get under way in this section of the state in the near future. Their remarks were further enlarged upon by Arthur Sumpson of the Lawrence alleys of New London and Nap Simcox of the Palace alleys of Norwich who spoke on the success of the league and expressed a desire that another league be started in the coming year, as this league, now closed has brought Eastern Connecticut bowlers solidly together after many years of separate undertaking, boosting the game as one of the cleanest of indoor games and making it the leading winter indoor sport in this section.

A time looked forward to all evening came when Myles E. Standish, secretary and treasurer of the league, Sporting Editor of the Bulletin, made a brief speech and presented the prizes to the winners of various groups. The Peerless five of New London captured the prize for league leaders second prize going to Moosup and third to Aetna of Norwich. High team total was awarded to Moosup with 1644 and high team single to the Peerless alleys of New London with 813. High individual three of 375 brought the prize to MacKenzie of Moosup, who also took high single with 169. High individual average was awarded to Roy Fillmore of the Aetna alleys who averaged 105-81 for the tournament, second high to Mike Morin of the Palace alleys of Norwich wich with 104-87 and third to Fred Aldi of the Aetna aleys, Norwich, with 104-39.

During the evening there were vocal selections by "Mike" Aldi, dancing numbers by "Chip" Dugus, "Wingo" Holt of New London and "Vin" Dixon of Norwich, and various numbers by other artists found among the men.

It was voted to hold another banquet at the end of the 1925 season the first annual banquet chalking up a "ten strike" for everyone present, every Eastern Connecticut bowler feeling that the play of the evening had resulted in a score of 300, the dream of every duck pin bowler.

ELIMINATION TOURNEY FOR LEONARD'S SUCCESSOR

New York, Jan. 19.—(By The A. P.) The New York State Athletic commission at its regular weekly meeting Wednesday, will take up proposals for an elimination tournament to determine a successor to Benny Leonard, world's lightweight champion, who retired from active competition last week, Chairman George E. Brower of the state athletic commission said today.

Official notification of Leonard's withdrawal has been received by the commissioner Mr. Brower said, and plans for the forthcoming tournament will be made, if the other members of the commission decide the tournament plan is the wairest and most logical way to crown a new champion.

As a result of the success of the featherweight tournament which ended in a victory for Louis (Kid) Kaplan of Malden, Conn., crowned world's featherweight champion by the New York commission as a result of his victory in the final round of the tournament, Chairman Brower said it is likely a similar plan will be adopted to dispose of the lightweight crown.

Sid Terris, New York, Louis Vicentini, of Chile, Sid Barrarian, of Detroit, Sammy Mandell, of Rock Island, Ills., Johnny Dundee, of New York, Johnny Leonard of Allentown, Pa., Jack Bernstein of Yonkers, Charley O'Connell of Cleveland, Archie Walker of Brooklyn and Jimmy Goodrich, of Buffalo, have been prominently mentioned as eligibles for such a tournament.

The field will be carefully combed, according to Chairman Brower in the event a tournament is decided upon, and a chance given to every boxer whose past performance warranted consideration.

WATERBURY MAKES PROFIT BY SELLING ANDY RUSH

Waterbury, Jan. 19.—Eastern league baseball showed a profit for the first time in the history of the game in Waterbury, according to the financial report submitted by John T. Sullivan, treasurer and owner of the Brasscos at the annual meeting of the stockholders held here tonight. A profit of about $1,500 was realized in spite of the fact that the baseball park was badly damaged by snow storms and floods last spring, in addition to the cancellation of three exhibition games and the series with Hartford. The club really operated at a loss of about $2,500 but the sale of Andy Rush to Brooklyn for the draft price of $4,000 brought the profit of $1,500.

C. T. BINGHAM WINS WAY TO BOXING FINALS

New Haven, Jan. 19.—C. T. Bingham, a freshman at Yale university and the son of United States Senator Hiram Bingham, won his way to the finals in the freshman elimination boxing tournament at Yale today when he defeated J. L. Hedden. This is the second victory for Bingham in the tournament and if he wins in the finals on Wednesday, he will be given a place on the Yale Freshman boxing team.

DUNDEE MAY FACE DISCIPLINARY ACTION

New York, Jan. 19.—(By The A. P.) —Johnny Dundee may face disciplinary action in this country at the hands of the New York State Athletic commission as a result of his hasty departure from Paris without fulfilling a contract to fight Fred Brentonnel., French lightweight.

This was indicated today by George E. Brower, chairman o fthe New York commission, who declined, in the absence of official information, to predict what action might be taken but said his organization would act promptly on any recommendations made to it by the French boxing federation.

The federation, according to cable dispatches today from Paris, has received formal complaint against Dundee from promoters of the Bretonnel fight, in addition to which civil damage action also has been filed against the American boxer. First reports were that French boxing authorities would seek to have the American barred from the ring for life.

According to a report here, Dundee decided to leave after Paris promoters failed to advance him part of his guarantee, but Paris dispatches today omitted any reference to this and pointed out that the boxer himself had failed to deposit an appearance forfeit of $300.

"I know nothing of the affair except what I have read in the papers," said Chairman Brower, "but if formal complaint is lodged with us and we find the facts of the case justified punishment, we will take action under the terms of an agreement existing between the two bodies."

Chairman Brower further said that although these were only his personal views and did not constitute the opinion of the commission as a whole he did not feel that there would be any division of opinion as to the action the board would take.

NURMI MEETS STRONG RIVAL IN EDWARD KIRBY

New York, Jan. 19.—(By The A. P.) —The restless legs of Paavo Nurmi beat a rhymthic tattoo today on the boards as the phantom Finn went through a brisk afternoon workout, apparently as fresh as ever in spite of the rigors of his three-night record-breaking tour here and in Chicago last week, and ready to star the next phase of his unprecedented running campaign.

Paavo apparently is discontented unless he is jaunted about. He expressed eagerness today to swing into action again over a route which now includes sixteen races for him in a period of six week. New York, Boston, Portland, Me., Louisville, Baltimore, Washington, Newark, N. J., and possibly Philadelphia are on his itinerary.

Nurmis next start will be on Wednesday in connection with the St. Joseph's Catholic club games in Newark. He will appear at the Brooklyn City College club games Saturday. Next week he is slated for four races running twice at the Millrose Carnival in Madison Square Garden, Jan. 27 and 28, again at the Morningside A. C. games here Jan. 30 and at the Boston A. A. meet the following night.

A new rival for the great Finn appeared today when Edward Kirby of Cornell, a member of the Olympic team and National half mile titleholder, entered the 5,000-metre special in which Nurmi will compete at the Millrose A. A. games in Brooklyn, February 7. Kirby ran well over this distance at Paris and may give Paavo a battle.

FRIGERIO WECOMEED BY NEW YORK OFFICIALLY

New York, Jan. 19.—Hugo Frigerio, Italian holder of the Olympic walking championship, was officially welcomed today to the city by Mayor Hyland, made plans for his first workout tomorrow and tentatively accepted invitations to compete in eight events after making his debut in the Millrose A. A. Carnival at Madison Square Garden, January 27 and 28.

Following the Millrose games, Frigerio expects to take part in the Morningside A. C. games here, January 30; Boston A. A. or Osceola Games, New York, January 31; Western Union games, New York, February 3; Newark A. C. meet, February 4; Penn A. A. meet, Brooklyn, February 7; New York A. C. meet, February 14; Johns Hopkins meet, Baltimore, February 21, and National A. A. U. championships, Louisville, February 28.

NORMAND AND LORANCELLE PAY FOR TURKEY DINNER

Two regular fellows, Joe Normand and Lorancelle, knights of the razor and clippers, paid for the turkey dinner served to their conquerors, George Lambert and Charlie Bellone. It was not with real good grace that they paid because they felt that they had been imposed upon to some extent. The agreement was that no one of the players should practice before the game but it seems that Charlie stole a march on his rivals and for three nights before the match practiced from until midnight getting into trim. The result was that Bellone was far ahead of his opponents. The score:

Losers
Normand	77	68	65	210
Lorancelle	62	66	59	187
Winners
Bellone	91	92	79	262
Lambert	80	69	82	231

THE PATH OF THE TOTAL ECLIPSE

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The winter weather has apparently had little or no effect on the building progress in Norwich other than to delay cement work for a few days. The most notable progress has been made on the Sellas block in Franklin square where the work has been rushed along by Contractor P. F. Sweeney. The front wall has been raised as far as the third floor and the window castings have been set in place and the flooring on three floors is practically finished. The rear wall and the east wall have been raised to the second story while the west wall has just been started.

At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton there were four permits granted during the past week. Of these four there is one for a two-apartment house on Central avenue to be erected by the Norwich Building Corp. The other permits include two garages, one a five car garage, and a permit to make alterations and additions to the present building at 57 Broad street. The total valuation of the building operations covered in the permits is approximately $10,000 as placed by the owners.

The building permits issued are as follows:

To H. J. Schatz to erect a two-story house on Central avenue, for the Norwich Building Corp. The house will be 26x40 feet and will have two apartments. Each apartment will have five rooms and bath. The foundation will be of stone with wood superstructure. The roof will be covered with composition shingles.

To Louis Rasoport to erect a frame garage at No. 207 West Thames street. The garage will be 13x28 feet.

To Louis Ortmann to alter and extend the present building at 57 Broad street for Robert W. Perkins. The interior will be changed over to suit the owner. The addition will be 12x16 feet of frame construction with tin roof.

To George M. Zurcher to erect a 6-car garage on Prospect street. The garage will be 20x50 feet with cement floor and foundation. The garage will be erected on the land of John and Raymond Higgins.

New London

The contract has been awarded for alterations to the store of S. Kamsler in the Spitz Building on State street. The work will consist of new store fronts, new plumbing and electric wiring, metal ceilings and an extension to the present heating system.

The cellar has been excavated for a house for James Forrest on Fort street, Groton. The dwelling will be of colonial design, of frame construction it will contain six rooms with all conveniences.

Joseph A. St. Germain, 960 Bank street, is starting work on a house on Montauk avenue. The proposed residence will be of colonial design, arranged for seven rooms. It will be of frame construction, 25x36 feet. There will be hot water heat, tile baths, inclosed veranda, and other improvements.

Building Permits

Jeremiah Twoomey, store front, 93 Bank street $500.

J. L. Woodworth, frame garage, Park avenue, corner Perkins street, $400.

S. Kamsler, store alterations, 79 State street, $3,000.

Robert Tetrault, frame garage, lot 4, Parkway, $200.

J. A. St. Germain, store front, 44 Main street, $100.

Number of permits issued for the week, 5; estimated cost of buildings, $4,800.

Jewett City

The plans are now being figured for the proposed alterations to the Jewett City Hotel, Jewett City, for Charles T. Morrisey. The owner is receiving the figures for the work, which includes a new lobby, reception room and second floor alterations.

Rockville

The Austin Co. of New York are building a warehouse at the plant of the Rockanum Mills Co. at the foundings is of brick and steel construction, 66x80 feet.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

In Norwich during the past week there were 18 sales of real estate during the past week as compared to 4 sales for the corresponding week in 1924. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $296,100 and $36,200.

There were 9 sales of real estate in New London during the past week as compared to 7 sales for the week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $80,500 and $41,000.

State Building Permits

But few building permits were issued during the week and little new work undertaken. The record for the week past is 143 permits granted for the construction costing $491,875, the new work costing $797,665, and in 1923, 60 permits for new work costing $209,308.

Building Totals Larger

Figures recently made public by S. W. Straus & Co., show that building permits issued in the United States during 1924 established another record, surpassing the year 1923 by 4 per cent. The report consists of information secured by a national survey just completed by the company, and contains the totals from 301 cities and towns located in 35 states. The total estimated cost of permits issued and plans filed in the towns reporting for the year was $3,442,165,000, compared with $3,304,406,606 reported from the same cities and towns in 1923. These figures show that building operations are progressing in a normal manner, in keeping with the demand for new housing.

Considering the country by sections the south showed the highest percentage of gain for the year. In forty-two cities the total was $249,827,-344, compared with $202,982,645 in 1923, a gain of 23 per cent. The eastern sections showed the next highest gain. In eighty-six cities the total was $1,651,852,914, compared with $1,500,226,709 in 1923, a gain of ten per cent. A study of the figures reveals that the proportion of building in the larger cities, considered as a group, is not greater at present than in the smaller cities.

SULLIVAN'S COLTS WILL PLAY RICHMOND FIVE

Although badly beaten in their first game by the Colchester Five Saturday night, "Sullivan's Colts" are far from being discouraged on account of the unfortunate absence of three of their star players from whom Mr. Sullivan received word just before the game, that they were stalled somewhere between Danielson and Putnam It is to be regretted that these players were unable to reach Colchester in time inasmuch as Mr. Sullivan sincerely believes that if he had his regular lineup and had played professional rules, to which they are accustomed, the history of Saturday's game would have been a different story. Under the circumstances his team made a very good showing, as it was, according to local critics.

Mr. Sullivan announces that he gladly accepts the challenge of the "All Richmond Five" and would state that he and his men are so confident of victory that if agreeable to Mr. O'Del the winners are to take the net gate receipts and furthermore would gladly place a side stake of any amount. Just who the "All Richmond Five" are seems to be unknown so it is hoped that Mr. O'Del comes through with his lineup.

At the same time Mr. Sullivan announces that to avoid the recurrance of such a mishap as occurred Saturday, he has signed up Major Lyman of the Coast Guards and McDonald of Salem Cedars.

SPORTING NOTES

Chicago promoters are planning to stage another international six-day bicycle race next month.

It is estimated that more than 150,000 caddies are employed by the golf clubs in the United States.

The first recorded trotting meeting in the United States was held in 1818 at Boston, when "Boston Blue" trotted a mile within 3 minutes.

Curling, if not indigenous to Scotland, has been played there for at least three centuries, and certainly owes its development to that country.

A total of 1535 points for its opponents in five years of unbeaten play is the remarkable football record rolled up by the University of California.

The Royal Caledonian Curling Club of Scotland, founded in 1838 is recognized in all parts of the world as the mother club and legislative body in regard to curling.

It is estimated that when a golfer like Mitchell or Duncan drives a ball it travels at the amazing speed of 250 feet a second; and that in his longest drive it is less than four seconds in the air. How great this speed is can better be realized when it is considered that a fast racehorse, which takes a second to cover 51 feet, travels only one-fifth as fast as a golf ball.

Two national championships, four Pacific Coast first honors, and one Northwest Conference title were won last year by athletes representing the University of Washington, Seattle.

A tennis ball leaves the racquets of such experts as a Tilden or a Johnston at a speed of 130 feet a second. If this could be maintained it would travel a mile in 41 seconds, and nearly 82 miles an hour.

Such is the inborn love of New Zealanders for football, that players frequently ride miles on horseback, fording rivers and crossing mountains, to play in a match. Every little hamlet, whose total inhabitants in many cases do not number more than two hundred, has its Rugby football club.

A COUGH REMEDY WITHOUT OPIATES

Many cough preparations contain some one or more harmful drugs which are added to take the place of opiates. None of these narcotic substitutes have ever been used in Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. The name of every ingredient is plainly printed on every carton. You know what you are taking when you take Foley's. It clings to the throat. Good for old and young. You have a cough, why not try it? Refuse substitutes. Lee & Osgood Co.

AMATEURS CAN PHOTOGRAPH ECLIPSE ON JAN. 24

For the first time in astronomical history hundreds of thousands of amateurs will be able to photograph the eclipse occurring in the morning of January 24th.

A total eclipse of the sun is the most beautiful spectacle the heavens affords and, for us, the rarest. Not in centuries has one happened in these parts before, not in the centuries will one happen again and the opportunity will not be lost on camera devotees. Heretofore such opportunities have been confined to small groups of scientists able to travel to remote corners of the globe where the phenomenon was visible. As the forthcoming eclipse makes its path through one of the most densely populated areas of the country, fully ten million people will see it and an army of amateurs be able to photograph it from their own housetops or back yards. Only cloudy weather can prevent it. And in a path 100 miles wide and stretching from beyond the Great Lakes to the Atlantic seaboard there is bound to be clear skies somewhere. So here's hoping.

No photographic difficulties present themselves for the amateur. Astronomical observatories will use powerful reflecting telescopes for their own special and particular work. Telescopes are not necessary, however, to good photographic results. The amateur has only to set up his camera on a tripod or some other solid support, get the sun squarely in his finder, focus at infinity, set his shutter and wait for the great moment.

Newspapers no doubt will inform readers of the exact moment of beginning, totality and end of the eclipse, in their respective localities. At Buffalo, for instance, which is about central, the total phase will begin about 9:06 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) with the sun 12 degrees above the horizon. Totality there will last approximately 1.8 minutes. The shadow will travel from Buffalo to New Haven in six minutes, totality beginning in the latter city at about 9:12 and lasting two minutes. For intermediate stations time can be estimated by measuring the distance between these two cities and applying the proper fraction of six minutes to the time given for them.

What to Look For

A little more than an hour before the time set for totality the observer will note a small dent or nick in the

NEW LONDON COUNCIL CONSIDERS HUNTINGTON ST. EXTENSION PLANS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 28.—The city council was in session about half an hour this evening and then recessed, to discuss projects introduced to the council for consideration. A proposition that received long consideration was that by which Huntington street is to be extended to Crystal avenue. Two plans were submitted, with maps showing what it is proposed to do.

One contemplates the extension of Huntington street by way of an overhead street to a point beyond the Crystal avenue bridge, from Main street. The suggestion was made that the state might become interested in such a plan, the way to be a cement roadway that would be overhead of Main street. The other contemplates an overhead also, but from a point that would cross the Mather property. The whole is an extensive and expensive plan which, it was suggested, the city would not care to undertake.

A report of the National Fire Underwriters was read which made suggestions, some of which have been followed and others of which may be carried out and which contemplate a central fire house for the administration of the fire department as well as the economical housing of apparatus.

The council authorized the city manager to contract with the Cyclone Fence company of Waukegan, Ill., for fencing that will surround Williams Memorial park, the old town mill pond, the city property on Walbach street and Lake Konomoc, at a cost of upward of $6200.

Changes were considered in Green Harbor beach playground that were favorably considered by the members of the council. It is proposed to make some changes in the highway at that point that will improve the playground there. Then there was a proposition that the city lease the so-called Goddard property at Main and Douglass streets. This is the property which the city was petitioned by half a dozen women's societies to buy and it was said the cost was $40,000 though this price was never mentioned to the council, but it came from a member who had been approached to buy the land. There is not the least prospect of the city leasing the land, it is believed, for any lease that would be taken would have a provision in it that the owners may sell the property at any time regardless of the lease. Some of the members at least are irreconcilably opposed to making a lease or to anything. It is claimed that the children who desire to use the place as a playground will do so now, and to keep them off the owners must arrange for a watchman there. The planning board approved the suggestions to the projects mentioned but final approval brought from Attorney Fox a query as to whether [illegible] had been treated to monkey glue.

L. J. Phillips developed for the extension of Bank avenue, but the meeting did not seem to meet with favor of the council though no action was taken. The finance committee, to which was referred the question of issuing bonds for public improvements, was reported not to have met to consider the subject, so that matter was still further deferred.

Solon Marsters appeared before the council and asked for a rebate on the amount he was charged for a gasoline tank at his wharf on Pequot avenue, $25. He said he would refuse to keep the tank there at the price as he gathered to and declared that he did not sell more than 300 gallons of gas last summer. He asked that he be allowed to take out license for six months of the year at a lower rate.

At 9.15 the council was still considering the matters before it, with little prospect that any agreement would be reached. There were two applications for permission to build, one for a garage and the other for a dwelling.

The speed launch, Allen S., former- ly the Man o' War, familiar as a rum chaser was seized off Newport Sunday afternoon by the patrol boat, C. G. 237 and is now being held at the submarine base pending a hearing of the master, Capt. Edward Wilson, of Newport, charged with violation of the navigation laws. No liquor was found on the launch, but it is contended that she was headed for the rum-supply fleet when the coast guard craft held her up and seized her. The seizure of the Allen S. resulted when an examination of her papers were made and it is claimed that they were not properly [illegible]

The Allen S. was seized off New London last summer and was then the Man o' War. She has had several encounters with rum-chasers, her decks and upper works showing the effects of bullet fire.

The crew was released a short time after the craft reached port late last night.

But 14 more members of the police department remain to be interrogated by the special committee of the city council. It is expected that the probe will be continued Tuesday evening and before the end of the week the entire personnel of the department will have been interrogated. Following the quizzing of the officers it is understood that several citizens will be summoned before the committee and answer such questions as are propounded relative to the workings of the department.

Lieut. Hubert H. Anderson, U. S. N., was best man and Miss Ethel Murphy was bridesmaid. Following the ceremony, a breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. Lieutenant Senn is in command of the U. S. S. S-13, stationed at Portsmouth N. H. Mrs. Senn until recently was a teacher in the Groton public schools.

The funeral of Frederick H. Crow- ell, former railway mail clerk took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 15 Masonic street. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. Relatives of Mr. Crowell acted as bearers. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Washington I. Tooker, 89, of 71 Winthrop street, died at Lawrence hospital Sunday, where he had been under treatment but a short time. Mr. Tooker is survived by a son, John P. Tooker, Taunton, Mass., and a grandson, George M. Tooker, of Harrison street this city. Mr. Tooker followed the water many years and during the early part of his career on sailing craft engaged in the whaling trade, being one of the last surviving whalers hereabouts.

Mrs. Lillian Bindloss of New Haven, formerly of New London has sold a dwelling at Ridgewood park, Waterford, adjoining Ocean Beach, to the Ocean Beach Improvement Co.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. John P. Costella, of Terrace Boulevard, of the marriage of their daughter, Miss Angelina Costello and William Ryan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Ryan, 25 Prospect street. The ceremony was performed Dec. 25th at the rectory of St. Mary's Star of the Sea church by Rev. Dr. Timothy M. Crowley, rector of the church. John Sullivan was best man and Miss Nellie Sweeney attended the bride.

Mrs. Teresa B. Fox, Ocean avenue, is in New York, to remain several days.

The funeral of Christopher C. Mi- ner was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Parish house of the First Church of Christ, Union street, and was attended by relatives and friends. The services were conducted by Rev. J. Romeyn Danforth. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

An automobile, owned and operated by Anthony C. Leiper, Waterford, in passing through State street, between Union and Green streets, this afternoon collided with a motionless automobile at the side of the curb. The latter car was slightly damaged, but Leiper was unable to locate the owner in order to obtain his identity.

An automobile, owned and operated by Charles Osborne, Jr., 15 Steward street, and a machine operated by Roy Nash, Riverview avenue, were in collision this afternoon on John street. Neither automobile was damaged of consequence.

The Mohegan Wrecking company, a concern that dismantles aged automobiles, and whose place of storage is located on Division street, today lodged complaint with the police that a car that was at the storage place waiting being wrecked, had been visited by thieves over Sunday and that the greater part of the removable parts of the machine had been stolen.

William J. Prescott, East Minor lane, Waterford, a carpenter, lodged a complaint with the police today that a hatchet belonging to him and which he had been using at his work, a structure corner of Norwood avenue and Briggs street, had been stolen since Saturday afternoon.

Warren Hewitt, Groton, this afternoon complained to the New London police that a spare automobile tire had been stolen from his automobile.

Today provided a busy session for the Groton town court, for when the session was called at 9.30 o'clock this morning, Judge Cornelius C. Costello had six cases to claim his attention. All but one of the cases were disposed of.

Tony Moyer, Thames street, Groton, was charged with the theft of two rings from his father, Frank Moyer. Probable cause was found and the accused was held for trial before the next term of the superior court in bonds of $500.

Mrs. Ruth Hewlett, residing in one of the houses located in the former Groton Park plot, was charged with conducting a house of assignation. She was fined $25 and costs. The place was raided by state police, Groton barracks, about two weeks ago, when the occupants found there were taken into custody and fines imposed. Mrs. Hewlett was absent from the borough at the time, but was arrested upon her return. Grace Phelps, charged with a statutory offense, was not tried today, her case being again continued, this time for one week.

Jack O'Neill, Groton, charged with reckless driving, drew a fine of $25 and costs, the latter amounting to $18.75.

Thomas Paton, residing on Eastern Point road, was charged with violation of the liquor law and was tried on a charge of keeping liquor with intent to sell. He was fined $100 and costs, the latter amounting to $36.40. He paid.

Paton's residence was the scene of a raid by state police a week ago and in the search for liquor the raiders discovered several cases of whiskey, that, it was claimed, were in the place for purposes of sale.

Joseph Syracusa, 133 Jefferson avenue, New London, was arraigned on a charge of reckless driving. The case was disposed of by nolle when Syracusa agreed to pay the costs of the court, $6.17.

Syracusa was arrested last Thursday night by Groton state police upon complaint of Dewey Connors, driver of one of the Yellow Cab company's cars who alleged that Syracusa attempted to crowd the machine Connors was driving off the highway between Groton and the submarine base. Connors had a sailor from the submarine base in the car at the time and the sailor was in court today to tell what occurred.

The Yellow Cab company several weeks ago secured an injunction restraining Syracuse from operating a so-called "checkered" cab, alleging that Syracusa was attempting to secure the patronage of people who hire yellow cabs by causing his cab to be painted a color similar to that of the yellow cab.

Monday morning opened the week for the police court with a docket of three drunks to await discipline. The fellows arrested had about two quarts of a vile-colored rum as has been opened in the police station since the days when Mr. Volstead declared "thou shalt not." Louis Pena was fined $10. He had a quart and a pint of liquor when he was found down and out on Howard street. He had the money to settle his bill in court so that kept him out of jail. Medrick Roberts, residing on Thames street in Groton, was found very drunk on the street and was locked up. He said he was a steady worker and that Saturday he turned his earnings with the exception of a dollar to his wife. The dollar he kept back he spent for a half pint of booze, and today he regretted his act. Judge Prince fined him but relented and suspended the execution of the judgment. Walter Smith, who said he came from that section of the late Senator Conkling called "pent up Utica," was drunk around the Learned Mission. He was such a nuisance that Superintendent Mansfield asked for his arrest and Walter spent the night in one of the bunks in the police station. He was so penitent this morning that he was placed on probation.

Leon Payne, a colored youth, was found on the street with a pistol in his possession. He declared that he bought it from some fellows he met though he had no use for it and did not know the value of the weapon. He, too, was turned over to the care of Mr. Mansfield that the latter might arrange for sending Peon back to New York state.

The children in the lower section of the city—that about the Riverside avenue school and continuous streets—are having real enjoyment at skating on Caulkins park. The children in the upper section of New London are heart-broken because they are denied the sport of skating on the old town mill pond which has been a place for skaters every year for a greater time than any one in the city council can remember. It is understood that eventually an iron fence is to be set around the pond, but that will not make the place any safer for skaters. Old timers can remember when the mill pond was the winter gathering place for all who used skates. It was there that the late Morris Bacon and Jack Anderson showed trick and fancy skating that could not be equalled by anybody here about.

The christening of Reginald Fred- erick Leeds, infant son of Frederick Leeds and wife by the ritual used in the high English church, was the unusual sight witnessed by attendants at the morning service at Seabury church in Groton yesterday. Candles were used and the accessories used in the English church were called into use. Mr. Leeds is understood to have been a clergyman at New Haven, but to have left there and came to Groton to reside.

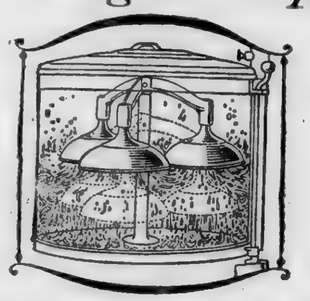
The Correct Washing Principle



—that's the reason for the pronounced superiority of The EASY Vacuum Electric WASHER

That's why every year sees such a large increase in the number of owners of Easy Washers.

Three inverted cups impel compressed air and warm sudsy water thru and thru the meshes of the clothes — aerating them — freshening them—maintaining a live, soapy mixture for the proper washing of dainty things or heavy garments.

Is it any wonder that this friction-less air cushion principle—so superior to other methods—is universally accepted as the only Right Way to wash clothes?

LOSSES IN MANY STOCKS

New York, Jan. 19.—Reactionary price movements characterized today's stock markets which was unable to absorb the pressure of profit taking and bear selling except at concessions in quoted values. Net losses in many active issues ranged from fractions to four points, but special strength was shown by a wide variety of stocks. The day's sales were slightly below one and one-half million shares.

All the so-called pivotal industrial shares lost ground. United States Steel common, which touched 13 1-4 in the early trading, the highest price since 1917 later fell back to 128, where it was off one-half point on the day. American Can closed nearly two points lower at 161 and Baldwin showed a net loss of 2 5-8 at 122 1-8. Studebaker yielded fractionally to 44 and General Electric broke 3 points to 310.

Except for the omission of the dividend on Mexican Seaboard common, most of the day's trade and financial news was favorable. It included lower money rates, record high prices for wheat and corn, and gasoline price advances in the south.

Nash Motors continued its sensational gain, soaring 20 points to a record top at 220. Other outstanding strong spots included American Sugar preferred, which advanced 4 1-4 points to 96 on publication of the tan year analysis of the company's earnings, and International Harvester, American Express, Pressed Steel Car preferred Wickwire Spencer Steel preferred and General American Tank, all of which closed from 2 1-3 to 6 points higher.

Chief interest in the railroad group centered in the brisk demand for the St. Paul issues just before the close, the common advancing 3 points to 16 and the preferred 3 1-2 to 26 1-4.

A good inquiry also was noted for New York Central, which showed a net gain of 3 3-4 at the close, 122 7-8, after selling as high as 123 1-2. Jersey Central advanced 5 points on one sale, but Delaware and Hudson, Lackawanna, Denver and Rio Grande Western preferred, Gulf, Mobile and Northern preferred, Lehigh Valley and the Missouri Pacific issues were heavy, losing from 1 to 3 1-2 points.

Mexican Seaboard broke nearly four points to 15 3-4 on the announcement of the dividend action and most of the other oils turned heavy in consequence. Net losses of 1 to 3 points were recorded by Houston Colorado Fuel, Phillips Petroleum and Tidewater. Weakness also was shown by Dupont, Sears Roebuck, Associated Dry Goods, Beachnut Packing, Federal Light and Traction, Kelsey Wheel and Worthington Pump, all of which closed from 2 to 6 points lower.

Call money opened at 3 1-4 per cent. and then dropped to 3, the lower rate reflecting the large increase in excess reserv shown in the local weekly clearing house statement last Saturday. The money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges moved within narrow and irregular limits. Demand sterling and French francs ruled a trifle higher around $4.77 3-4 and 5.40 cents, respectively. Italian exchange was slightly easier, ruling about three points lower around 4.14 1-2.

BOND MARKET

New York Jan. 19.—With a firm undertone prevailing in today's bond market, several foreign government and domestic corporation issues developed conspicuous strength and worked into new high ground. Trading interest centered principally in Mexican obligations and the bonds of the St. Paul, New York Central and "Kat" railroads.

Prospects that negotiations would be opened for a resumption of debt payments continued to be the chief sustaining factor in the case of the Mexican loans. The sixes mounted more than a point to 41, within a fraction of last year's high level.

St. Paul railroad bonds followed an upturn in the road's shares, apparently based on the belief that the present investigation of the road's position would lay the basis for a successful completion of its refunding program. The fours of 1925 led with a gain of nearly 3 points and gains of more than a point were scored by five other of the road's issues.

Trading in "Katy" Adjustment 5's was stimulated by the large increase reported in 1924 earnings and by prospects taht the road's preferred stock, into which the bonds are convertible, would be restored to its full seven per cent. dividend basis this year. In crossing 81 the bonds established a new high record. Wickwire Spencer Steel 7 per cent. certificates mounted 8 points to 84 1-2 on a small turnover.

New bond offerings, exceeded $60,000,000 were well absorbed. An issue of $50,000 000 Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing company notes and a block of $5,000,000 Munson Steamship Line notes were oversubscribed.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Jan. 19.—Hurried by speculative transactions of great volume, wheat and corn rose buoyantly in value today to new record heights for all deliveries here. Number 2 red wheat available at once, brought 2.03 1-2 a bushel, and the leading future delivery, May, ascended to 1.90 1-2. A decided fresh upturn in wheat quotations at Liverpool, together with reports of much enlarged demand for breadstuffs throughout Europe, appeared to be chiefly responsible. Chicago closing prices on wheat were firm, 1 5-8 to 3 7-8c net higher, May 1.90 1-8 to 1.90 1-4 and July 1.66 7-8 to 1.67. Corn finished at 1 7-8 to 2 3-8c up, oats showing 1-4 to 3-4c gain and provisions at a rise varying from 10 to 67 c.

With announcement near the end of the day that the United States visfole supply of wheat showed 3,672,000 bushels decrease, wheat closed at almost the top figures reached. Other late developments included a report that the supply of Durum wheat in America had been practically exhausted. There were also indications that possibly of a crop scare later in the season was giving even more strength to the July delivery here than to May.

Oats and corn acted in sympathy with wheat. Country buying of corn remained conspicuously in evidence.

Provisions were responsive to the upturns in grains and hogs.

CURB MARKET

New York, Jan. 19.—Considerable irregularity developed in today's curb market after an opening show of strength in many parts of the list. Profit taking and bear selling forced a number of popular issues below Saturday's closing quotations, but the losses, as a rule, were small.

A drop of 2 points to 220 in Prairie Oil and Gas (old stock) was offset by gains of 1 to 1 1-2 points in Prairie Pipe Line, South Penn. Oil and Swan and Finch.

Further recovery of Commonwealth Power, which advanced 1 1-2 points to 123 1-2, featured the mixed movement in the public utilities. Doehler die-casting advanced 2 1-2 points to 19 3-4 on the maintenance of the regular dividend which previously was reported in danger. Lehigh Valley coal and Ward Baking were heavy.

Establishment of new high records by Sleeper and Freshman at 18 1-2 and 27 7-8, respectively, featured the trading in the radio shares. Hazeltine yielded 1 1-4 to 43 and Liberty Radio Chain Stores which touched a new high at 9 last Saturday also lost ground on realizing. The new Music Master common stock was admitted to trading, opening a point above the subscription price at 21 and closing at 21 1-8 after fluctuating between 20 7-8 and 21 1-4.

Piles

Can't Be Cured From the Outside.

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through the stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., set at work some years ago to find a real internal Pile remedy. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It's easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood's, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

NORWICH DOINGS 75 YEARS AGO

A new building at the corner of Union and Church streets kept the people guessing in 1850 but the announcement that it was to be a public library, known as Otis Library put an end to all doubts.

News from the Courier of 1850 in part contains the following items:

Tuesday, January 15, 1850—The Independent steam propeller line between Norwich and New York is to operate the Jersey Blue, 277 tons, between these two cities. B. C. Smith, master, will commence her regular trips the 18th of January, leaving New York from Old Slip on Fridays and leaving Norwich on Tuesdays. She will transport passengers and freight and is a fine boat. Passengers will be taken at $1 each. Agents are J. H. Havens of New York and E. A. Bill and A. H. Almy & Co., Norwich. Freight for Philadelphia will be forwarded at low rates.

Peck's spiral railroad springs have been put in the doors of the local postoffice, the American House, Merchants hotel and the Courier office and holds them open when required or closes them tightly. C. E. Clark of Franklin street is headquarters for Norwich.

Norwich men in California gold fields write home that flour is selling at $1.75 a pound or at $30 a barrel and that beef and pork are higher and nominal at $25 to $30. They also report savings in gold dust which is bringing $15.50 an ounce and that they are staying there until they make their fortunes.

Thursday, January 17, 1850—There are great carryings on between our neighbors at New London on one hand and of Willimantic on the other. On Tuesday evening a party of 170 men and women left New London for Willimantic where they were met by a like number of men and women and enjoyed dancing and general festivities until 1 o'clock in the morning. The return home was made in just one hour, the fleet fire-steed whistling on its way home, being assisted by the music of the New London band.

Wednesday morning a wretch was caught near Lebanon crossing, piling stones on the railroad track for the purpose of wrecking the train. He was brought to Norwich and immediately locked up. It is believed that this man is the same one who piled stones on the tracks Sunday, which, fortunately, were discovered in time to prevent a wreck and loss of life.

Wire fences are beginning to make their appearance in several local yards. The wire costs about $2.50 for a hundred feet and can be seen 50 yards distant. These fences are wonderful things and are being adopted throughout the west to fence in land where cattle grazes.

Saturday, January 19, 1850 — During the last summer and autumn, not a little curiosity has been felt, and not a little inquiry made on the part of many citizens of Norwich, as to the probable object of a certain handsome brick edifice which was seen gradually rising, day by day, at the corner of Union and Church until, at length, it stands complete "from turret to foundation stone."

It was known to whom the lot, on which the building stands, belonged, but whose was the building, nobody knew.

It gives us the liveliest satisfaction to state that this building is to be shared by the public. The building has been erected by one of the most truly benevolent and philanthropic citizens of Norwich—Joseph Otis, Esq., upon a lot purchased by him several years ago with the express reference to the use now made of it. The main object of Mr. Otis has been the establishment of a public library for the city of Norwich—such a library as is so much needed and which will be open to everyone.

The institution is to be under the supervision and control of a board of seven trustees endowed with the power of self perpetuation by filling vacancies by death in their number. This board of trustees is constituted as follows: Rev. Dr. Bond, J. G. W. Trumbull, George Perkins, Worthington Hooker, William A. Buckingham, Robert Johnson and Charles Johnson.

We understand that the alcoves for the library are in progress and that books will soon be placed in the library. The library has been named Otis library, and it is the wish of all that the institution might flourish throughout coming years.

It was stated that the gross recients of the Conn. River railroad for the year ending Dec. 31st, were $191,000, expenses, $95,000.

MONTVILLE

Sunday evening at 7 o'clock there was a union meeting at the Methodist church, Uncasville, where Miss Christine I. Tingling, world's W. C. T. U. organizer, was the speaker. Miss Tingling has been in Korea and other foreign countries a great part of her time. The Congregational church people at Montville Centre and the Baptist church at Palmertown, also the church at Mohegan were invited to attend. There was special music. The services were held in the chapel on account of repairs being made to the body of the church.

At Thames lodge, No. 22, I. O. O. F., lodge room Tuesday evening, the following officers were installed by District Deputy Grand Master Rufus I. Church and suite of New London: Noble grand, George P. Edwards, Jr.; vice grand, Simeon Belkansky; recording secretary, Harry D. Watt; financial secretary, Dan D. Home; treasurer, Victor Rosenlund; right supporter to noble grand, Fred Hubert; left supporter to noble grand, Willis Sawyer; warden, Truman Keyes; conductor, Edward Hermanson; right scene supporter, Eugene Estey; left scene supporter, Edwin Johnson; outside guardian, David Estey; inside guardian, E. J. Swanson; chaplain, Percy Allen; right supporter to vice grand, Roger Bullard; left supporter to vice grand, Earl Lathrop.

Sick committee, John Home, Robert Kennerson, William Tinker, Chester Comstock, Fred Hubert.

Relief committee—C. E. Chapman, Jerome House, Robert Paton.

Auditing committee — Robert Kennerson, John Home, Percy Allen.

After the business session a baked bean supper was served. There were 75 present.

The initiatory degree is to be worked upon a class some time this month.

The erection of a memorial in Washington, the establishment of a park in Oyster Bay, N. Y., and the "development and application of Roosevelt's policies and ideals" are the chief objectives toward which progress was made last year, by the Roosevelt Memorial association.

POETRY

THE MEN OF MONOMOY.

Dedicated to the Memory of the Life Savers of Monomoy, on Cape Cod, who were lost March 17, 1902.

Tell ye the story far and wide,
Ring out, ye bells, with mournful toll
For the valiant crew of Monomoy
Who sleep on Handkerchief Shoal.

Brave were the men of Monomoy
Who went with a willing hand
To bring their storm-wrecked fellowmen
Through the angry seas to land.

For the gale blew fierce, and the seas ran wild,
And the crew were all but lost,
But the boat sped on through the angry deep
Like a shell on the breakers tost.

True were the men of Monomoy,
Each true to his duty's call;
No thought of self, no dread of death,
Eyes seaward, and that was all.

And the wreck was made, and the boat turned back,
When a monster wave swept o'er
And swallowed the boat of Monomoy,
And the crew was seen no more.

Dead are the men of Monomoy,
They sleep in a watery graye;
They rest upon the treach'rous shoal
With the men they sought to save.

And the storms sweep down, and the seas roll in,
And the ships their course pursue,
But the sea holds fast to its noble sons,
For it loves strong hearts and true.

Great are the men of Monomoy,
Men whose names shall never fade;
No soldiers on the battlefield
E'er nobler sacrifice made.

And proud are the wives of Monomoy;
Sons proud of their valiant dead;
And proud is the world of souls that theirs,
Whose glory shall ever spread.

Tell ye the story far and wide,
Ring out, ye bells, with mournful toll
For the valiant sons of Monomoy
Who sleep on Handkerchief Shoal.
—Joe Cone.

WHAT I WANT.

I want to go along the road that leads to bigger things,
I want to walk with springing feet, while all my soul just sings;
I want to see new vistas—new heavens and new earth;
I want to be forever glad for life's sweet gift of birth;
I want to keep a heart that's clean; a fancy undefiled,
I want to be, far as I may, just like a little child.
I want to love the passing hour, and dare, and dreamy night,
I want to feel the sting of Wrong, the beauty of the Right.
I want to love my neighbors, and the old Earth's pulsing sod,
And then—I want to go ahead—and just make friends with GOD.
—Jean O'Brien, in Nautilus.

An Anglican clergyman, the Rev. Canon Charles Griffiths, of Bristol, England, was the proprietor of a prosperous manufacturing business in the East End of London, the publication of his will discloses. The business, the manufacture of harness for tradesmen's horses, was established in 1750, and was left to the Canon by the will of a relative twelve years ago. The Canon is said to have been a generous employer, and the business grew to large proportions under his supervision.

In olden times spices wer worth almost their weight in gold to Europeans, owing to the immense difficulty in obtaining them. In the fifth century A. D., when Rome was conquered by Alaric the Goth, he asked as a ransom 3,000 pounds of pepper then worth a fabulous price. The Fraternity of Peppperers was said to be the first organization of dealers. In the fourteenth century this became the Guild of Grocers. Venice traded in spices to the extent of many thousands of pounds annually, and there was considerable rivalry with Portugal as to who should secure the best cargoes from the far eastern ports.—Progressive Grocer.

SPOKE ON GIFTS AND THEIR DIVERSITIES

The subject presented at the Monday noon meeting of the Richmond Radiator Co., by Rev. Charles H. Ricketts was Gifts and Their Diversities. The meeting was under the direction of the Y. M. C. A.

The speaker said in part: The frequency with which a word is spoken is not an infallible test of its usefulness. But any legitimate word frequently used that applies to a wide scope of human activities must from its very nature be highly significant. Judged by this standard the word "gift," with its various cognates, is an extremely important word. In the concordance I use it occupies six and a half columns, mor space than is given to any other common noun. For this reason we may speak of the "diversities of gifts."

The speaker then considered the various ways in which these diversities were manifested:

I. In the act of God in giving man to the world. The variety of what man is and does is amazing. He is easily the finished product of creation as it has thus far been given. There is apparently no end to human ability to do things physically, mentally and morally. These gifts are numberless.

II. This diversity is seen in natural laws that support the life of man. The air he breathes, the sun that warms him, and the soil that furnishes him food and shelter are gifts; he can offer his Maker no equivalent for them.

III. Gifts sometimes come to us in the shape of hardships and punishment; degrees conferred upon us by the University of Hard Knocks. Our living may be such that it is necessary to bring us up with a jolt to fully realize just how we start with ourselves, with our fellows and with God.

IV. The supreme gift to this world was the Lord Christ. Beyond this even the Almighty has not attempted to go.

STREET CAR HORSE TRAVELED 125,000 MILES

A Norwich man who is extremely fond of horses, is in receipt of a booklet recently gotten out by the State Street Trust Co., of Boston, in which the story of "Old Billy" the longest lived horse ever known in this country, is published among many other articles pertaining to all kinds of industries, banking interests, railway interests as well as many other commercial enterprises.

This booklet which is published annually, having contained the story of this faithful old white horse was forwarded to the Norwich man in question by his brother-in-law. Following is the story, which is entitled "Old Billy of the Metropolitan Railroad." For years this horse served on the line of stages running between Boston and Brookline. In 1856 the first year horse cars were run in Boston, "Billy" entered on a 26 year service as a car horse. It is said that he actually travelled over 125,000 miles, averaging about 14 miles a day, and never losing a trip from sickness or inability.

He died at the West Lenox street stable, Christmas day, 1881, at the age of 44. His skeleton is preserved in the Boston Museum of Natural History.

COLLEGUES EULOGIZE BRANDEGEE IN SENATE MEMORIAL SERVICE

Eulogies of the late Frank B. Brandegee of New London, elected United States senator from this state in 1905 and holding that office until his death on Oct. 14 last, were delivered in the senate at Washington Monday by Senator George P. McLean, long his colleague, and by Senator Hiram Bingham, his successor.

Senator McLean Speaks.

Senator McLean spoke as follows:

Mr. President, while anticipating this opportunity to give expression to an appreciation of my distinguished colleague I have taken note of the necrology of this body since I have been a member and of some of the things said about dead senators by their living contemporaries. I found the Record rather startling in its length. Ninety-four men who have occupied seats in the senate have died since May 4, 1911, and 36 of them were members of the senate when the call came. I also found the Record full of eloquent praise and pathos, but I found nothing that struck just the key that I wanted. Senator Brandegee, like his colleagues and predecessors, was an able senator but he was different. He had flashes of genius rather hard to describe. Those who had the good fortune to be present when he was in the mood to "turn on the light" will understand what I mean. Call it what you will, it pierced the flesh and blood of indirection with X-ray precision. It was in the play of this gift that he was best understood and greatly admired by his friends and easily misunderstood and censured by others. Doctor Wigram would tell us that the possession of this gift was entirely due to the fact that he was the son of his parents. He had a good New England mother. His father's mother was directly descended from John Rogers who was the founder, in 1674, of the religious sect known as the Rogerenes or Rogerene Quakers, or Rogerene Baptists. This society had its birth in New London, Conn., and historians tell us that John Rogers and his son John were men of great strength and courage in their defense of religious and political liberty. They suffered many indignities in the way of fines and imprisonments, but remained steadfast in the faith and their influence contributed much to the forces which finally succeeded in writing the disestablishment of church and state into the constitution of Connecticut.

Senator Brandegee's father was a brilliant lawyer and wit. His word portraits and miniatures are still cherished as superior in drawing and color to anything that ever happened in Connecticut. Moreover, they were always likenesses, never pictures, and his son's skill in this regard was equal to that of his father, when he felt inclined to reveal it. When it was known that Augustus Brandegee was to argue a case in court or make a political speech or talk anywhere upon any subject, unemployment in that vicinity ceased for the time being.

Senator Brandegee's youth was nourished with the traditions and highly cultured environment. Nevertheless, he was a real boy, slow to wrath and loving peace, but quick to avoid entangling alliances that would defeat the ends of his righteous indignation. He loved the woods and its wild life. He loved to tame its resident fur-bearing animals. At one time his collection of pets included a very affectionate but utterly untrustworthy raccoon. His success in saving his forest friend from the capital punishment frequently decreed by the senior Brandegee promised the son phenomenal success at the bar as a defender of sinners by heredity.

Yale Crew and Glee Club.

Senator Brandegee was a good scholar, he was one of the best oars in the Yale crew and one of the best warblers in the glee club. He was graduated in 1885 and began the practice of law in New London, his native city. In 1897 he represented New London in the Connecticut general assembly. He was reelected the following year and in 1899 was chosen speaker, in which position he gained an enviable reputation as an impartial and well-informed parliamentarian. We roomed together in Hartford the winter he was speaker, and incidentally we discussed and solved all of the important political and social problems of the day. We greatly enjoyed doing this. He, half a recluse, and I two-thirds of one. I think neither of us could understand why either of us liked politics, but we both knew that we did like it, and that was sufficient for the day. We were both bachelors at this time. He being one of the outstanding eligibles of the state, I asked him why he did not marry. His reply was: "Young frogs would best keep out of wells!" It seems that the advancing years did not alter his views with regard to this important matter.

We both liked to hold office and we felt that in gratifying this ambition we were following Cardinal Woolsey's advice in so far as it designated one's country as a primary end to be aimed at by those who would promote a comfortable old age. All in due time the hour arrived when both of us wanted the same office at one and the same time and the usual consequences followed. We became active political antagonists. I won the governorship in 1908, he beat me for the senate in 1905, being promoted to this body from the house to which he was elected in 1902. When we both became members of the senate in 1911 the past was soon forgotten. There was nothing to forgive. Senator Brandegee at that time was chairman of the committee on agriculture and forestry. He was appointed a member of the committee on Interoceanic canals in December, 1907, and served until March 4, 1913. It was during the years that he was chairman of the committees indicated that the Adirondack mountain reservation was established and the Panama canal was under construction. In his service on these committees he was recognized as a man always sure of his present and accurate in his history and his opinions were sought upon current legislative matters because they were worth having.

On the League of Nations.

When the controversy over the league of nations came to the front Senator Brandegee revealed his strength and skill as an honorable foe. This is not the place or time to assert the wisdom or the unwisdom of his views upon this all important subject, but this is the time when it can be said and said with emphasis that no member of this body contributed more than he to the forces which prevented the ratification of the treaty of Versailles. His speeches in the senate against the league were comparatively few and brief but they pointed the way to gun spiking and other legitimate strategic operations against the enemy that were Napoleonic in their results. On the floor of the senate and elsewhere he was prone to ask questions which must be answered and which, if answered correctly by his opponents, were likely to place troublesome obstacles in the way of an orderly retreat.

I favored the league of nations with the Lodge reservations. Senator Brandegee was a member of the committee having this subject in charge, and knowing his intense anxiety to prevent our entrance into the league in any form I early took occasion to inform him of my intended action. In our very first discussion of the matter he revealed a mind as generous to others as it was keen in its own defense. Unbending and emphatic himself, he expected and admired like qualities in those who held contrary views provided they were honestly and consistently entertained. In defense of what he believed to be right his courage was unlimited. The greater the danger the stronger his arm. In this controversy he won and, I think, deserves the reputation of being a very hard man to deceive.

He loved the word "no." He was a conservative and he admitted it. He wanted to save and perpetuate the institutions and customs which the American people had acquired and approved in long centuries of conscientious and intelligent experiment. As he put it, he did not believe in wading in large pools of water where he could not see the bottom; he did not believe in diving into mud puddles for the purpose of rescuing reflected stars. Let me quote a characteristic sentence from a speech he made in Connecticut in 1920:

"More than two centuries have passed since our forefathers dedicated themselves to the principle that ours shall be a government of law and not of men. During the stupendous clashes of the World war, that principle, the foundation of a free government, has been truthlessly violated. It must be reestablished and forever maintained."

He did not claim to be a prophet, but I shall now quote two or three sentences from his speeches in the senate delivered more than four years ago and which indicate a very clear vision of what a large majority of the American people approved in the autumn of 1924. He said in 1919:

"I would not vote for a league of nations based upon the principle that this league is based upon, with all the reservations that the wit of man could devise. I would cheerfully and happily vote for any association of nations designed to promote the development of international law, for an international court composed of men of recognized learning in international law.

A little later, on the floor of the senate, he said:

"Mr. President, whatever can be done to promote international good will and peace and order in the world, to administer justice and equity according to the methods of civilized tribunals, will have my most hearty support; but I never will vote for this covenant — treaty which is based upon force utterly unrelated to justice or equity."

During his service in congress he saw many nominally great men come and go, but he agreed with Ethel Boileau that one must avoid public places and his own manner if one would see a truly great man. Certainly, his own eyes were never dazzled by the shining armor of a little brief authority.

He came into this world about the time that oratory in the pure began to go out of style in Connecticut. He felt that fine oratory required fine acting, and to a man of his mental slant and probity experiments in this line were impossible. Nevertheless, he greatly enjoyed a fine oration. He also enjoyed fine acting. Seldom indulging in long speeches himself, he stoutly defended unlimited debate in the senate as the nation's first and oftimes only line of defense against impulsive and plausible legislative vagaries and mistakes.

Believed World Growing Better.

In his opinion human nature and all the other varieties were very closely tied to their mothers' apron strings; not that he neglected duty or opportunity but through his philosophy ran a somber thread of fatalism which he was inclined to follow for better or worse, and which, at times led him into a state of mental and physical indifference and held him back from attempting leaderships that his abilities warranted. He believed that the world was growing better and would continue to grow better, and that as a rule, its progress was as likely to be hindered as accelerated by the lawmaker. If true greatness shuns the plaudits of the crowd, Senator Brandegee was truly great. Self-advertising was to him the unpardonable sin. I once heard a republican leader tell him that he must return to Connecticut and fix his fences or he might not be renominated. His reply was, "I won't do it; if they don't want me, they need not have me."

The old eastern proverb, "To know the truth and speak it is well, to know the truth and speak about date stones is better," did not appeal to him. He said what he felt like saying and sometimes he said it in a way that cost his friends he could and should have kept. Yet, he was as free from subtlety and malice as the traditional bass drummer in a Salvation Army.

Sympathy For the Unfortunate.

Apparently cold and unsympathetic in the morning he would be found collecting a purse for some unfortunate employee of the capitol in the afternoon. One day he met me in the senate cloak room and said, "Old Joe out there in the wash room is sick; got to have an operation, poor devil; I'm going to raise him some money." Why was it that poor Joe the least amongst us, selected Senator Brandegee as the one who would give him the cup of cold water he must have; and why was it that this man who did such things for the poor and lowly could find neither justice nor charity for himself in his hour of supreme need?

In the winter of 1923 he sent for me to tell me he was going to resign and it was with difficulty that he was persuaded to change his mind. He was at that time suffering considerable physical and mental distress. He had purchased a farm in Maryland; and, as is usual with such investments, other troubles are temporarily forgotten. On the 16th of August last I met him in New York. His appearance startled me and I could easily see that Brandegee the senator and statesman, the friend of truth and the foe of indirection, had gone never to return. The news that had voluntarily shut from his eyes the torturing shadows that could not be lifted by time or friends hardly surprised me. I could see then that in the dark soil of solitude the cruel thorns of disease and introspection had ended a career which otherwise would have ripened into a more abundant harvest of happy years and high achievement.

He died on the 14th of October, 1924. He served his state and nation for more than a quarter of a century and he served them with courage and distinction. He was faithful to American ideals and was always found supporting those policies which have guided our national progress and strengthened our constitutional government, and it is my considered judgment that for sheer brain force and clear thinking, for loyalty to country and conviction, his superior has not represented Connecticut in the United States senate since the days of Trumbull and Sherman.

Eulogy By Senator Bingham.

Senator Bingham spoke in part as follows in the eulogy he offered:

Mr. President: As the successor of Senator Brandegee and in accordance with the time honored custom of the senate it becomes my melancholy privilege to speak briefly in commemoration of his life, character, and public services. It is hard for me to appreciate that I speak here not merely as the friend and admirer of Frank Brangedee, but actually as his successor. As my colleague, the senior senator from Connecticut, has also eloquently stated, Senator Brandegee came of distinguished ancestors and worthily upheld the splendid tradition of public service which had been left to him by his father. Through his Brewster ancestry he was related to me and I always had the most sincere and affectionate regard for his sterling qualities, his wit and his old-fashioned Yankee common sense.

For twenty-six years he had been in the senate. For him the state and the nation had the highest regard. To fill the vacancy caused by his demise, Mr. Brandegee, on May 9, 1905, was elected United States senator by the Connecticut legislature. From then he served continuously in the senate until his tragic and unforeseen death on October 14, 1924. In length of service only three from Connecticut surpassed him. Senator Joseph B. Hawley, whose twenty-eight years of public life at Washington stand unequalled for Connecticut; Senator Orville H. Platt, of whose twenty-six years in Washington I have just spoken; and the Honorable Samuel W. Dana of Middletown, who served Connecticut for twenty-five years in Washington. There are but five senators in the senate today who were here when Senator Brandegee first took his seat; the senior senator from Wyoming, both senators from North Carolina, the senior senator from Utah, and the senior senator from Wisconsin. They will remember that the first speech made by Senator Brandegee before the senate was on the occasion of the memorial services in honor of the death of Senator Orville H. Platt. It is significant that at that time Senator Brandegee should have used these words, "No one has ever solved the riddle of existence, no man ever will solve it • • • from that time in the midst of antiquity when mankind assumed the upright attitude and looked the heavens in the face, we have wondered from whence we came and whither we go • • • Insofar as human knowledge and human investigation are concerned, we end where we began • • • The two momentous words of human speech are 'Whence' and 'Whither.' The brain will never answer these questions, the human heart may. We know very little. We feel very much • • • We distinguish life from death, but are in gross ignorance of the cause, the origin, or the termination of both. Among mysteries one inexplicable thing is no more than another. One may affect our emotions more than another, but fundamentally all are equally incomprehensible." Was there something prophetic in these words of Senator Brandegee? Was he even at that time engaged like Hamlet in endeavoring to solve the riddle "to be or not to be"? This we do know, that his life and his actions were impelled by careful thought. Of him it never could be said that he acted without thinking.

It is characteristic of him that in his address on the life and character of Senator Platt he remarked on the fact that the people of Connecticut had accredited him "as their ambassador to this great conclave of the representatives of the sovereign states of this republic." In calling attention to the twenty-six years during which Senator Platt had sat in this chamber he said he had "fearlessly, faithfully, and nobly discharged that trust." He stated that in his opinion that was "the highest ecomium than can be pronounced." The senator continued, "There is not, engraved upon bronze nor carved in marble, in the Valley of the Nile or of the Tigris or the Euphrates or of the Ganges, nor in the Pantheons of Rome, Carthage, or Greece, an epitaph of achievement fraught with greater blessing to humanity than a quarter of a century of able, courageous, and conscientious work in this great parlimentary body."

He called attention to the fact that Senator Platt had "consecrated one-third of his entire life to this lofty ministry." The same is virtually true of his own life.

It is also interesting to find Senator Brandegee praising his predecessor in the senate for carefully weighing every phase of a question, for discriminating with unerring precision between the vital principles upon which a correct solution depends and the irrevelant matters which sometimes confuse their minds. Of his predecessor he said, "He despised shame, hypocrisy, and pretense. He was straightforward, sincere, and reliable. He was a man of sterling integrity, and was as honest with himself as with his fellows. It was as impossible to deceive him as it was for him to attempt to deceive others. He always dared to act as he believed. He never compromised with expediency." The same was true of Senator Brandegee. The popularity or unpopularity of a measure made little difference to him.

Believed In Representative Government.

He believed in the old-fashioned Connecticut theory of representative government. From earliest times in Connecticut the leaders of the Old Colony expressed their faith in a free, representative government. They expected their representatives to apply themselves to the work in hand and with the knowledge so derived to make such decisions as seemed best without any attempt to refer these particular decisions back to the electors, for them to vote on measures with which they would only be imperfectly informed. Should the electors conclude that their representatives had not used good judgment they were always free to send others in their places. This was the attitude taken by Senator Brandegee.

In recent years he frequently regretted that it was impossible for him to enjoy more outdoor life. In one of the last conversations I had with him in his office in this building he gave voice to his weariness and the confining nature of his duties. Yet this never led him to neglect his duties as long as he lived. Those of the senators who were here in July, 1913, during the debate over the Panama Canal Tolls will remember that several times he used the words "I have done what I thought was my duty." That was characteristic of his whole life. What he said on the floor of the senate was not said "with any idea of trying to make any senator come to my (his) opinion about any of these things," but because he thought it was his "duty to state very briefly and informally," the convictions he "had come to without attempting to convert anybody."

Mr. President; such was my admiration of my predecessor that it is difficult for me to find words in which to express it properly. In his death Connecticut has lost one of her ablest sons and the nation one of her most fearless statesmen. He gave up his life to the study of public questions and devoted the best that was in him to the public service. That service was marked by intelligence, patriotism, and disinterestedness. It is through such service that America advances.

MAYOR WATERS CALLS SPECIAL CITY MEETING

A warning for a special city meeting was issued Monday by Mayor Milo R. Waters. The meeting has been called for January 26, at 3 p. m. in the town hall, and is in accordance with a request of a petition from G. Warren Davis and others, to take action on the pumping of water from Trading Cove brook and also to endeavor to enjoin the city officials from all further negotiations regarding the proposed sale of the gas and electric plant. Several other matters have been included in the call by Mayor Waters. The matters in the warning include the following:

To appropriate and expend any balance of the specific appropriation of $60,000 authorized and made for the raising of the dam of Stony Brook reservoir and increasing the pondage for, the payment of the expenses incurred by the board of water commissioners of the city in the installation of a pumping station on Trading Cove brook; to authorize an appropriation of a sum not exceeding $10,000 for the expense of installing and operating the pumping station on Trading Cove brook during the present fiscal year of the city; to authorize the court of common council to appropriate such sum of $10,000 on notes or certificates of indebtedness; to authorize the appropriation of $2,500 for the purpose of repairing the walls and covering of the Franklin street brook sewer, where it crosses the land recently purchased by Peter Sellas southerly on Franklin lin square; to determine whether or not the city meeting will approve of a certain deed and grant to Mary K. Farrell; to determine whether or not the said meeting will request the board of water commissioners to stop pumping water from Trading Cove brook and to determine whether or not said meeting will request the mayor and court of common council to cease all negotiations contemplating the sale or lease of the municipal gas and electric plant, and to abrogate forthwith all arrangements or commitments, either secret or otherwise, looking to the sale or lease of the said gas and electrical plant.

REWARD FOR CAPTURE OF POOR BOX THIEF

The theft of the poor box from St. Mary's Memorial church sometime Saturday afternoon, has resulted in the offering of a reward for the capture and conviction of the thief or thieves. The offer of the reward was made by Father Keefe at the masses Sunday morning. Father Keefe said Monday that the amount of money taken was small but that the box itself is valued at about $40. The police have been notified of the theft and are working on the case.

The poor box was in its usual place on a table in the church Saturday afternoon, Father Keefe said. Thefts have taken place in the past and for that reason the box was not fastened to the church wall as has been the custom as when the boxes were pulled down the wall was damaged.

The box in St. Marys Memorial church has never been fastened to the wall since the new church was built. The theft, Father Keefe stated, was discovered early Saturday evening and so the box must have been taken shortly after 3:30 o'clock, when he saw it, and the early evening. He added that he would pay a reward for the capture and conviction of the person or persons committing the crime. The money placed in the box by the parishioners of the church is used for charitable work of the church and has been very frequently taken out and placed in the regular treasury of the church for such work. It is for this reason that there was only a small amount of money in the box.

Theft of poor boxes also took place at the same time from St. Mary's church, Jewett City and St. John's church, Plainfield.

In Jewett City the box was riveted to a stand in the church and this was damaged and the lock to the box destroyed. Here also it is said that the amount of money was small as this box is emptied very frequently. In Plainfield the box was fastened to a candelabra and this was destroyed and pieces of the box thrown on the floor of the church. Here it is thought that the amount of money will reach between $40 and $50.

A man and his sin were discovered robbing the poor box about a year and a half ago. They were both tried found guilty and sentenced to prison. This kind of theft is very infrequent. The amount of money in practically any case of this sort would be comparatively small. It is the intention of the police to leave no steps unturned to discover the persons who committed the crime.

SENT TO JAIL FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

At the city court session Monday morning, Wasil Luiga, 36, of the city was sentenced to six months in jail on a charge of driving his automobile while under the influence of liquor. Ludiga was arrested last September and a bond of $300 was given at that time by Morris Markoff for his appearance in the city court. Ludiga failed to appear and the bond was called. Ludiga was arrested Sunday night on complaint of his wife. Monday morning the bonds were reopened and the money refunded to Mr. Markoff. Judge Henry H. Pettis who partly heard the case last September when Ludiga was first presented, completed the hearing of the case Monday and pronounced sentence. Ludiga was also fined $25 on the breach of the peace charge brought by his wife. He entered a plea of guilty to both charges.

One man was fined $10 and costs on an intoxication charge and went to jail to work out his fine. Another man had his case continued for six months with instructions to report every two weeks to the probation officer. A third man charged with breach of the peace had his case continued until Tuesday.

SPOKE ON GIFTS AND THEIR DIVERSITIES

The subject presented at the Monday noon meeting of the Richmond Radiator Co., by Rev. Charles M. Ricketts was Gifts and Their Diversities. The meeting was under the direction of the Y. M. C. A.

The speaker said in part: The frequency with which a word is spoken is not an infallible test of its usefulness. But any legitimate word frequently used that applies to a wide scope of human activities must from its very nature be highly significant. Judged by this standard the word "gift," with its various cognates, is an extremely important word. In the concordance I use it occupies six and a half columns, more space than is given to any other common noun. For this reason we may speak of the "diversities of gifts."

The speaker then considered the various ways in which these diversities were manifested:

I. In the act of God in giving man to the world. The variety of what man is and does is amazing. He is surely the finished product of creation and has thus far been given. There is apparently no end to human ability in all things physically, mentally and morally. These gifts are numberless.

II. This diversity is seen in natural gifts that support the life of man. The air he breathes, the sun that warms him, and the soil that furnishes food and shelter are gifts; he can claim no equivalent for them.

III. Gifts sometimes come to us in the shape of hardships and punishment; degrees conferred upon us by the University of Hard Knocks. Our feeling may be such that it is necessary to bring us up with a jolt to help us realize just how we start with ourselves, with our fellows and with God.

IV. The supreme gift to this world was the Lord Christ. Beyond this even the Almighty has not attempted to go.

STREET CAR HORSE TRAVELED 125,000 MILES

A Norwich man who is extremely fond of horses, is in receipt of a booklet recently gotten out by the State Street Trust Co., of Boston, in which the story of "Old Billy" the longest lived horse ever known in this country, is published among many other articles pertaining to all kinds of industries, banking interests, railway interests as well as many other commercial enterprises.

This booklet which is published annually, having contained the story of this faithful old white horse was forwarded to the Norwich man in question by his brother-in-law. Following is the story, which is entitled "Old Billy of the Metropolitan Railroad." For years this horse served on the line of stages running between Boston and Brookline. In 1856 the first year horse cars were run in Boston, "Billy" entered on a 25 year service as a car horse. It is said that he actually travelled over 125,000 miles, averaging about 14 miles a day and never losing a trip from sickness or inability.

He died at the West Lenox street stable, Christmas day, 1891, at the age of 46. His skeleton is preserved in the Boston Museum of Natural History.

COLLEGUES EULOGIZE BRANDEGEE IN SENATE MEMORIAL SERVICE

Eulogies of the late Frank B Brandegee of New London, elected United States senator from this state in 1905 and holding that office until his death on Oct. 14 last, were delivered in the senate at Washington Monday by Senator George P. McLean, long his colleague, and by Senator Hiram Bingham, his successor.

Senator McLean Speaks.

Senator McLean spoke as follows:

Mr. President, while anticipating this opportunity to give expression to an appreciation of my distinguished colleague I have taken note of the necrology of this body since I have been a member and of some of the things said about dead senators by their living contemporaries. I found the Record rather startling in its length. Ninety-four men who have occupied seats in the senate have died since May 4, 1911, and 36 of them were members of the senate when the call came. I also found the Record full of eloquent praise and pathos, but I found nothing that struck just the key that I wanted. Senator Brandegee, like his colleagues and predecessors, was an able senator but he was different. He had flashes of genius rather hard to describe. Those who had the good fortune to be present when he was in the mood to "turn on the light" will understand what I mean. Call it what you will, it pierced the flesh and blood of indirection with X-ray precision. It was in the play of this gift that he was best understood and greatly admired by his friends and easily misunderstood and censured by others. Doctor Wiggam would tell us that the possession of this gift was entirely due to the fact that he was the son of his parents. He had a good New England mother. His father's mother was directly descended from John Rogers who was the founder, in 1674, of the religious sect known as the Rogerenes or Rogerene Quakers, or Rogerens Baptists. This society had its birth in New London, Conn., and historians tell us that John Rogers and his son John were men of great strength and courage in their defense of religious and political liberty. They suffered many indignities in the way of fines and imprisonments, but remained steadfast in the faith and their influence contributed much to the forces which finally succeeded in writing the disestablishment of church and state into the constitution of Connecticut.

Senator Brandegee's father was a brilliant lawyer and wit. His word portraits and miniatures are still cherished as superior in drawing and color to anything that ever happened in Connecticut. Moreover, they were always likenesses, never pictures, and his son's skill in this regard was equal to that of his father, when he felt inclined to reveal it. When it was known that Augustus Brandegee was to argue a case in court or make a political speech or talk anywhere upon any subject, unemployment in that vicinity ceased for the time being.

Senator Brandegee's youth was nourished with the traditions and highly cultured environment. Nevertheless, he was a real boy, slow to wrath and loving peace, but quick to avoid entangling alliances that would defeat the ends of his righteous indignation. He loved the woods and its wild life. He loved to tame its resident fur-bearing animals. At one time his collection of pets included a very affectionate but utterly untrustworthy raccoon. His success in saving his forest friend from the capital punishment frequently decreed by the senior Brandegee promised the son phenomenal success at the bar as a defender of sinners by heredity.

Yale Crew and Glee Club.

Senator Brandegee was a good scholar, he was one of the best oars in the Yale crew and one of the best warblers in the glee club. He was graduated in 1885 and began the practice of law in New London, his native city. In 1897 he represented New London in the Connecticut general assembly. He was reelected the following year and in 1899 was chosen speaker, in which position he gained an enviable reputation as an impartial and well-informed parliamentarian. We roomed together in Hartford the winter he was speaker, and incidentally we discussed and solved all of the important political and social problems of the day. We greatly enjoyed doing this. He, half a recluse, and I two-thirds of one. I think neither of us could understand why either of us liked politics, but we both knew that we did like it, and that was sufficient for the day. We were both bachelors at this time. He being one of the outstanding eligibles of the state, I asked him why he did not marry. His reply was, "Young frogs would best keep out of wells!" It seems that the advancing years did not alter his views with regard to this important matter.

We both liked to hold office and we felt that in gratifying this ambition we were following Cardinal Woolsey's advice in so far as it designated one's country as a primary end to be aimed at by those who would promote a comfortable old age. All in due time the hour arrived when both of us wanted the same office at one and the same time and the usual consequences followed. We became active political antagonists. I won the governorship in 1900, he beat me for the senate in 1905, being promoted to this body from the house to which he was elected in 1902. When we both became members of the senate in 1911 the past was soon forgotten. There was nothing to forgive. Senator Brandegee at that time was chairman of the committee on agriculture and forestry. He was appointed a member of the committee on interoceanic canals in December, 1907, and served until March 4, 1913. It was during the years that he was chairman of the committees indicated that the Adirondack mountain reservation was established and the Panama canal was under construction. In his service on these committees he was recognized as a man always sure of his present and accurate in his history and his opinions were sought upon current legislative matters because they were worth having.

On the League of Nations.

When the controversy over the league of nations came to the front Senator Brandegee revealed his strength and skill as an honorable foe. This is not the place or time to assert the wisdom or the unwisdom of his views upon this all important subject, but this is the time when it can be said and said with emphasis that no member of this body contributed more than he to the forces which prevented the ratification of the treaty of Versailles. His speeches in the senate against the league were comparatively few and brief but they pointed the way to gun spiking and other legitimate strategic operations against the enemy that were Napoleonic in their results. On the floor of the senate and elsewhere he was prone to ask questions which must be angwered and which, if answered correctly by his opponents, were likely to place troublesome obstacles in the way of an orderly retreat.

I favored the league of nations with the Lodge reservations. Senator Brandegee was a member of the committee having this subject in charge, and knowing his intense anxiety to prevent our entrance into the league in any form I early took occasion to inform him of my intended action. In our very first discussion of the matter he revealed a mind as generous to others as it was keen in its own defense. Unbending and emphatic himself, he expected and admired like qualities in those who held contrary views provided they were honestly and consistently entertained. In defense of what he believed to be right his courage was unlimited. The greater the danger the stronger his arm. In this controversy he won and, I think, deserves the reputation of being a very hard man to deceive.

He loved the word "no." He was a conservative and he admitted it. He wanted to save and perpetuate the institutions and customs which the American people had acquired and approved in long centuries of conscientious and intelligent experiment. As he put it, he did not believe in wading in large pools of water where he could not see the bottom; he did not believe in diving in to mud puddles for the purpose of rescuing reflected stars. Let me quote a characteristic sentence from a speech he made in Connecticut in 1920:

"More than two centuries have passed since our forefathers dedicated themselves to the principle that ours shall be a government of law and not of men. During the stupendous clashes of the World war, that principle, the foundation of a free government, has been truthlessly violated. It must be reestablished and forever maintained."

He did not claim to be a prophet, but I shall now quote two or three sentences from his speeches in the senate delivered more than four years ago and which indicate a very clear vision of what a large majority of the American people approved in the autumn of 1924. He said in 1919:

"I would not vote for a league of nations based upon the principle that this league is based upon, with all the reservations that the wit of man could devise. I would cheerfully and happily vote for any association of nations designed to promote the development of international law, for an international court composed of men of recognized learning in international law.

A little later, on the floor of the senate, he said:

"Mr. President, whatever can be done to promote international good will and peace and order in the world, to administer justice and equity according to the methods of civilized tribunals, will have my most hearty support; but I never will vote for this covenant — a treaty which is based upon force utterly unrelated to justice or equity."

During his service in congress he saw many nominally great men come and go, but he agreed with Ethel Barrymore that one must avoid public places and his own mirror if one would see a truly great man. Certainly, his own eyes were never dazzled by the shining armor of a little brief authority.

He came into this world about the time that oratory in the pure began to go out of style in Connecticut. He felt that fine oratory required fine acting, and to a man of his mental slant and probity experiments in this line were impossible. Nevertheless, he greatly enjoyed a fine oration. He also enjoyed fine acting. Seldom indulging in long speeches himself, he stoutly defended unlimited debate in the senate as the nation's first and oftimes only line of defense against impulsive and plausible legislative vagaries and mistakes.

Believed World Growing Better.

In his opinion human nature and all the other varieties were very closely tied to their mothers' apron strings; not that he neglected duty or opportunity but through his philosophy ran a somber thread of fatalism which he was inclined to follow for better or worse, and which, at times led him into a state of mental and physical indifference and held him back from attempting leaderships that his abilities warranted. He believed that the world was growing better and would continue to grow better, and that as a rule, its progress was as likely to be hindered as accelerated by the lawmaker. If true greatness shuns the plaudits of the crowd, Senator Brandegee was truly great. Self-advertising was to him the unpardonable sin. I once heard a republican leader tell him that he must return to Connecticut and fix his fences or he might not be renominated. His reply was, "I won't do it; if they don't want me, they need not have me."

The old eastern proverb, "To know the truth and speak it is well, to know the truth and speak about date stones is better," did not appeal to him. He said what he felt like saying and sometimes he said it in a way that cost his friends he could and should have kept. Yet he was as free from subtlety and malice as the traditional bass drummer in a Salvation Army.

Sympathy For the Unfortunate.

Apparently cold and unsympathetic in the morning he would be found collecting a purse for some unfortunate employee of the capitol in the afternoon. One day he met me in the senate cloak room and said, "Old Joe out there in the wash room is sick; got to have an operation, poor devil; I'm going to raise him some money." Why was it that poor Joe the least amongst us, selected Senator Brandegee as the one who would give him the cup of cold water he must have; and why was it that this man who did such things for the poor and lowly could find neither justice nor charity for himself in his hour of supreme need?

In the winter of 1922 he sent for me to tell me he was going to resign and it was with difficulty that he was persuaded to change his mind. He was at that time suffering considerable physical and mental distress. He had purchased a farm in Maryland; and, as is usual with such investments, other troubles are temporarily forgotten. On the 16th of August last I met him in New York. His appearance startled me and I could easily see that Brandegee the senator and statesman, the friend of truth and the foe of indirection, had gone never to return. The news that had voluntarily shut from his eyes the torturing shadows that could not be lifted by time or friends hardly surprised me. I could see then that in the dark soil of solitude the cruel thorns of disease and introspection had ended a career which otherwise would have ripened into a more abundant harvest of happy years and high achievement.

He died on the 14th of October, 1924. He served his state and nation for more than a quarter of a century and he served them with courage and distinction. He was faithful to American ideals and was always found supporting those policies which have guided our national progress and strengthened our constitutional government, and it is my considered judgment that for sheer brain force and clear thinking, for loyalty to country and conviction, his superior has not represented Connecticut in the United States senate since the days of Trumbull and Sherman.

Eulogy By Senator Bingham.

Senator Bingham spoke in part as follows in the eulogy he offered:

Mr. President: As the successor of Senator Brandegee and in accordance with the time honored custom of the senate it becomes my melancholy privilege to speak briefly in commemoration of his life, character, and public services. It is hard for me to appreciate that I speak here not merely as the friend and admirer of Frank Brangedee, but actually as his successor. As my colleague, the senior senator from Connecticut, has also eloquently stated, Senator Brandegee came of distinguished ancestors and worthily upheld the splendid tradition of public service which had been left to him by his father. Through his Brewster ancestry he was related to me and I always had the most sincere and affectionate regard for his sterling qualities, his wit and his old-fashioned Yankee common sense.

For twenty-six years he had been in the senate. For him the state and the nation had the highest regard. To fill the vacancy caused by his demise, Mr. Brandegee, on May 9, 1905, was elected United States senator by the Connecticut legislature. From then he served continuously in the senate until his tragic and unforeseen death on October 14, 1924. In length of service only three from Connecticut surpassed him. Senator Joseph E. Hawley, whose twenty-eight years of public life at Washington stand unequalled for Connecticut; Senator Orville H. Platt, of whose twenty-six years in Washington I have just spoken; and the Honorable Samuel W. Dana of Middletown, who served Connecticut for twenty-five years in Washington. There are but five senators in the senate today who were here when Senator Brandegee first took his seat; the senior senator from Wyoming, both senators from North Carolina, the senior senator from Utah, and the senior senator from Wisconsin. They will remember that the first speech made by Senator Brandegee before the senate was on the occasion of the memorial services in honor of the death of Senator Orville H. Platt. It is significant that at that time Senator Brandegee should have used these words. "No one has ever solved the riddle of existence, no man ever will solve it * * * from that time in the midst of antiquity when mankind assumed the upright attitude and looked the heavens in the face, we have wondered from whence we came and whither we go * * * Insofar as human knowledge and human investigation are concerned, we end where we began * * * The two momentous words of human speech are 'Whence' and 'Whither.' The brain will never answer these questions, the human heart may. We know very little. We feel very much * * * We distinguish life from death, but are in gross ignorance of the cause, the origin, or the termination of both. Among mysteries one inexplicable thing is no more than another. One may affect our emotions more than another, but fundamentally all are equally incomprehensible." Was there something prophetic in these words of Senator Brandegee? Was he even at that time engaged like Hamlet in endeavoring to solve the riddle "to be or not to be"? This we do know, that his life and his actions were impelled by careful thought. Of him it never could be said that he acted without thinking.

It is characteristic of him that in his address on the life and character of Senator Platt he remarked on the fact that the people of Connecticut had accredited him "as their ambassador to this great conclave of the representatives of the sovereign states of this republic." In calling attention to the twenty-six years during which Senator Platt had sat in this chamber he said he had "fearlessly, faithfully, and nobly discharged that trust." He stated that in his opinion that was "the highest ecomium than can be pronounced." The senator continued, "There is not, engraved upon bronze nor carved in marble, in the Valley of the Nile or of the Tigris or the Euphrates or of the Ganges, nor in the Pantheons of Rome, Carthage, or Greece, an epitaph of achievement fraught with greater blessing to humanity than a quarter of a century of able, courageous, and conscientious work in this great parlimentary body."

He called attention to the fact that Senator Platt had "consecrated one-third of his entire life to this lofty ministry." The same is virtually true of his own life.

It is also interesting to find Senator Brandegee praising his predecessor in the senate for carefully weighing every phase of a question, for discriminating with unerring precision between the vital principles upon which a correct solution depends and the irrevelant matters which sometimes confuse their minds. Of his predecessor he said, "He despised shame, hypocrisy, and pretense. He was straightforward, sincere, and reliable. He was a man of sterling integrity, and was as honest with himself as with his fellows. It was as impossible to deceive him as it was for him to attempt to deceive others. He always dared to act as he believed. He never compromised with expediency." The same was true of Senator Brandegee. The popularity or unpopularity of a measure made little difference to him.

Believed in Representative Government.

He believed in the old-fashioned Connecticut theory of representative government. From earliest times in Connecticut the leaders of the Old Colony expressed their faith in a free, representative government. They selected their representatives to apply themselves to the work in hand and with the knowledge so derived to make such decisions as seemed best without any attempt to refer these particulars decisions back to the electors, for them to vote on measures with which they would only be imperfectly informed. Should the electors conclude that their representatives had not used good judgment they were always free to send others in their places. This was the attitude taken by Senator Brandegee.

In recent years he frequently regretted that it was impossible for him to enjoy more outdoor life. In one of the last conversations I had with him in his office in this building he gave voice to his weariness and the confining nature of his duties. Yet this never led him to neglect his duties as long as he lived. Those of the senators who were here in July, 1913, during the debate over the Panama Canal Tolls will remember that several times he used the words "I have done what I thought was my duty." That was characteristic of his whole life. What he said on the floor of the senate was not said "with any idea of trying to make any senator come to my (his) opinion about any of these things," but because he thought it was his "duty to state very briefly and informally," the convictions he "had come to without attempting to convert anybody."

Mr. President: such was my admiration of my predecessor that it is difficult for me to find words in which to express it properly. In his death Connecticut has lost one of her ablest sons and the nation one of her most fearless statesmen. He gave up his life to the study of public questions and devoted the best that was in him to the public service. That service was marked by intelligence, patriotism, and disinteresedness. It is through such service that America advances.

MAYOR WATERS CALLS SPECIAL CITY MEETING

A warning for a special city meeting was issued Monday by Mayor Milo R. Waters. The meeting has been called for January 26, at 8 p. m. in the town hall, and is in accordance with a request of a petition from G. Warren Davis and others, to take action on the pumping of water from Trading Cove brook and also to endeavor to enjoin the city officials from all further negotiations regarding the proposed sale of the gas and electric plant. Several other matters have been included in the call by Mayor Waters. The matters in the warning include the following:

To appropriate and expend any balance of the specific appropriation of $60,000 authorised and made for the raising of the dam of Stony Brook reservoir and increasing the pondage for, the payment of the expenses incurred by the board of water commissioners of the city in the installation of a pumping station on Trading Cove brook; to authorize an appropriation of a sum not exceeding $10,000 for the expense of installing and operating the pumping station on Trading Cove brook during the present fiscal year of the city; to authorize the court of common council to appropriate such sum of $10,000 on notes or certificates of indebtedness; to authorize the appropriation of $2,500 for the purpose of repairing the walls and covering of the Franklin street brook sewer, where it crosses the land recently purchased by Peter Sellas southerly on Franklin square; to determine whether or not the city meeting will approve of a certain deed and grant to Mary K. Farrell; to determine whether or not the said meeting will request the board of water commissioners to stop pumping water from Trading Cove brook and to determine whether or not said meeting will request the mayor and court of common council to cease all negotiations contemplating the sale or lease of the municipal gas and electric plant, and to abrogate forthwith all arrangements or commitments, either secret or otherwise, looking to the sale or lease of the said gas and electrical plant.

REWARD FOR CAPTURE OF POOR BOX THIEF

The theft of the poor box from St. Mary's Memorial church sometime Saturday afternoon, has resulted in the offering of a reward for the capture and conviction of the theif or thieves. The offer of the reward was made by Father Keefe at the masses Sunday morning. Father Keefe said Monday that the amount of money taken was small but that the box itself is valued at about $40. The police have been notified of the theft and are working on the case.

The poor box was in its usual place on a table in the church Saturday afternoon, Father Keefe said. Thefts have taken place in the past and for that reason the box was not fastened to the church wall as has been the custom as when the boxes were pulled down the wall was damaged.

The box in St. Marys Memorial church has never been fastened to the wall since the new church was built. The theft, Father Keefe stated, was discovered early Saturday evening and so the box must have been taken shortly after 3:30 o'clock, when he saw it, and the early evening. He added that he would pay a reward for the capture and conviction of the person or persons committing the crime. The money placed in the box by the parishoners of the church is used for charitable work of the church and has been very frequently taken out and placed in the regular treasury of the church for such work. It is for this reason that there was only a small amount of money in the box.

Theft of poor boxes also took place at the same time from St. Mary's church, Jewett City and St. John's church, Plainfield.

In Jewett City the box was riveted to a stand in the church and this was damaged and the lock to the box destroyed. Here also it is said that the amount of money was small as this box is emptied very frequently. In Plainfield the box was fastened to a candelabra and this was destroyed and pieces of the box thrown on the floor of the church. Here it is thorught that the amount of money will reach between $40 and $50.

A man and his son were discovered robbing the poor box about a year and a half ago. They were both tried found guilty and sentenced to prison.

This kind of theft is very infrequent. The amount of money in practically any case of this sort would be comparatively small. It is the intention of the police to leave no steps unturned to discover the persons who committed the crime.

SENT TO JAIL FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

At the city court session Monday morning, Wasil Luiga, 36, of the city was sentenced to six months in jail on a charge of driving his automobile while under the influence of liquor. Ludiga was arrested last September and a bond of $300 was given at that time by Morris Markoff for his appearance in the city court. Ludiga failed to appear and the bond was called. Ludiga was arrested Sunday night on complaint of his wife. Monday morning the bonds were reopened and the money refunded to Mr. Markoff. Judge Henry H. Pettis who partly heard the case last September when Ludiga was first presented, completed the hearing of the case Monday and pronounced sentence. Ludiga was also fined $25 on the breach of the peace charge brought by his wife. He entered a plea of guilty to both charges.

One man was fined $10 and costs on an intoxication charge and went to jail to work out his fine. Another man had his case continued for six months with instructions to report every two weeks to the probation officer. A third man charged with breach of the peace had his case continued until Tuesday.

RUTHER ASSURED OF VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

Berlin, Jan. 20 (By the A. P.)—Despite strong attacks by the socialist and communists on the composition of his new cabinet and the government's official declaration of policy as made in the reichstag yesterday, Dr. Hans Luther, the new chancellor, is assured a safe majority on a motion of lack of confidence in the government submitted by the socialists today.

Dr. Luther will have the support of the nationalist, the German volks party, the centrists, the Bavarian people's party, and the economic league, when the socialist resolution is taken up for action, probably tomorrow.

All the courses of todays' debate on the government's program, Dr. Rudolph Breitscheid, leader of the socialists, warned the new government that it never could expect the tolerance of the socialists. Dr. Breitscheid's speech was expelled in violency of expression against the new government only by Ruth Fischer, floor leader of the communists.

Notwithstanding the severity of his attack, Dr. Breitscheid mainly was in a dilemma as far as his discussion of Chancellor Luther's program was concerned, and his chief point of attack was levelled at the makeup of the new cabinet.

The democrats have not yet decided whether they will give a motion expressing confidence in the government their endorsement or abstain from voting. There are prospects that a section of the clerical party's left wing will refuse to support this resolution. The government, however, is assured sufficient votes to overcome the opposition of the socialists and communists and a possible defection on the part of the democrats.

AMERICAN STEAMER DISABLED OFF PORTUGAL

London, Jan. 20.—A despatch to Lloyds from Durban, Natal, states that the American steamer "Eastern Glen," from New York Dec. 1 for Beira, Portuguese East Africa, is reported totally disabled off Burra Falsa, on the Portuguese East African coast. It was added that a tug has been sent from Beira to the vessel's aid.

A despatch received by Lloyds from Durban tonight said the British steamer Dwarka also had gone to the assistance of the Eastern Glen.

GUILTY OF MURDER OF WIFE AND HIS TWO DAUGHTERS

BREAKDOWN OF OPIUM CONFERENCE IMPENDING

Geneva, Jan. 20.—(By the A. P.)—So serious a situation developed today at the international opium conference that many of the delegates walked back to their hotels tonight after adjournment frankly voicing the opinion that a complete breakdown tomorrow was a possibility.

Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, the chief British representative, who is leading the fight against the American proposals said tersely: "Things are critical." He added that he expected to be the first speaker at tomorrow morning's session and that he would oppose the American suggestion for the suppression of opium smoking in the Far East within 15 years, because he was convinced the adoption of any such plan would only mean deceiving the world.

Viscount Cecil declared it was his judgment that it was impossible to inaugurate now any fixed time limit for the abolishment of opium smoking because of the heavy smuggling in the Far East. He insisted that all parliamentary procedure forbade any extension of the conference's scope, and hence the present conference was not authorized to take up the problem of opium smoking, which belonged in the agenda of the earlier conference.

DAWES REPARATION PLAN WORKING SATISFACTORILY

Paris, Jan. 20 (By the A. P.)—Seymour Parker Gilbert, agent-general for reparations payments, today presented to the reparation commission a statement of the Dawes plan results to date, mentioning the fact that Germany had, since the new arrangement began working, overpaid the allies something like 20,000,000 gold marks. This discrepancy in Germany's payments, he explained, was due to intricacies of accounting caused by the fact that the French and British were collecting the recovery tax at the same time the transfer committee was paying over monthly sums received from Germany under the plan.

The agent-general reported that the Dawes plan was working satisfactorily.

THICK WEATHER FORCED TUG WANDANK TO PUT TO SEA

Boston, Jan. 20.—The naval tug Wandank reported to the navy yard here this afternoon that she had been forced to put to sea by the thick weather. Snow was being swept by the high wind over the outer bar at Orleans harbor so that she could not see the stranded submarine S-19, she reported, and th tug was in danger of going ashore herself.

In a report made this morning the Wandank reported that the S-19 had apparently been moved from her sandy bed on the previous high tide and it was hoped that more ground would be gained on the flood tide this afternoon.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

Cheers For Ihanes.

Paris, Jan 20 (By the A. P.)—Applause from all sections of the chamber of deputies greeted Premier Herriot's announcement this evening that King Alfonso had abandoned his action against Vicomte Ibanez Ibanez, the Spanish author, for his attacks on the Spanish monarch and military directorate by means of pamphlets written in France.

MRS. FERGUSON INAUGURATED AS GOVERNOR OF TEXAS

Austin, Tex., Jan. 20.—(By the A. P.)—Without the slightest show of emotion, Mrs. Miriam Amanda Ferguson, of Temple, Texas, today was sworn in as the first woman governor in Texas and the second in the United States.

A crowd that occupied every available inch of space in the house of representatives witnessed the ceremonies. An overflow crowd of several thousand filled the wide corridors of the capitol building.

Mrs. Ferguson was given the oath by Chief Justice C. M. Cureton, of the Texas supreme court, soon after Barry Miller of Dallas, had been sworn in as lieutenant governor.

Mrs. Ferguson sat on the front row of the speaker's platform beside Retiring Governor Pat M. Neff. Across the stand from her, in company with Mrs. Neff, sat her husband, James E. Ferguson, who, 10 years and one day ago, was inaugurated governor from the same platform, and three years later was impeached in the senate chamber across the hall.

Mrs. Ferguson repeated the oath in a low voice, scarcely above a whisper, which was barely audible at the press table. She did not change her expression of composure during the oath, even when she swore that she had never sent a challenge nor participated in a duel. She looked steadily at Justice Cureton.

The woman governor read a brief speech, but did not raise her voice much louder than the conversational tone.

Retiring Governor Neff was greeted with cheers when, upon closing his last utterance as governor of Texas, he told Mrs. Ferguson that he had left, as an inspiration to her administration, a photograph of Woodrow Wilson hanging over the desk.

As she arose to her feet to take the oath, Mrs. Mae Peterson Thompson, formerly of the Metropolitan Opera company, sang: "Put On Your Old Gray Bonnet," and then Mrs. Ferguson smiled broadly.

JURY SEVERELY REBUKED BY A JUDGE IN BOSTON

Boston, Jan. 20.—Judge Elias B. Bishop of the superior court today rebuked a jury which after brief deliberation had returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of a man charged with drunkenness. Police officers had testified that the man had created a general disturbance and was so drunk that he could not be booked at the station house until he had recovered from the effects of the liquor three hours after his arrest.

Addressing the foreman, Judge Bishop said:

"Did you believe the officers who testified?"

"We did not discuss that."

"Did you believe the defendant was telling the truth?"

"We did not discuss that; we simply took one ballot."

"If you gentlemen were assigned to my session," remarked the court, "I would put you out of here as quickly as possible" and turning to the clerk of the court he added: "Take these names back to Judge Broadhurst and tell him these men are unfit for jury service."

STYLES IN SHOES WILL CHANGE LITTLE THIS YEAR

New York, Jan. 20.—Styles in shoes this year will change little, although prices may soar, John C. McKeon, president of the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' association, predicted today at the opening of the 21st annual meeting of the association in the Hotel Astor.

"Prices will either remain firm or soar upward," said Mr. McKeon, "largely due to no liquidation of labor, owing to the effect of the immigration laws and stocks of raw material being almost normal."

Manufacturers, Mr. McKeon added, are getting away from extreme cutout effects in women's shoes, and most novelties in the coming year will be attractive combinations of leather and colors.

WHISTLES TO BLOW FOR ECLIPSE IN NEW HAVEN

New Haven, Jan. 20.—If New Haven people have any doubt about the time of the total eclipse of the sun next Saturday, they will receive ample warning, it became known today. Shortly after nine o'clock Saturday morning, whistles on practically all of the factories of this city will be blown which will be the signal for everyone to look skyward for one of the greatest heavenly spectacles of the century. Factories, stores and business places will be closed long enough to give their workers ample time to see the eclipse and it was announced today that the Winchester Repeating Arms company plant would be closed for the entire day.

Would Make Utilities Commission Elective

Bill in the Legislature Would Allot One Member to Each of Eight Cities With Population of 25,000 or More.

Hartford, Jan. 20.—Members of the general assembly today had their first experience with contrary weather in their journeying to the state capitol, and they also got an idea of the way legislative business rolls in, the number of bills in the house being considerable.

Some curiosity was shown in a bill offered by Mr. Cubeddi of Bridgeport which would alter the composition of the public utilities commission. In substance, it would provide that each of the eight cities in the state with a population of 25,000 or more would have a member on the commission, to be chosen by popular vote, and cities and towns of lesser size would have their interests looked after by three members to be appointed by the governor. When matters affecting the eight cities came before the commission the entire membership of 11 would consider them, but when matters relating to cities of lesser size were offered for solution the three governor's appointees only would act.

In line with a recommendation of Governor Bingham in his message Mr. Sherwood of Waterbury offered a bill aimed at billboards on state highways, providing that the state highway commissioner should hold a hearing to determine if each individual billboard should remain where it stands, the question at issue being whether it disfigured the landscape or interfered with view of natural scenery.

The bill for a new armory at New Haven, carrying an appropriation of $500,000 also provides that a commission shall build the structure consisting of R. S. Woodruff, Judge J. L. Gilson, William G. Newton and Sol Harris. Some years ago a bill to build a new armory in that city placed the project in the hands of a commission for investigation.

Other bills were: Appropriating $81,000 for Gaylord Farm Sanatorium, for a trunk highway between Waterbury and Bristol, including New Milford, Torrington road in trunk highway system, reimbursing H. T. Couchman $200 for motor vehicle fine violation, extending time for acceptance of amendments to charter of Plainville Water company, closing Bolton lake to ice fishing for three years.

By Mr. Alling—providing that operators of motor vehicles must give name and address when requested by any person after accidents, that women shall not be a committee to State Farm for Women for a longer period than the maximum jail sentence for same offense, providing salaries for state's attorneys as follows: Hartford, $4,500; New Haven, $7,500; Fairfield, $4,000; Tolland, $1,800; Litchfield, $3,500; Windham, $2,800; Middlesex $2,000; New London, $3500.

TROTZKY WAS REMOVED BY COMMUNIST PARTY

Moscow, Jan. 20 (By the A. P.)—The announcement of Leon Trotzky's dismissal as soviet war minister by the central executive committee of the communist party was received today by the public with complete calm and apparent indifference.

The Russian people learned only this morning through the bolshevikl press of the deposition of the soviet military leader. It had long been understood, however, that the leaders of the communist party would take several disciplinary measures against the head of the red army, although it had scarcely been anticipated that Trotzky would be dismissed from the war ministry.

At the committee's sessions all the charges against Trotzky were restated in a lengthy document which resembled an indictment. This document asserted that the war minister's activities against the communist party had encouraged the bourgeoise countries abroad to believe that the bolshevik regime was in danger of falling to pieces. It was also stated that Trotzky's opposition was taken as a signal by the elements hostile to the soviet government at home to unite against the policy of the communist party in order to assist in the overthrow of the proletarian dictatorship.

JUDGE BROWN DECIDES IN FAVOR OF MISS MEYER

New Haven, Jan. 20. — The three cornered legal controversy between Virginius J. Mayo, former Hamden manufacturer, and Wilhelmine Meyer, his former wife, and Benjamin Slade, former counsel, ended in a victory for Miss Meyer, as she is now known, according to a judgment handed down in her favor by Allyn L. Brown in the superior court today. Miss Meyer was given the proceeds of a $1,000 endowment insurance policy and the Travelers Insurance company was allowed $85 for its expenses and costs.

Years ago Mayo took out a $1,000 fifteen-year endowment policy from the Travelers Insurance company. Mayo had the policy payable to his wife, who then was known as Wilhelmine M. Mayo. When the policy became payable Mayo laid in a claim for it. Miss Meyer also claimed the money and then Attorney Slade made a claim for part of the money. The Insurance company brought a suit of interpleader to the superior court in which the court was asked to determine who should receive the fund.

Senator Edwards In Liquor Scandal

Accused of Backing Weehawken men on Trial For Conspiracy to Violate the Liquor Law.

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 20.—A charge that United States Senator Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey was the backer of ten Weehawken police and two civilians now being tried in county court for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law was made today by two agents of the treasury department, Charles L. Hurlbert and Lionel Wilson.

The sudden injection of Senator Edwards' name fulfilled the hint given yesterday by the prosecution that the course of the case would take it into "high places." Lionel Wilson said that not only had William Griffin, one of the defendants in the case, and alleged "master mind" of the conspiracy, told him that Senator Edwards was his backer, but that Edwards had accepted and held in escrow $5,800 which he was to have delivered to Griffin when the latter delivered 100 cases of what Edwards assured them would be "good stuff."

Prosecuting Attorney John Milton of Hudson county indicated that the charges of the federal officers would be presented to the grand jury regardless of the verdict in the present case, which is expected to go to the jury tomorrow at noon.

Whether Senator Edwards would be in court tomorrow to answer the allegations of Wilson and Hurlbert was problematical tonight. When communicated with in Washington today, Mr. Edwards said he would answer the charges "at the proper time."

Hurlbert declared that, in company with Wilson, he had paid the money to Senator Edwards on Nov. 14, 1923, in the office of the First National bank of Jersey City, of which the senator is president.

Preliminary discussion had taken place in a two-hour conference at Senator Edwards' home in Caldwell, N. J., Hurlbert said.

The federal agents admitted that there had been no sale or delivery, however, and that Senator Edwards had returned the money to them after they said Griffin had become suspicions.

Griffin, in his testimony, admitted that Wilson and Hurlbert had left money for him with Senator Edwards but denied that either he or Edwards knew that a liquor deal was contemplated and that the money had been returned by Senator Edwards at his (Griffin's) direction, when he discovered that liquor was wanted.

WOULD HAVE MILITARY MAN COMMAND BOSTON POLICE

Boston, Jan. 20. — Temporary appointment of an army or marine corps officer as head of the Boston police department was advocated by Mayor Curley today.

After representatives of the Boston Chamber of Commerce had told the mayor that the chamber was disturbed by increasing lawlessness and that there appeared to be a need for more policemen, the mayor called attention to the division of authority over the police department between state and city. He expressed admiration for Police Commissioner Wilson but added:

"The existence of an unchcked system of brigandage that would not be permitted even in a mining camp, and which unless speedily checked may serve as a serious deterrent to the safety of the individual citizen and constitute an ineffaceable blot on our boasted love of law and order is due to the system which deprives the city of Boston of the right to select its law-enforcing head. It is time that Boston should be given an opportunity to administer her own affairs.

"Legislation to this end has been presented to the general court and in the event of its adoption, I shall recommend appointment of an officer of the army or marine corps who can be relied upon to discharge the duties of his office without fear or favor and without regard to politics."

EAST HAMPTON CAT A WEATHER PROPHET

East Hampton, Conn., Jan. 20.—The cat of Louis James, of this town, which has gained considerable local prominence as a weather prophet, ran true to form yesterday and gave ample warning of the snow storm which arrived today. The cat, while normal in every respect in fair weather, appears to become very much excited just preceding a snow or rain storm. The cat has been loaned to several farms in this vicinity when weather predictions were wanted, and because of its accurate predictions, has been named "Weather Vane." Mr. James says he will not sell the cat for any sum but is planning to offer it to President Coolidge.

HUGE DRIFTS OF SNOW IN VICINITY OF SPRINGFIELD

Trains Were Running More Than an Hour Late—In New York City 18 Persons Were Injured in Collision of Trains on the Sixth Avenue Elevated Road—Storm Reached Blizzard Proportions in the Naugatuck Valley.

Springfield, Vt., Jan. 20.—The northeast blizzard tonight was driving in additional drifts to overlay the eight inches of snow which fell during the day. Wire service has suffered little as yet but trains are running more than an hour late. Coming on the heels of the heavy storm of Saturday, the snow is piled in huge drifts over the countryside.

ROADS CLEARED BY STATE HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT

Hartford, Jan. 20.—The state highway department coped with today's storm with its full equipment of plows and snow removal motor trucks. State Highway Commissioner John A. MacDonald said this afternoon that the blizzard was fairly well spread over the state with a fall of about four inches in most places with a stretch around Ridgefield, in Fairfield county, where the fall went to about a foot in depth. The state highway department went at the task of clearing the highways and most of them were plowed out by 3 p. m. for motor traffic.

SIX INCHES OF SNOW IN THE NAUGATUCK VALLEY

Waterbury, Conn., Jan. 20.—This section of the Naugatuck valley was in the grip of the first real blizzard of the winter, all day today. From 3 o'clock this morning until 6 o'clock tonight, when the snow let up, there had been a steady fall of snow or sleet. Tonight the ground is covered with a blanket six inches thick.

Trolley traffic was hampered all day. The snow, itself, was not heavy enough to cause undue trouble, but the sleet froze to rails and trolley wires, making it difficult for the cars to get either traction or power.

Telephone service was not interrupted and lighting companies reported no trouble.

The temperature is rising tonight, and rain is anticipated.

18 PERSONS INJURED IN COLLISION ELEVATED TRAINS

New York, Jan. 20.—Eighteen persons were hurt, three seriously, when a Sixth avenue elevated train late this afternoon crashed into another train which had not pulled out of the station at Eighth avenue and 110th street. The brakes of the second train failed to work because of slippery rails.

The most seriously injured were Charles Winder of Glendale, guard on the second train, who was badly bruised; Mrs. Jenny Bardoni of Brooklyn, whose right hip was fractured; and Matthew Toohey, Manhattan, whose left shoulder was fractured.

STORM INTERFERED WITH TROLLEY SCHEDULES

New Haven, Jan. 20.—Connecticut was covered by a blanket of snow from six to eight inches deep tonight as the result of the first real blizzard of the winter. The storm, which broke over the state early this morning, continued throughout the day, and the snow, blown about by a heavy wind, blocked some of the highways for a time and interfered considerably with the trolley schedules. The state highway department put into operation its complete equipment of plows, and the highways were reported open to automobile travel late this afternoon. The railroads were little affected by the storm.

TROLLEY CAR DERAILED BY ICE AND SNOW

Milford, Conn., Jan. 2—A New Haven bound trolley car was derailed at Rogers avenue, near here early this forenoon, when accumulated ice and snow caused the trucks to leave the tracks. The car was stopped near an embankment but none of the ten passengers aboard were injured. A New Haven crew was in charge of the car.

VIOLENT SNOW AND SLEET STORM IN NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 20.—A violent snow and sleet storm, which for New York city was the second big one of the season, today tossed a mantle over the northeastern section of the United States and then romped seaward.

One man, blinded by the blizzard, walked into a trolley in Brooklyn, and was killed. Eighteen persons were injured in a collision of open-air elevated trains in uptown Manhattan. A few woman fainted in subway traffic jams.

There was no reported loss of life out of town and little property damage. But the storm was sufficient to threaten cities with a paralysis of transit facilities, to isolate inland communities, throw trains off schedule, delay the arrival of ocean steamships and set an army of snow-shovelers busy.

Although the weather men said there was no prospect of another storm immediately, they were loth to predict whether the skies would be cleared by Saturday, the day of the solar eclipse. Something definite might be known on that subject about Thursday, said weather bureau operators.

APPROVE REMOVAL OF WAR MINISTER TROTZKY

Berlin, Jan. 20.—The dethronement of War Minister Trotzky by the central committee of the communist party meets with the pronounced approval of the German communists, whose organ, Die Rote Fahne, asserts it signalizes the solidarity of the communist party and brings to a definite close a phase in the party's historic development in that it removes from its ranks a man who vainly sought to attack or improve the work created by Lenin.

"The fight on Trotzkyism is not a Russian problem, but is a question of opposing halfway measures or concessions to the small bourgeoise during the transition period when we are in sore need of unadulterated Leninism," the newspaper asserts.

The reds' German organ believes that Trotzky's fall from office will be hailed by the proletariat everywhere and will again bring the banner of Lenin to the fore.

The disappearance of Trotzky will not have a far-reaching effect for the moment, in the opinion of the Cousische Zeitung, which declares the war leader never was a really dyed-in-the-wool bolshevist, but always steered "a middle of the road course." This newspaper adds, however, that "history may one day designate his retirement as an important milestone along the route of sovietism whose end may by marked by the erection of a Russian democracy."

MAY WITHHOLD CHAPMAN FROM CONN. AUTHORITIES

Washington, Jan. 20.—Assistant Attorney General Donovan today telegrapher State's Attorney Alcorn at Hartford, Conn., to come to Washington for a conference in connection with his demand that Gerald Chapman, train robber, be turned over to Connecticut authorities to answer to a charge of murder.

The department of justice is not ready to grant the request without first having definite knowledge of the proceedings to be instituted, although it was said the desires of the Connecticut authorities were looked upon with some favor.

Chapman was indicted today at Hartford charged with killing Policeman James Skelly, at New Britain last October 12. He is held at Indianapolis for return to the Atlanta penitentiary from which he escaped.

Donovan was not informed concerning the date of Mr. Alcorn's arrival here but advised the Connecticut attorney that the conference could be held any day next week.

PLOWS KEPT THE POST ROAD OPEN TO TRAFFIC

Bridgeport, Jan. 20.—Forces of the public works departments here and the state highway department with snow plows and sweepers were busy tonight in clearing streets and highways of today's fall of snow which was more than eight inches.

The state highway department reported that plows had made a second trip over the Post road from the New Haven town line to Greenwich tonight and that the highway was open for traffic.

SENATE ADOPTS MAJORITY REPORT ON OIL LEASES

Washington, Jan. 20.—The senate confirmed today the finding of the majority of its investigating committee criticising the naval oil leases.

The report, submitted in the closing days of the last session by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, prosecutor for the committee was approved by a vote of 40 to 30, after the senate had rejected, 43 to 23, a minority report presented by Senator Spencer, of Missouri, on behalf of himself and four other republicans of the committee.

Action came after comparatively brief debate on a subject which occupied much of the attention of the senate at the last session and led to the institution of the pending suits by the government to cancel the leases of the naval oil reserves granted to Edward L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinclair by Albert B. Fall, as secretary of the interior.

The minority report, which defended the principle of the leasing of naval oil reserves and held Edwin Denby, as secretary of the navy, and his assistants blameless in connection with the leases, drew support only from republicans. The democrats voted solidly for the Walsh report and were joined by six republicans, and one farmer labor, Shipstead, of Minnesota.

For the Majority Report

Republicans — Borah, Brookhart, Frazier, Johnson of California; Norbeck and Norris—6.

Democrats: Broussard, Bruce, Caraway, Copeland, Dial, Dill, Edwards, Ferris, Fletcher George, Gerry, Harris, Harrison, Heelin, Kendrick, King, McKellar, Mayfield, Neely, Overman, Pittman, Ralston Ransdell, Reid, of Missouri; Shepherd, Shields, Simmons, Smith, Swanson, Underwood, Walsh, of Massachusetts; Walsh, Montana and Wheeler—23.

Farmer-labor: Shipstead—1.—Total—40.

Against the Majority Report

Republicans: Bingham, Bursum, Butler Cameron, Capper, Couzins, Cummins, Curtis, Ernst, Fernald, Fess, Gooding, Hale, Jones of Washington; Keyes, McCormick, McKinley, McLean, Means, Metcalf, Oddie, Pepper, Phipps, Smoot, Spencer, Sterling Wadsworth, Warren, Watson and Willis—30.

NO RADIO STORY OF THE ECLIPSE BY LOS ANGELES

Lakehurst, N. J., Jan. 20.—The dirigible Los Angeles will not broadcast a moment-by-moment story of the solar eclipse next Saturday from above the clouds, chiefs of the naval air station announced today.

Cancellation of previously reported plans for connecting the big airship by radio with broadcasting stations at Washington, New York and Providence was due to a conflict of programs, it was said, and to the impossibility of installing the necessary equipment on the Los Angeles in time for the eclipse.

[illegible] of Mrs. Maria E. (Lincoln, [illegible] 19, the widow of John G. [illegible] occurred on Tuesday in Cambridge at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Alma M. Bullock, with whom Mrs. Bill was spending the winter. Her death was preceded by an illness of only several days. Mrs. Bill was born in Norwich Windham, January 13, 1845, the daughter of Loren and Elizabeth (Parker) Lincoln. She was married in Chaplin April 21, 1867, to John G. Bill, whose death occurred only a few months ago. Mrs. Bill is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Bullock, two grandsons, Reynold and Richard Bullock, a brother, M. E. Lincoln of Willimantic and several cousins.

After two postponements claimed to be due to the illness of one of the witnesses for the defense, Abraham Krug was warned in court this morning by Judge Foss that unless his wife Molly Krug appears in court this morning or a physician's certificate stating that she is physically unfit to be there is furnished by Krug the latter will be found guilty of the charge. This case has appeared off and on, as the say is, ever since Saturday, January 3, when Joseph Peck complained to the police that the apartment occupied by his wife and himself and owned by the Krugs is no sufficiently heated. For this first offense, Krug and Mrs. Krug were found guilty and fined and they appealed the case to the superior court. This is the second postponement found necessary through the alleged illness of Mrs. Krug. Mr. and Mrs. Peck have made at least half a dozen complaints to the police since the third of January that the heat was far below 68 degrees required by law. Krug told the court that he was doing the best he could to keep the place warm and had hired a janitor on Monday.

A few days ago the Union News Co. of Boston gave up the privilege of selling papers, magazines and novelties at the Union railroad station on the street that bears its name. This is a far cry from the days when the news stand at that depot required two and sometimes three girls to handle its trade. Those were the days when the station was a meeting place for the "news hounds" of the Thread City to mobilize and obtain locals, personals, not infrequently a good story or two from the people of the neighboring towns who came in on the train to do their shopping; for the youth of Willimantic to congregate in such numbers as to often require the police to drive them away, and, when the returns of the world's series used to come in over the ticker and the operator (when there was one who happened to be a fan) used to "plug in" and hear an inning or two and then come out and give it to the crowd outside. But that was when 36 passenger trains were pulling out of the station every 24 hours and as many more pulling in, and the railroad station was considered one of the best on the line. Nothing much like that today. What used to be the busy hour now echoes to the footsteps of the janitor, "Tom" Killoury, or Ticketseller Fred L. Moulton and Charles Regan and once in a while Jerry (Lamouth) the station bootblack gives an imitation of Caruso.

The death of Mrs. Albert Church, a life-long resident of Chaplin, occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. E. Harvey, at the latter's home, in Greenport, L. I., on Saturday. Mrs. Church had been a member of the Chaplin Congregational church for a great number of years and was an untiring workers in its affairs. Mrs. Church is survived by six children, Mrs Harvey Mrs. Theron Swift, of Mansfield; Mrs. Frank Fox of New Britain, Mrs. John Copley of Ruland, Vt., Mrs. George Fuller of Norwalk and Edgar A. Church of Campbell Hall, N. Y.

Mrs. Constance Isabelle Fiske, the wife of Dr. I. P. Fiske died Tuesday morning at her home in North Coventry. Mrs. Fiske was born in Chicago, June 13, 1884, the daughter of John C. and Helena (Clough) Sterry. Besides her husband she is survived by one daughter, Margaret, and her mother, Mrs. J. C. Sterry, all of North Coventry.

Henry Beaudry, 21, arraigned in the police court on Tuesday morning for the second time within eight days on a charge of fornication was again found guilty and fined $25 and costs with a solemn warning from Judge Foss that another such misdemeanor on the part of the accused would be punished with a jail sentence. Beaudry was arrested Monday night shortly before midnight by Lieutenant McLean and Officer Arthur Hurley, when he was found occupying a room in a local rooming house with Mary Bicknell, 19. The Bicknell girl was released but a short time ago from the Long Lane Home for young girls at Middletown. In court Tuesday morning she was not cast to plea and will be returned to the home for breaking her parole. Eight days ago Beaudry was found occupying a room in a private house with Anna Kelley, 18 year old girl, who had been sent to the House of the Good Shepherd, Hartford, for the offense. Beaudry was fined $10 and costs on that occasion. Shortly after the case had been disposed of he came to the police headquarters and offered to marry the Kelley girl but for various reasons his plan of playing the role of a saviour fell through and the young lady was consequently committed.

At the normal school Tuesday afternoon the girls of Junior One gave a tea for the faculty and the girls of Junior Two. Nearly all the faculty and a large number of thre girls attended. On the complaint of his wife that he was drunk and disorderly, David Barrows was arrested at his home on West Main street early Tuesday afternoon by Captain of Police Thomas F. Grady. He is to appear in court this (Wednesday) morning.

The "tail-end" of the Newfoundland blizzard swept down on Willimantic in the early hours of Tuesday morning and roared at its doors steadily all day long, bringing into the city such cars as valiantly plowed their way through over the roads heavily coated with frozen snow. By night the snow was several inches deep and so badly drifted in places as to considerably hinder traffic in places.

HENRY H. HANDFIELD WINS APPOINTMENT TO JAPAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Jan. 20.—The appointment of Henry H. Handfield, a native son of Windham, to the United States Foreign Service has been announced through the department of state, along with instructions that he proceed to Tokyo, Japan, to take up his new duties at the American embassy in that city. Mr. Handfield received notice of his appointment January 12, last, and in complying with instructions to make immediate arrangements for the journey. He will sail from San Francisco, via Honolulu, to Yokohama, February 7, arriving in Japan on the 23rd.

Mr. Handfield holds the double distinction of being one of the few residents of eastern Connecticut to ever receive a foreign service appointment and one of, if not the youngest diplomats of the United States, being only 21.

He was born in Willimantic, July 18, 1903, a son of A. R. and Olivine Dubreuil Handfield. At the age of eleven he had completed his elementary schooling and entered upon his academic training. He received his A. B. and L. L. B. degrees from Cumberland University Law School of Tennessee and was admitted to the bar in that state in June, 1924.

He entered the law field as a practicing attorney in Chattanooga, Tenn., continuing in that field of endeavor in a successful manner until the announcement of his governmental appointment.

ROTARIANS ENTERTAIN DISTRICT GOVERNOR

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Willimantic, Jan. 20.—The Willimantic Rotary club feted its district governor, A Lavery, of Bridgeport, and listened to his visitation remarks at an evening meeting held in the Y. M. M. A. Tuesday night. The governor and members of the club braved the most undesirable weather and traveling conditions to attend the annual event. The attendance was rated as excellent. The meeting was a characteristic Rotary session without pomp or superfluity of ceremony. While the repast was being enjoyed song numbers led by John F. Ahern gave the gathering a spirit of vitality and pep. Doc Jones was pianist and Ralph H. Gibson was violinist. A parody, Al is a Pal, with words written in honor of the visiting governor by Val Murphy, the local Rotary poet was sung in full tone voices. The tribute was accepted with many thanks by the guest. President Harry W. Standish in his introductory remarks stressed the responsibility of district governors, referring to them as the key-men to Rotary by virtue of their influence. He then presented District Governor Al Lavery of the 30th district.

Opening his talk with haphazard remarks intermingled with good jokes to illustrate various points Governor Al took up the subject of alleged danger of the over growth of Ritary. It is acquiring dimensions which would place it beyond control and its ultimate deterioration as a result he labeled as utterly impossible. In the 20 years of its existence Rotary has acquired 100,000 members representing 1840 clubs and in no instance has a charter been returned or revoked. As the underlying reason for this uninterrupted progress he noted the fact that Rotary has no rituals, no secrets, no exemplifications, but that it is built fundamentally on a great big feeling of friendship and fellowship. It is composed of men of responsibilities, representative of the highest walks of life in each community. These men whether in recreation or business are united to the application of the Golden Rule and co-education. The Rotary code of ethics is, according to the governor, the acme of good fellowship and its universal application would accomplish more to bring about international peace than any method ever proposed. He made mention of the educational program being arranged for next year by Everett Hill, the psychologist of Rotary International. Another sterling quality of Rotary which Governor Al said further served to cement its constructive program of spreading good will and to retain its present compactness was the fact that Rotary members are 98 per cent. home builders, men who have built and maintained homes and are fathers of families over all of which the Golden Rule applies. He complimented the local club on its fine showing in attendance. His remarks were heartily applauded and Acting Mayor George W. Hickey took the floor. In extending greeting to the distinguished guest Mayor Hickey on behalf of the club presented him with token of the industries of Willimantic, one was a box containing 60 hand picked shades of thread manufactured at the American Thread company and the other was a quantity of fine silk cloth, a product of the Windham Silk Manufacturing company. Adjournment was taken with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theater

The glamour and romance of a European circus provides the colorful, interesting background for He Who Gets Slapped, the Victor Seastrom production which opens at the Breed theater today.

This unusual picture, adapted from the play by the noted Russian author, Leonid Andreyev, is set in the locale of a Continental hippodrome, with a clown as the central character.

Interest surrounds the production because of the fact that Victor Seastrom, the prominent swedish director, filmed it for the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer company as his second American picture. Like Lubitsch, Buchowetzski and the other foreign producers, Seastrom proved immensely popular with the American audience with his first picture here, Name the Man.

A strong cast has been announced for the picture, headed by Lon Chaney, who plays the title role. Norma Shearer and John Gilbert. The supporting players are Tully Marshall, Ford Sterling, Clyde Cook, Marc McDermott, Paulette Duval, Harvey Clarke, Ruth King, George Davis and others.

The Fox news and a Larry Semon comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Festival of St. Agnes, one of the four great virgin martyrs of the Latin church.

The Confederate veterans and other societies throughout the South today will observe the anniversary of the birth of General "Stonewall" Jackson.

The first anniversary of the death of Nicolai Lenin, the soviet premier, will be commemorated throughout Russia today with impressive services.

Members of the Canadian senate and house of commons will gather at Ottawa today in readiness for the opening of the session of the Dominion parliament.

Issues of vital importance to the sheep-raising industry will form the program of the 60th annual convention of the National Association of Wool Growers, which is to begin its sessions today at San Francisco.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Connecticut College Concert

The place which Rosa Ponselle holds in the minds of lovers of good singing was strikingly illustrated Sunday afternoon at Hartford where she sang to a capacity audience. It was her fifth appearance in that city and the Hartford Courant states that 2000 people were turned away from the Capitol theatre. Miss Ponselle's only appearance in this vicinity during the season will be at the New London State Armory, Thursday evening, January 22.

Strand Theater

Today and Thursday an attractive program will be offered at the Strand theater. The main feature being beautiful Evelyn Brent in a new crook drama of distinction, worthy to take a place on the screen comparable to that of Kick In and Within the Law, titled Silk Stocking Sal. This versatile star gives a startling protrayal of the title character and those who attend for the initial showing today will agree with the critics who singled out Miss Brent as one of the outstanding stars of the season. On the same program Rex (Snowy) Baker the famous Australian Cowboy in his latest effort The White Panther in an offering which presents a refreshingly different romance of Oriental life. It is the first picture ever laid in Afghanistan, a country still semi-barbarous, where thrills and adventure are the staff of every day living, where the inhabitants are considered the bravest, most treacherous and most cruel on earth. A Monte Banks comedy and for the pleasure of the Cross Word fans the new novelty film Cross Work Puzzle completes a program that should appease the appetite of the most ardent film fan. Matinee is given every day at two, admission being ten cents for any and in the evening at seven, admission price is ten and twenty cents.

Lyceum Theater, New London

Lora Sonderson, hitherto esteemed as one of the loveliest and most exotic of the younger musical comedy queens will make her debut as a dramatic actress in The Stork which opens in New York on Monday, January 26, but which will stop off in New London for two nights, Thursday and Friday, to appear at the Lyceum theater.

The cast of The Stork includes in addition to Miss Sonderson a group of men and women who have played star parts on Broadway, among them Katherine Alexander, Goeffrey Kerr, Ferdinand Gottschalk and Morgan Wallace. The play, which is the work of Lazalo Fodor and Ben Hecht, relates the story of a doting and neglected bride's efforts to lure her husband out of public life.

Confronted with the fact that her husband, who has, fantastically enough, become premier of France, is devoting himself to booming the national birth rate urging his constituents to rebuild the country by the contribution of babies to the state, this ingenious bride finally lures him out of his position with the persistent wail that babies begin at home. The story is told through a series of highly droll and convulsing situations.

It opened in Albany last Monday and the newspapers of that city say that it is the most brilliant comedy in several seasons, although it is deliciously audacious.

Palace

The vaudeville and picture bill at the Palace this Thursday, Friday and Saturday promises a lot of entertainments for its patrons. Headlining on the vaudeville is Tad Hieman himself and his collegians offering a musical sketch of eccentric nonsense. This famous Jazz Band has just returned from a very successful trip from the southern time where they were the sensation of every vaudeville program they appeared in. A clipping from Atlanta, Georgia says: "Perhaps the center of activities on the splendid bill of Keith acts is served for the last it being a jazz band of Tad Tieman." Here is an organization of individual entertainers who, combined in one offering, could be tendered no less praise than immense.

The management of the Palace look forward to the band creating a sensation in this city.

On the same bill will appear the Kee Tow quartette who offer a rare singing treat and Dorothy D'Orsay offers a dancing revue in a background that could not be described as anything else than gorgeous. The Anchor Trio offer a distinct novelty in acrobatics with a deck of a ship used for the scene of their activities. La belle and Walters furnish the comedy of the bill and with a Warner classic on the screen The Narrow Street the management looks forward to its usual capacity business.

Broadway Theatre

You are going to see some show at the Broadway theatre starting tomorrow. It's E. F. Keith vaudeville and is guaranteed to give satisfaction to the most fdase vaudeville and picture fan in the city.

Sulkin's Argentines is the feature vaudeville attraction. This is a company of ten who without doubt tops any act of its kind today.

The other four acts are equally as good. We advise you to see it.

"I now pronounce you man and wife."

—and the curtain is rung up on the drama, comedy or tragedy, as the case may be, of newly married life.

In "Worldly Goods," at the Broadway theatre starting tomorrow, it's a combination of the first two almost resulting in the last. In other words, "Worldly Goods," starring Agnes Ayres, is a comedy-drama of matrimony, the screen version of the novel by Sophie Kerr which opens at the Broadway tomorrow, with a happy ending, even though the final scene is in the divorce court.

Pat O'Malley has the leading man's role opposite the star in the production and Victor Varconi and Edyth Chapman are also well cast.

Here's one picture you shouldn't miss.

DANIELSON

After much back and filling during the past week, the northeast made good on Tuesday. Opinion may not be unanimous about this. Many may think it did anything but good. In any event, the day produced a snowstorm, the first real one of the winter. Even with that rating no great amount of snow had fallen at sunset, probably little more than six inches—a fine feathery blanket that was being backed around by the wind and drifted into quite impressive barriers in some sections of the town.

The storm brought out snowplows of the electric road and the road plows of the state highway department. These started work early and operated steadily against any likelihood of the storm blocking the lanes of travel and making going comparatively easy for the traffic that continued to move.

Drifting began early and by noon reports were received of country highways that were filling up in cuts where drifts are apt to form each winter. This was particularly true of the sections of the town about East Killingly and in other eastern districts of the town.

Brigades of snow shovelers were out in Danielson. The accumulation was not difficult to clear from walks as it was light and fluffy.

Transportation lines were not seriously handicapped by the storm during the day and schedules were held too very closely.

The storm took this territory in the tightest embrace of winter experienced this season. January has done something to remind people of the old fashioned winters. Approximately 15 inches of ice covers lake and streams under the blanket of snow. The week has furnished zero temperature. That's enough to set one wondering when the proverbial January thaw is due. Its advent would be very desirable for the water that is represented in the snow and ice is badly needed at just this time.

Mrs. Max Chertoff of 621 Manida street, New York, received a slight scalp wound Tuesday morning when the car in which she was riding with her brother-in-law Jacob Chertoff, of 249 Jewett street, Providence, and her two sons was in collision with a trolley ca at the corner of Main and Academy streets shortly after 8 o'clock. Others in the automobile were uninjured and the machine only slightly damaged.

The accident was practically unavoidable. Neither the trolley car nor the automobile were moving above what might be termed slow speed when the automobile came down out of Reynolds street. Because of the slippery going Mr. Chertoff was unable to stop the automobile and the trolley and the machine came together at the junction of the streets, the automobile skewing around after the smash with a swing that took it around the front of the car and over onto the left side of the street.

Mrs. Chertoff was taken to a hotel, had her head bandaged, rested for a time and then resumed the journey to New York.

Mr. Chertoff said he was driving his brother's car, which carried a New York registration, and that he was taking his sister-in-law and her sons back to New York from Providence. Aside from a crumpled fender the car did not appear to be much damaged.

Another accident Tuesday morning that was chargeable to traveling conditions was that in which a machine driven by Harold Morrarty of Putnam went into a pole on North Main street, near Davis switch. Mr. Morrarty was driving his machine without chains and when another car swung out from a driveway ahead of him he was in a difficult place and in getting out of it his car went into the pole. The machine was considerably damaged.

Should the weather be clear next Saturday morning during the period of the total eclipse of the sun, no street lights will be turned on, it was stated Tuesday afternoon at the office of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company. Street lights will be brought into service only in case the morning is stormy or overcast and then they will be regarded as necessary as a measure of safety for those who are about their affairs.

In dispensing with street light, if the morning be clear, the lighting company will be following the suggestion of the state chamber of commerce, other organizations and scientists who, familiar with the nature of the extraordinary sight that is in prospect, wish as many people to see something that few of them probably will ever see again. The view they will get will be enhanced by the reduction of all artificial lighting to a minimum. With this in mind it is suggested that window lights not be used during the eclipse period and that automobile traffic halt during the period of totality and that all lights on the machines be extinguished. As elsewhere in the state trolley traffic will be halted on the local division during the period of totality.

Interest in the coming eclipse is growing here by leaps and bounds. There was swelling chorus, voiced through the press this morning, from mill operatives, store workers and others employed indoors for some general agreement that a recess from work be declared during the eclipse period that they may have an opportunity to see it from a point of vantage. Probably an hour's respite from duty would be ample to make this possible for hundreds of people all through this territory who otherwise will be denied the sight of a life time—provided it is clear.

The school children are playing in great luck. The eclipse on a regular holiday for them, so the schedules of the schools will not have to be interrupted in order that they may see the grand spectacle.

The Park inn, Reynolds street, Danielson, has steam heated rooms, with hot and cold water! home-cooked meals are served. Elks welcomed.—adv.

A dead collie is lying under the snow and frozen in the ice of the Center street brook in the rear of the central fire station. How the animal came to be there does not appear to be generally known.

J. Carl Witter is in Hartford today to conduct an auction sale of 50 horses at a stable in that city.

Miss Nellie Redman and Miss Marie Jane Dubois were in Providence Monday on a business trip.

Sections of blue glass, about the size of a motion picture slide, are finding a ready sale here to many who are preparing to view the total eclipse of the sun next Saturday morning.

Cards postmarked at Los Angeles came through Tuesday morning from Joseph Martin who has been employed during the past few months at the Casino alleys here.

The work of raising the budget of $7785 for the Westfield Congregational church is far advanced.

Henry A. Beardsley of Providence was a visitor with friends in Danielson on Tuesday.

Operators of public service cars found an increased demand for their services Tuesday because of the storm, which on the other hand was damaging to trade in general.

For the first time this winter in this territory there is plenty of snow for the sleds and skis, which will now come into general use among those who received them as gifts at the holiday.

Motor drivers who were out in the storm of Tuesday night found driving as difficult as any night this winter.

Having achieved a victory over the Plainfield High school team, supporters of Killingly High school's basketball team are now hoping for another victory when the Putnam High school team comes here on Friday evening.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes —Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep them fit. 15c and 30c.

PUTNAM

All day Tuesday was spent in the trial of the case against Charles Berzuc, charged with violation of the liquor laws, at the superior court room yesterday. The taking of evidence, started the day before, was continued, and concluded late in the afternoon. Then followed the arguments of counsel.

The testimony of the defense was, as in the lower court, a direct refutation of the stories told by the two "spotters," as one of the attorneys designated them, or detectives, as they are called by the state. John Andrews and Leon Vincoki, employes of the Bridgeman detective agency of Hartford, are the two.

Arthur Turgeon, now in Brooklyn jail, serving a sentence for violation of the liquor law, was called by the state. When asked by Attorney Eric H. Johnson if he had bought liquors at divers times from the defendant, he answered, to the evident surprise of state's attorneys, that he had not.

"What did you tell me at the state's attorney's office a week ago?" demanded Mr. Johnson, to which the witness replied that whatever he had said then was not under oath, that his testimony now was, and that he had not bought liquor from Berzuc.

The jury was asked to retire, but the court did not care for any statements or arguments concerning this phase of the case.

"The witness is unreliable," he said, and the counts in which Berzuc was charged with selling to Turgeon were ordered nolled.

The state rested, and the defense then called Matthew Kizak. He lived in Mechanicsville and testified that Andrews and Vincoski had come to his home in an intoxicated condition. Fred Bernard, garage owner, testified that he had been called to Berzuc's home one afternoon to fix his car and that the detectives, the defendant and two others had chipped in 50 cents each and sent out for a quart of alcohol, of which all drank.

Mrs. Berzuc, wife of the defendant, said that she had never drank with the detectives, as they testified, and that she had never seen them drink there but once, which was at the time described by the preceding witness.

Mabel Jones, who was once married but isn't now, and is a maid at Berzuc's home, said that she had seen the defendant put the detectives out of his store because they were drunk.

Berzuc, the defendant, declared that he had never bought or sold liquor since he was arrested a year ago. He admitted drinking with a number of others as described by Bernard. He also admitted having seen the two detectives on the Providence pike at 1 o'clock in the morning of Nov. 12, but denied stopping to talk with them, or having liquor in his car. He claimed to be driving a roadster rather than a touring car as claimed and said that in the roadster there was no room for liquor. All the other allegations to the state he flatly denied.

Judge M. H. Geissler, called by the defendant, testified that in city court a month ago Vincoski testified that he had paid $2 for a quart one day, and $4 the next, that he had said that Stanley Zigmont was present every time they had drank liquor at the defendant's, that he had gone into the place on one occasion by the side door and that the liquor was in a big milk bottle. All of these statements were contradictions of Vincoski's testimony.

The attorneys spent two hours in arguments and then court adjourned until Wednesday morning, when the jury will be charged. The court intimated that his charge would take at least 30 minutes.

There was a large attendance of members and guests from Danielson, Norwich and other places. At the close of the ceremonies Mrs. Lillian McGarry, the past grand, was presented a jewel of her office. Refreshments were served by a committee headed by Mrs. C. L. Adams and Mrs. Addison Tourtellotte.

The high school basketball team has two games this week, Wednesday evening against the Headquarters company at the armory and Friday evening with Killingly High school at Danielson. Both are expected to prove hard tussles for the local team.

With one victory over the armory team already to its credit, the high school will try hard to take the second decision, and with it the "city championship."

In their game at Danielson the Putnam players will have the incentive of playing against their favorite rivals. Since Killingly is none too strong this year, as attested by its record to date, Putnam has an excellent chance to continue the streak of victories over Killingly started at football last fall.

Mrs. Sarah J. Pellett, who lived for a number of years with her daughter, the late Mrs. Delia Stratton, on Wilkinson street, recently celebrated her 89th birthday. Since leaving Putnam, Mrs. Pellett has been living in the family of Irving Hopkins at Hampton.

Miss Dora Swift of South Main street is making an extended visit with relatives and Windham and in New London.

Miss Antoinette Caron left Friday for a ten days' trip to Bermuda and on her return will visit in New York and New Haven.

Miss Pauline Lucier has returned from a visit to Providence.

Miss Effie Danielson spent the week end in Boston.

Mrs. S. F. Toole of Somerville, Mass., is the guest of her sister, Mrs. George Gilpatric, of Fremont street.

Miss Lucy Ellis and Miss Alice Stevens spent the week end with friends in Providence.

Mrs. I. Cooper of Norfolk, Va., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. James Aframe and Mr. and Mrs. M. Bravo for a month. Mrs. Cooper was formerly Miss Dora Aframe.

Mrs. W. H. Cady of East Putnam is now living with Mr. and Mrs. Burdick.

Miss Jessie Maynard is acting substitute teacher at the Goshen Hill school at Leonard Bridge, Conn. Her sister, Miss Ruth Maynard, the regular teacher, was recently operated upon for appendicitis.

Notwithstanding the business disasters that Putnam has been going through, the report of the Building and Loan association shows a very gratifying condition of affairs for the year ending Dec. 31, 1924. The annual report which has just been made public shows assets of $229,895.58, an increase of $22,000. The net earnings for the past six months were $5,224.54. The annual meeting will be held Jan. 27th, at which time the members will be asked to vote on the following:

"Voted, That our by-laws be, and they are, hereby amended by adding thereto a new section, to be known as Section 9 of Article XV, which shall be as follows:

"Sec. 9. The board of management may at any time authorize the secretary to issue shares of this association upon the payment of a single installment of an amount which, with the accruing earnings, will reach the ultimate matured value with the other shares in the same series, as determined by the board of directors, all in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 103, Section 2, of the public acts of the state of Connecticut for 1923."

Officers will be elected for the ensuing year at the meeting.

Judge M. H. Geissler, secretary, in his annual report says: "During the last six months Putnam has passed through a period of financial stress such as would have been thought impossible a year ago. Our association was called upon to answer many and varied demands from the shareholders. Necessarily, we have had many withdrawals, many others have borrowed on their shares to the limit—but that is what our association is for, ever ready in the time of need, and a dollar saved for a rainy day. But just notice, in spite of all demands upon us during the last six months, our assets have increased about $22,000."

ONE PURE SOAP FOR ALL

WHAT soap is so pure that it will protect your skin, yet so economical that you can use it for laundry and dishes?

Ivory, of course!

Ivory fulfills every one of the fundamental requirements for a perfect soap—

Safety for skin
Safety for fabrics
Rich suds

And it is unique—the purity, mildness, and cleansing ability of Ivory Soap have never been successfully achieved in any other soap.

There are other soaps which will not spoil your clothes, but you would not dream of using them for toilet and bath; there are soaps that will not hurt your skin but are naturally too expensive for laundry and dishes.

But Ivory is pure, yet its cost is small. Therefore, generations of women to whom beautiful complexions are a tradition, and spotless homes a law, have used Ivory for everything.

To such women there is no economy in buying harsh soaps for cleaning, and expensive soaps for toilet and bath, for they know they cannot treat their hands like the floor today, and expect them to be as soft as a baby's skin tomorrow.

They use Ivory Soap for every soap-and-water task, and keep their hands soft and smooth always, while at the same time they cleanse thoroughly and protect what they clean.

This is the height of soap economy.

Instead, therefore, of a soap supply that ranges all the way from harsh powders to expensive cakes for the face, you will find both safety and economy in a full supply of Ivory in all its convenient forms. For every purpose you then have the best soap that money can buy. And if you run out of one form of Ivory, you can always fall back on another, since they are all the same pure soap.

MOTOR VEHICLE LAWS.

That the general assembly will have to wrestle with much legislation pertaining to the highways and automobiles is a foregone conclusion. Some of it will be advocated by the motor vehicles department, as is to be expected, and there will be other measures which will come from other sources.

What the department considers advisable under the present circumstances is well set forth in the department's bulletin which points out that public service cars now classed as jitneys should be taxed on a more adequate basis, that fees from commercial vehicles do not compensate for the wear and tear on the highways, that commercial vehicles used on city streets are overtaxed, that there should be a minimum speed law, that there should be a flat rate for pleasure cars, that there should be more officers on the highways, that the police should have undisputed authority to inspect licenses, that there should be an inspection of actual equipment at time of registration and that by insurance or bond there should be a financial guarantee that the owner is able to make good what damage he may do.

It is to be expected that there will be opponents as well as advocates of certain of these proposals. In the final analysis, however, there must be consideration given to the interests of the greatest number. Taxation adjustments are to be expected and the importance of requiring those vehicles which cause the bulk of wear and tear on the highways to meet it is not unreasonable. There is no good reason why officers of the law should not have the right to demand a license. It is permitted in the case of hunters and fishermen. That there will be need for more officers training in traffic work is plainly indicated by the growth of machines, and the idea of requiring owners to carry insurance or bonds is only such a protective measure as conditions warrant.

Whatever can be done to detect and disclose stolen cars is certainly desirable, but if the inspection of all cars is going to be attempted it will cause even more confusion than now exists in getting licenses at the close of the year.

Nothing appears in the bulletin about the establishment of more branch offices of the motor vehicle department. That is one thing in the interest of public convenience that should not be allowed to linger without attention.

GERALD CHAPMAN.

Much relief will be felt that Gerald Chapman is once again in the clutches of the law. He couldn't be in but one section of the country at a time but he had a way of making his presence felt when he was there that made his visits decidedly unpopular. While his appearance may not indicate it, he is a dangerous character, a menace to the public and one whose acts certainly entitles him at least to a place behind the bars. Even in the penitentiary he is no ordinary prisoner. Not only is he as clever in devising means of escape but he is apparently able to command power-outside. He laughs at the law and even though he occasionally gets caught he is by no means resigned to life lot. He has decided upon a career of crime, is apparently impressed by what he has done in that direction and is not deterred by arrests or imprisonment from planning to continue it.

While the prospects of having him brought back into this state for trial on the charge of murdering a New Britain policeman do not appear bright at this time, the state's attorney of Hartford county is justified in making every possible effort to place this desperate individual on trial for the capital offense.

In the hands of the federal authorities, Chapman faces a long term of imprisonment at Atlanta. He has years of an unfinished term ahead of him, to which it can be expected there will be an additional penalty for escaping. But it was from Atlanta that Chapman escaped twice and following the second got away he made his way into this part of the country and needed the life of a policeman.

The idea of trying Chapman after he completes his term at Atlanta is out of the question. It would be impossible to produce any evidence in that time, but if by chance Chapman should be fortunate enough to be freed by a jury in this state there would still be the chance for the federal authorities to return him to Atlanta. Chapman should expect no favors on his return to Atlanta but in view of what he has done there on previous occasions he must be considered a menace even behind bars.

BLOCKING GUN ELEVATION.

Gun elevation has been urged for a considerable time and it will probably be heard from in the future, but the action of the senate in refusing to suspend the rules for the consideration of a resolution for a gun elevating appropriation seems to end the matter for the present.

The senate has acted in keeping with the known attitude of the president. It understands that this government maintains that such a change might be made on the 15 capital ships of our navy without violating the naval agreement. It likewise realizes that Japan takes the same view, but that Great Britain thinks otherwise.

What seems to be the impressive feature of the whole matter is that should this government proceed to appropriate the needed sums for the gun elevation and begin to make the changes, it simply serves notice upon the other countries that we are strengthening our navy in a manner which does not meet the approval of all parties to the agreement.

It means that our course will serve as a sufficient precedent for Japan to do the very same thing, for Great Britain to set out to elevate guns on its ships and there is no telling what views might be taken by other nations as to what our intentions were or what they needed to do in order to keep up with us.

In the interest of peace, in the interest of confidence in each other and with the idea of preventing rather than encouraging naval competition President Coolidge has declared his emphatic opposition to the gun elevating proposition. By its vote the senate has given endorsement to his views, and there are strong reasons for believing that it has made no mistake. Those who urged the gun elevation can be expected to seek what the administration opposes and oppose what the administration advocates.

CAPTAIN D. J. TWOMEY.

Eventide was the record in public service established by Captain Dennis J. Twomey of the local police force, whose sudden and unexpected end so shocked the community.

Throughout the long period which he served on the police force the manner in which he administered his duties whether as patrolman, sergeant or captain was such as to convince all those who came in contact with him that he was a most efficient, faithful and devoted public servant. In his adherence to duty there was none who surpassed him and there were few who equalled him. As a guardian of the peace in position of responsibility he was always active and ready to serve, and yet that firmness which was required in the upholding of the law did not prevent him from being a man among men. Thoroughly grounded in the work of the department, faithful to every trust, always loyal to his superiors, a man of impressive physique and bearing, he was an ideal officer whose work and influence have long had their good effects upon the department.

Captain Twomey's untimely removal will justly be the cause of profound regret throughout the city. He was a man of many friends, whose jovial good nature was an outstanding as his ability as a police official. His record will long stand as a monument to his memory. Norwich sincerely mourns his passing.

DEEDS SHOW.

Efforts have been made and it is likely that they will continue to crop out from time to time to create the impression that the United States was harboring a spirit of ill will toward Japan. Whatever claims are put forth in that direction there are several which cannot be rated as insignificant which go to establish a different view.

Certainly Japan cannot gather any such impression from the attitude that was displayed by this country at the time of its earthquakes. There was an outpouring of supplies and money that was open to no other interpretation than that of friendship.

In the efforts of Japan to raise money for certain reconstruction activities it has found no difficulty in obtaining funds in this country, something which might easily have been blocked had there been the disposition to display enmity toward that country.

When the new ambassador to this country from Japan was named there was an early extension of approval from this government, and an expression of friendly relationship between countries for the purpose of putting at rest certain jingoistic talk that could easily becoming disturbing abroad.

By the recent gift of a million and a quarter by John D. Rockefeller Jr., there is no way in which it can be interpreted as being unfriendly to the land of the mikado. It is in fact an expression which would hardly be made by a citizen of one nation to a country against which there is any ill feeling.

Such concrete expressions must serve as a basis for judging the relationship of nations. They put an effective stop to any undercurrent of unfriendliness. Deeds are the basis for judgement.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Scrape, Scrape, Scrape, the boys are shoveling.

The next big event after the eclipse of course, will be the appearance of the groundhog.

Temperature of 56 below in Maine doesn't make one feel that summer is just around the corner.

Judging by the past, even though Gerald Chapman has been caught it is by no means an easy job to hold him.

January is half gone, and if the second half is no worse than the first the year will be getting away to a fine start.

The man on the corner says: Nowadays you have to speak early if you expect others to appreciate your reference to the snow as "beautiful."

The coal miners of Pennsylvania are putting their organization and national officials to a severe test. Apparently they care nothing for a contract.

Gerald Chapman on being caught admitted being clever but pointed to the predicament that he is in to show he gained nothing by it. He must have known before he started that only a few of even the best bandits escape.

SANE CONCLUSION

"Every time I hear coal hurtling down the chute into the basement or the iceman crashing his wares out in the back entry," fussed the man who was adding up the first-of-the-month's bills, "I get queer, wriggly feelings down my spine! When I see the grocery boy staggering down the walk with enough eats to support all of starving Europe and delivery boys bearing dress boxes closing in on all directions I become raggingly desperate! We outhta simplify our lives and have a little peace!"

"You can't keep milk and butter without ice," reproved the visiting aunt who had a practical mind.

"That's a good slogan," the fussy man admitted with elaborate bitterness, discovering that he had added up the last bill $10 short "A perfect slogan for modern life—you can't keep butter and milk without ice! You hafta have it! For Pete's sake, how did the puritans survive so many years over here without porcelain-lined ice chests cork insulated? They had six meat mourses where we have one and ten kinds of dessert at one meal! I know, because I've seen an early American cookbook with menus for every day in the year and any man nowadays who tried to stow away 365 dinners like those would be in a museum as a fat man or under the sod about April or May! They didn't have ice on a hot August day! That musta saved a lot of money! And they didn't have coal I'm sick of sending coalmen's wives and daughters to Europe!"

"All you have to do," reminded his wife sweetly, "is to take a few days off and find a forest nobody wants and chop down a hundred trees or so, split them up and draw them home. You could save $300 every winter that way!"

"And lose $3,000 at the office!" growled the fussy man. "Aw, I spose we have to buy coal! But why don't we have fewer things to eat? No sense setting such a table! When we have salad don't have dessert and meat only three times a week and things like that! We're too fat as it is!"

"Every time I try that," said his wife, "you cry 'What! No dessert? I don't just feel like salad tonight and I sort of through you'd have lemon-cream pie tonight!'

"I shall never forget the time you appeared unannounced and expectantly with Phillies X. Mudd, who owns enough railways to string them like beads and I naturally had to sit you down to the corn beef and cabbage dinner I had cooked all in one kettle because it was a busy day. There were apples for dessert. I am perfectly sure that Mr. Mudd enjoyed his dinner, because he had three servings and I recognized the complacent grunt he gave afterward as he got out his wet cigars—all men make that sound when they have eaten satisfactorily—but your humiliation was keen."

"We could live in a smaller house!" declared the fussy man, who had become tired of the food subject. "No sense having so much furniture and stuff! Lookit the useless things—throw out that old blue vase up in the corner and some of those chairs—"

"Why, William!" reproved the visiting aunt. "you can't treat grandmother's wedding gift to you that way!"

"What are you going to sit on when we have company?" his wife suggested at his mumble about too many foolish chairs to bump into. "I need them all when the club meets here! We need every inch of space we have now!"

"Folks lived in two-room cabins in the early days and had large families," insisted the fussy man who had just met a bill for his son's private school. "I'm sure little Johnny isn't triplets! I tell you there is too much of everything in this blamed world these days! Women could dress just as well have one best dress and let it go at that! A hundred and twenty dollars to the dressmaker! It's no joke you can't keep butter and milk without ice!"

"Why everybody knows that!" insisted the literal aunt, shaking her head What's the use making such a commotion about it, William?"

"None at all" agreed the man—Exchange

Baldwin Wanted to Stay on the Farm

Quiet, modest and self-effacing, Sir Stanley Baldwin found his greatest pleasure in his home in the country, but duty called him to public life.

Son of a multi-millionaire steel and coal operator and member of parliament, he inherited riches; member of an illustrious family, with Sir Edward Burne-Jones an uncle, and Rudyard Kipling, a cousin, he inherited at Harrow and later at Trinity college, he was equipped by education to take a prominent place in the world.

After his college days were over he entered the office of his father's steel plant, and at first kept a cash book, at $10 a week. Gradually learning the business he became its head and further developed it. Fond of the study of classics, political economy and mathematics, his keenest enjoyment was when in his library or with his family on his farm. And he developed the hobby of breeding pigs.

Following in his father's footsteps, he thought it his duty to take part in public life, and at 38 ran for parliament, but was defeated. Two years later he was elected and for eight years served unobtrusively.

Baldwin's reserve attracted the attention of Bonar Law, chancellor of the exchequer, who appointed him his private secretary. Successful beyond expectations, Sir Stanley became right hand man of Bonar Law then was appointed financial secretary of the treasury and handled the difficult problems just before and after peace was proclaimed.

As president of the board of trade, and next as chancellor of the exchequer, his work was effective, but he did not attract serious attention. And he desired to give up public life for, he said, he "wished to be able to read in peace, live a decent life and keep pigs" Soon afterward he was appointed prime minister of England.

Following the victory of the labor party in 1923, Baldwin now 57, had an opportunity to enjoy himself on his beautiful farm but within a year was again prime minister.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Tribute.

Mr. Editor: It has rarely been my privilege to meet anyone who approached Mrs. Irene Harland in spiritual and mental development combined with a character of rare charm.

Born of Quaker parents, she retained throughout her long life, her straightforward ideas and ideals. She was married when but a girl to Thomas Harland a New York attorney and was the mother of three children. One, only, grew to maturity, Henry Harland, who became a prominent author. He spent many years London (the only atmosphere he could ever write in) and it was at home where Mrs. Harland met Whistler, Henry James and other interesting personages of the time. Often, after her frequent visits to her son, she crossed the channel and went to Paris, where she pursued her art studies. Her studio at Sentry Hill, her Norwich home, revealed in her numerous sketches and paintings a real talent.

Throughout her life who was a deep student of literature, foreign as well as English, and an apt critic, as well. She was content to pass the last of her life among her friends in Norwich who loved her deeply.

Mrs Harland was fond of quoting the following: "Life is so full of meaning and purpose, so full of beauty beneath its covering, that you will find earth but cloaks your heaven. Courage, then, to claim it; that is all! But courage you have; and the knowledge that we are pilgrims together, wending, through unknown country, home."

YOUR INCOME TAX

Personal Exemption

It should be noted that the revenue act of 1924 provides specifically that the status of a taxpayer relative to the amount of his personal exemptions shall be determined by apportionment in accordance with the number of months the taxpayer was single, married, or the head of a family.

Under the proceeding act the amount of the exemption to which a taxpayer was entitled was determined by his status as a single person, married person or the head of a family on the last day of the taxable year.

A taxpayer, who was married on June 30, 1924, is entitled to an exemption of $1,750. For the first six months of the taxable year he is classed as a single person, entitling him to an exemption of $500—one-half of the $1,000 exemption allowed a single person who is single for the complete taxable year—and for the last six months he is classed as a married person, entitled him to an exemption of $1,250, one-half of the exemption allowed a married person living with wife or husband for the full taxable year. If on June 30 he became a widower, he is classed as a married person for the first half of the year and as a single person for the latter half. In such computations a fractional part of a month is disregarded, unless it amounts to more than half a month, in which case it is considered a full month. These figures are based on the assumption that the return is made on the calendar year basis, as most are.

If on June 30, 1924, a taxpayer ceased being the head of a family—the support in one household of a relative or relatives being discontinued—he is granted the same exemption he is the case of a taxpayer married on June 30, a total of $1,750. With regard to the $400 credit for a dependent, however, it is provided that the taxpayer's status on the last day of the taxable year (December 31, if the return is made on the calendar year basis) shall determine his right to such credit. If on that day he was the chief support of a dependent who is under 18 years of age, or is incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective, he is entitled to the $400 credit. If during the year his support of such dependent ceased, the credit is not allowed.

Stories That Recall Others

Harry and Married, Too!

Ed had occasion to do some night work at the office and his wife accompanied him. A young man who had almost daily contact with Ed strolled in for an exchange of pleasantries. He was plainly surprised at seeing Ed's wife, whom he had never met, so much so that, on being introduced to her, he remarked with youth's usual bluntness.

"Why, I had no idea there was a Mrs. Ed had always seemed so cheerful and carefree that I justnaturally supposed—" He stopped in very painful confusion:

"—that he was a bachelor!" Ed's wife gayly finished for him. However her good natured raillery only served to deepen his confusion, if possible, so she tried to put him at ease by saying that he had just paid the very liveliest and most sincere of compliments—as indeed it was, if viewed from a certain standpoint—since it was only too evident that misery and marriage were nearly symonymous terms to his mind.

Secrets Will Out

A young married couple had been full of plans for the children's Christmas for several weeks, said plans including "mamma dolls," to be bought from a city wholesale house for each of their three girls. Father also had a few plans for Christmas, known only to himself, one being a set of silver for mother.

When he came home for dinner the day the dolls were to be ordered mother inquired whether he had ordered them.

"Yes and the silver too," he blithely answered. Then paused in blank dismay at the slip of the tongue.

Norwich May Be Faced With Grip Epidemic

Local People Urged to Use Vigorous Measures to Combat Further Spread of Deep Grippy Colds.

PNEUMONIA CHIEF DANGER

Grippe Attacks Weaken Body's Resistance to Germs of Pneumonia — All Colds Should be Treated Promptly.

Deep grippy colds have been unusually prevalent here this winter. The situation is fairly general throughout the States. In some sections these colds are called "influenza," but the majority of health officers report that they are much milder than the original epidemic and resemble more closely the old-fashioned la grippe. They are usually accompanied by a headache, burning eyeballs and aching scalp—and frequently by gastric and intestinal complications such as chic-coughs, nausea, diarrhea, etc.

Colds are too often neglected until they have lowered the vitality sufficiently to permit the lurking germs, which cause pneumonia, bronchitis and influenza to attack the body.

Don't Take Chances

The only safe plan is to attack a cold right at the beginning. A hot bath, a laxative, a sweat and a vigorous application of Vicks VapoRub at bedtime over throat and chest will often break up a cold over night.

For hours after Vicks is applied the vapors of Champhor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine, released as vapors by the body heat, are inhaled directly into the infected air passages. At the same time Vicks is absorbed through the skin and also stimulates it like a poultice or plaster.

It is an obstinate cold indeed that can resist this direct, double action.

Vicks Vapor Steam

If the air passages are badly stopped up, try the "Teakettle and Tent" treatment. This method— fully explained in the directions — consists, briefly, of vaporizing Vicks in a teakettle and arranging a newspaper "tent" over the patient's head so that the combined warm steam and medicated vapors can be inhaled.

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks for the frequent colds of children, as it can be used freely and often, without disturbing the digestion—you "just rub it on." Over 17 million jars are used yearly.

Exit Cant

Honor to the strong man, in these tges, who has shaken himself loose of thems, and is something. For in the way of being worthy, the first condition surely is that one be. Let cant cease, at all risks and at all costs; till cant ceases, nothing else can begin.—Carlyle.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Thomas Harland

The sudden death, early Monday morning of Mrs. Thomas Harland meant the passing of another of the brilliant and distinctive Norwich gentlewomen associated with the old town's finest traditions. Although over 80, Mrs. Harland was alert in mind and thought, most engaging in conversation, recalled by her friends as a stately and gracious hostess in her beautiful home.

She was a native of Maine, and was Miss Irene Jones, before her marriage with Thomas Harland. Her husband was the son of Henry Harland and Abigail Leffingwell Hyde, both of Norwich, and was born March 17th, 1830, in the famous Harland homestead on Sentry Hill, Norwich Town. This mansion was built in 1779 by the Harland ancester, also Thomas who came to America from England in one of the ships that brought the tea to Boston, in 1773. His watch and clockmaking shop at Norwich Town was an object of interest for generations.

The row of grand elms before the Harland home was set out Sept. 6, 1781, the day on which New London was burned by the British.

Thomas Harland, the younger was a successful lawyer in Washington and New York and was a noted traveler. Following his death his widow resided for a time in New York, but in later years had made her home at Sentry Hill, coming into possession of the property on the death of her brother-in-law General Edward Harland.

Mrs. Harland's only child Henry Harland ("Sidney Luska") died about 20 years ago, while at San Remo, Italy, with his wife, who was Aline Merriam, of New York. He was one of the most brilliant and successful of the young writers of his time, as popular is England as he was in America. His death left its impress upon his mother's health, although she remained ever courageous, bearing her sorrow with rare fortitude.

Over a year ago, Mrs. Harland, relinquished the care of her Norwich Town home, dividing her time between Atlantic City, visits with friends in New York and Massachusetts and during this winter having an apartment at The Wauregan. For many seasons she spent part of the summer at Block Island.

On dismantling the ancestral homestead, Mrs. Harland made generous gifts of books to Connecticut College, also gave into custody of Hartford Art Institute much of the priceless family silver.

Mrs. Harland's niece, Miss Jennie McClellan, of New York came to Norwich Monday, on being notified of the death. Another relative on the Harland side, who has been a frequent visitor in Norwich and to whom Mrs. Harland was deeply attached, is Miss Elodie Hyde of New Orleans, a cousin of the late General Edward and Thomas Harland.

Miss McClellan has taken charge of all arrangements for the funeral, etc.

Mrs. Marian F. Eddy

Mrs. Marian F. Eddy, 61, died Tuesday morning at her home, No. 245 Broad street, following an illness during which complications set in. Mrs. Eddy was born in South Kingston, R. I. May 15, 1863, and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Larkin. Her early life was spent in South Kingston, but the greater part of her life had been passed in this city. She was employed by the Turner and Stanton company.

Mrs. Eddy was a member of the Woman's Relief Corps of Rockland, Mass., and was affiliated with Grace Episcopal church, Yantic. Surviving are four brothers and two sisters, J. R. and E. A. Larkin of South Kingston, William H. Larkin of Providence, Ephraim Larkin of Taftville; Mrs. W. B. Worthington of this city and Mrs. J. H. Rainsford of Rockland, Mass.

Collier Campbell, 35, of Yerrington avenue, Laurel Hill, was before the court on a breach of the peace charge. He was charged with throwing a stone through the windshield of an automobile owned and driven by Dr. Paul F. Gadle on Laurel Hill Monday evening while Dr. Gadle accompanied by Dr. James J. Donahue, was on the way to the Norwich State Hospital for the Insane. Campbell denied the charge, claimed he knew nothing of any rock being thrown and had no occasion to throw one.

TESTIMONY IN TRIAL OF CHARLES A. STONEHAM

New York, Jan. 20.—Testimony was offered by the government today in the federal court trial of Charles A. Stoneham, Elmore D. Dier and others for mail fraud and conspiracy to show that the stock loan account of the brokerage firm of E. D. Dier & Co. was used to sell out customers' stocks.

Hugh A. Tiernan, former clerk, testified that when the stock loan account was closed on Oct. 30, 1920, it showed the payment of $3,426,614.13 for stocks received from other brokers and the receipt of money for stocks sold of $6,381,368.45, an excess of sales of customers' securities over receipts of $3,394,754.32.

Of this $3,394,754.32 balance, Tiernan explained, $2,353,553.28 was entered as profit in the profit and loss account, the remainder being divided among several other accounts, $97,440 being used to wipe out an indebtedness of the Philadelphia office to the New York office.

COMMUNITY IS SHOCKED BY SUDDEN DEATH OF CAPT. TWOMEY

With shocking suddenness came word of the death of Captain Dennis J. Twomey of the Norwich police department at his home, No. 30 Grove street, Tuesday afternoon about 2.45 o'clock. Captain Twomey died while sitting in an arm chair without giving any outward sign that the end was near. Sunday Captain Twomey complained of a pain in his head but laid it to a cold. Monday he consulted a physician, but there was little or no indication that the trouble was of a serious nature. Later in the day the pain disappeared and Captain Twomey went on duty as usual at 6 o'clock in the evening. To all appearances he was in his usual good health throughout the night and left for home at his usual hour Tuesday morning, shortly after 8 o'clock.

Tuesday afternoon he secured the services of a boy to shovel the sidewalk in front of his home and told the boy that when he was through cleaning the walk to come into the house and he would pay him. Then seating himself in an arm chair he took a book to read and had evidently dozed off to sleep when death came.

When the boy came back to the house Capt. Twomey was sitting in the chair and it was thought he was asleep. Mrs. Twomey was summoned and together they tried to arouse him, but without success. As soon as it was realized that Captain Twomey was dead Medical Examiner C. C. Gildersleeve was notified and after an investigation pronounced death due to cerebral embolism, a clot on the brain.

Dennis J. Twomey was born in Norwich, September 28, 1864, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Twomey. All of his life had been passed in Norwich. During his early years he learned the trade of a butcher and in 1891 became a supernumerary member of the police force. Two years later, July 3, 1893, he was appointed first sergeant and in June 13, 1912 became captain, which position he had since held. During his term as a regular police officer he served under the late Chief John A. Bowen. He served three years as patrolman in Thamesville and then was transferred to the Washington street beat where he remained until his appointment as sergeant.

In St. Patrick's church, Oct. 13, 1893, he was united in marriage with Margaret Turley of Albany, N. Y., the ceremony being performed by Rev. Felix O'Neil. Captain Twomey was a devout member of St. Patrick's parish, a member of White Cross Council, No. 13 Knights of Columbus, the Holy Name Society of St. Patrick's parish, Norwich Lodge, No. 430, B. P. O. E., Norwich Lodge, No. 950, L. O. O. M., and was also a member of the local lodge of the Modern Woodmen of the World.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Jeremiah Sweeney of Grove street, Miss Helen A. Twomey, and a son, Walter J. Twomey. There are also one brother, John F. Twomey of Springfield, Mass., a sister, Mrs. Mary Sullivan of West Haven, Conn., and nieces and nephews.

Captain Twomey was one of the most able and efficient officers of the Norwich police department. Ever courteous and kindly it was a pleasure to meet and know him. He was well liked by all the members of the force, and was popular with his brother officers. He was a police officer in the strict sense of the word, thorough and persistent in handling the numerous matters that came to his attention at headquarters. Thorough and searching in his pursuit of criminal matters he yet retained a warm human sympathy for the erring that came to the surface when a helpful word seemed the right thing, especially in the case of those young in years who were taking their first steps along ways that led them into contact with the police authorities. His thorough knowledge of the city, his alertness and long experience as a police officer made him a valuable member of the department which suffers a distinct loss in his death.

He was straightforward, honest and sincere in all his dealings and he enjoyed a wide circle of warm and admiring friends, who were deeply grieved to hear of his sudden and unexpected death. Captain Twomey was a loving husband and father, ever solicitous for the welfare of his family. The sympathy of the entire community is extended the family in their bereavement.

Attorney—Charles V. James.

The following statement shows the progress made by the association, which opens its 20th series during this month and closes the series on Feb. 17th: The first regular meeting of the association was held Tuesday, April 20, 1915, and the first business was transacted in July of that year. On July 20, 1915, the treasurer reported that $285 was the amount of dues and fees received by him at this first meeting. At the end of the first year the assets of the association totalled $2,494. The first loan made by the association was for $2,200, on Aug. 15, 1916.

The financial statement of Dec. 31, 1924, eight years and a half from the time of the first meeting, shows the growth of the organization which has been purely on its merits and without any organized special efforts. Jan. 1, 1925, the assets totalled $193,172.44. There are 60 real estate loans in force, totalling $177,825; and 31 share loans totalling $8,761. Over 50 per cent. of the real estate loans were made on new construction. The association numbers at present 641 shareholders having 844 accounts. There are 4,683 installment shares and 182 single payment shares. Last year, 1924, the association loaned $73,531.

The good work performed by this association in its eight and one-half years' existence is apparent and praiseworthy. It has stimulated the desire for thrift through its method of regular monthly savings. It has helped those in moderate circumstances to build or buy their own homes. The association loans its money solely for Norwich investments. For a number of years past it has paid 5 1-2 per cent. interest on the savings of the shareholders. The management is composed of local men and is functioned on a co-operative basis. It is of Norwich and for Norwich, and has the confidence and good will of the general public.

RETAIL STORES MAY CLOSE FOR ECLIPSE

At a meeting of the directors of the Norwich Retail Merchants' association Tuesday morning in the rooms of the Norwich chamber of commerce it was decided to call a special meeting of the association for Thursday morning at 10 oclock to consider the matter of having the local stores close Saturday morning during the eclipse of the sun. The proposal is to afford the employes of the stores an opportunity to witness the eclipse.

The banks of the city will open at 10 o'clock and will close at one in the afternoon.

Three of the tanks are for the Valley Oil Co., and three for Jacob Slosberg, who is to enter the oil business in this city.

The tanks will probably be in use ecpal church in Black Hall. Te cerebie weather for finishing the concrete bases.

Seeks Divorce For Desertion.

A divorce suit has been brought in the superior court by Allan T. Huxford of New London on the ground that his wife, Emily Jordan Huxford, formerly of Boston, deserted him in September, 1909. They were married March 3, 1890.

NEWELL VERGASON'S MOTHER EXPLAINS THE HOLD-UP

Mrs. Fremont Vergason of Norwich Town sends the following to The Bulletin:

Mr. Editor: Will you please allow me a space in your valuable paper to correct false accusation against Newell Vergason published in your Saturday morning Bulletin concerning the hold-up at Norwich Town Friday evening.

The trouble came through a diamond ring alleged to be worth $100 and drawn by Newell Vergason Dec. 24th.

Felix Petrowski being overanxious to get possession of the ring, and Newell not caring for it, and wishing to do him a kindness, offered to sell him the ring for $25.

He took the ring and later paid Newell $10 on it.

Last Monday he came to Newell, told him he had offered the ring to the superintendent of the Saxton Mills corp., where the boys both worked, for $50. The superintendent being unwilling to purchase the ring until he knew the value, took it to Plaut-Cadden's, and they pronounced the ring nearly worthless. Newell offered to take the ring from Petrowski and return the $10 he had paid him on the ring. Petrowski seemed unwilling to part with the ring, and the middle of the week told Newell he had sold the ring and gave Newell another $10, which he accepted as a final payment for the ring.

Friday he learned Petrowski had been dishonest and deceived him about the ring. This with the loss of his position in the mill Thursday evening had unnerved him and he determined to make Petrowski pay him the agreed price for the ring. He did not stage any hold-up for robbery, or did he take but $5 from Felix Petrowski, which he considered was justly his and which Petrowski in a dishonest way had tried to cheat him out of. This in justice to an unfortunate boy.

HIS MOTHER.

Money For Kelley Tire Creditors.

Creditors of the defunct Kelley Tire & Rubber Co., will get 100 percent of their claims, it developed before Judge Isaac Wolfe in civil superior court at New Haven, when the affairs of the tire manufacturers were being wound up. Some time ago the creditors were allowed 30 per cent. on their claims and now will get the other 70 per cent., it was brought out at the hearing. The court was asked to allow the two receivers, Albert H. Barclay of New Haven and the First National bank of Bridgeport, compensation for their services. Judge Wolfe reserved decision.

What a great and glorious thing it would be if some enterprising man would get busy and corner the trouble market.

RAYMOND LA ROCHELLE DIES FROM INJURIES IN MILL

Failing to rally from the terrible injuries which he received while at work in the plant of the Uncas Paper Board company at Thamesville, Monday afternoon, Raymond J. LaRochelle, 19, of 66 Myers avenue, died Tuesday morning at 5.35 o'clock at the W. W. Backus hospital. The young man lost an arm and a leg when caught in the revolving knives of a cutting machine at the plant.

Raymond J. LaRochelle was born in this city July 29, 1905, the son of William C. and Louise Riley LaRochelle. He attended the local schools and was graduated from the Norwich Free Academy in June 1923. He was a member of St. Patrick's parish, of White Cross Council, No. 13, Knights of Columbus, and belonged to the Norwich Fish and Game association.

Surviving are his parents, five brothers, William C. Jr., Clifford, Vincent, Thomas and Kenneth, and five sisters, Madeline, Alice, Grace, Margaret and Louise LaRochelle.

Mr. LaRochelle was well known and popular with his many friends. He had been employed as a finisher by the Uncas Paper Board company for about five months. Officials of the company are at a loss as to the manner in which the young man became caught in the machinery at the plant.

PALMERTOWN STORAGE SHED AND FREIGHT CARS BURNED

A frame storage shed of the Andrews and Powers paper mill at Palmertown was totally destroyed by fire this (Wednesday) morning about 1.30 and a string of about a dozen freight cars went with it. The fire spread to one corner of the main mill building where the efforts of a pumper from the New London fire department were holding it at as The Bulletin went to press.

The storage shed about 150x150 feet, with its contents of paper stock is a total loss.

Help was sought from the Norwich fire department, but was refused in view of the snow covered roads and the critical condition in this city in case of a fire, due to the water shortage.

The cause of the fire is unknown.

SHORTAGE IN ACCOUNTS OF BANK CASHIER HOUGH

Lebanon, N. H., Jan. 20.—Shortage in the accounts of Arthur H. Hough, treasurer and cashier of the Peoples' Trust company of Lebanon, who was arrested here yesterday on charges of falsification in his statements to the state bank examiner, will amount to at least $226,642.69, it was announced today by Attorney General Oscar L. Young.

Bank Commissioners Frederick S. Nutting and George B. Farrand today informed First Selectman Thomas J. McNamara and two members of the town hall building committee that Hough's account as treasurer of the building committee was overdrawn $123,469.69, although the committee's books showed a favorable balance of between $12,000 and $15,000. This balance due the town plus other shortages and the actual overdraft against the bank brings the total loss of the bank to $226,642.69.

Commissioner Nutting stated to Selectman McNamara that unless some evident of a deposit could be found in the bank against the amount of the overdraft on the account of the town hall building committee, the state bank commission would consider the town of Lebanon indebted to the bank to the amount of $123,469.69. The account of the town hall building committee is not related to the balance of $75,000 due the town on the regular funds deposited in the trust company by the town treasurer.

The known shortage of a quarter of a million dollars, other amounts believed to be missing, unsound loans made by Hough, and other discrepancies, it was said, will probably bring the total deficit of the bank to about $400,000.

HARROWING EXPERIENCE BY MAJOR W. F. LORENZ

New Orleans, Jan. 20.—Major William F. Lorenz, professor of nervous and mental diseases at the University of Wisconsin, and president of the state board of control, reached here today after a harrowing experience at sea and arrest and confinement by the Mexican government.

"We left Pensacola, Fla., on Jan. 6.$$ Prof. Lorenz said, "carrying aboard the schooner bait, ice and food enough for a three weeks' trip which I was taking for my health. Our plan included a run down along the Mexican coast, a few days of fishing there, and the run back to Pensacola.

"Our dreams came to an end with a crash as the ship piled up on Alacrian Reef, off the coast of Yucatan, just before daybreak Saturday.

"Nine of us left the ship in dories, but were caught in a norther and fought the winds and waves for hours.

"Toward nightfal we were sighted by a Mexican gunboat and picked up.

"We were taken to Progreso, where the captain of the port ordered us put in jail. The first three days we were without food and given water only after the dogs and donkeys had drunk. Then we were taken to Merida, where we were tried; although I do not know on what charge. During this time I had communicated with an American consul and wired the governor of Wisconsin, had after a short hearing we were released."

CONNECTICUT AGGIES OVERWHELM TRINITY IN BASKETBALL, 50 TO 23

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Storrs, Jan. 20.—The Trinity College five fell before the Connecticut Aggies five tonight at Storrs when in a one-sided game the Nutmeg outfit overwhelmed the Hartford team, 50 to 23. After getting away to a slow and ragged start Coach Dole's men came back strong in the second half and counted heavily against the confused Trinity defense. Dole gave all his first string subs a chance to participate in the runaway, 11 men being used in all. But for this the Aggies would have undoubtedly sent their score still higher. Gerald Allard, Putnam boy, put up a great defensive game for Connecticut as did Paul Bigood of Danielson, who also stays guard.

Connecticut led at half time, 18 to 6. The first half was slow and uninteresting with neither team showing much in the way of real basketball. The Aggies were unable to work the ball down the floor through the Trinity defense consistently and Trinity was no better when they had possession of the ball. After five minutes of tame playing in which the ball zig-zagged slowly up and down the floor Eddy registered for Connecticut putting the Aggies in front by a scant two-point lead. Trinity evened up and then went in front a minute later on baskets by Kenna and Sampers. The Aggies showed a little more speed after this and went in front when Capt. Balock, Eddy, Schofield and Mukofski took turns at swishing the net. The Trinity forwards tried hard to score but the close guarding of Allard and Mukofski prevented them from making more than two baskets from the floor in this half. Eddy, the tall Aggie center, used his height to good advantage, dropping the ball through the hoop five times in this session.

Coach Dole's men worked much better in the second half and except for a short time when the Aggies had a substitute team on the floor their superiority in all ways was evident. The Aggies loosed their attack in this half for fair when the team sank shot after shot through the Trinity hoop. Capt. Balock and his men pivoted, dribbled and passed through the confused Trinity defense, piling up the points at all times. Capt. Balock counted heavily in the scoring of his team tonight when he connected eight times from the floor for a total of 16 points. Eddy also counted heavily for the Aggies, scoring nine times from the floor. Sampers who made six field goals showed up well for Trinity as did Burr who played a great defensive game.

WANDERERS CLASH WITH DANIELSON FIVE TONIGHT

Tonight the Baltic Wanderers will play the Danielson Collegians. Manager Blakely has promised to send down a fast team and as Danielson is noted to have some fast men, who are attending college, the Wanderers will have to go some to bring home the bacon. Owing to Plainfield's cancelling the game with the Wanderers the management was compelled to try and get another club to fill the date and this game was booked late Tuesday afternoon.

For the preliminary game Danielson seconds will stack up against the Bantams. The Wanderers will have Simoneau, Ridgeway, Charron, W. Robertaille and Sullivan to play the forward positions with R. Robertaille Swanson, and Coady playing guard. Coady, who was to leave for New Haven Monday, has received better inducements to stay in Baltic and has promised to stick with the Wanderers.

RITOLA TO CURTAIL HIS RACING PROGRAM

New York, Jan. 20.—Willie Ritola, one of the few outstanding rivals for Paavo Nurmi's distance running laurels, probably will not face his fellow countryman again during the indoor season and expects to curtail his activities to a few minor engagements.

This was announced today by Hugo Quist, Finnish-American A. C. trainer who said Ritola, for personal reasons, was not anxious to continue his indoor campaign in spite of the record-breaking form he showed in a five mile race last Saturday night.

Quist denied Ritola's action was prompted by any personal feud with Nurmi' existence of which has been reported several times.

Ritola has been defeated twice by Nurmi since the latter started his sensational campaign here. He will run next Saturday in the Brooklyn College meet, but thereafter, intends to pass up most of the outstanding indoor events.

INTERNATIONAL POLO WILL BE DEAD ISSUE IN 1925

New York, Jan. 20.—International polo will be a dead issue with the United States polo association during the 1925 season except for the annual match between the American and English Army fours. This was decided upon at the annual meeting of the association held here today. Negotiations for a match between the American and Argentine fours may be opened this year but no international match will be played until 1926. The next international match with the English will not be played until 1927 under the terms of the existing polo agreement between the two countries.

The present polo year will be devoted to the development of the low-goal players with the idea of strengthening the average player. To stimulate interest in Polo among the Low-goal players, a tournament to be known as the inter-court tournament was announced. Each of the eight circuits will hold elimination tests and the winners will meet in the finals. This tournament will be limited to 13 goal teams but no team can give away more than six goals.

The committee on International polo reported that the United States army team was training at the present time at Miami, Fla. the team will start north the first of April and sail from New York April 15. The matches are scheduled for London during the middle of June.

The following tournament dates were accepted:

CADETS HAVE BUSY SEASON AHEAD IN BASKETBALL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 20.—The newly crowned City basketball champs, the Coast Guard, will resume athletic activities after a short enforced lay-off due to examinations which were held at Fort Trumbull during last week. The Coast Guard Cadets will draw as their opponents on Wednesday night the Dormats in the first game of what will be a double bill in the house league games. On the second half of the bill, the Mebs and Leather Pushers are destined to perform.

Besides this game for the Coast Cadets, there is a possibility that the 85th Brigade Headquarters team will meet the Cadets in an effort to wrest the title from them. This game will be played on Friday of this week or in the immediate future if an effort to book the armory to be the scene of the battle fails. Another game looms up with the Submarine Base opposing the Cadets. It will be remembered that the Cadets gained the City title from the Base two weeks ago and are not reluctant to give the tars another chance to recover it.

LOCAL C. F. C. TEAM WINS FROM NEW LONDON FIVE

The fast C. F. C. Team went to New London last night and defeated the Methodist church team by the score of 36 to 23. The Methodist's lineup included a Sub Base player, and also one from the Groton Iron Works quintet, but the team work of the C. F. C. team greatly excelled their rivals. For the C. F. C. team Brown and Leffingwell were the high point scorers, while Quide led the New London team in scoring.

It is hoped that a return game will be played at Norwich within a few weeks.

BULKELEY WILL PLAY MYSTIC TEAM THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 20.—With assurance that the Bulkeley basketball team would be allowed to finish the schedule as the result of the support the team received in the game played Saturday evening at the armory, finds the Orange and Black resuming her court relations on Thursday afternoon with the Mystic All-Stars as the opponent. Money worries have been put aside for the present if not for the entire season, for if the support is given the Bulkeley team, shown on Saturday is a fair criterion, Bulkeley is in for a prosperous year.

Besides overcoming a handicap of inexperienced players which accounts in some sense of the word for the failure of the Bulkeley quintet on the marked court this season, Bulkeley was obliged to overcome the strain of finance upon the coffers of the treasury. Predictions coming from all the wise ones that Bulkeley would find it a difficult task to travel the bumpy road and end with a loss and possible discontinuence of the sport before the entire season had been played, proved to present a problem which has been solved only recently.

But when the Bulkeley management secured the support it desired, it more than meant the supporting of this one sport for the remainder of the season. It showed that sports which have been operated upon loss basis will probably receive the financial aid they desire in the future. The admonitions received that the season of basketball which was to be embarked upon in 1924-25 would meet with failure has dispelled a theory that has had in its grip local teams endeavoring a strong comeback in all phases of the athletic contests.

Year after year, support of teams at Bulkeley came from indirect sources rather than from the revenue derived from the games the team has engaged in. The first sport to financially support itself as far as can be ascertained is football, but the amount which reposes on the school's bank account after the paying off of all the debts is not such a great amount. Bulkeley gave to New London fans apparently what they desired to see and who also desired to pay for the privilege of witnessing the game.

Early indications when the announcement that the game with Hartford High if it did not pay, would mean the discardment of this sport after a revival of this dead sport, showed that Bulkeley overcame a fear which many expressed before the night of the game drew near. Local fans will support basketball whether it is a winning or losing team as demonstrated on Saturday. Bulkeley has far from a strong combination on the court, and has lost the majority of its games. But yet with this known, fans flocked to the armory like an army of ants, and basketball was saved the disgraceful retirement which seemed imminent in view of the circumstances.

Bulkeley appreciates the fact that local sport lovers would like to witness some fine teams to play here, and will begin a strong campaign for a home season to begin with basketball. Expecting to be in the thick of the fight for state honors, Bulkeley will virtually decide the title in this city, playing almost all of the leading teams which have not refused the invitation of Manager Harris to come to this city for a game. Norwich High of New York, although not definitely schedule to play the opening game of the season at this city will undoubtedly open the schedule this year. All is in readiness to launch one of the biggest campoigns both financially and in games won, which will probably will be followed out as a custom in sports in later years.

CHARKEY OUTPOINTS "SULLY" IN TEN FAST ROUNDS

Boston, Jan. 20.—Jack Sharkey of Boston, heavyweight, outboxed Sully Montgomery of New York in 9 of their 10 rounds here tonight to win the judges' decision. Only in the first round was Montgomery able to put over his heavy right. Sharkey thereafter cleverly dazzled him with showers of left hooks and right jams.

The former Center college football star missed repeatedly in his efforts to reach Sharkey. The latter landed decisive blows time and again but failed to follow them up for the finish. Sully was dropped to his knee in the second round; a left hook staggered him in the fourth; in the fifth a right to the jaw shook him; and in the eighth he went down before a left hook to the face and a right to the pit of the body. He was on his feet at once, however. Sharkey weighed in at 188 and Montgomery at 200.

JOHNSON APPROVES OF BRIBERY INVESTIGATION

Chicago, Jan. 20.—President B. B. Johnson of the American League, in a statement tonight heartily endorsed the legal investigation started by District Attorney Banton of New York which may lead to grand jury action in connection with the Dolan-O'Connell baseball bribery scandal just before the last world's series.

"Baseball," Johnson said, "has clamored for laws to punish gamblers, players and confidence men who have been attempting to disrupt the game. For years we have been beseeching the state legislatures to adopt laws which will punish the guilty persons. Now that New York has taken the first stand in placing such a law on its statutes, we should do all in our power to punish the guilty players to the limit. Should it be brought out at the trial that others are implicated, then the law should take its course and punish those also to the limit.

"In 1920 the state's attorney of Cook county did all in his power to convict members of the Chicago White Sox for their implication in the alleged throwing of games of the 1919 world's series to the Cincinnati Nationals, but those implicated escaped punishment because there was no law which covered the offense. Since that time I have been an earnest advocate of a state law to remedy this evil and if state laws will not stamp out this trouble, then I advocate a federal law which will deal with gamblers, crooked ball players and confidence men, who are a detriment to the game of baseball."

Honor to Dead Soldier

The War department says when a soldier is buried the following is the procedure: The body is lowered into the grave as the priest or minister reads a short service. Usually music is played or a hymn is sung. A bugle then sounds taps, after which a firing squad fires three rounds over the grave. The guns are pointed upward, in no particular direction. After the funeral party leaves the cemetery the cemeterial help closes the grave.

The Way of Life

This brief sermon by the wayside is from the Tifton Gazette: "Some men seem to make money without effort, while some women seem to annex more husbands than the law allows without any more effort. It's the other way round with some men, who can't make money no matter how hard they try, while some women find it utterly impossible to even annex the one husband allowed by law. But then, that's the way of life."

BRIBERY CASE TO BE BROUGHT BEFORE GRAND JURY AFTER INVESTIGATION

New York, Jan. 20.—(By The A. P.)—Legal investigation which may lead to grand jury action in the Dolan-O'Connell bribery scandal was launched today by District Attorney Banton of New York upon receipt of all evidence so far gathered in the case from baseball Commissioner Landis.

At the same time, Commissioner Landis pledged his readiness to cooperate with the district attorney in obtaining witnesses or in any other way, thus, since his authority over the National game is virtually supreme putting baseball's entire machinery at the disposal of the investigation.

The probe will be made under the special law branding attempted baseball bribery as a felony, punishable by imprisonment of one to five years and a fine of not more than $10,000.

The suddenness of this development in the Dolan-O'Connell case, which came as a surprise to baseball men, was coupled significantly with the hasty departure of John A. Heydler, president of the National league for Chicago,, where he was called by Landis to attend a meeting tomorrow of the advisory council.

Mr. Heydler gave no intimation of the purpose of the meeting before departing but baseball men generally interpreted it as bearing upon the latest developments in the bribery case. The council is composed of Landis, Heydler and Frank Navin, president of the Detroit Tigers, who replaced Ban Johnson when the American league president was shorn of most of his powers recently at a joint major league meeting.

In turning over to the district attorney a transcript of the bribery investigation testimony, which recently was made public, Commissioner Landis pointed out that it would not afford a basis for conviction of anyone so far involved except Jimmy O'Connell, young outfielder, who confessed his attempt to bribe Heinie Sand, Philadelphia shortstop, in a game near the close of the 1924 season.

The commissioner, whose action was regarded as an admission that his own probe into the affair has been balked, stressed the point that he had not obtained any evidence corroborating O'Connell's story. This named Cozy Dolan as instigator of the bribery deal and also mentioned Frank Frisch, George Kelly and Ross Young, Giant stars. Dolan, on the insufficiency and evasiveness of his answers, was expelled along with O'Connell, but the other three were exonerated on their explicit denials of any part in the affair.

William J. Fallon, attorney for Dolan, whose threatened suit against Landis and other baseball officials was dropped, declared he welcomed the district attorney's investigation on behalf of his client.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Hungry Watchers

The hungry know if they but wait
In time they will their hunger sate.
—Hooky the Owl.

Peter Rabbit was safe in a bramble-tangle on the edge of the Green Forest. It was a thick one and Peter felt quite safe there. Hooty the Owl couldn't get at him, and the brambles were too thick for Reddy Fox to force his way through. So Peter didn't worry at all. Both Reddy and Hooty were just outside on watch. But that didn't bother Peter.

"They'll get tired after a while," said Peter to himself. "They'll get tired and go away."

But there was one thing that Peter didn't know, and this was that both Reddy and Hooty had hunted and hunted and found nothing to eat. Here was a dinner, a splendid dinner, in that little bramble-tangle, and it was worth waiting for. Both knew that sooner or later Peter would have to come out of that little bramble-where he would find something to eat.

He didn't do but hid where Peter couldn't see him.

So, though after a while Reddy pretended to go away, he didn't go, but hid where Peter couldn't see him, but where he could watch the bramble-tangle. Hooty the Owl perched on his watch tower where he also could watch the bramble-tangle. Peter could see Hooty. It was a moonlight night, and all night long Hooty remained, hungrily watching. He didn't move. He sat so still and upright that had you happened along and looked up at him you certainly would have though hi ma part of the tree. But Peter had seen him alight there, and so he wasn't fooled.

Reddy Fox knew that Hooty was watching. He knew, too, that probably Peter knew that Hooty was watching. So after a while Reddy stole away to hunt for wood Mice. By the time jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun had started his daily climb up in the blue, blue sky Reddy was back again in his former hiding place. When Mr. Sun had climbed high enough to make it uncomfortably bright Hooty gave up and flew to a darker place in the Green Forest.

Peter saw Hooty go. By this time Peter was beginning to get tired of that bramble-tangle, for he was very hungry. "I'll wait awhile," said Peter to himself, "and then I guess it will be safe enough for me to go on. I haven't seen anything of Reddy Fox, so I guess he has given up."

So Peter began to move about in the bramble-tangle, for he had sat still so long that he was beginning to feel stiff. Now in moving about Peter made a mistake. A pair of the sharpest eyes in all the Green Forest saw him as he moved about. They were the eyes of Terror the Goshawk. So Terror perched in a tree where he could watch the bramble-tangle. Peter saw him when he flew to that perch. Peter's heart sank. Hooty the Owl, who had watched all night had left, but here was another watcher just as fierce and just as much to be dreaded. Peter settled himself with a little sigh and prepared for a long wait. And all the time he grew hungrier and hungrier.

BILLS INTRODUCED COVER GREAT VARIETY OF MATTERS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Hartford, Jan. 20.—The house was called to order at 11.15 and prayer was offered by Chaplain Lewis. The attendance at opening was slim, as many were delayed by the storm.

A flow of bills and resolutions came pouring in on a great variety of matters. None of the expected important bills were among them, although many were of general interest to the state at large. A proposed act introduced by Mr. Alling of New Britain provides that any judge of the superior court, court of common pleas or the district court of Waterbury, have discretionary power to admit hereasy evidence when in the opinion of the judge it is impossible to obtain direct evidence that is satisfactory, when the parties testifying are of good character and standing in the community, and the interests of justice will be served.

Mr. Alling also offered an amendment to the automobile laws that will compel any operator of motor cars to show his registration and operator's license when requested to do so by any proper officer, at any time. At present he is only compelled to show it in case of accident.

Another change in the present law provides "That every motor vehicle duly registered for the current year may be operated on the first day of the succeeding year with the numbers of the preceeding year or if the motor vehicle is duly registered for the ensuing year, it may be operated on the 31st of December of the current year with the markers of the ensuing year."

A proposed act of interest to all the towns provides for the maintainance of bridges over or under railroad tracks.

Other bills were: Closing of Bolton lake to fishing; an act providing that no state monies shall be deported in any bank or trust company in which the state treasurer is a director or is interested in any other way.

A resolution was offered appointing William A. Wilcox judge of the town court of Stonington. Mr. Alling of New Britain gave notice that the governor desired to address the assembly and that there would be a joint session of the two houses on Wednesday at 12 o'clock.

Mr. Potter of Brooklyn introduced a resolution which the house adopted expressing sorrow and regret at the death of Representative Fred L. Hutchins of Thompson and authorizing the speaker to appoint a committee of nine to draft appropriate resolutions for the house and to attend the funeral of Mr. Hutchins. The committee appointed by Speaker Darbie is: Messrs. Clark of Canterbury, Potter of Brooklyn, Desaulniers of Thompson, Rich of Putnam, Bates of Woodstock, Pechie of Putnam, Johnson of Woodstock, Buck of Ashford, Windhurst of Warren.

Mr. Cassidy of Norwich presented a bill reimbursing Henry T. Couchman for a fine of $200, paid to city court of Norwich. Afterward the case was nolled on terms in the court of common pleas, but the fine had been remitted to the commissioner of motor vehicles. Referred to committee on claims.

At 12.05 the house, out of respect for Mr. Hutchins, adjourned till Wednesday at 11.15.

JEWETT CITY

Mrs. George A. Haskell in looking over old records finds that Mr. Haskell's grandmother, Lucretia, wife of Eli Burton, told of a Dark Day in 1780, while she was living in Rockville, R. I. She was born in 1756 and lived to be 103. It was evidently an eclipse 145 years ago. For in a Boston paper of Monday Mrs. Haskell found the following:

Massachusetts people were similarly excited by anticipation of the eclipse of the sun, set down for Oct. 27, 1780. All the stirring scenes of the Revolution were not sufficient to dampen the enthusiasm, or to quench scientific interest in the approaching phenomenon. Rev. Samuel Williams, who had just succeeded Mr. Winthrop in the professorship of mathematics and physical science at Harvard, offered his dia in making the necessary observations.

The general assembly of the state of Massachusetts Bay passed a resolution that the board of war be directed to fit out the state galley with proper stores and accommodations for conveying Professor Williams and his party to Penobscot, at or near which the eclipse was to be observed. Maine was then a part of Massachusetts This resolution was passed on Sept. 12, 1780.

Oct. 9 Professor Williams set out on the "Lincoln" galley, taking with him Professor Sewall, James Winthrop and several students, together with the necessary college instruments. A letter had been sent to the British commander of the garrison at Penobscot, requesting him not to frustrate the purpose of the expedition.

The party duly arrived at Penobscot bay and were enabled to make their observations, though somewhat hampered by militaryorderse. They placed their instruments on Long Island, where the eclipse just failed of absolute totality. During the progress of the eclipse Venus, Jupiter and the bright stars were to be seen, and there was a heavy fall of dew.

We may well look with admiration, not only upon the zeal of these scientists, but upon th action of the government of Massachusetts in forwarding their plans at such an anxious moment in the progress of the war of the Revolution.

Warden Mathew J. Geary, occupied the chair at the largely attended annual meeting of the borough of Jewett City, held Monday evening. The reports of the board of borough government, the clerk and treasurer, and the electric light commissioners were accepted.

A tax of ten mills was laid on the taxable property of the borough to meet the estimated expenses for 1925, which will be presented as follows:

Streets $3,500, police $2,000, fire department $12,00, street lights "$2,600, miscellaneous $500, garbage $1,500, insurance $300, interest $5,700, water $1,600, election expenses $100, printing $200, park $100, clerk and treasurer $400, electric light plant $12,000, total $31,70.

The record for the year just passed is outstanding in the 30 years of history for economy and businesslike management.

The matter of refunding $87,000 of the borough debt by the present administration, shows some thousands of dollars saved in payable interest. After legal rights were established in reference to the refunding, $87,000 held at 6 per cent. by the Jewett City Savings bank, were taken over at 4½ per cent. by R. M. Grant, of Boston.

The sinking fund of the borough has been raised $5,688.66 with a cash balance in the treasury of $7,311.

Warden Geary explained certain facts relative to coming stated times of payments on outstanding loans.

Beginning in 1929 and for five years thereafter there must be $4,000 paid annually. Today the bonded debt of the borough is $132,000 and these figures, less cash in treasury and amount due from tax collectors and others, show the reading of $91,865.

A unanimous vote of the meeting was in favor of purchasing the two blinker traffic guides which were installed in the stat eroad on trial. This service has proven reliable, and they were deemed indispensable.

Special attention is being called to the admirable report which will be submitted by George J. Moeller, Eli G. Lague and Lloyd G. Buckingham, the board of electrical commissioners. Chairman Moeller with full knowledge of the problems his commission will have to face in coming years, told what might normally be expected from the electric lighting service, as compared with previous years. It seems remarkable to people of neighboring localities that Jewett City light consumers only pay 10 cents per kilowatt for electric service, at the same time it cost $17,370 to maintain the plant which will be shown as follows: Interest $1,125, salaries $1,660, general repairs $107, general expense $554.38, supplies $128.37, electric service $10,-784.04, extra labor $115, line tools $33.14, rebate on Lisbon transformer $71.48, Lisbon line $392.90; new construction, reconstruction $730.84, new construction $1,608.12.

Their report will show over and above important line extension that there is a net gain of $4,493.

The report of George H. Prior, borough fire marshal, is complete with a separate report on each fire. His figures will show for the year: Whistle alarms 18, still alarms 24, false alarms 1, outside aid 5, gallons chemical used 820, number feet hose laid 4,800, loss $15,930.

An inventory has been completed of the electric light plant, the values of which will be shown as follows: Building $1,900, switchboard and instruments $1,525, meters $7,861.53, transformers $4,737.49, street lights, wires and fixtures $9,367.51, line tools, etc., $357.97, total $25,768. Less 10 per cent. depreciation, $2,576.86, total, $23,-191.74.

From a decidedly losing proposition for several years now thanks to efficient and conscientious management, the plant is a valuable borough asset.

Next Monday is the annual election day for the borough of Jewett City, and in all the 30 years of the borough's existence, this election will be the "beater." There have been no caucuses for the purpose of nominating candidates.

There were two burgesses to be nominated. The republican town committee has placed in nomination Thomas McBroome to fill the vacancy resulting from the death of George A. Haskell. John McDermott has been so named by the democratic committee to succeed himself as burgess. There will be no vote for warden this year, as Matthew J. Geary has another year to serve.

The election, by legal usage must be carried on as usual, at a cost to the borough of close to $100. Yet, before a ballot is cast, every officer on the ticket is elected, except the bailiff, and the new board of government can be told today as well as after the somewhat perfunctory election.

Hector Selbeiaud will appear for bailiff on the republican ticket.

The new board to be elected will be: Warden, Matthew J. Geary; burgesses, Ernest L. French, Edmond Jodoin, John McDermott, Thomas McBroome; clerk, Edwin M. Gray; treasurer, Edwin M. Gray; assessors, John Tracy, Herbert E. Gray; bailiff, Wicenty Osga, or Selberland; collector, Lionel E. Boucher; auditors, George H. Prior, Louis Morey.

Certainly Tuesday there was snow, snow and more snow, with rain and a high wind at night. However, the temperature was not very low.

POETRY

MIDWINTER.

The speckled sky is dim with snow,
The light flakes falter and fall slow;
Athwart the hilltop, rapt and pale,
Silently drops a silvery veil;
And all the valley is shut in
By flickering curtains gray and thin.

But cheerily the chickadee
Singeth to me on fence and tree;
The snow sails round him as he sings,
White as the down of angels' wings.

I watch the snowflakes as they fall
On bank and brier and broken wall;
Over the orchard, waste and brown,
All noiselessly they settle down,
Tipping the hemlock-boughs, and each
Light quivering twig of plum and peach

On turf and curb and bower-roof
The snowstorm spreads its ivory woof;
It paves with pearl the garden-walk;
And lovingly round tattered stalk
And shivering stem its magic weaves
A mantle fair as lily-leaves.

The hooded beehive, small and low,
Stands like a maiden in the snow;
And the old door-slab is half hid
Under an alabaster lid.

All day it snows; the sheeted post
Gleams in the dimness like a ghost;
All day the blasted oak has stood
A muffled wizard of the wood;
Garland and airy cap adorn
The sumach and the wayside thorn,
And clustering spangles lodge and shine
In the dark tresses of the pine.

The ragged bramble, dwarfed and old,
Shrinks like a beggar in the cold;
In surplice white the cedar stands
And blesses him with priestly hands.

Still cheerily the chickadee
Singeth to me on fence and tree;
But in my inmost ear is heard
The music of a holier bird;
And heavenly thoughts, as soft and white
As snowflakes, on my soul alight,
Clothing with love my lonely heart,
Healing with peace each bruised part,
Till all my being seems to be
Transfigured by their purity.
—John Townsend Trowbridge.

HURRAH FOR OLD NEW ENGLAND

This is our own, our native home,
Though poor and rough she be;
The home of many a noble soul,
The birthplace of the free.
We'll love our rocks and rivers
Till death our quick blood stills;
Hurrah for New England
And her cloud-capped granite hills!

Chorus—

Shall not the land, though poor she be
That gave a Webster birth,
With pride step forth to take her place
With the mightiest of the earth?
Then for his sake whose lofty fame
Our farthest bound'ries fills,
We'll shout for old New England
And her cloud-capped granite hills.

Others may seek the western clime;
They say 'tis passing fair,
That sunny are its laughing skies
And soft its balmy air.
We'll linger round our childhood's home
Till age our warm blood chills,
Till we die in old New England,
And sleep beneath her hills!

Speaking of devotees of the silver screen, William K. Hall, of Bath, Me., has missed only six performances in all the theaters since film productions were introduced in Bath back in 1907, says the Boston Globe. He has a 100 per cent record as far as the Opera House, which opened in 1913, is concerned. During the prosperous days of the shipping boom, there were three theaters in the city, and Mr. Hall usually attended three shows a day. He claims to be the champion of Bath the probable champion of Maine and the possible champion of New England.

WILL FURNISH GRAIN TO SAVE GAME BIRDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, R. I., Jan. 20.—Since the snow storm to prevent game birds from starving Secretary James McGarvie of the Anguilla Gun club of Pawcatuck announces that on application he will see that farmers or residents of country districts in Stonington are supplied with grain which he received from the state of Connecticut. Mr. McGarvie states that scattering grain along the roadside for game birds is useless as the starlings and sparrows which abound in great numbers hereabouts clean up the feed. The grain should be placed in sheltered places in the woods where the game birds are living.

NEW LONDON HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS SENT HOME FOR HEALTH CERTIFICATES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 20.—As a result of 50 students of the Williams Memorial Institute, who reside in Groton failing to obtain health certificates from the authorities in Groton, where a slight epidemic of scarlet fever exists, the young ladies who reside in Groton were sent to their abodes yesterday by the school officials with instructions not to return to their studies until such time as they have been examined by the health authorities and are found to have not been exposed to the germ. Dr. Louis M. Alyn, health officer of the town of Groton, and Dr. Frank W. Hewes, health officer of Groton borough, have been instructed to proceed at once with the examination of the students by Health Officer Benjamin N. Pennell, of this city. There are about 175 students attending the institute, who reside in Groton, Noank, Mystic and Stonington.

Mrs. Raymond Howard is absent from her duties as telephone operator at the Crocker house, and is confined to her home, Jay street, by illness.

A still alarm to fire headquarters this evening caused the Niantic Engine company to be dispatched to the residence at 79 Golden street, owned by the estate of Ella O'Neill and occupied by Mrs. Blanche Fuller. The fire was located in the chimney, where a quantity of soot had become ignited and threatened to ignite the interior of the two-story wooden structure. Chemicals sufficed to extinguish the blaze and with damage of consequence.

Mrs. Emma Rietta, Summit, N. J., was in New London today attending the funeral of her mother, Mrs. Matilda Grancher, whose death occurred a few days ago.

The police probe by the special committee appointed by the city council, consisting of Councilors Edward L. Streete, Jr., John F. Murray, and Lucius E. Whiton and City Manager William A. Holt, scheduled to take place tonight, was not held, the investigation being ordered postponed early this evening. City Manager Holt caused several of the patrolmen of the 7 o'clock shift to be summoned before the board at 4 o'clock and less than two hours later and after the men had been notified to appear at the municipal building, the city manager notified Captain Phinney that the probe would be postponed, the date of the next hearing not being announced. Fourteen patrolmen remain to be quizzed by the probers, and with this accomplished before the expiration of the present week, it is understood, that several citizens will be called before the board to answer questions as to what they have knowledge of regarding the conduct of the department, together with altered interpretations of the rules and regulations of the police department.

A three-cornered automobile accident occurred late this afternoon in which a fire truck and two pleasure cars figured and naturally, the lighter automobiles sustained the greater amount of damage. One of the big gasoline tank trucks of the Gulf Refining company, and operated by Arthur C. Buckley, 83 Blackhall street, in passing through Washington street, at the corner of Huntington street, struck a machine owned and operated by Louis R. Tierney, the latter machine being forced against a machine owned and driven by Owen Burgess, a sailor, stationed at the submarine base. Neither Tierney nor Burgess were injured, although their machines received a vigorous jolt and were considerably damaged. All three drivers made a report of the accident at the police station.

The funeral of Washington I. Tooker was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at 15 Masonic street, the services being conducted by Rev. George R. Atha, pastor of the Groton Heights Baptist church. Relatives of Mr. Tooker acted as bearers. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Autoists had their troubles aplenty this evening for several machines were disabled from one cause and another in the snow outside the city and telephoned in for the assistance of service cars to haul them to New London. One of the Hartford and New London busses broke an axle north of Colchester this afternoon and was towed to Hartford.

Sidewalks were pretty generally cleared of snow this evening in the center of the city when the storm abated, but on the side streets and away from the business center no shovel was touched to the walks. The police will start out in the morning warning property owners and occupants that there is an ordinance covering the clearing of walks and an effort will be made to enforce that law.

The past seven Saturdays liquor-carrying vessels have been brought to this port for engaging in unlawful business. What there is about Saturday violations that should make them more frequent than the violations of other days is not apparent, but the fact remains that they are more numerous than any others.

Most of the stores in New London closed early this evening because of the snow storm, which increased in fury about 5 o'clock in the afternoon, though it abated an hour later.

The annual banquet of the Ladies' Catholic Benevolent association was held Monday evening in I. O. O. F. hall. Mrs. Michael Flanagan had charge of the arrangements. The table decorations were in charge of Mrs. John Tansey, who donated flowers. Mrs. George Cleary and Mrs. Dennis Keenan had charge of the musical program. Vocal numbers were rendered by Miss Esther Crasker and Mrs. Henry McKitsch. Humorous readings were given by Miss Mary J. Nelson and Mrs. John Gilmartin. Dancing was enjoyed after the dinner.

The dedication of the Col. Ledyard school, Groton, which, it was planned to hold at the new schoolhouse this evening, has been postponed a week because of the severe storm today as the weather conditions are such that many who desired to attend the dedicatory ceremony would have been prevented from doing so. It is the desire of the committee in charge of the exercises that as many parents of students of the school, together with those who are interested in the educational work as being followed by the borough school board, attend the exercises.

Private funeral services for Mrs. Matilda Grancher, widow of Julius Grancher, were held this morning at 11 o'clock at 48 Shapley street, Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, pastor of St. James Episcopal church, officiating. The bearers were Joseph G. Harrigan, Elmer Holmes, James P. McGarry and Frank McCormick. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs Eliza Cooper, widow of David Cooper, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Shiloh Baptist church, where services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Sinclair Grimstead. The bearers were James Ford, Andrew Washington and Messrs. Acors and Loving. Interment was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

The funeral of Mrs Ruth Orr, wife of William Orr, and daughter of Richard Enos, 253 Huntington street, formerly of New London, whose death occurred several days ago at her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., of appendicitis, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Orr's father. The services were conducted by Rev. Myron E. Genter, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church. Interment was in Jordan cemetery.

The police are seeking the whereabouts of E. Rankin, a sailor attached to the U. S. S. Red Wing, of the navy's dry fleet, stationed at the state pier for the forenoon Herbert I. Vernet, gunner's mate, first class, also stationed aboard the Red Wing, appeared at the police station and made it known that Rankin was wanted by the naval authorities on a charge of desertion and theft. Rankin is described as being about 25, five feet, eight inches in height, medium build, dark hair and unclean in general appearance.

It is alleged that Rankin while on duty aboard the Red Wing deserted his post and disappeared, taking with him property of the government, a belt, holster, 45-calibre Colt's automatic pistol, two clips and 14 rounds of ammunition.

New London experienced its worst storm of the winter today and while the amount of snow that fell was not of great quantity it was much more than has fell during the entire winter. The storm broke about 3.30 o'clock this morning when a fine snow started falling and continued until mid-forenoon when a semi-hail and rain prevailed. The hail and rain continued at intervals through the afternoon until 4 o'clock when snow again started falling and in great volume and at early evening it was apparent that a snowfall of several inches would result.

The storm did not cause an interruption to traffic of any account, automobiles being used as a general means of transportation, while the cars of the Connecticut company were operated close to schedule. With the breaking of the storm the trolley company caused its powerful sweeper to be manned by a working force and when the trolley cars were started in operation an hour and a half later the rails were practically free of snow. The plow was continued in operation on the various lines throughout the day and night.

This afternoon a force of city laborers were assigned to work in the central part of the city placing sand on the sidewalks which had become slippery from constant traffic, the city officials being intent on taking every precaution to prevent pedestrians sustaining injuries by falling on the walks and then instigating suits for damages.

A number of youths have been rounded up by Sergeant John Cavanaugh and will be presented in the juvenile court tomorrow afternoon, charged with the theft of goods from several stores in the city, principal among which is the M. C. Candy Co., Blinman street, an establishment that has been entered frequently of late. The entrance to the store was not properly secured following the recent fire, with the result that the boys obtained admission and stole a quantity of confectionery, salted peanuts and the like. Other stores were also visited by the youths and plunder, although not of great value, was obtained.

It has developed within a day or two that Jesse Joseph Barry and Thomas E. Lavoe, both of Huntington street who were arrested and convicted last December of taking an automobile without the consent of the owner, also had knowledge of the theft of a diamond ring from the residence of Mrs. Hawke, a resident of Huntington street. The house recently caught fire and the ring disappeared while the fighting the fire was in progress. The ring was taken by one of the accused for recently it was recovered in a Norwich pawnshop where it had been disposed of for $30 by the wife of one of the two men. Mrs. Hawke has since recovered the ring and the Norwich merchant is the loser for he is out the $30 which he paid for the ring, although its value was several times in excess of the amount he paid for it.

When a traveling salesman asked today how many hardware stores there were in New London the answer came that there were eight or ten. But the salesman is in the business of supplying dealers and he realizes that there are twenty such stores.

Rumor is a busy traveler and can cover many miles while truth hesitates to circulate about. That may account for a story that was current today and which was to the effect that Norwich parties had leased a store in the Crocker house building, now vacant, and had taken a ten years' rental on the ball room of the hotel which would be used as a dining room in connection with the restaurant. But there was not a word of truth in the rumor, probably as it seemed when it was told.

Washington Irving Tooker, who died at Lawrence hospital yesterday, belonged to a generation that has passed away. He had dropped out of the public eye and the public mind some years ago and few comparatively had knowledge that there ever was a man in this city who climbed into walls in the days before we had an abundant supply of Konomoc and that he cleaned the walls of all foreign substance. Rubber boots and strong arms and legs were his only equipment as he descended into the wells and at times came out with fish and toads. Mr. Tooker made local fame and a good deal of cash by a lecture on "Pork" some fifty years ago or more when he declaimed the virtues of that meat as a food. There was some discussion as to the safety of eating the meat of pigs, but Tooker had his ideas and he expressed them in a public lecture. He won fame also by catching sharks at Winthrop's Point where the bridge spans the river now. Tooker fished from a boat and used a specific hook attached to a chain and which was supplied with bonyfish for bait. He often brought up an eight-foot shark that he displayed at some market or store. The fish were so numerous at that point for some seasons in the years that Tooker essayed to capture them that bathers were frightened and kept out of the water near Winthrop's Point.

The city of New London for the first time this winter dipped into the appropriation set aside for the removal of snow from the walks and crossings about the city. The snowfall was such that it was indicated that a considerable dent would be made in the money. Last winter the city got along by using but little of the snow appropriation.

NEW BEDFORD WEAVERS VOTE TO RETURN TO WORK

New Bedford, Mass., Jan. 20.—The weavers of the Potomoska mill late this afternoon voted to return to work tomorrow morning upon the management's agreeing to an adjustment of the prices which were in effect prior to the 10 per cent. wage cut which went into effect yesterday.

The 250 weavers of the Potomoska were a majority of the men on strike here. About fifty loom fixers from the same mill, who ceased work yesterday, were ordered back to work by the union this morning, although they were instructed to hold themselves in readiness if strikebreakers should be employed.

The agreement was reached after a conference between the superintendent and treasurer of the Potomoska mill and Abraham Binns, secretary of the Weavers' union. The mill management offered to readjust the prices paid on certain classes of fine goods. The weavers had declared that the changes made in these prices recently, together with the general wage reduction announced for yesterday, amounted to a double wage cut.

About 70 weavers and loom fixers of the Devon Mills, Inc., the Goodyear and Fisk Rubber Company's plant, still remained out. A ballot of the 140 ring twisters at this mill has been taken and it is expected that it will be known tonight whether they will join the strikers.

Colds Should Always Be Treated With Vapors

Vicks Is "A Vapor Lamp In Salve Form." No Dosing, You Just Rub It Over Throat And Chest.

It has long been recognized that the most effective way to treat colds is to apply the medication directly to the affected parts. This of course can only be done by means of vapors that can be inhaled.

Vicks provides the ideal method of securing medicated vapors. When rubbed over throat and chest the ingredients—Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine—are vaporized by the body heat and inhaled directly into the air passages and lungs.

At the same time, Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster, affording a double action which brings truly remarkable results.

STOCK PRICES LOWER

New York, Jan. 20.—Stock prices continued to drift to lower ground today with trading showing a market contraction in volume. The decline was conducted in orderly fashion, net losses in most of the active issues being held to a point or less. Much of the selling undoubtedly was inspired by commission house advices suggesting a reduction in long commitments, pending a more definite indication of the extent and duration of trade recovery. Short selling was in evidence in several sections of the list, but it was of a cautious character.

The day's financial and business news developments were largely favorable. They included lower call money rates, publication of statistics showing that the day's bank clearings had exceeded one billion dollars for the fifteenth time since first of the year and were running about 30 per cent over those of the corresponding period last year, establishment of a seasonal record in freight car loadings and another new high price for wheat.

United States Steel common fluctuated within a range of one point, closing unchanged at 125. American Can closed a point higher at 163 after being quoted as low as 158 3-4 and Baldwin showed a net loss of 3-4 at 121 3-8. Studebaker closed fractionally lower at 43 1-2.

Commercial solvents A and B developed independent strength, closing at net gains of 6 1-8 and 7 1-4 points at 125 7-8 and 126 respectively. Buying of these issues was attributed to the large business being done by the company in the sale of basic products used in certain kinds of paint.

American Sugar Refining issues rallied two points each on buying attracted by the company's recent analysis of earnings over a period of ten years. Good buying also was noted in Burroughs Adding Machine, International Harvester, Laclede Gas, Mathieson Alkali, National Dairy Products and Willys Overland Preferred, all of which closed from 1 to 2 points higher.

Bear traders launched a successful attack on some of the textile shares. American Woolen was hammered down from 61 3-8 to 59 1-4, closing at 60 for a net loss of 1 5-8 on the day while Manhattan Shirt sold at 25 1-8, the lowest price in over a year and then rallied to 26, also off 1 5-8 on the day. Mallison, in which a large short interest is supposed to exist, closed 3-4 higher at 35 1-4 after selling as low as 33 3-4.

Rails reacted with the rest of the list, despite the annual favorable traffic reports. Lehigh Valley reacted 2 1-2 points to 74 3-4 and losses of a point or more were recorded by St. Paul common and preferred, New York Central, Norfolk and Western, Reading & Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred and "Nickel Plate."

Oils rallied temporarily on reports that production in the New Wortham Pool had reached its peak, but they later reacted with the rest of the list, losses of a point or more being recorded by Maracaibo, Atlantic Refining, Colorado Fuel, Mexican Seaboard, Producers and Refiners and Tidewater.

Call money opened at 3 per cent and then dropped to 2 1-2 as the demand for funds slackened, with the reduction of trading. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged with business in moderate volume.

Foreign exchange rates were slightly reactionary with business restricted by the interruption of transoceanic communication. Demand sterling ruled about a quarter of a cent lower around $4.77 1-2 and French francs were slightly easier at 5.39 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 20.—Bond prices worked irregularly lower in today's dull trading. Reactionary tendencies predominated, but Mexican obligations and several industrial corporation issues developed independent strength.

Impending discussions of Mexico's financial position again supplied the incentive for buying of the Mexican bonds, which lifted the fives of 1945 more than 6 points to a new high at 46 1-2. Other liens in this group scored gains of 1 to 3 points.

Marked irregularity developed in other sections of the list. Pickwire-Spencer Steel 7s after selling above 90, fell back to around 87 at the close, a net gain of 2 points. Wilson convertible 6s, Warner Sugar 7s and Cuba Cane Sugar 8s were among the other industrial issues to show improvement.

Railroad bonds reacted in line with the trend of the carrier shares, although losses for the most part were fractional. St. Paul obligations failed to hold at the levels attained in yesterday's rally and closed at declines of a point or so. New York Central convertible 6s, Frisco income and adjustment 6s, Burlington 5s and Grand Trunk 7s also yielded to selling pressure.

Bankers announced that $5,000,000 one-year discount notes of the City of Bremen had been placed privately. Negotiations were opened for a loan of about the same amount for the Rima Steel corporation of Hungary, which will be the first piece of Hungarian industrial financing handled here. An offering is expected later of $11,500,000 City of Los Angeles 4 3-4 per cent. bonds which awarded to a group headed by the First National Bank of New York.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Enlarged estimates of European import needs for the next six months helped lift the wheat market today to above any previous prices this season, but heavy profit taking together with apparent slowness of export demand for United States wheat led to a reaction. Wheat closed unsettled at the same as yesterday's finish to 3-8c higher, May 190 1-4 to 190 1-2 and July 167 1-8 to 167 1-4, with corn at 1-8 to 7-8c net decline, oats 1-8 to 1-2c down, and provisions varying from 17c setback to 35c advance.

With advices at hand indicating that world shipments of wheat during the six months beginning on Feb. 1 would equal the total for the preceding like period, the market took a sudden upward swing after a decline at the outset. In this connection, a forecast from a leading authority put the world carryover of wheat on Aug. 1 next at only 75,000,000 bushels. After the resulting jump in prices here, however, had reached as high as 191 1-4 a bushel, May delivery, persistent selling largely on the part of miscellaneous owners who were in a position to realize profits acted as a weight on values until the final half hour. Buying that appeared to be for one of the principal holders of wheat rallied the market as the day grew to an end.

Corn and oats were bearishly affected by word that corn acreage in Argentina had been much enlarged. There were also reports of an increased movement of corn and oats in Iowa, Nebraska and Minnesota. Most of the provisions lot went lower, sympathizing with corn.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Jan. 20.—Reactionary price movements again characterized today's curb market, with the volume of business falling off considerably. Prairie Pipe Line closed 2 points higher at 113 1-2 but most of the other petroleum issues failed to respond to rumors of an early advance in crude prices. South Penna. and Vocuum each closed about a point lower, but the net losses elsewhere were held to fractions. Heavy buying of New Mexico and Arizona land was in anticipation of an early report of the geological surveys being made on some of its properties.

Public utilities were mixed. Lehigh Power securities dropped 1 1-2 points and Commercial Power 1, while American Gas and Electric showed a net gain of one point at 76. Most of the radio issues lost ground although Charles Freshman held firm around its recent high level in anticipation of dividend action at tomorrow's meeting of the directors. The new Music Master stock was active about a point above its recent offering price.

Miss Lena Marvin, who has made her home with her sister, Mrs. Anna Maynard, for nearly ten years, passed away Tuesday night after a week's illness from heart trouble. Her age was about 60 years. She was a woman of sterling integrity and high character and had always busied herself in helping others. The funeral was held Friday with burial on Grassy Hill in the family lot near her childhood home.

HANOVER

Wednesday evening, Jan. 14, the Hanover church held its annual meeting and roll call. About 6.30 o'clock the ladies of the parish served a delicious supper of beef loaf, scalloped potato, rolls, pickles, cake and coffee. This was followed by a short devotional service. Then came the reports of the year's work, all of the church organizations showing unusual material prosperity. Officers for the coming year were then elected. The roll was then called to which there were 32 responses. The gathering showed a fine Christian spirit existing in the church.

Rev. Dwight Stone of Stonington is supplying the pulpit during the month of January.

Miss Gertrude Ladd and her sister, Mrs. John Robich, have been confined to their home at Ash Lawn with the mumps for several days.

NORWICH TOWN

Charles Sterry of Otrobando avenue has been confined to the house by illness since New Year's day. For over seventeen years Mr. Sterry has been the faithful night watchman at the plant of the Ulmer Leather company, having assumed that charge November 17th, 1907. Since then, except for a short time during vacation periods, Mr. Sterry has covered on foot about 50,000 miles of travel. This includes his rounds at the factory, also his trips to and from his home. It is roughly estimated that the thirteen rounds each night averaged about five miles nightly, and this added to his mileage in going to and returning from work, a total of twenty-one more miles, for every seven days, brought the full total each week up to fifty-six miles. This is Mr. Sterry's first serious illness in nearly forty years, when in March 1885, he suffered a severe attack of plural pneumonia.

Although Mr. Sterry's present illness shows improvement, his condition is such that he is still under observation of a physician and it will necessitate quite a lengthy period of recuperation to restore him to his usual health. His days have been brightened by the calls of interested friends who wish for him a complete recovery.

Today (Wednesday) Mr. Sterry will in a quiet way observe his birthday.

Rev. James B. Aldrich's Sunday morning sermon at the First Methodist Episcopal church, was from Jeremiah, 18th chapter, from the first to the sixth verse.

In the evening Rev. Mr. Aldrich preached from Romans 6:23. For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.

Mrs. James B. Aldrich was the leader of the Young Peoples Christian Endeavor service, which preceded the evening sermon, when the topic was Friendliness as Expressed Through Medical Mission, Acts 14:8-18; Matthew 4:23-24.

The Home Missionary society of the First Congregational church is to meet Thursday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, in the chapel, instead of Friday as previously scheduled.

At this time members will fill burlap containers with second hand clothing of all kinds and suitable for all kinds of climate, in answer to urgent appeals to help the less fortunate.

Those who have garments to contribute have been requested to send them to the chapel any time Thursday, before 2:30.

These articles will be forwarded to Frederick J. Werking, at Atlanta University, Ga., also to Miss Ruth Beebe one of the faculty at Trinity School, Athens, Ala., to be used in their work.

The Norwich Town Men's League is to present A Travel Talk, illustrated by stereopticon slides by Don Houghton, during this month.

The mid-week prayer service of the First Congregational church on Thursday evening, will have for its topic, What Do I Believe About the Spirit? John 14:15-26.

There was an unusually large attendance at the Congregational Young Peoples Christian Endeavor service, Sunday evening at 7 o'clock, when Mrs. Harriet Hyde Eunbro, gave an intensely interesting talk on the Medical Missions in India, especially alluding to Dr. Parkers work on the mission field, she having served the past thirty years. The meeting was in charge of the missionary committee, Mrs. Burton Jopson, chairman.

Miss Bernice Underwood, soprano, sang a solo, playing her own accompaniment, also played for the congregational singing, being accompanied by Ralph H. Marsh, who played the violin.

Callers Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Kennedy of Town street, included Mrs. Marw Gaffney and daughter, Miss Marjory Gaffney, Miss Margaret Burton, Miss Florence Moran and Miss Mildred Keene, also Clinton Cleveland, all of Danielson. The party were automobile guests of Mr. Cleveland.

Since January 10th, residents on Otrobando avenue from New London turnpike to a location near Wauwecus street, have for the first time been granted electric street light, installed by the Norwich Gas and Electric company. They are greatly appreciated.

A former pastor of the First Congregational church, Rev. Charles A. Northrop, now residing in Danbury, wrote the following cordial letter which was read before the members of the parish at a recent meeting:

Now-a-days, one year is about the same as another to your old pastor, so far as his explorations are concerned; his expectations are ever alert both for himself and his friends. He longs to hear of their prosperity, as he frequently does. He almost suspected and expected the song of missionary zeal which has recently sent out another of the girls to teach in the fields of our Aryan ancestors. He begs to be allowed to remain in spirit among the number of those who so lovingly stood with him in his working days. He cannot naturally have the same feelings in the fellowship of any other church and he often longs for the kindly welcome he used to receive when he went to and fro along the accustumed streets. Up here in Danbury, he is still "a pilgrim and a stranger" and is sometimes sorry that he has to tarry here more than a night! By this time you have probably suspected that "He is, I myself." At the task of egotism therefore, let me meet you face to face and tell more directly about myself. And what is there to tell after all?

I am very pleasantly situated with headquarters in Danbury, and three other cities open to me with filial hospitality at the homes of my son and daughters. A daughter at Springfield, Mass., at whose home this letter is written, another daughter at Hartford, whom I expect to visit after the eclipse and a son in Meriden upon whom I expect to call in due time. All these furnish the Quaeriatores within which I revolve as the years go by—to say nothing of a daughter whose home is in Miami, Florida, open to me whenever I want to come. No wonder, therefore, that I am not pining for my Heavenly Home, though I shall welcome its open doors when the time comes.

Love to everybody so far as it is mail

Still yours,
CHARLES A. NORTHROP.

Several women of the First Congregational church are planning to attend the meeting Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Community house, in response to an invitation sent out to this church and other churches, by the Missions Department of the United Congregational church. Mrs. Mary Porter Gamwell, formerly a missionary in China, is to be the speaker. Mrs. Gamwell is the author of one of the study books this year.

LAUREL GLEN

The Jolly Workers gave an entertainment in the chapel Friday evening. Following the entertainment ice cream, cake and coffee were sold.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank U. Main entertained friends from Wyoming, R. I., recently.

Miss Carolyn Steadman, the teacher here, remained with Miss Edith Jones over the week end.

John Geer has sold his horse and is now using an automobile in his business.

Skating parties were enjoyed by the young people last week.

Gilbert Main was a business caller in Westerly Friday.

Local people learn with regret that Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marble are soon to leave. They have bought a place in Noank where they will make their future home.

Several families have been afflicted with bad colds the past week.

TAFTVILLE

Boasting proved to be the premier event of the week end. Crowds visited North Third avenue, which provided a swiftly slide to the corner of North B street, then down that street to North second avenue, where another hill took them over the frozen courts of the Tennis club. From there it was a short walk to the top of the hill again. Among the places suggested as being the best for viewing the solar eclipse next Saturday are the summit of the big hill at the rear of Norwich avenue, Bundy Hill in Lisbon, the east side of the No. 2 Ponemah mills reservoir and the very top of Gallows Hill. All these places afford fine views to the northwest as well as sweeping views to the east. One of the highest points of land is Ponemah Heights, [illegible] known as The Ledge, but because of the dense growth of trees on top it will not be used by those who desire to see the start of the eclipse. For viewing the eclipse itself the area this point is unexcelled.

The regular meeting of the Community sewing class was held Monday evening in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah building.

Francis Blanchette has resigned his position with the Ponemah company.

A very interesting talk on astronomy was given by Victor H. Davis at the regular weekly meeting of the Uncas Camp Fire Girls Friday evening in the parlors of the Taftville Congregational church.

CLARA BARTON TENT HAS OFFICERS INSTALLED

Officers for the ensuing year were installed at the meeting of Clara Barton tent, No. 7, D. A. R., at Buckingham Memorial Tuesday evening by past president Mrs. D. Louisa Atterbury, assisted by Miss Lillian J. Brewster as guide and Mrs. Ada Revell as marshal.

The following were installed: President, Alice C. Brinkman; s. v. p., Emma Newbury; j. v. p., Annie B. Turner; chaplain, Lillian Whiting; executive members, Genie Evans, Elizabeth Mackey, Elizabeth Bogue; patriotic instructor, Florence Hoffman; secretary, D. Louisa Atterbury; guide, Lillian J. Brewster; press correspondent, Emma Tyler; marshal, Cora Botham; assistant guard, Mary Aldrich; musician, Elna Doty; color bearers, Carrie Prentice, Dorothy Williams, Marie Atterbury, Hattie Simons.

A past president's badge was presented to Mrs. Genie Evans by Mrs. Williman and a further gift from the tent to Mrs. Evans in recognition of her services as president was a beautiful tea wagon. Miss Doty, musician of the tent the past year, was presented $5 in acknowledgement of her faithful services.

A guest of the evening was the G. A. R. department commander, Ira Williman of Danbury, who gave an earnest talk in which he commended the activity shown by the Daughters of Veterans and urged an equal interest generally by those eligible to join the Sons of Veterans.

Commander Orrin M. Price of Sedgwick post, G. A. R. a past department commander was also a speaker as was Judge John H. Barnes, commander of the local camp of Sons of Veterans, and Mrs. Atterbury, president of the Woman's Relief corps.

Sandwiches, cake and coffee were served by the supper committee.

Winter conditions prevail throughout Wisconsin. Writing to a Norwich friend from Elkhorn, Mrs. Louis Storrey refers to the low temperature, due to the fact that ice boating and horse racing are going on on Lake Geneva.

The report goes on to say:

The number of people affected by the act cannot be stated with any accuracy. From inquiries sent out to insurance companies authorized to do business in the state it is estimated that there were 379,069 employes covered by their policies.

The self-insurers have accurate knowledge as to their employes and they estimate the number of persons covered as 369,965, making a total of 749,034.

The municipal corporations in the state, 169 towns, various cities, school districts and the like are all under the act, but except as to those municipalities carrying insurance we have not undertaken to estimate the number of their employees.

The aggregate number of the various municipal employes is large. Furthermore, in spite of the fact that this statute has been in effect since January 1, 1914, we are constantly in our several jurisdictions receiving claims against employers of labor of whom we have never heard and who on investigation we find, are neither insured by any insurance company or authorized by any commissioner to be self-insurers. If, upon hearing, it develops that such an employer has the requisite number of employes to bring him within the act, an award follows as a matter of course. Hence, from the best estimate which we can give, we believe that the number of employes directly under our present act is at least 900,000.

Development of the Law.

In our last report we called attention to the fact that the meaning of the phrase "net period of two calendar weeks" was obscure. This question has been discussed and the law clarified by Buba vs. Eastern Malt Iron Company, 98 Conn. 515, and it is now definitely established that net period of two calendar weeks does not refer to an employment extending over a considerable period of time where owing to industrial conditions the factory was running on part time.

The report gives a summary of a number of cases heard before the commissioners in all the districts, including the following Norwich case:

The case of Bendett vs. Mohican Company, 98 Conn. 545, is a case where the deceased living in Norwich made business trips for his employer to New London and Westerly. He was allowed a specified sum by the month to purchase commutation tickets to these points, but in order to save his own time and that of his employer, and with the knowledge of the employer, frequently used his own automobile for these trips. While so using it he met with an accident resulting in his death. The principal point of interest in this case is as to the defense of serious and wilful misconduct. There was no detailed evidence as to just how the accident happened, and it was claimed that because someone had seen him driving from 35 to 40 miles an hour, while passing another car some five minutes before the accident, his death was presumably due to serious and wilful misconduct. The court held that the circumstance that he was driving 35 to 40 miles an hour while passing another car was immaterial and that the defense of serious and wilful misconduct was an affirmative defense to be proved by the defendant, not disproved by the claimant.

Workmen's Compensation Digest.

Volume 5 of these decisions has been in the hands of the printer for several months and has been unreasonably delayed, through no fault of this board, by whom it is compiled under the direction of the comptroller. It is hoped that it will soon be issued and that it may, as have the previous volumes, prove of value and assistance to those who are necessarily interested in the numerous problems which continually arise under the act and lead to a consistent interpretation of its provisions. While only selected cases are printed, these generally involve questions which are of importance and which have not been considered in previous volumes. As the Digest contains not alone the decisions of the commissioners, but also those of the superior court in all cases in which an appeal is taken, and the opinions of the supreme court of errors in all compensation cases during the two years covered by the volume, the final decisions in compensation cases are thereby made available to many who would not have access to the official reports in which these decisions are contained. That the Digest is not alone of great value to those directly interested in the Workmen's Compensation Law in this state is shown by the numerous requests for copies of the book received from all over the United States, as well as in foreign countries, one having been received from as great a distance as New Zealand.

Reporting Accidents.

All accidents resulting in incapacity for one day or more must be reported by the employer to the commissioner in duplicate, at least once a week. This may be done by the employer directly or by the insurance carrier; the employer, however, is responsible for the carrying out of this provision. It is called to the attention, however, of employers and insurance carriers that all accidents resulting in one day's incapacity or more should be reported, and that neither the employer nor insurance carrier should attempt to pass upon whether an injury is compensable or not. If there is any doubt, the injury should be reported, as a report of an injury does not in any way prejudice the employer or insurer.

It will occasionally happen in case of a workman with considerable fortitude having a selective class of work that he may suffer one of the specific injuries mentioned in General Statutes Sec. 5352 and go about his business without losing any time, is manifestly entitled to the compensation payments due to his particular injury, and such cases should always be reported.

Voluntary Agreements.

Our system is somewhat different from that in vogue in many of the states in the method of arranging for payment of compensation, in that a voluntary agreement may be made between the employer and insurer, and injured employe for payment of compensation, subject to the approval of the commissioner. This arrangement has proved very satisfactory in our state, and often even after a hearing has been started, the parties in interest will decide to make a voluntary agreement, thereby saving the necessity of a formal finding and award by the commissioner. From the fact that this voluntary agreement plays such an important part in the carrying out of the provisions of the Workmen's Compensation Act, we wish to emphasize the necessity of having these agreements most carefully filled out, before the employe is asked to sign, especially that part referring to the date and description of the injury, age of employe and his average wage. A little more care on the part of the employers and insurance carriers in this respect will be most advantageous to all parties in interest.

Having in mind the method pursued as to approving voluntary agreements in this state, we find ourselves totally unable to understand the prejudice against voluntary agreements existing in some jurisdictions, and are forced to the conclusion that where such prejudice exists it must be due to lack of detailed supervision in those states in approving these agreements.

A form prepared by the commission and known as form 43 is required for all injuries, the descriptions of which indicates a possibility of permanent impairment of function as the result of such injury. This report must be signed by some reputable physician or surgeon, and the date of the examination on which the report is based must also appear.

If after receiving such report any reasonable doubt exists as to the condition of the injured man an appointment is made to have him come to the office of the commissioner having jurisdiction and there he is examined by the commissioner and in case the commissioner is in doubt as to whether the report is correct, the injured man is referred to some person specializing in the particular condition from which the man is suffering and either a hearing had or an agreement submitted on the basis of such report. This, of course, calls for a good deal of work, but it is manifestly necessary to protect the rights of the parties. Voluntary agreements are of very great importance and the approval of them should not be and so far as we know never is a merely perfunctory matter.

Changes in Commission.

The personnel of this commission has remained practically the same since the appointment of the membership in 1913 until the resignation of Commissioners George E. Beers and George E. Chandler.

Mr. Beers resigned in order to give his entire time to his private law practice. His resignation was a distinct loss to this board in many ways, he being a diligent student of the law and most painstaking and accurate in all his decisions. His fellow members depended much upon the interpretation placed by him upon various sections of the law not already reviewed by our supreme court. His work in connection with the issuing of Digests of Decisions by the board was invaluable and aided in clearing up mooted questions of law in this legal field hitherto untried in Connecticut.

It was with the sincerest regret that the members were informed of his intention of severing his connection with the board.

Mr. Chandler resigned his membership on the board to accept the position of secretary of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce, thereby giving him a wider field for his abilities as an organizer and student of economics.

Mr. Chandler brought to this board an intimate knowledge of public affairs and a marvelous insight into human nature. His decisions were always based upon sound common sense and made only after a careful, scholarly study of the act from every angle. Much of the efficiency of the act depended upon the early decisions of the commissioners and Mr. Chandler's decisions were many times masterpieces of logical reasoning and clear deductions from facts that clarified the meaning of many portions of the act and left no doubt as to the intent of the framers of the act.

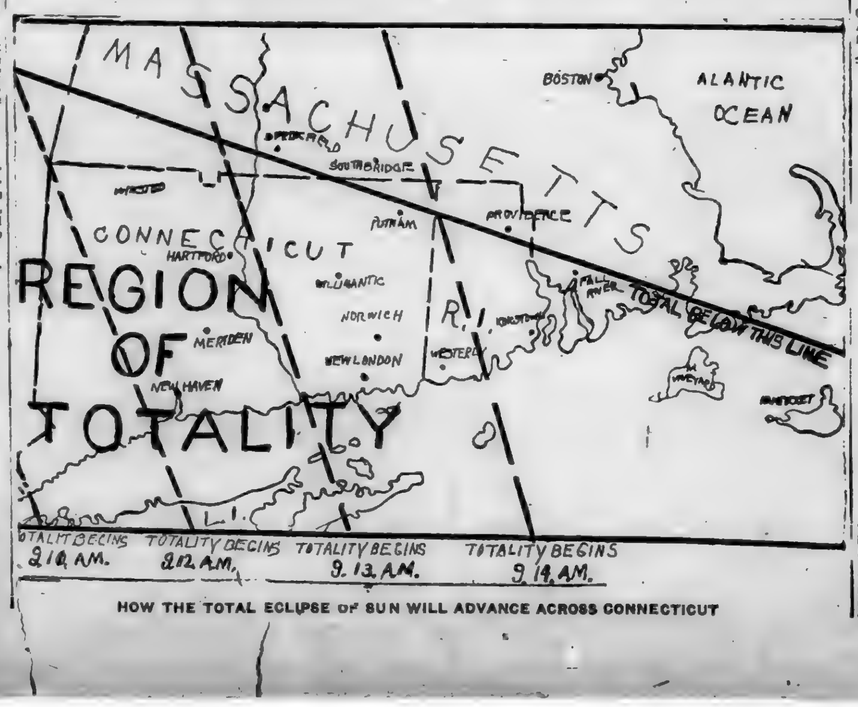
As we regret exceedingly the resignations of these two members, we also at the same time wish for them the great measure of success in the future to which their conscientious and painstaking efforts entitle them.

Proposed Amendments.

The Board of Compensation Commissioners, after serious consideration, have decided to pursue the same course as was followed in our sixth report, namely: We do not definiely recommend any amendments to the present act.

We venture, however, to suggest as a matter for serious consideration of the general assembly that, as many employers of labor throughout the state having regularly less than five employes have taken advantage of those provisions of than Section 5342, providing that the act may be accepted by taking out insurance, possibly the time has come when the number of employes necessary to place an employer under this act may be made less than five.

This is the seventh report made by the board whose members are Frederic M. Williams, fifth district, chairman; Leo J. Noonan, first district; Dr. James J. Donohue, second district; Charles H. Kleiner, third district; and Edward T. Buckingham, fourth district.



HOW THE TOTAL ECLIPSE OF SUN WILL ADVANCE ACROSS CONNECTICUT

SETS ASIDE VERDICT IN FUR COAT CASE

Judge G. E. Hinman of the superior court has rendered a decision setting aside the jury verdict of $466.55 in favor of Winifred Douglass of New London who sued Sidney Hart, proprietor of fur stores in New London and Hartford, for the value of a Hudson seal coat which she claimed had been ruined and made worthless to her when turned over to the fur firm for alterations.

If there is to be a re-trial of the case, it ought to be transferred to the common pleas court, Judge Hinman says.

The following is the memorandum of decision:

The allegations of the complaint indicated, and counsel for the plaintiff expressly stated, upon inquiry by the court, that the plaintiff sued, not, as she might have, for breach of contract to alter or repair the coat in question, and to recover the difference between its value as it is and as it would have been had it been remodeled with due care and skill, but claiming that, by reason of negligence and unskilfulness of the defendant in remodeling the coat, it has been practically destroyed and rendered of no value, and that she has, in consequence abandoned the coat to the defendant bailee and is seeking to recover its entire value.

The jury was, in consequence, instructed that, in order to recover in the case as pleaded and tried, the plaintiff must establish by a preponderance of the evidence that, by reason of what was done to the coat by the defendant, through his negligence or unskillfulness, or both, it was practically rendered worthless to the plaintiff. Upon the evidence before it, which included the coat itself, the jury could not have fairly and reasonably found that the coat was so destroyed in value. It was obvious, from the inspection of the exhibit itself, that whether it had been properly remodeled by the defendant or not, it still remained of substantial, indeed very considerable, value.

The conclusion is reached, therefore that the jury either ignored or unexplainably mistook the controlling legal principle stated in the charge or found that fact essential to bring the case within the scope of said principle without evidence sufficient to fairly support such a finding. The verdict is, therefore, set aside.

The amount of damages which might in any event, be recovered upon the evidence, construed most favorably to the plaintiff, under a claim of breach of contract, if so pleaded, as the diminution in value of the coat by reason of acts or omissions of the defendant, is well within the exclusive jurisdiction of the court of common pleas. If a retrial is necessary, the case ought to be transferred to that court.

The general committee of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, of which Harold T. Robinson is chairman met Tuesday evening at the Legion rooms on Main street when reports of progress were heard concerning the play, Bimbo, to be given by the Legion early next month.

Harry W. House chairman of the talent committee, reported that many of the local amateurs who participated in the play Kathleen, which was one of the best amateur shows given by a Norwich body, had signed to play in Bimbo and that the cast would number about 1'50 people when completed.

The leads have not yet been selected but as rehearsals are to start soon this will be soon done. BUYS LAND FOR NORWICH-ESSEX ROAD

Ten small pieces of property, comprising 3.84 acres of land, necessary for the completion of the Norwich-Essex turnpike in East Haddam, have been bought in Middletown by the state highway department for only $1b. Besides awarding each property owner damages of $1, the department will move fences and make necessary changes and improvements on the land. All have accepted the recommendations of Commissioner John A. MacDonald of the state highway department, and it is not expected that any appeals will be filed.

The land will become part of the trunk line highway from Norwich, through Bozrah and Montville, across the Hartford and New London turnpike and then through North Plains into Lyme, where it connects with the trunk line on the east side of the river. When completed, it will open to automobile travel one of the most picturesque sections of Connecticut, including the Devil's Hopyard and Salem Neck state parks, access to which is now difficult.

LEANDRI CONTESTED DIVORCE CASE HEARD

Judge Allyn L. Brown sat in the superior court here Tuesday morning to hear a case in place of Judge C. L. Avery, who was deterred by the snow storm from coming here for the court session.

The case on trial was the contested divorce suit of Amello Leandri of Noank against Mary Leandri formerly of Groton, now of New York city. They were married March 14, 1913 and the divorce is sought on the grounds desertion. The maiden name of the wife was Musante.

The petitioner testified that the trouble in the family was caused by his wife's liking for good times. Once in September 1919 he found his wife hugging and kissing a man in the store that Leandri conducted in Groton. The door was locked, but when he got in he told his wife that this was her last chance and for her to pack up her things and get out. She deserted him he said, on July 4, 1921, but the day before she had become hysterical. He called in a doctor and had her taken to a hospital but when he went after her, she said "Don't come after me Joe, I won't go home." The witness said he took care of their eight year old child until it was spirited away from him by the mother about a year ago.

Hearing of the case was continued to Feb. 6 in New London.

Another contested divorce case, Clara C. Swanson vs. Morris P. Swanson, is first on the list for a hearing in the superior court here today (Wednesday).

FRENCH STATESMAN'S VIEW OF THE INTER-ALLIED DEBT

Louis Marin, Former Under-Secretary of State, Was Applauded in Chamber of Deputies When He Declared It Would Be an Inequity to Compel France to Pay the Enormous Sums Demanded by the United States—Maintained That the Allies Owed France Something For Bearing the Brunt of the Early Years of the War.

Paris, Jan. 21.—(By the A. P.)—In a five hours' speech in the chamber of deputies today, Louis Marin, former under secretary of state and now an opposition deputy expounded what appeared to be the French parliament's viewpoint on the inter-allied debt question. In his thesis, summing up the entire question Deputy Marin declared that it would be an inequity if France is compelled to pay the enormous sums demanded of her by the United States.

M. Marin's theory of the inter-allied problem was received with almost unanimous applause. He contended that the debts could not in equity be considered solely as commercial obligations, but that their settlement must be based on moral grounds. He said that the allies had not entered the war merely for the purpose of defending France, but that they went in to protect their own interests.

In addition, Deputy Marin argued that the allies owed France something for bearing the brunt of the early years of the war; that the United States and England, who are responsible for France's war costs not included in the Versailles treaty, cannot now ask France to pay their own war expenses and that England especially entered the war to protect her own interests as she would have been under direct and immediate menace had the Germans reached Dunkirk Calais and Boulogne.

"We have heard much about a business men's settlement of war debts," M. Marin said. "If we were forced to act on that basis we might ask that some credit be allowed us for eleven billion days of mobilization at five francs per day; we might ask what is the cash value represented by France holding 715 kilometers of trenches during 1915 while England was looking after 40 and the Belgians 16 kilometers; also what would be the price of 1,425,000 lives lost.

"The dollar has become the king of the financial world. Never has a country in the history of the world enjoyed such financial and moral power as the United States does now. They cannot demand from a country bled unto death a policy of compensation. It must not come to pass that financial domination will be made the instrument of political domination."

Premier Herriot, in complimenting M. Marin on his speech said that "France has the right to evoke the memory of her wounds in order to ask the good will of men throughout the entire world to assist her now."

The sitting was closed with a speech by M. Cachin, leader of the communists, who denounced the London agreement and the Geneva protocol as Utopian. The protocol he described as a failure, which neither the United States nor Great Britain would take into consideration.

Premier Herriot interrupted the speaker, expressing wonder that a deputy claiming to represent the masses should discredit "the sincerest and most vigorous effort for peace the French democracy has ever made."

M. Cachin blamed "the capitalist regime" for the existing threats of war. He said that the Dawes plan was costing the German worker dear, without affecting the evacuation of France, delivering France to American finance, and the reich "has already been delivered" or, rather to the lowest international finance.

M. Cachin discussed the question of Russian debts to France, declaring that the banks and those who issued loans ought to refund the full amount, which was more than one billion francs.

"It is no more just to demand poverty stricken Russia to repay that money," he exclaimed, "than for America and Great Britain to ask us to repay the 130,000,000,000 they advanced us."

DR. LUTHER DELIVERED SPEECH IN REICHSTAG

Berlin, Jan. 21 (By the A. P.)—Replying to critics of his cabinet and his governmental program, Dr. Hans Luther, the new chancellor, delivered a speech in the reichstag today in which he told the deputies that his cabinet had unanimously resolved that the existing form of constitutional government in Germany should not be altered.

The chancellor's statement was prompted by a query addressed to the government bench by Chairman Ulrich Koch of the democratic party, who demanded to know whether the Luther government severally disapproved of all the agitation against the reparations. Dr. Luther promptly replied in the affirmative. He added that he purposed to have the German people know at the outset of his administration that his cabinet was a solid unit on its attitude regarding questions which tended to provoke a split in the nation.

Dr. Luther also said he believed in observing the spirit of Article 118 of the federal constitution, which accords every citizen the right of free expression of opinion within the legal bounds. Admitting that his cabinet was not a so-called coalition government, the chancellor urged that it nevertheless rested on a broad parliamentary basis and that it purposed to win and retain the confidence of the reichstag through an impartial non-partisan and patriotically sensed fulfillment of its duty.

The reichstag will vote on the cabinet expressing approval of the new government's policies tomorrow afternoon. Dr. Luther is assured of an absolute majority.

An incident during today's debate was an uproar caused by an allegation of Albrecht Von Graffe, nationalist, who is a supporter of the Ludendorff party, that the family of President Ebert was implicated in financial scandals. Her Graffe also denounced the Dawes plan.

CHAPMAN, SHACKLED, IS RETURNING TO ATLANTA

Indianapolis, Jan. 21.—Gerald Chapman, notorious criminal, who was captured in Muncie last Sunday, was started today, heavily shackled with handcuffs and leg irons, on his return to the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga. He had escaped from there in March, 1924, after serving a few months of a 25-year sentence for a $2,40,000 robbery in New York city. He was in the custody of W. N. Berrong and W. W. Hughes, deputy wardens from Atlanta.

Fearing an effort by confederates to effect his escape, the route to be taken was not disclosed. The short distance from the city prison to the union station was closely guarded and the prisoner was taken to the train through the baggage shaft. Police officials in cities where the train stops have been assigned to railroad stations to watch for suspicious characters without being advised of the nature of their work, it was stated.

TWO AVIATORS KILLED IN CRASH OF SEAPLANE

Pensacola, Fla., Jan. 21.—E. Linville, aviation pilot, and Harvey Maxwell Young, aviation rigger, were killed, and A. V. Rowland and A. W. McCall injured today when a naval seaplane crashed in Escambia bay, six miles from Pensacola.

The accident to the plane was seen by men in a shrimp boat which was anchored nearby. The two injured men were taken off and rushed to the beach where they were given first aid treatment and later removed to the aviation station. The survivors were unable to account for the crash of the plane. Linville was piloting at the time it was said.

SENATE HAS VOTED FOR SECOND ARMS CONFERENCE

Washington, Jan. 21.—President Coolidge is authorized and requested to call a second arms conference under an amendment to the naval appropriation bill approved today by the senate without either discussion or a record vote before that measure was passed.

At the same time, Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, offered a resolution requesting the president to inform the senate if the last arms conference treaty limiting the navies of the great powers was violated by Great Britain in the construction of the Rodney and the Nelson, which have been described in the senate as combination battleships and aircraft carriers. The resolution went over under the rules, but Senator McKellar said he would press for early action on it.

The amendment relating to a second arms conference, which would deal with both land and naval forces, was sponsored by Senator King, democrat, Utah, and accepted without objection by Chairman Hale of the naval committee.

While President Coolidge has indicated that he favored a second conference, administration officials have made it plain that he did not consider the time appropriate. For that reason administration senators had been expected to oppose the Kind amendment.

RECOMMEND SEATING OF SENATOR MAYFIELD

Washington, Jan. 21.—The seating of Senator Mayfield, democrat Texas, was recommended unanimously today by a senate election sub-committee.

This recommendation will be presented to the full committee immediately in connection with the contest made by George E. B. Peddy, republican candidate, who was defeated by Mr. Mayfield in the 1922 election.

Action followed extensive hearings conducted by the sub-committee at the last and current sessions into charges by Peddy of excessive expenditures, fraud and intimidation in the campaign. The report will be presented to the full committee Friday and early action is expected by Chairman Spencer.

GASTON B. MEANS TAKES STAND IN HIS OWN DEFENSE

New York, Jan. 21.—Gaston B. Means, former department of justice agent, took the witness stand late this afternoon in his own defense in the trial of himself and Thomas B. elder on charges of having attempted to bribe government officials.

Means denied testimony of witnesses for the government that he had entered into a conspiracy with Felder, Elmer W. Jarnecke, or any of the Crager system glass casket officials to have indictments for using the mails to defraud against the latter quashed.

He denied that he had ever told Jarnecke that he had a conference on the matter with Attorney General Daugherty, William J. Burns or Secretary Mellon, and characterized as "absolutely false" statements attributed to him by government witnesses that he had ever said or intimated that these or other government officials were or could be bribed.

The idea that anybody in the world could bribe the officials mentioned by the government witnesses, Means said, was ridiculous.

Under cross-examination by government attorneys, Means appeared anxious to go into details concerning numerous transactions testified to by him at a previous trial for conspiracy to violate the prohibition law and before the Wheeler committee in Washington. Questions concerning these transactions were repeatedly asked by the government attorneys and objected to by counsel for Means. Many of the objections were overruled by Judge Lindley; and Means proceeded to give minute explanations of the transactions. Most of these had to do with liquor withdrawal permits and cases involving violation of the prohibition law. On these occasions counsel for Means repeatedly requested the court to admonish his client to answer the questions without going into details.

Letters of protest received by city officials indicate that a loss running into millions of dollars has been caused fishermen, fish dealers, green vegetable men and others, who say that the public's belief that the disease was traceable to their wares caused a "buyers' strike."

Recess Taken by Opium Conference

American Delegate Describes the Situation as "Distinctly Discouraging."

Geneva, Jan. 21.—(By The A. P.)—Despite French and Swedish efforts at mediation the international opium conference adjourned today until Saturday in anything but a conciliatory mood and with many of the delegates still pessimistic as to the outcome. Stephen G. Porter, head of the American delegation, described the situation tonight as "distinctly discouraging."

The recess of the plenary sessions was taken until Saturday on motion of Sweden, backed by the other Scandinavian countries. It was taken in order to find a means for elucidating and co-ordinating the proposals, declarations and suggestions before the conference on the question of the suppression of opium smoking in the Far East, which has become the pivotal problem and may eventually cause the collapse of the conference.

President Zahle said tonight that although he would strive through conciliatory initiatives to bring about a solution for the opium smoking question satisfactory to the American delegation and those delegations which oppored the American position, the best he really expected to accomplish was the introduction of a resolution at Saturday's meeting for the appointment of a joint committee representing the first and the present opium conferences. Such a committee, Dr. Zahle explained, could study the various suggestions offered by the Americans British and French and seek a compromise formula and fix the first opium conference to adopt this.

Dr. Zahle gave it as his opinion that the question of opium smoking be solved solely to the first opium conference, which was confined to the powers having colonies in the Far East and expressed the view as president of the present more general conference that Mr. Porter's motion for a review of the first conference would require the unanimous approval of the delegates.

Unanimity seems out of the question, for the reason that all the countries having possessions where opium is smoked would undoubtedly vote against Mr. Porter's motion.

The entire day was given over to attempts to save the conference from a crash. It began with a spirited repudiation by Lord Cecil of Chelwood, head of the British delegation, of Mr. Porter's accusation that financial considerations entered into the powers' reluctance to end opium smoking within a fixed period. It continued with a brilliant oration by M. Delacier, the youthful French colonial minister, who quoted from resolutions in the American congress and from the speech of Mr. Porter himself made at Geneva last year in an attempt to prove that the Americans themselves realized that the laws against opium smoking could be effective so long as heavy international smuggling of opium went on unchecked.

LAUSANNE TREATY SUBJECT OF DEBATE AT WHITE HOUSE

Washington, Jan. 21.—The Lausanne treaty, under which the United States would resume diplomatic relations with Turkey, was the subject of a White House dinner conference tonight attended by most members of the senate foreign relations committee and Richard Washburn Child, who represented the United States in negotiation of the pact.

Senators said Mr. Child explained the steps leading to negotiation of the treaty and presented his views as to why it should be ratified. They added that President Coolidge did not express himself regarding the convention, which has been before a senate committee for more than a year.

Although invitations to the dinner went forward to the committee members soon after the senate had adopted the Johnson resolution calling on Secretary Hughes for information regarding the circumstances surrounding the negotiations of the Paris reparations agreement, the president's guests said that subject had not been discussed.

SENATE CALLS FOR COPY OF PARIS AGREEMENT

Washington, Jan. 21.—The senate today formally called on Secretary Hughes for a copy of the much discussed Paris reparations agreement, together with such information concerning its negotiation "as may be relevant to a full understanding of its terms."

Gov. J. H. Trumbull Addressed Assembly

Urged Business Like Policy in Handling States Affairs Requiring Legislation.

Hartford, Jan. 21.—Governor John H. Trumbull stood before the general assembly today for the first time in the office he now holds and read to it a message in which he urged a business-like policy in handling such state's affairs as require legislative action. A considerable part of the policy he said he would like to see adopted was the result of his own experiences as a member for two terms of the senate in which he had much to do with the financing of departments and raising revenue for new enterprises.

The joint convention applauded the governor when he had concluded after speaking seventeen minutes. Afterwards, many veteran members pointed out in their discussions that Governor Trumbull's suggestion that the budget which provides for appropriations mandatory by statute be reported in from the committee by March 1 was one never made before. Seldom has such a budget made its appearance before the closing days of the session at least three months later. If the budget appeared about that date it was predicted the session would be a short one.

ANOTHER NAPOLEON OF FINANCE COMES TO GRIEF

New York, Jan. 21.—After confessing forgeries totalling $1,000,000 in a Ponzi-like scheme to enrich himself and investors, Moe Turman, managing director of the Equity Finance & Service Co., today was indicted for second degree forgery and released in $5,000 bail.

Clients who had been assured—and for a while received—300 per cent. per annum on money loaned Turman, started an investigation a week ago. Turman disappeared.

He wandered through Buffalo, St. Louis, Jefferson City and Kansas City and then, last night, returned here, as he was reported to have said in his confession, "to take the medicine." His wife accompanied him to the district attorney to tell about it.

The indictment was based upon the alleged forgery of one $6,000 note. There were eight complainants, however, who charged Turman with having swindled them of nearly $300,000. There also were bundles of notes, alleged forgeries, representing large sums.

Prosecutors believe Turman's forgeries and misappropriations will total $1,000,000. His reported confession accounts for nearly three-fourths of that amount. Six thousand cancelled vouchers bearing on the case are in the possession of authorities.

"I started borrowing from Peter to pay Paul in my struggles to pay high interest on $100 I borrowed to send to my widowed mother and her children in Chicago," Turman told prosecutors.

"I discovered a get-rich-scheme. I tried to be a Napoleon of Finance, a Ponzi and flopped. My bubble bursted just when it looked most real."

But through the confession and during his arraignment, the 27-year old prisoner maintained that criminal intent had been absent from his career; that he was playing an interesting game with dollars until the play became too fast.

433 VASSAR GIRLS ARE FOND OF CIGARETTES

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Vassar girls to the number of 524 asserted they did not use tobacco, but 433 admitted they liked to puff a cigarette, in a questionnaire recently circulated at the college and tabulated today.

Only 21 of the smokers use tobacco without the consent of their parents, the tabulation showed, while some 400 old-fashioned parents register disapproval; 302 parents approved smoking.

The referendum was undertaken largely to ascertain whether the girls wished the present rules barring smoking on or off the campus to be made more lenient. On this question the vote was 539 in favor of more lenient rules and 278 for continuance of the present blanket prohibition.

Eighty-seven girls ventured to vote against smoking in the college, while 183 expressed the opinion the college should set apart a place for smoking.

The no-smoking rules are made and enforced by the student government. College authorities have refused to comment upon the referendum or its results.

$1,250,000 FOR AMERICAN EMBASSY IN TOKIO, JAPAN

Washington, Jan. 21.—A bill authorizing appropriation of $1,250,000 for construction of a new American embassy and consulate general in Tokio was passed late today by the house and sent to the senate.

The offices of the American embassy have been situated in a hotel since the earthquake in September, 1923, and are entirely inadequate, the state department informed the house foreign affairs committee. The offices of the consulate general in Tokio are in one of the few office buildings not destroyed by the earthquake, but they also are inadequate.

DEFAULTING BANK CASHIER SURRENDERED BY BONDSMEN

Arthur H. Hough, of the People's Trust Co., Lebanon, N. H., Had Been at Liberty in Bonds of $10,000—State Bank Commissioners Find That Shortage Will Amount to At Least $226,000—Town Funds and Accounts of 3,000 Depositors Involved—Town Treasurer Has Tendered His Resignation.

Lebanon, N. H., Jan. 21.—Arthur H. Hough, treasurer and cashier of the People's Trust company, of Lebanon, who has been at liberty in bonds of $10,000, was surrendered tonight by five fellow townsmen and five Vermont citizens who had acted as bondsmen, and was committee to Grafton county jail at Haverhill, N. H. Hough was arrested Monday on charges of falsification in his statements to the bank commission.

Action of the bondsmen in surrendering Hough to the courts followed disclosures by state bank commissioners yesterday that shortages in the closed bank's accounts will amount to at least $226,000. Involved in the affairs of the bank are Lebanon town funds and the accounts of 3,000 depositors in both the commercial and the savings departments.

Romeo Painchaud, who has been teller in the trust company and town treasurer of Lebanon and who deposited town founds amounting to approximately a quarter of a million dollars in the bank according to town officials, tendered his resignation as treasurer of the town today.

Savings depositors will suffer serious losses, State Bank Commissioners F. S. Nuuting and G. S. Farrand announced tonight. The bank commissioners asserted that a published reports that savings bank funds had not suffered to any extent were "extremely incorrect" the examination of the involved affairs of the trust company revealing that loss to the savings bank department depositors would be severe. The savings department's accounts are so deeply involved, however as those of the commercial department, it was announced.

The commissioners stated that the affairs of both departments of the trust company will be liquidated with the utmost expedition. The appointment, as liquidating agent for the commissioners of James E. Farrell of West Newton, Mass., was announced. Mr. Farrell was receiver for the First National bank of Warren Mass., was assistant receiver for the First National Bank of Putnam, Conn., assisted in closing the affairs of the Hanover Trust company and the Fidelity Trust company of Boston.

According to officials, the town of Lebanon should have on deposit with the bank at present $90,000, the unexpended balance of a bond issue of $250,000, deposited a year ago last April to be used in the construction of a town hall, opera house and court house. According to the bank commissioners the records reveal the town's account to be overdrawn to approximately $130,000.

No record deposit for more than half of the bond issue was found.

Both the town and building construction companies detailed legal counsel today in connection with the overdraft.

NARCOTIC SQUAD FOUND THREE MISSING YOUTHS

New York, Jan. 21.—Detectives of the narcotic squad searching a downtown section for drug peddlers today identified three 14 year old boys they found living in a furnished room as boys missing from Harlem homes since Jan. 1, and all of whom had been reported killed by drowning or railroad accidents in the south.

Frank Altenheim told the detectives, they said, that he had "financed" the trip with $356 he had taken from his mother's bureau and that the other two boys, John Ward and Joseph Burke, went along as his "guests."

The boys said that on Jan. 1 they had taken a train for Pottstown, Pa. There was no reason for them to choose that as their destination, they said, but they "had to go some place" and that seemed "as good as any other."

They stayed there four days and then went to Wilmington, Del., whence they returned to New York two days later. For the past two weeks they had been living in the furnished room, they said, and spending their time in movie houses and candy stores. Their money was almost all gone.

After exhibiting a puppy and a shiny new pair of handcuffs, which they had supplied themselves with "in case of emergency," the boys admitted to the police that home would "look pretty good."

DEFENSE CLOSES CASE WITHOUT HEARING FORBES

Chicago, Jan. 21.—(By The A. P.)—Spirited legal tilts over the competency of proffered evidence marked the final phases today in the Veterans Bureau conspiracy trial.

The defense closed its case without having called Charles R. Forbes former director of the Veterans' Bureau, or J. W. Thompson, co-defendant, to the stand. The action surprised the prosecution, although there had been previous intimations that the defense attorneys considered their reply to the government's evidence ample without the testimony of the principals.

Several days will be required for rebuttal testimony and closing arguments, and the case probably will go to the jury the latter part of next week. Elias H. Mortimer, the principal government witness, likely will be recalled by the prosecution.

Two important allegations in the prosecution's case were disputed today by the defense. W. R. Edwards, member of the Colombian concession syndicate in which Thompson was interested, testified he never heard of an offer of a $100,000 a year consulting engineer's post for Forbes. Mortimer had testified the offer was held out as "a bait for hospital contracts." Controverting Mortimer in that his testimony against Forbes had been animated by a hostility engendered by Forbes' relations with Mrs. Mortimer, the defense offered in evidence a letter in Mortimer's own handwriting exonerating both of any improper conduct.

"I have investigated these rumors and wish to say that I have never made any of the statements accredited to me," the letter said. It was addressed to Mrs. Mortimer, under date of November 23, 1922, almost a year before Mortimer appeared before the senate veterans' committee, "further," it said, "I now, as always, hold you in the highest esteem and above reproach in every way. I have heard also the same rumors regarding Colonel Charles R. Forbes, and Mrs. Sidney Bieber, and wish to deny these charges also."

The letter first was produced before the senate committee more than a year ago, where Bieber was identified as an associate of Mortimer in various liquor withdraw projects.

A defense statement commenting upon the refusal to put Forbes and Thompson on the stand, said that "the complete refutation of all the government's charges" made further testimony unnecessary.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street
Telephone 1131
Office Hours: 9:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 5 p. m.

The people who were fortunate enough to be present at the recital given by Marshall Bathblomew, Tuesday evening, at High School hall, are generally agreed that it was one of the outstandingly things of the kind given in Willimantic for a very long time. From his long and varied experience with the music of the people of many countries and the background of his early associations with the music of the long colored people of the south, Mr. Bartholomew was able to speak with charming authority on "Plantation Songs and Spirituals" of the south in the days "befo de war." The contrast is a long way from us, he said, in distance and in our consciousness. But the South today is a long way from the South of before the Civil war. The negroes, brought as slaves from the heart of Africa, had already a marvelous gift for music. They brought with them a music of their own, a very elaborate music, peculiar on account of its rythm, too intricate to solve, a syncopation perfectly natural, awfully stirring. Our heritage from the European forefathers was harmony, which the negro grasped more or less. Now no group of negroes can sang without harmonising. It is no uncommon thing to hear in southern churches where the songs are without accompaniment as many as sixteen parts, breaking every rule of harmony ever made, and yet "harmonizing" gloriously. These folk-songs and spirituals were never "composed" they simply happened. If a darkey is happy, he sings; if he has the blues and he has an infinite capacity for sadness, philosophy and melancholy he sings. Some of the melodies originate No accompaniment can improve some of it. The spirituals commonly and mistaken appear on the vaudeville stage and in colored glee clubs as humorous parts of a program, are really an expression of the imaginative darkey's personal, private and childlike religious experience, perfectly direct and simple and often very beautiful thing. Again, instead of telling a story, they wander to the point sometimes with a complete change of theme, especially when the original terminus was something like salvation. As for instance "I shall be Free." "Early in de morn' a nigger on a log. (You shall be free!) Finger on a trigger (You shall be free!) Hawg, (You shall be free!) Nigger pull the trigger an' shoot 'em Crack!" Hawg, he fall right on he back! O po'k chop! gravy! Nobody see such things! Lawd born O waffills! An' No syrup! (You shall be free!) When he meet his maker on the great day of emancipation and table Mr Bartholomew sang There's a Wheel A'Turning, arranged by Harry Arms Fisher; Go Down Moses, Please Don't Let this Harvest Pass By and Bye, Deep River I Want to be Ready, arranged by H. T. Burleigh: I Got a Grave, a most original and permanently lovely song which he repeated as an encore, arranged by J. T. Howard: two spiritual songs, Standing in the Need of Prayer and Wait Till I Put On My Crown, arranged by William Dawson; My Little Soul's Going to Heaven, arranged by D. W. Guion. A group of comparatively modern plantation songs from Bedford County, Va., Stackolee Road, a haunting little song Who's Going to Bring You Home, and Vanderbilt's Daughter, a version it is not generally known of the popular Casey Jones, Bury Me in the Dust, a song about the Resurrection, arranged by H. W. Loomis; a group of traditional melodies Were You There, a version of the story of the crucifixion, sung without an accompaniment, Swing Low, Sweet Chariot, to which every one sang the refrain, I Got Shoes, and I Seen Lord Bless Him Comin' perhaps the most beautiful of all. Mr. Bartholomew concluded with a group of five songs which he himself has arranged, Jesus Coming Morning, The Gospel Train, Ain't A-Moverin', You Shall be Free, Keep in the Middle of the Road. For an encore, he repeated You Shall Be Free and sang Winter Lullaby, arranged by Frank Stanton. Mr. Bartholomew said in closing that if "you don't get poisoned with 'em (negro spirituals) you'll go singing them forever." And people came away from the recital still humming fragments of the music. The recital was given under the auspices of the Woman's club, and the courtesy of Mrs. William [illegible]

According to the announcement made Wednesday morning by James [illegible], president of the Willimantic Business Men's Association, the stores along Main street will be closed at 10:30 Saturday morning to allow clerks, customers and proprietors to look at the eclipse of the sun. Willimantic is in the direct path of the eclipse, and it is possible that one of the observation trains to be run from Connecticut from New York, Boston and cities in Massachusetts will stop here. According to the information sent out by Yale University, observations from Willimantic will begin at 9:42 and will be total for two minutes, from 9:42 to 9:44 eastern standard time. The best place to view the eclipse from here will be from the top of Hanover mountain, where a clear view to the northwest, the direction from which the shadows will cross the sun, may be obtainable.

Charged with intoxication, to which he pleaded guilty, W. David Barrows, who was arrested Tuesday afternoon on complaint from his wife, appeared in police court this morning. On account of the statement of Attorney Harry E. Gaucher, that Barrows was a careful workers, had a large family to support, and was a good worker, and the statement of Mrs. Barrows that he was "all right when sober, but hard to get along with when drinking" a suspended sentence of ten days in jail was imposed. Barrows was placed on probation for three months. The costs of the case, $5.15 were paid.

In connection with the case of Abraham and Molly Krug, charged with failure to heat the flat on Union street rented by Joseph Peck and his wife, it was stated that Tuesday the Peck apartment was properly heated and that at a conference of attorneys held Tuesday evening it was decided to continue the case.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

County Game Warden Charles M. Letters of Putnam has been arrested by direction of Coroner Arthur G. Bill and released under bonds of $2,000, supplied by Dr. William Saretzki of Putnam, in connection with the death of Miss Anna McCauley, who on the night of December 7, was so seriously injured when she was struck by an automobile owned by Warden Letters that she died two weeks ago last Sunday at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

At his office here Wednesday morning Coroner Bill said that no specific charge has been filed against Mr. Letters, but that his taking into custody is based on testimony offered by witnesses heard at the inquest the coroner has been conducting and was made pending the coroner's filing of his finding.

The coroner has not revealed the nature of the testimony developed during the inquest and plans not to release it until his finding is complete and ready for the record.

Miss McCauley, it will be recalled, was so badly injured when she was struck by the automobile Mr. Letters was driving that it was found necessary to amputate one of her legs. She suffered greatly in the interim between the time she was injured and the date of her death. Her condition was such during all the period after she was injured that Coroner Bill was unable to obtain any statement from her and she died without giving her version of the accident to any official.

Coroner Bill has been engaged for a number of days in taking testimony in the case. Mr. Letters has contended from the first that no lights were showing so that he could see them on the car in which Miss McCauley had been riding and from which she alighted when it was stopped for some reason. It was while she was standing near the car that she was struck by Warden Letters' machine, the accident happening in Putnam. Miss McCauley, a Providence girl, had been working at the Beachmont mill in Mechanicsville.

Sewing Needle Old

What folly to suffer Colds

A cold can be checked in 24 hours. The fever and headache can be ended. Even La Grippe can be stopped in 3 days.

Millions have proved that. Your druggist guarantees it. Your own neighbors will certify it.

Then why let colds linger? They mean both discomfort and danger. Millions are wrecked by results of colds.

The right way, the best way, is with Hill's Cascara-Bromide-Quinine. The result of years of research. A treatment so perfect that 25 years have developed no way to improve it. It stops a cold in a day. But it does far more. It removes the poisons caused by colds. It restores vitality to the whole system. In the quickest, surest way men know it brings one back to normal.

Millions have proved that. Your own neighbors are among them. No one who knows Hill's could ever be induced to use anything else for a cold.

Don't take chances with a cold. Get the best help men know, and the genuine. And start promptly. Every hour you delay makes the cold harder to cure.

PUTNAM

Charles Bersuc was found guilty by a jury in superior court Wednesday afternoon of violation of the liquor laws and was given the most severe sentence that anyone has received in this court since the passage of the 18th amendment and the Volstead law. There were three counts in the charge against him and Judge Newell Jennings fined him $500 on each count and imposed a prison sentence that amounts to not more than four and not less than three years.

On the first count, keeping liquor with intent to sell, fine of $500 and not less than one nor more than two years in prison.

Second count, fine of $500, and imprisonment for one year, the term to begin after the expiration of the first sentence.

Third count, fine of $500, and imprisonment for one year, to begin after the expiration of the sentence on the second count.

As soon as court convened Wednesday morning Judge Jennings read his charge to the jury. It was a carefully prepared resume of the law pertaining to the case and nearly thirty minutes were required in the reading of it.

The jury retired shortly after 12 o'clock and reported an agreement after an hour and fifteen minutes. In passing sentence Judge Jennings said that he did not regard the accused as the ordinary keeper of a blind tiger, but he had been convicted twice before of violating the liquor laws, and in this case had pleaded guilty to these prior convictions. The legislature, he said, had laid down a rule to be followed in such cases, and the court could not ignore that mandate.

The accused, he continued, was convicted in the lower court in the present action, and sentence imposed. He had seen fit to appeal from that decision, he has elected the tribunal before which he wished to be tried, and that tribunal has found him guilty. That verdict also carries with it an implication of perjury. There is also reason, said Judge Jennings, to believe that he had tampered with one of the witnesses for the state, Arthur Turgeon, now serving a sentence in the county jail. Turgeon told the representatives of the state certain things, and when put on the stand in this court he declared that his statements to counsel for the state were false. The accused had had an opportunity to communicate with this witness and to influence him in refuting his former declarations. "I can see no other reason," added Judge Jennings, "for Turgeon changing his statements except through the influence of the defendant, Berzuc."

The hearing has attracted a great deal of interest, the court room having been crowded at all of the sessions. Charles E. Searls, state's attorney, was assisted by Eric H. Johnson in the prosecution; Charles L. Torrey, public defender, and George Sheehan, a member of the Providence, R. I. bar, represented the defendant.

In city court a month ago Berzuc was found guilty on this same charge and was fined $500 on each of three counts, and sentenced to 30 days in the county jail on each count. In appealing he has had the same amounts in fines imposed and his imprisonment term made not less than three nor more than four years.

For the past twenty years smallpox has been in this state. In 1923 there were 447 cases with 6 deaths. None of these cases had been vaccinated. During the past year smallpox was present in Danielson for some time before it was recognized and was widespread on this account. In one family there were several children sick with smallpox. The father was daily visiting Jewett City to his place of business. One case in Plainfield was traced to this person as a carrier. As soon as the facts became known the man was quarantined. One other case two days before becoming ill of this disease, was visiting his family in this place. None of the family had been vaccinated. Fortunately no case developed from either of these exposures. Many children and some adults were vaccinated at this time. There are still many who are not protected by vaccination.

There has been a widespread movement to prevent diphtheria by giving the toxin-antoxin treatment. A clinic was held at the local office by a member of the state department of health, to demonstrate the use of this treatment. All the doctors and nurses of the town were present. A demonstration of the Schick Test was given to show where this treatment should be given. Pamphlets explaining this treatment were circulated through the schools so every family in town sending children to school might be made familiar with the remedy. Only a small number of children received the treatment.

The deaths from diphtheria, unrecognized, are 33 per cent. Only the prompt use of heroic doses of diphtheria antitoxin saved the lives of many who have this disease. The use of toxin-antitoxin would practically banish diphtheria by making those who were so treated immune.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

County Game Warden Charles M. Letters of Putnam has been arrested by direction of Coroner Arthur G. Bill and released under bonds of $2,000, supplied by Dr. William Saretzki of Putnam, in connection with the death of Miss Anna McCauley, who on the night of December 7, was so seriously injured when she was struck by an automobile owned by Warden Letters that she died two weeks ago last Sunday at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam.

At his office here Wednesday morning Coroner Bill said that no specific charge has been filed against Mr. Letters, but that his taking into custody is based on testimony offered by witnesses heard at the inquest the coroner has been conducting and was made pending the coroner's filing of his finding.

The coroner has not revealed the nature of the testimony developed during the inquest and plans not to release it until his finding is complete and ready for the record.

Miss McCauley, it will be recalled, was so badly injured when she was struck by the automobile Mr. Letters was driving that it was found necessary to amputate one of her legs. She suffered greatly in the interim between the time she was injured and the date of her death. Her condition was such during all the period after she was injured that Coroner Bill was unable to obtain any statement from her and she died without giving her version of the accident to any official.

Coroner Bill has been engaged for a number of days in taking testimony in the case. Mr. Letters has contended from the first that no lights were showing so that he could see them on the car in which Miss McCauley had been riding and from which she alighted when it was stopped for some reason. It was while she was standing near the car that she was struck by Warden Letters' machine, the accident happening in Putnam. Miss McCauley, a Providence girl, had been working at the Beachmont mill in Mechanicsville.

What folly to suffer — Colds

A cold can be checked in 24 hours. The fever and headache can be ended. Even La Grippe can be stopped in 3 days.

Millions have proved that. Your druggist guarantees it. Your own neighbors will certify it.

Then why let colds linger? They mean both discomfort and danger. Millions are wrecked by results of colds.

The right way, the best way, is with Hill's Cascara-Bromide-Quinine. The result of years of research. A treatment so perfect that 25 years have developed no way to improve it. It stops a cold in a day. But it does far more. It removes the poisons caused by colds. It restores vitality to the whole system. In the quickest, surest way men know it brings one back to normal.

Millions have proved that. Your own neighbors are among them. No one who knows Hill's could ever be induced to use anything else for a cold.

Don't take chances with a cold. Get the best help men know, and the genuine. And start promptly. Every hour you delay makes the cold harder to cure.

PUTNAM

Charles Berzuc was found guilty by a jury in superior court Wednesday afternoon of violation of the liquor laws and was given the most severe sentence that anyone has received in this court since the passage of the 18th amendment and the Volstead law. There were three counts in the charge against him and Judge Newell Jennings fined him $500 on each count and imposed a prison sentence that amounts to not more than four and not less than three years.

On the first count, keeping liquor with intent to sell, fine of $500 and not less than one nor more than two years in prison.

Second count, fine of $500, and imprisonment for one year, the term to begin after the expiration of the first sentence.

Third count, fine of $500, and imprisonment for one year, to begin after the expiration of the sentence on the second count.

As soon as court convened Wednesday morning Judge Jennings read his charge to the jury. It was a carefully prepared resume of the law pertaining to the case and nearly thirty minutes were required in the reading of it.

The jury retired shortly after 12 o'clock and reported an agreement after an hour and fifteen minutes. In passing sentence Judge Jennings said that he did not regard the accused as the ordinary keeper of a blind tiger, but he had been convicted twice before of violating the liquor laws, and in this case had pleaded guilty to these prior convictions. The legislature, he said, had laid down a rule to be followed in such cases, and the court could not ignore that mandate.

The accused, he continued, was convicted in the lower court in the present action, and sentence imposed. He had seen fit to appeal from that decision, he has elected the tribunal before which he wished to be tried, and that tribunal has found him guilty. That verdict also carries with it an implication of perjury. There is also reason, said Judge Jennings, to believe that he had tampered with one of the witnesses for the state, Arthur Turgeon, now serving a sentence in the county jail. Turgeon told the representatives of the state certain things, and when put on the stand in this court he declared that his statements to counsel for the state were false. The accused had had an opportunity to communicate with this witness and to influence him in refuting his former declarations. "I can see no other reason," added Judge Jennings, "for Turgeon changing his statements except through the influence of the defendant, Berzuc."

The hearing has attracted a great deal of interest, the court room having been crowded at all of the sessions. Charles E. Searls, state's attorney, was assisted by Eric H. Johnson in the prosecution; Charles L. Torrey, public defender, and George Sheehan, a member of the Providence, R. I. bar, represented the defendant.

In city court a month ago Berzuc was found guilty on this same charge and was fined $500 on each of three counts, and sentenced to 30 days in the county jail on each count. In appealing he has had the same amounts in fines imposed and his imprisonment term made not less than three nor more than four years.

JEWETT CITY

The health officer, Dr. G. H. Jennings, gives in his annual borough report the number of communicable diseases for pulmonary tuberculosis 4, lobar pneumonia 6, scarlet fever 2, mumps 1, diphtheria 7, typhoid fever 1, measles 1, gonorrhea 5. Beginning with the year 1925 bronchial pneumonia will be a reportable disease, by order of the state board of health. The amount of money paid out for control of communicable diseases was $37, sanitary inspection $9, all other (unclassified) $21.75, total $67.75.

Under the auspices of the Red Cross Dr. Hugh B. Campbell held several monthly clinics here. Also the Red Cros was active in continuing the services of the district nurse.

The value of this work is considered very great. The total number of visits to the sick was 2,453. Total expense for the year ending August 1, 1924, $1,857.09. The committee had on hand Sept. 1, 1923, $270.73; received from Red Cross $500; Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., $927.05; town of Griswold, $200; other sources, [illegible] total $2,058.08; leaving a balance in the hands of the treasurer, $200.99.

For the past twenty years smallpox has been in this state. In 1923 there were 447 cases with 6 deaths. None of these cases had been vaccinated. During the past year smallpox was present in Danielson for some time before it was recognized and was widespread on this account. In one family there were several children sick with smallpox. The father was daily visiting Jewett City to his place of business. One case in Plainfield was traced to this person as a carrier. As soon as the facts became known the man was quarantined. One other case two days before becoming ill of this disease, was visiting his family in this place. None of the family had been vaccinated. Fortunately no case developed from either of these exposures. Many children and some adults were vaccinated at this time. There are still many who are not protected by vaccination.

There has been a widespread movement to prevent diphtheria by giving the toxin-antoxin treatment. A clinic was held at the local office by a member of the state department of health, to demonstrate the use of this treatment. All the doctors and nurses of the town were present. A demonstration of the Schick Test was given to show where this treatment should be given. Pamphlets explaining this treatment were circulated through the schools so every family in town sending children to school might be made familiar with the remedy. Only a small number of children received the treatment.

The deaths from diphtheria unrecognized are 33 per cent. Only the prompt use of heroic doses of diphtheria antitoxin saved the lives of many who have this disease. The use of toxin-antitoxin would practically banish diphtheria by making those who were so treated immune.

COLUMBIA

A special meeting of Columbia grange was held on Friday evening, but as the weather was very stormy there was only a small attendance. The third and fourth degrees were conferred on John Demesko, also the Misses Ruth Wilson, Marion Clough and Gladys Rice.

On Friday afternoon, snow began falling here, reaching a depth of over three inches when it began to rain, making travel very unpleasant. The efficiency of the state highway department in this locality was demonstrated by the rapidity with which the road through Columbia and Hebron was cleared, beginning about 10 p. m., and working through the night until daylight when it was finished.

Miss Marion Holmes spent the week end in Hartford, and while there visited her sister, Miss Madeline Holmes, who is a patient in the Hartford hospital.

A conference between the selectmen of Andover, Lebanon and Columbia with State Representative Edward P. Lyman of Columbia, in regard to the proposed Jonathan Trumbull highway, which, when built, is expected to pass through the said towns, was to have been held at Yeoman's hall, Columbia, on Friday evening, but was postponed because of the storm.

GOVERNOR TRUMBULL SPEAKS.

That Governor Trumbull should consider it desirable to address the general assembly, even though his predecessor for a day had already done so, was to be expected. It was in fact made clear by Governor Bingham that such could be expected. There were subjects upon which Governor Trumbull held views which he desired to present, and in the message which he delivered to the joint session of senate and house he hit upon some important high spots for consideration by the present session of the state legislature.

The message is an excellent one. It hasn't covered every conceivable subject, but it reeks with common sense and plausibility and if we do not misjudge them, there are reasons for believing that it will serve as a basis for action by the legislators.

When the governor calls for the conduct of the state's affairs on a business like basis and living within our means he jams home a principle that deserves the heartiest endorsement. When he urges the legislators to "leave the state as sound financially as we find it," he speaks for the people of Connecticut. The desirability of doing this without impeding the work of state departments or of blocking tax reduction is well set forth.

Governor Trumbull calls for the use of the public funds as wisely as private ones would be employed. The development of the principles of private enterprise in connection with state business is not too great a goal for the governor to advocate, and when he urges going about a business proposition in a businesslike way he talks to the legislature right from the shoulder on a vital matter.

In order to aid in cutting the state's garment according to the cloth he urges an early fixing of the taxing policy and the working out the revenue and the appropriations according to a budget system that is formulated before the closing days, and he urges the legislature to avoid past mistakes by getting down to some of its big matters, involving capital investment, before the last days when hasty decisions are not always accompanied by sound judgment.

Concerning his suggestion for insuring expert examiners by paying them what they can get elsewhere, and by providing for the semi-annual examination of banks there is certain to be strong support, and when he urges the importance of making a start at least in the direction of checking stream pollution instead of waiting for "a perfect remedy" he speaks for action of a much needed character. When he points out that "The purpose should be to limit, reduce and control pollution, rather than to prohibit it, and care must be taken to safeguard the rights of all," he recognizes the size of the problem but the seriousness of any further delay.

His words concerning motor vehicles, especially those of the heavy type and from out of the state, which compete with railroads and help to reduce gross earnings of railroads on which taxes are paid to the state, are timely and deal with a matter which the legislature cannot dodge. It is much more pertinent than the provision of aviation facilities just at this time.

In his message Governor Trumbull indicates that he intends to bring about a common sense handling of state affairs. He speaks against extravagance and in behalf of economy. He warns against lavish outlay and trying to do in one year what ought to be spread over several. The advice is excellent and it is much to his credit when it can be said that it is in keeping with what was expected.

SOLVING IMMIGRATION PROBLEMS.

In order to overcome some of the conditions which have been brought to attention at some of the ports of entry, relative to the delays made necessary in the admission or rejection of those who would enter this country from other shores, various remedies have been proposed.

While it is known that this country maintains restrictions which bar the unfit, including the sick and those likely to become a charge upon the country, there continue to come large numbers who are certain to be sent back. It has been figured that other nations might act to prevent this and that this country might maintain representatives at ports of embarkation for the purpose of stopping such individuals before they got started. The aim may well be to relieve the conditions which at times approach the point of congestion on this side, as well as prevent those who cannot expect to gain an entrance from going to the expense of trying or bearing the hardships of a double voyage across the ocean.

Setting up immigration offices in other countries may encounter certain [illegible] but in the case such a plan is not possible there is at least food for consideration in the suggestion that is to be placed before conferences arranged for labor department and other officials by Secretary Davis for the placing of government inspectors and surgeons on ships en route to this country with immigrants that they may be examined on the water with decisions reached under the laws before the vessels dock. This would not overcome the hardships involved in a double trip across the ocean, but it would do away with much of the congestion that features the immigration stations for those who had been accepted would be immediately on their way and the facilities of the stations would be devoted to those cases about which there was question. Whatever can be done to improve conditions is certainly deserving of serious consideration.

GRAND TRUNK EXTENSION.

Once again there is revived the talk about the completion of the partly built railroad extension from Palmer, Mass., to Providence by the Grand Trunk. This of course furnishes the groundwork for going before the Rhode Island legislature and asking for an extension of the time in which that work can be done. Rhode Island has granted an extension of time before and it may be disposed to do so again, but it doesn't appear that it is possible for the road to show that it has made any effort since the last appearance of the road's representatives to resume the work.

Years have gone by since the surveys were made and grading operations undertaken. Conditions are no better now for the building of the extension than they have been, and in fact it has been difficult to convince most people that there is any good reason for building the line. The present terminal of the Grand Trunk at New London is its logical outlet for New York.

That the Grand Trunk should seek to keep alive its rights to build the line, and to protect what has been spent in the way of construction is not surprising. It is in fact only what Rhode Island should expect, and inasmuch as there is no probability that any other will ever build over the contemplated route there is nothing being sacrificed by Rhode Island in granting extensions.

As for the building of a new railroad line over a route and through a territory where railroads have been decreasing service, and in a territory where the abandonment of much railroad mileage is under discussion the prospects do not appear to be rosy. The Grand Trunk, even though in the hands of the Canadian government, is operating on a different basis than when the extension was undertaken. It can be expected to give consideration to the use and development of what it has in the way of a line across New England before pursuing further a costly plan that developed from a railroad squabble.

THE REFUSAL TO STRIKE.

When it comes to adjusting coal difficulties it is invariably a case of taking it out on the consumer. Whether that was the intention of the coal strikers in Pennsylvania or not, that promised to be the outcome under the plan of a general strike.

The decision, therefore, not to strike, reached by the mining unions of Pennsylvania, will be learned with much satisfaction. There is no reason why there cannot be an adjustment of differences without taking any such drastic step. The strike as it exists at the present time is, in fact, unjustified according to the officials of the national organization. It appears to be a case where the miners delegate their representatives to come to an understanding with the producers, which understanding was reached and ratified, only to result in a refusal on the part of some of the parties to the contract to carry out their promises.

If there was justification for a strike on the part of the men it would no doubt have received the support of their leaders. The very fact that it has not received such support means that the contract made is regarded as no more than a scrap of paper. They have repudiated their own promises, and in doing so seek to have others not only give them encouragement but do likewise.

If there are real issues between the men and the producers there's a way for a settlement, but it ought not to mean that the consumers must suffer or that injustice should be done by those who are crying out against that very thing. The refusal of the unions to strike is a stand against outlaw strikes.

SUBTLE METHODS

"What kind of woman is that new Mrs. St. Jubb down the street on who you were going to call?" inquired the tall, lank householder. "I hope she is interesting, because I admire her prodigiously and trust you will like her sufficiently to invite her to dinner so that I can get a closer view!"

"Well," explained his wife, after she had thought for a moment, "I should say that Mrs. St. Jubb is the sort of woman who shrieks when it thunders and says she is scared to death and please somebody save her and always manages to have a good-looking man among the scenic settings when she does it. This should tell you everything about her, but no doubt you won't understand it at all, being a man!"

"I never saw anything like you women!" the tall, lank householder declared vehemently. "It's a wonder the world gets any sleep with all of you grinding your axes and polishing your hammers twenty-six hours out of twenty-four. Precisely the minute a good-looking woman pops up over the horizon the clan unites in a heartfelt warhoop that is heard from Broadway to the Golden Gate and how the snickersnees do flash in the bright sunlight!

"Nowadays, when there is a good old fashioned thunder and lightning storm, you women neither run down cellar, refuse to hold the cat, jump for the middle of a feather bed or telephone your husbands to come home and save you after the fashion of real womanly women some years ago. You perhaps light another cigarette when a particularly awful clap comes and murmur something about the way the flying atoms are grabbing off electrons and making such a nuisance of racket and proceed to finish your novel.

"What does that leave for a man to do, I ask you? He can rescue, save, reassure nobody. Nobody wants to be reassured in the least. The result is that when he sees an appealing little creature he admires her—that is, he does until the other women rise up and abolish her, as no doubt all of you will abolish this Mrs. St. Jubb when you settle down to work and put your minds to it.

"I'd really like to know how you are going about it this time. You extinguished Susie Whipporwill's pretty cousin last summer by making all of us men play bridge with her, which was manifestly unfair. It made her head ache trying to remember the cards, as she explained to us, and there are many other virtues besides a good memory, only her bridge game temporarily made us forget this point. I recollect how Lizette Larkspur sort of faded away after you folks got up several picnics and Lizette kept us so busy driving away flies and wasps and man-eating grasshoppers and spiders and things.

"You betray fiendish ingenuity in transforming any dangerously pretty attractive woman into a pest and a bore, but I think all of you have met your match in little St. Jubb. There is something about her which makes every man feel a foot taller and monarch of all he surveys and he'll fight to retain such a pleasant emotion.

"Of course, it means nothing personally to me—merely my sense of justice has led to these few words. Arethusa!"

"Why, of course, darling!" agreed the wife of the tall, lank householder admiringly. "If there is anything I love it is your breadth of view! I was just about to ask you if you wouldn't carry the laundry down to the basement and raise the window in the sewing room, and while you are about it you might fix that caster on the library table and put up those curtain rods you told me were simple enough for me to handle. You are so big and strong and I am so weak and silly I just love to see you do things!"

"Gosh ding it," the tall, lank householder said as he unwound himself from his comfortable porch chair, "I guess maybe I talk too much! Honest, Arethusa, I didn't mean half of it!"—Chicago News.

Johnson Had to Move on or Stop Growing

Jackson Johnson did not like working on a salary, so went into business for himself. Then he learned what hard work was and more than once was made to realize that there were troubles for the head of a concern.

Born on a plantation near La Grange, Ga., just before the Civil war, he early felt the hardships of the south during and just after the conflict. He was nine when his father died, and 16 when he quit the little school and got a job in a general store. The hours were long and he hustled, and wished that he could get into business for himself.

After a year as general helper he started a store of his own at Holly Springs, Miss. He conducted the business and did all the [illegible] in 15 hours a day. He [illegible] independence as he built the business until it was a profitmaker and the largest in town. Then suddenly realized that the poulation of 2000 would not permit him to grow much more if he remained.

At 33 he went to Memphis, Tenn., and joined in organizing the Johnson, Carruther & Rand Company which bought out a tottering jobbing concern. A president, Johnson guided the reorganization and the installation of new policies. A profit was made the first year and the business continued to grow. Then he realized that the possible trading territory there was too small.

Selling out the business for twice what he had paid for it five years before, he went to St. Louis, where he helped organize and became president of the Roberts, Johnson & Rand Shoe Company, shoe jobbers. Soon seeing that the firm did not manufacture its product, he began the manufacture of shoes. Later he found it necessary to be sure of his materials and started tanneries. Business grew rapidly, other factories were added and eventually the concern became one of the largest of its kind in this country. Then came the merger of his company with others and at 55, Johnson was made chairman of the board of the International Shoe Company, largest manufacturers of shoes in the world.

And today, at 64, Johnson is active in his business, is rich, and takes a leading part in many movements for public good.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Deduction From Gross

The revenue act of 1924 provides for certain specified deductions from gross income in determining net income, among which are business expenses, interest or indebtedness, taxes, losses, bad debts, depreciation, depletion and contributions and gifts. Each will be treated separately.

Deductions for business expenses form the largest item taken in the returns of many taxpayers. All the ordinary and necessary expenses of a trade or business or profession paid or incurred during the year for which the return is made are allowable deductions.

A taxpayer in trade or business may claim as deductions from gross income a reasonable allowance for salaries paid employees, amounts spent for advertising, premium for insurance against fire or other business losses, rental for store or warehouse, the cost of fuel, light, water, telephone, stationery, etc. used in his place of business, drayage and freight bills and the cost of operation and repair of delivery wagons and trucks. A professional man may claim as deductions the cost of supplies used in his practice, expenses paid in the operation and repair of an automobile used for professional calls, dues to professional societies, subscriptions to professional journals, office rent, the cost of fuel, light, heat and water used in such office and the hire of assistants.

The farmer who operates a farm for profit may deduct all amounts paid in the production and harvesting of his crops, including labor, cost of seed and fertilizer used, cost of minor repairs to farm buildings (but not the dwelling) and cost of small tools used up in the course of a year or two.

Deductions for business expenses must have certain qualities to be allowed. They must relate to a business, trade profession or vocation in which a taxpayer has invested time and money for the purpose of a livelihood or profit. A taxpayer may conduct more than one business and claim a deduction for the business expenses of each provided he devotes sufficient time and attention to each.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

DRIVING YOUR OWN CAR IN EUROPE

Seeing England by paddling a Canadian canoe, touring Holland in a canal boat, and, more recently, viewing the continent from the air afford new thrills—and so did the novel adventure of a Washington man who drove his own automobile through London and continental cities.

David Fairchild, famous plant explorer, writes to the National Geographic Society of his experiences amid new traffic conditions, ranging from horse dray and pushcart obstructions to a congestion of bicycle riders, as follows:

"Well I should say the way to have experiences in Europe is to come over in your own hand driven car, leaving every vestige of a professional chauffeur behind, and poke around through the narrow streets and the beautiful highways of these remarkable countries.

"It was something of an accident which landed us in Europe with the 140th automobile to cross the Atlantic this year. It was my stubborn disbelief in the information I got which carried from the statement that it was just as expensive to travel in Europe as it is in America, to the discouraging one that it would be difficult to drive in London because they drive to the left there and the streets are so congested that a man cannot drive for himself at all.

"The misinformation about motoring in Europe which exists on your side is colossal. If you can interview people and speak a little of the languages of the land you visit, motoring in Europe is the only way by which you can compare it with America on the same plane. If you have a car at home and run about everywhere and come here and depend on taxis you will not learn any more about the country than you would with taxis in America.

"I have found the garages small and dark affairs but they cost only from 25 cents to 50 cents a night. I have left tools in the car continually and nothing has disappeared. I have been arrested in London and have a letter from Scotland Yard excusing me—for really the reasons for the arrest were technical ones, pure and simple.

"I can find my way all over that town, and my 'system' is as simple as A. B. C. I get the best map possible and place my son on the front seat and he calls out the streets and unless we get started wrong we go right through the narrowest streets and alleys of that great jumbled up thing called London.

"This going around in London is the most time consuming business for the traffic is simply chaotic because of no broad avenues and because into the Strand and Piccadilly and Oxford street the pushcart and dray, and bus, and even the baby carriage traffic debouches from all the side streets [illegible] the traffic moves, in the late afternoon, at a snail's pace.

"[illegible] I bought it was like it is in New York but it is very different for the rate of travel is that of the small pushcars when the street is crowded. How on earth London can hold her own in commerce without doing something to speed up the exchange of information and the transfer of people is beyond my comprehension.

"In respect to this exchange of people, Paris is far ahead of London for its avenues are broad and its traffic, instead of being so largely in the hands of the horse dray and the pushcart is, so to say, on rubber tires. I felt in London all the time as if the general public which 'jay walked' all over the place rather resented the idea that I had a car and was taking up more room than they were on foot. There were not really any who scowled at me but I had an uncomfortable feeling of riding down people wherever I went.

"I wandered in and out of the tiny little streets and got an idea of London which it is impossible to get without a car of your own. London has a terrible traffic problem to face. She must either give up the idea of speeding up her commerce and get it on tires or broaden scores of streets and run through broad avenues somewhere.

"In Holland there are still so few automobiles that there is not yet any problem of traffic. You travel solitary and alone over roads which have cost more than the thoroughfares in America and which were built centuries ago and come after a while to discount every derogatory remark of the inhabitant as regards to the bad roads of his country. There simply are no bad roads, in an American sense, in this part of Europe.

"Years ago a Dutch friend of mine who was in Johns Hopkins as professor predicted that the bicycle would disappear because it was only a fad. Imagine my surprise to find bicycles in his country in such quantities that like locust swarms, they blocked the wheels of traffic. I never saw so many. Every family must have one for each member of it. And they never try to get out of your way at all but take up as much room as they want and crowd you off into the ditch, so to speak. But the streets are so narrow and so crooked that it is impossible to go fast and consequently it is quite as safe driving about as it is to run a machine through a crowded passage by and slowly.

"You do it carefully. I once had to wait for several minutes while a policeman let a stream of bicycles pass by. Usually one is surrounded on all sides by pedestrians. They have never ceased to be curious but are not in the least afraid.

"Before I came I heard that at each boundary I would have difficulties of all sorts to go through with. This is a mistake. It is about as easy to pass a frontier now in a car as it is to back up to a gas tank and take in ten gallons of gas. You show your Carnet de Voyage, the officer writes out a leaflet and stub and detaches it and bows you through. Not one ugly word or sign of impoliteness have I had shown me either by customs officials, immigration officials, or policemen. Even when I was arrested in London and have a letter from Scotland Yard excusing me—for really the reasons for the arrest were technical ones, pure and simple.

"I can find my way all over that town, and my 'system' is as simple as A. B. C. I get the best map possible and place my son on the front seat and he calls out the streets and unless we get started wrong we go right through the narrowest streets and alleys of that great jumbled up thing called London.

"This going around in London is the most time consuming business for the traffic is simply chaotic because of no broad avenues and because into the Strand and Piccadilly and Oxford street the pushcart and dray, and bus, and even the baby carriage traffic debouches from all the side streets [illegible] the traffic moves, in the late afternoon, at a snail's pace.

"[illegible] I bought it was like it is in New York but it is very different for the rate of travel is that of the small pushcars when the street is crowded. How on earth London can hold her own in commerce without doing something to speed up the exchange of information and the transfer of people is beyond my comprehension.

"In respect to this exchange of people, Paris is far ahead of London for its avenues are broad and its traffic, instead of being so largely in the hands of the horse dray and the pushcart is, so to say, on rubber tires. I felt in London all the time as if the general public which 'jay walked' all over the place rather resented the idea that I had a car and was taking up more room than they were on foot. There were not really any who scowled at me but I had an uncomfortable feeling of riding down people wherever I went.

"I wandered in and out of the tiny little streets and got an idea of London which it is impossible to get without a car of your own. London has a terrible traffic problem to face. She must either give up the idea of speeding up her commerce and get it on tires or broaden scores of streets and run through broad avenues somewhere.

"In Holland there are still so few automobiles that there is not yet any problem of traffic. You travel solitary and alone over roads which have cost more than the thoroughfares in America and which were built centuries ago and come after a while to discount every derogatory remark of the inhabitant as regards to the bad roads of his country. There simply are no bad roads, in an American sense, in this part of Europe.

"Years ago a Dutch friend of mine who was in Johns Hopkins as professor predicted that the bicycle would disappear because it was only a fad. Imagine my surprise to find bicycles in his country in such quantities that like locust swarms, they blocked the wheels of traffic. I never saw so many. Every family must have one for each member of it. And they never try to get out of your way at all but take up as much room as they want and crowd you off into the ditch, so to speak. But the streets are so narrow and so crooked that it is impossible to see [illegible] that would fit the proper number of spaces and also have the correct meaning.

One night, however, she sat in the living room reading the newspaper, but without her pencil in her hand.

After a time the odor of gasoline crept into the room. She asked her father whether he knew whence it came. He did not. Neither did she, so she called her mother, who was in the next room.

"Mother," she said, "what is it that smells like gasoline?"

Her mother busy cleaning a garment called back: "How many letters has it?"

Can You Beat It?

Speaking of the importance of properly safeguarding vital statistics, a former resident of the middle west was telling of an experience in his town.

Several years ago in a court proceeding it became imperative that a young girl establish the day of her birth. Her parents had died, the doctor could not be found and the certificate of her birth had either never been made or was lost. The girl felt sure where she was born and farmers in the vicinity of the homestead were at a loss at first to know how to assist the girl in her predicament.

Solution of her problem came when a neighbor, a breeder of fine cattle, remembered that on the same morning there was born one of his calves which had been registered and that certificate was produced in court in evidence along with the man's testimony.

Simple Marriage Rite

Marriage is celebrated in a strange fashion in some parts of India. The woman puts a pot of water in her prospective husband's house, and on his lifting it up the marriage is ratified.

Stories That Recall Others

Yes and No.

Tommy has been looking forward to the day on which the druggist promised to give all the children a bird with each chocolate soda. The day arrived and Tommy hurried to the drug store so he would get the "prize" before they were all gone. When he paid he looked at the clerk and asked if he might have his bird.

"Why," answered the clerk, "you got a swallow didn't you?"

It was a very sad but impressive lesson to Tommy. He decided the old saying, "Nothing for nothing" was the truest ever spoken.

No Wedding Bells for Her

A flirt is a girl who would sooner have a man on the string than firmly anchored.—Boston Transcript.

CONTESTS DIVORCE SUIT ON CRUELTY GROUNDS

Evidence in the contested divorce suit of Clara Dombrowski Swanson of Preston who seeks divorce from Morris P. Swanson of North Stonington on the ground of intolerable cruelty was heard here Wednesday morning and afternoon in the superior court before Judge C. L. Avery and the arguments were also made by Attorney E. W. Perkins for the plaintiff and R. M. Douglass for the defendant. Judge Avery reserved decision.

The courts was married April 22, 1922. Cruelty is alleged since Jan. 1, 1923, and Mrs. Swanson asks the custody of their three-year-old son and alimony.

The allegations of cruelty are the following:

On several occasions between Feb. 1, 1923, and March 1, 1923, the defendant lost his temper, seized the plaintiff by her hands and wrists and twisted them so severely that he forced the plaintiff to cry out in pain, and scarred her face, which caused her face to swell.

On Friday, March 30, 1923, the defendant struck the plaintiff several times with his fists, bruising and wounding her lip and raising a lump on the back of her head.

On a certain day in the summer of 1923, the defendant threw a fork at the plaintiff, struck her on the arm, picked up a knife and threatened her with it and finally seized and grabbed the plaintiff's wrists and twisted them, causing the plaintiff severe pain and suffering and threatening to strike her.

One day in September the defendant picked up a glass tumbler, throwing it at the plaintiff and child.

On various occasions between Jan. 21, 1923 and Feb. 15, 1924, when the plaintiff left the defendant, when their minor child awoke in the night and cried, the defendant threatened to inflict bodily injury upon the plaintiff, unless she got up, and pushed her out of bed, thereby forcing her to lose her rest and sit up during the night or early in the morning, in a cold house, without fire or adequate heat.

By reason of said acts of cruelty, the plaintiff's health was greatly impaired, both mentally and physically, and she has many pounds in weight.

Mrs. Swanson's testimony, which went into details as to the specific allegations of cruelty and she said she knew of no reason why her husband should lose his temper and treat her the way she claimed he had. She was followed on the stand by Deputy Sheriff Oscar H. Main, Mrs. Nellie G. Kinney a neighbor at their home in North Stonington, Mrs. Lucius Brown and Mrs. Allyn L. Brown of this city, and Mrs. Adeline Levitsky. Mrs. Brown testified to the rundown physical condition which she observed in Mrs. Swanson, who had been employed at the Brown home before her marriage.

Testimony for Mr. Swanson was given by his mother, Mrs. Augusta Swanson, and by Andrew S. Keller. The defendant denied absolutely all the specific acts of cruelty charged by his wife and said that one occasion he had to hold her hands when she jumped on him as he lay on a bed and tried to scratch and kick him. When Mrs. Swanson was put on the stand again she denied that this had happened.

Mr. Swanson told of the time that his wife left him, saying that he kissed her goodbye when he went to work that Friday morning and when he came home at night she was gone. The following Monday night when he got home he found she had cleared out of the house everything but his clothes which had been thrown among the ashes. Later he received a letter with a Worcester postmark from her saying she would mail back any of his things which she had. He couldn't say why she left, but he said he still loved his wife and his baby and he wants to have them back to live with him again.

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 21.—Rosa Ponselle, Metropolitan opera singer, who was scheduled to give a concert at the state armory tomorrow night, is seriously ill at the Hotel Mohican here, and so serious is her condition that two nurses and a physician are in attendance. Miss Ponselle's illness has necessitated the calling off of the concert tomorrow night and future engagements of the singer indefinitely. Miss Ponselle arrived in New London tonight from Worcester. She was taken ill on the train and immediately after her arrival here Dr. George P. Cheney was called to attend her. Her condition is recognized as being serious, Miss Ponselle having suffered an attack of stomach trouble and a diagnosis revealed her having suffered a hemorrhage. WHY MANY MOTHERS ARE THIN AND PALE

No one perhaps suffers a greater drain on strength, nerve force and vitality than the woman who has children to care for. Yet Science has now perfected a remarkable new strength-giving combination which has enabled thousands of nervous, tired-out mothers, often in only a few short weeks, to build up and renew their strength, energy and physical and mental endurance.

Any doctor will tell you that a great many mothers lack sufficient iron—organic iron—in the blood. Without sufficient of this organic iron nothing you eat does you the proper amount of good. You don't get the strength out of it, so you become weak, pale and haggard-looking, nervous, irritable and easily upset.

In such cases what you need is organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to enrich the blood, and revitalize worn-out nerves. For Nuxated Iron is organic iron, like the iron in your blood, and like that in spinach and lentils. Try it for just two weeks and notice the marvelous improvement. Money back if not delighted. But be sure you get the genuine Nuxated Iron, with the letters NI on every tablet. This is the only kind sold under this absolute guarantee. At all good druggists.

NEW YORK COMMISSION WILL HOLD ELIMINATION BOUTS FOR WORLD'S TITLE

New York, Jan. 20.—(By the A. P.)—The New York state athletic commission decided today to conduct a lightweight elimination boxing tournament for the purpose of choosing of the world's lightweight title vacated by Benny Leonard, who retired from active competition last week.

Cablegrams will be sent to all foreign countries where boxing is under organized control inviting all boxers who can scale 135 pounds to enter the tournament. At the same time an effort will be made to round up every available lightweight in this country and from the total entry list select the best 12 to compete in the finals. Elimination tournaments may be held in various sections of the world to weed out the inferior material and make the finals as strong as possible.

The commission asked Tex Rickard, Madison Square Garden promoter, to confer today with the idea of drawing up rules and regulations and arranging for the details of the tournament. Rickard assured the commission he would conduct the tournament, if asked, and if unable to take care of all boxers who wish to compete he would split it up and stage it at different clubs.

The commission plans to start the competition within 30 days after the names of the entries are filed. However, Chairman George E. Brower said, if the response from the eligible boxers is not suitable, the plan will be abandoned.

"We are taking care of this matter to advance the interest of boxing and to please the public appeal. The commission as a whole, and we as individuals, feel that the tournament idea is the best and a logical and capable champion can be crowned by this method," said Commissioner Brower.

"We want to make this the most representative tournament possible and to admit every eligible boxer. By this method we can determine a real champion."

Tendler, who met Walker in Philadelphia on June 2 of last year immediately incurred the wrath of the New York commission, as it had ruled that any boxer who met the welterweight champion would be suspended. Zivic, by boxing Tendler in Pittsburgh this week, entered the same category in the view of the Commission.

SIX MONTHS PENALTY FOR THOSE WHO BOX WALKER

New York, Jan. 21.—The penalty for boxing Mickey Walker, world's welterweight champion, who is in disfavor with the New York state athletic commission, will be six months' suspension in this state, the commission determined today. This measure will go into effect immediately and will be retroactive.

Under the new ruling Bobby Barrett of Philadelphia and Jack Malone of St. Paul, Minn., who have been under the ban in this state for engaging in a match with Walker, will be reinstated together with their managers, and Lew Tendler of Philadelphia and Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh will be placed under the ban.

The commission also lifted the suspension of Dan Rogers of Buffalo, manager of Rocky Kansas, for his actions in connection with the Kansas-Bernstein match at Buffalo recently. Mickey Garcia of Utica, who fights under the name of Bushy Graham, was told to take a 30-day vacation to enable his injured hand to heal. This action was taken by the commission following complaint made by Providence, R. I., promoters, that Garcia ran out of a match with Charley Goodman at a Providence club. Garcia's manager was also instructed to sign his man for a match with Goodman at Providence before engaging in any future matches at the expiration of his vacation.

Leo Flynn, manager of Dave Monrose of Omaha, Neb., asked the commission to accept a challenge in behalf of his man to meet Francis Genaro, American flyweight champion, in a title match. The commission reserved decision until its meeting next week.

Walk Miller, manager of Tiger Flowers, Atlanta, Ga., negro, who was knocked out by Jack Delaney at Madison Square Garden last Friday, complained to the commission of a foreign substance in Delaney's glove which he alleged "brought about the knockout." Commissioner Brower said Miller conferred with him on Monday but that the evidence failed to substantiate Miller's charges. Brower told Miller that prompt action would be taken if he could furnish proof of his assertions."

BOTH LEAGUES WILL ASSIST IN INVESTIGATION

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Assurances from both the National and American leagues that every resource at the command of these two organizations would be placed at the disposal of Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball commissioner, and District Attorney Banton of New York, in assisting the New York prosecutor in his investigation of the Dolan-O'Connell baseball scandal was made today at the meeting of the baseball advisory council.

District Attorney Banton has asked the commissioner for the addresses of all the principals figuring in the scandal, together with any data bearing on the case not already included in the published testimony. This will be promptly turned over, Commissioner Landis said.

Today's meeting of the advisory council was the first since the break in relations between Landis and Ban Johnson, president of the American league, soon after Landis became commissioner. It was attended by President Heydler of the National league and Frank J. Navin, president of the Detroit club, selected by the American league club owners as the representative on the council, after they removed Johnson from membership.

The major league umpires, after making several appeals, won their attempt to obtain more money for their services in world's and city series. The council granted an increase. It was a compromise victory for the umpires, however.

Umpire Ernest Quigley of the National league had presented a letter to Commissioner Landis asking that each world's series umpire's share be increased from $3,000 to $3,500.

The council decided to recommend to the leagues that each umpire be given $2,500 for each series service.

Each umpire assigned to a city series will be given $750 instead of the old salary of $500, if another recommendation of the advisory council is adopted by the two leagues.

The council also voted in favor of allowing the two clubs finishing fourth in each league pennant races to share in the world's series receipts. Heretofore this division of the spoils was restricted to the first three clubs.

BALTIC WANDERERS WIN EASILY FROM DANIELSON

The Baltic Wanderers took an easy game from the Danielson Collegians Wednesday evening at the Baltic gym, defeating the visitors 48 to 28. Although the score was somewhat one-sided the Danielson team played exceptionally fine basketball against great odds. The Wanderers have developed a passing game that is putting them on the long end of the scores. Charron, the rangy auburn-haired center, was the shining light in last night's match, hooping 12 baskets and dropping in one foul for more than half of Baltic's points. Brundage and Goodreau were the stars for the visitors.

In the preliminary game the Bantams won from the Danielson Seconds in the last few minutes of what was an exceptionally close and spirited game. The score was 28 to 25. The summary:

CADETS WIN EASY GAME FROM DORMATS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 21.—With a defeat apparently staring them in the face, the Coast Guard Cadets rallied to their fast this evening to turn into a rout what was looked to be a defeat. The Cadets won finally by the score of 66 to 39, defeating the Dormats in the Y House league, and preserved their record which is clean in all games played thus far this season.

Coughlin led the scoring with 12 goals from the field, which consisted of baskets of every imaginable description. Taylor, who will be eligible for Bulkeley basketball now, played a fine game for the Dormats at one of the forward berths and had five field goals and three fouls to his credit. MacMahon was high scorer for the Dormats with 14 points.

TAYLOR RETURNS TO BULKELEY COURT TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 21.—So far this season, Bulkeley students have had little to rejoice over the accomplishments of the Orange and Black on the marked court. However the worm is expected to turn, so the remainder of the Bulkeley season is expected to turn for the better and that to begin giving some outward indication that the team is in the thick of the contests on the remainder of the schedule. The first real opportunity to express their feeling of joyousness was presented today with the reinstatement of Huck Taylor, forward of first class order.

Taylor who was down in one subject, removed the difficulty and reported for his first practice under Orange and Black colors this afternoon at the State armory. His presence in the lineu pis expected to help Bulkeley in the future lessen the large scores which have been hung up at her expense. Taylor was second high scorer during the season of 1922-23 with a hundred points, and is the only real veteran on the squad which constitutes the Bulkeley team. Perhaps the only player on the squad who can dribble the ball, and show real cleverness with the horsehide has caused a partial jump in Bulkeley stock on the chalked court.

TWO-MAN LEAGUE IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT IS ARRANGED

The directors of the Eastern Connecticut Bowling met Wednesday afternoon at the Bulletin office and laid preliminary plans for a two-man tournament which will start about the first of February. Tentative rules were drawn up governing the tournament which will be sent to all members of the association for their approval.

Several important rulings were thrashed out at the meeting which will apply to the five-man team-bowling as well as to the two-man. Among the rules discussed was the rule governing a tie game. It was voted that each man roll two frames to decide the game. Another ruling was on fouls and it was voted to have paid umpires at every match. The foul ball was more clearly defined.

Invitations to Willimantic, Danielson, Westerly, Mystic and Niantic to enter the two-man tournament. There will be a meeting next Wednesday afternoon when final arrangements will be made.

SUB BASE BEATS ARMY TEAM IN HARD GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 21.—It took the Submarine Base almost 15 minutes to get playing real basketball and after that time the lead the Acmy five had over the Tars, was overcome, allowing the Sub Base to breeze home to a 37 to 24 victory at the state armory this evening.

Although the base at the end of the first quarter 3 to 2 the second period found the Acmy offense centered around the massive Kelly and the team took the lead away from the Tars, but it was shortlived and the Base recaptured the lead before long and held throughout the rest of the game.

Bartz of the Base was high scorer of the evening with 17 points while Compton had six field goals. Kelly of the Acmy and L. Brewer of the same team, each had four field goals. The score:

NURMI SHATTERS TWO MORE WORLD'S RECORDS AT THE ST. JOSEPH'S GAMES

Newark, N. J., Jan. 21.(By The A. P.)—Paavo Nurmi, Finnish runner, shattered two more world's indoor records in the two and three-quarters mile special, the feature of the St. Joseph's Catholic clubs games in the Newark armory tonight. Nurmi ran the full distance in 13:03, breaking Hannes Kolehmainen's record of 13.06 3-5 made 12 years ago.

Nurmi also broke Kolehmainen's mark of 10:42 1-5 at 2 1-4 miles by 1-5 of a second.

One of the times made by the sensational Finn's noted predecessor, however, remained intact when Nurmi was fourfifth of a second slow in reaching the 2 1-2 mile line. Kolehmainen established the three marks in a race in the thirteenth regiment armory in New York on February 12 1913.

Nurmi was not pressed at any time during the race despite the fact that his three opponents were given handicaps of 150 yards. He caught the field at the mile and a half point and then lapped all three runners twice. He ran easily and apparently without effort. He appeared rested from his strenuous week-end and during the last two laps gave the crowded armory a thrill by coming home in a dashing sprint.

As a result of his two new records tonight, Nurmi now holds ten indoor running marks, nine of which he broke and one he established during his American campaign.

Walter Mulvihill, Holy Cross star, won the 600 yards special in 1:17. W. Gibson of Fordham was second and William McKillip of Boston College third. Six started in this event, Mulvihill winning by a wonderful sustained effort.

Leo Larrivee, Holy Cross star, running from scratch, won the 1,000-yard handicap from a large field of starters. Larrivee was the only scratch man in the event. G. Stichler of New York, unattached, a 50-yard handicap man, placed second and H. McArdle, New York, was third. F. McCloskey of Boston College, a five-yard-man, placed fourth. Larrivee's time was 2:21.

Harold Ray of the Newark A. C., won the 500 yards metropolitan championship.

Lynch of Bloomfield, N. J., a 13-yard man, won the 300-yard dash, a handicap affair. All scratch men lost in the final dash for the tape.

Georgetown University's quartet of crack quarter-milers won the one-mile Catholic college relay race, one of the feature events on the program. Holy Cross was second, Boston College third and Fordham fourth.

The Washington Collegians won by eight yards in a thrilling finish, Burgess, the Georgetown anchor man, nosing out Walter Mulvihill, Holy Cross star, in the final dash for the tape.

The time was 3:31 3-5.

Loen Murchison, Newark A. C. sprinter was the class of the field in the 70-yard dash winning handily from an entry of 30 starters in 7 4-5 seconds. SEN. BINGHAM'S SON WINS BOXING BOUT

New Haven, Jan. 21.—C. T. Bingham, son of U. S. Senator Hiram Bingham, and who is a freshman at Yale, won his bout in the 145 pound class in the finals of an elimination tournament to determine the championship boxers of Yale here tonight. Bingham was knocked down by his opponent, B. E. Bensinger, in the first round but he came back in the second and third and won his match. He will be given a gold medal and is assured of a place on the freshman boxing team through his victory.

Nine bouts in all were held, five freshman and four varsity, the participants being chosen after a series of elimination bouts held during the past months. The winners will compose the Eli varsity and freshman boxing teams that will meet the Navy and other opponents during the coming season.

CHAPMAN TECH TO PLAY PLAINFIELD THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 21.—With the memory of a two point defeat lingering in the minds of the Chapman Tech players early in the season at the hands of Plainfield High, the local school team is agog with excitment and expectancy of a victory when these teams assemble on the court for a renewal of their feud on this (Thursday) evening. Besides this game, the fast moving Acmy will engage the Marines from the Submarine Base in a preliminary contest.

Chapman Tech's pivot player, Hewitt turned his ankle in the game with Windham High last Friday, but has since recovered from this minor physical ailment. The remainder of the lineup will be same as in previous contests, with Hicks and Andrews at the forward berths, and Knox and Montgomery in the backcourt.

Plainfield was defeated by Bulkeley 7 to 6 soon after the contest this team won from Chapman Tech, so that an endeavor to select the strongest team in this section of the state finds a muddled mess in the standing.

In the 100-yard swim, Bronson, of Yale finished in 55 3-5 seconds, the national collegiate record being 54 4-5.

The state commission supported the referee's verdict.

SPORTING NOTES

Wrestling is believed to be the oldest competitive sport.

Since 1839, the Grand National has ranked as the principal steeplechase that is run in England.

Only about one in fifty ivory tusks is sufficiently close grained and of suitable size to be made into billiard balls.

Selection of a boat to compete for the international trophy in England this year will be made during the week's racing schedule of the Boston Model Yacht Club on the Charles River, Boston, in July.

Patrons of the Western Canada Hockey Association are being treated to a close three-cornered race for first place, the Victoria, Calgary and Edmonton teams being the contestants for top place in the standing.

In deciding to send all of his players to New Orleans in a bunch, President Quinn of the Boston Red Sox is departing somewhat from the general custom of sending the battery men ahead of the regular squad for spring training.

Preparations are being made in St. Paul for the annual tournament of the Women's Northern Bowling Association, which is to be held in that city next month in conjunction with the International Bowling Association tournament.

The granting of this year's diamond trophy championship to Lake Placid means a revival of the amateur skating meet of 1922, declared by officials of the International Skating Union to have been the greatest skating meet ever held on the American continent.

The coming Oxford-Cambridge boat race will be the seventy-sixth annual rowing contest in which the crews of the two big English universities have competed. The first race was rowed in 1829, but it was not until ten years later that the contest became an annual fixture.

George Dixon, the famous little negro fighter who held the world's featherweight championship, had probably the longest ring career on record. From the time that he made his debut in 1886 until his retirement twenty years later he participated in nearly 900 battles in the squared circle.

The training of a winner of the Waterloo Cup, the blue ribbon event of English coursing, is a long and costly process. Anything from a few hundred to a few thousand dollars have to be spent. The dog which actually runs may have a hundred kennel companions and assistants whose wages and expenses may run to $5,000 a year. The bill for food is another big item. English rump steak, Welsh mutton, and even poultry find their way into the kennels of prospective champions. Milk, new-laid eggs, cod liver oil, port wine and whiskey also figure in the dietary, while the best woolen clothing and sponges of superfine quality have to be provided.

GOV. TRUMBULL'S MESSAGE TO ASSEMBLY

Hartford, Jan. 21.—Governor John H. Trumbull today delivered the following message at a joint session of the general assembly:

Mr. President, Mr. Speaker and Members of the General Assembly:

You have recently received a report on the state of the government from my distinguished predecessor. With the observations and recommendations contained therein I am in full accord. There are, however, several other matters to which I desire to draw your attention.

The Fiscal Policy

It is of the utmost importance that you adopt a fiscal policy at the outset of this session. You have before you projects for new construction in connection with state institutions, the aggregate cost of which, if added to the lowest estimate of maintenance expenses, would result in a treasury deficit at the close of the fiscal period unless taxes were increased. It is the duty of state officials to inform you fully of the needs of the departments or institutions for which they are responsible. It is for you to determine the relative merit of the requests presented from the several sources which properly look to the general assembly for support. In some instances questions of the future policy of the state are involved, and such questions should be met only after careful and thoughtful consideration.

The line of demarcation between the executive and the legislative branches of the government need not hinder our taking counsel together in the common purpose to conduct the state's affairs on a businesslike basis and live within our means. Whatever may be the requirements upon this session of the general assembly, none takes precedence over our manifest duty to leave the state as sound financially as we find it. If this object can be accomplished without impeding the work of any of our departments or institutions, a further reduction in taxes effected by the practice of rigid economy, a noteworthy advance will have been made.

Application to the state government of the same principles which govern successful private enterprise is a prerequisite. Most of us would immediately acquire many conveniences we now lack if our means were increased, and we find it expedient to go without what we cannot afford. There is no reason for us to do otherwise with the public funds at our disposal. Desirable features are no doubt to be found in many of the current proposals for extension of the state's scope of work, but new departures in government create new sources of expense and, unless existing activities are curtailed, require increased revenue, which means additional taxes. Our first obligation is properly to provide for expansion commensurate with the state's growth of the work we have already undertaken. Certain of our institutions are seriously overcrowded and conditions at some are such as to require prompt attention. In other instances also meritorious but perhaps not imperative, you will find it necessary to defer appropriations until a subsequent session. The withholding of an appropriation in one session because of the limitation of funds should not be considered prejudicial to a project at another time unless so stated by the general assembly. Suffice to say, it is useless to attempt to meet all the state's needs at once.

Appropriations

To the end that the most equitable distribution of the available state funds may be achieved, I recommend that you fix your taxing policy early in the session as a guide to your appropriations committee, and that you limit your appropriations to the receipts estimated to be available from the taxes you approve. The general assembly follows a fallacious and uneconomic principle when it proceeds with its authorizations for expenditures before determining what the state's income for the fiscal period shall be. The reverse procedure would be more in keeping with sound business practice. It would appear to be the course of wisdom for you to determine first what forms of taxes are to be in effect for the period under consideration and the amount of revenue these taxes might reasonably be expected to produce, and then to hold your appropriations to a total well within that figure.

It would aid materially if you would dispose of the budget of maintenance appropriations at the earliest possible date consistent with this policy. The experience of four sessions has demonstrated that it is rarely necessary for the general assembly to modify recommendations as to maintenance appropriations made by the board of finance. Here we have a department whose constant contact with the state's several activities makes it a competent judge of maintenance requirements under existing status. You may deem it wise to request your appropriations committee to report the budget of maintenance appropriations not later than the first day of March and to submit a supplementary budget at the close of the session to conform to any changes that shall have been made subsequently in statutory requirements or in the needs of any branch of the state government, whether occasioned by provisions for increased population at state institutions or by extended activities of state departments.

Capital Investments

Early disposal of the maintenance appropriations by acceptance of the recommendations of the board of finance, which have been determined upon a scientific basis after full investigation of each item, would tend greatly to expedite your work. It would relieve your appropriations committee of the burden of public hearings going over ground already covered by the board of finance, at a time when it could be making an early and advantageous start in the consideration of appropriations requested for new construction, equipment, acquisition and projects, many of them of a controversial nature, and concerning none of which it has been the policy of the board of finance to make recommendations.

Owing to the custom, or formality, under which the appropriations committee has retraced the steps of the board of finance in the matter of maintenance requests, the experience of recent sessions has been that consideration of important proposals for capital investments has been delayed until late in the session, when the time of the general assembly has been too limited to give these matters well to bear in mind that a hasty decision to establish or enlarge a state institution affects not only the immediate capital investment, which may be of doubtful value, but virtually commits the state to a permanent substantial increase in maintenance appropriations which might be spent to greater advantage had a more favorable site been selected in the first place. Connecticut already has examples of this kind which it may profit in its policy for the future.

The general assembly is, of course, responsible for its own rules of procedure and the plan I have outlined is largely a matter of legislative procedure, but in view of the direct influence which it has upon the financial aspect of this administration, I ask your indulgence to bring it to your attention.

State Office Building

The time has come to give earnest consideration to the need for a state office building. Owing to the rapid growth of the state's business the capitol has become inadequate to accomodate the departments necessary to be located at the seat of the government, and temporary quarters established in nearby buildings are being outgrown. It is scarcely a credit to Connecticut to have its central administrative offices distributed throughout nine different buildings, nor is it desirable to continue the practice of issuing motor vehicle registrations in the capitol resulting as it does in periodical congestion of practically the entire building, a condition which grows increasingly objectionable as the number of registrants continues to advance. Considering the time required for the construction of an administration building, in relation to the rate at which the business of state departments is expanding, it appears advisable to take definite action without delay.

I recommend that commission be raised at this session to make a survey of the accommodations now available for the use of state departments at Hartford and their probable period of usefulness, and, if it deems the erection of a state office building necessary, to select a site, obtain plans, specifications and estimate, and report its findings to the next session of the general assembly.

I would also commend to you the advisability of adopting a style of architecture characteristic of the state of Connecticut to be followed in the future construction of all state institution buildings. Such a plan would not only simplify the cost of plans, a remarkably large item in the state's expenses, but make for a uniformity in appearance that would assist in distinguishing state buildings wherever located.

Banking Department

No division of the state government is more important to the people than the banking department. Although the public does not come directly in contact with it, this department is held responsible by the state for careful examination at regular intervals of savings banks in which there stood on deposit at the close of the last fiscal year approximately $485,000,000 and state banks and trust companies whose books at that time showed deposits of more than $226,000,000. It is highly essential that examiners of unquestioned fitness be kept in the service of the state for this important work. The banks themselves desire it and the depositors have a right to expect it. Yet the bank commissioner is frequently unable to pay an expert examiner what a bank has offered for his services, because of the salary limitations fixed by our statutes, and the state loses an efficient examiner at his period of maximum usefulness. The services of such an official are worth as much to the state as to any bank and, inasmuch as the banks examined by the state share the cost of maintaining the state banking department, it would seem to be singularly appropriate for the state to pay its examiners within reasonable limits what they could secure for their services elsewhere.

Moreover, since such heavy responsibility is put upon the banking department the state should provide the tools which it needs. The present law requires the department to make annual examinations of the banks in its jurisdiction. The department is doing even better, and has succeeded in reducing the interim between examinations to nine months. The legislature might well consider the advisability of allowing enough examiners to enable the department to give semi-annual examinations.

To meet a part of the additional expense thus entailed, I recommend that the statutes be amended to apportion one-half of the annual payments made for salaries, allowances and expenses of the bank commissioner's office among the state banks, savings banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, mortgage investment companies, private banks and all other corporations coming under the jurisdiction of the state banking department and doing business in this state. The law now requires such banking institutions to reimburse the state for two-fifth such annual payments, and representative organizations of state bankers have recently volunteered to assume an increased burden of the expense provided more frequent examinations were made by the state.

Stream Pollution

The pollution of many of our streams is a subject which should receive very consideration at this session. The health and happiness of our people, upon which the welfare of the commonwealth is founded, requires the state to meet this question squarely sooner or later, and for each year that the remedial legislation is put off the solution becomes more difficult and the problems of those who would now evade the issue more complex. To attempt to devise a perfect remedy at once would be unwise and useless. A start would be a step in the right direction, and the nucleus for further legislation that might be approached more intelligently in the light of resultant experience. Such a beginning could be made with the aim to restore and protect the natural life of state waters, but without imposing undue hardships upon anyone. Your action should be progressive and constructive, not impulsive and destructive. The purpose should be to limit, reduce and control pollution, rather than to prohibit it, and care must be taken to safeguard the rights of all. Drastic legislation would retard ultimate progress in dealing with the question, and yet a bill without some means of enforcement might prove to be of little value. If the right of appeal is given, there need be no hesitancy about passing a bill providing a penalty for violations. The administration of such legislation should be put in the hands of persons who have at heart the welfare of the state, of its industries, and of its individual citizens.

Department of Motor Vehicles

Too much emphasis cannot be put upon the need for legislation to require those who maintain daily truck services across Connecticut to and from New York city to pay fees to the State of Connecticut in proportion to the wear to which they subject our highways. Although this matter was brought to your attention by my predecessor, I welcome this opportunity to stress by repetition the need for remedial legislation at this time. Not only is it manifestly unfair for the state to allow the practically gratuitous use of its highways to heavy vehicles of this type used in competition with railroads operated on private rights of way, but the state is deprived of revenue for all freight diverted to these highway truck services from the railroads, which pay taxes to the state on their gross earnings.

It is recommended that consideration be given to the advisability of determining registration fees for passenger motor vehicles upon a more equitable basis. The relative wear to which different types of automobiles subject our highways cannot be accurately ascertained by computation of the total piston displacement of the motors which propel them. There would appear to be more justification for fixing registration fees of all motor vehicles in proportion to their gross weight.

Aviation

Connecticut occupies a unique position in aviation. It is the natural gateway between New England and the rest of the nation. In aviation law, safeguarding the lives and property of the people, is second to none in the country. It has one of the twelve National Guard Aero Squadrons in the United States, made possible by legislation adopted at the last session of the general assembly. Fields are inspected, planes tested and pilots examined by the state police department as a part of its regular duties, and the motor vehicle department maintains a strict disciplined over aviators whom it licenses. The City of Hartford already has invested nearly $65,000 in a municipal airport, and land valued at $20,000 has been dedicated by citizens in various parts of the state to the uses of aviation. Private capital has established a permanent airport at Bethany, New Haven and New Britain are taking definite steps toward the same end.

Air transportation should be encouraged by the state and notwithstanding Connecticut's advanced position in aviation, our aeronautic activities are still hampered by lack of proper facilities. Aircraft is capable of great economic service and I am convinced that the state will receive ample return for such reasonable expenditures as it may feel moved to make in behalf of aviation. I commend to your consideration the need of a greatly increased number of landing fields. To an aviator in distress, a well-marked place to land is as important as a port to a mariner in a storm. The expense is not great and it may be possible to conceive a form of state aid to the available, in proportion to the total cost involved, to municipalities which provide such fields. The Hartford airport has cost in four years about as much as would be required to construct one mile of the best type of concrete highway. Suitable shops for the proper maintenance of United States aeronautical equipment in our charge to the value of approximately $200,000, for which the commonwealth is responsible, should be provided. In the interest of public safety, if for no other reason, every city and town in the state should arrange to display a distinguishing mark readily discernible to pilots making their way from place to place in bad weather. Less than this we cannot do for the advancement of a science whose influence upon our daily lives is already to be felt.

Conclusion

I have endeavored here to mention only such matters, in addition to those so ably discussed by my predecessor, as appear to require thoughtful consideration at the beginning of your deliberations. I come to the office of governor under circumstances which have imposed upon me with great suddenness responsibilities of whose importance I am fully cognizant and attention to which has necessarily delayed consideration by me of further subjects concerning which I may have occasion to address you at a future date.

JOHN H. TRUMBULL.

down rapidly into routine work the bills read in thus far have been few in number. While it has been usual for the floor to pour in on the last day for introduction of new business, which will be next week Friday, it is already foreseen that the volume of business to be digested this session will be less than usual.

For many of the matters so far offered have more than passive interest, the larger number affecting individual communities or individuals themselves. Proposals to change statute laws have been few up to this time. The legislature will sit tomorrow and adjourn over until Tuesday.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germ that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

POETRY

THE HILLS OF HAPPINESS.

When winter's lonely, barren hills
Stand forth in snowy dress,
We then should christen them anew
The Hills of Happiness!

Here mothers clack of chores undone
Of fathers to be told
Unhearing sons refused to hear:
"You'll get your death of cold!"

Sleds left neglected in the yard
To rust in rain and dew,
Have runners rubbed with father's hone —
There goes the clothesline, too!

Through backyard gates pass hurried feet,
Time's far too sweet to lose;
No thought is given stockings torn,
No heed to punctured shoes.

Soon up the Hills of Happiness,
Then down they blithely go;
The way seems shorter from the top
Than from the end below!

Yet, up and down, and down and up,
They race till close of day;
Tired legs wish God had made all hills
Run just the downward way.

At last the homeward drag begins,
But few trudge on alone,
For new friends have been made that day—
Those with no sleds their own.

New comradeships have made the hours
Too happy to express;
Which makes them, in reality,
The Hills of Happiness!
—William Herschell, in Indianapolis News.

SOUL'S TWILIGHT.

The late sun slips beyond the verge of day—
Beyond a cloud, low-cradled in the dying
gold.
The brooding twilight deepens; dimly
black,
The great trees climb the far-off, shadowed hills.
So day and dusk cling close together,
hand in hand,
While nearer creep the dark-browned hours of night.

. . . . . .

There comes the peace of twilight to the soul
When meaningless all old desires seem Paltry and trivial, those things of which we dream
As being, O, so vital to life's whole!

Why should we feel a nameless, vague regret
Because they lose their charm, as fades the day?
Afar, a happier moonlight leads the way—
Beyond the dusk glow brighter visions yet!
—Agnes Choate Wonson, in Boston
Globe.

Few telephone exchanges have more trouble than at Washington, Pa., where the calling is not done by number but by name. The trouble arises from the fact that there are five Frank Smiths to be called by the operator and none of them is known by his middle initial. The operator picks one at random, and if that is not the one wanted calls the others in turn until the right one is found.

WESTERLY

Property owners on the north side of High street have received notices from the Westerly highway commission advising them that on next Monday evening a hearing is planned on the widening of that street or highway. Beginning at the High street railroad bridge near the junction of Oak street the need of a wider highway will be especially desirable, if not almost necessary, to care for the increased automobile traffic when the new state highway from Pleasant street to the top of Vincent Ouer hill is completed. The highway continues through the new layout, over the Meeting House bridge, over the Pawcatuck river and through Hopkinton City and Hope Valley to Providence When completed the highway distance from Westerly to Providence will be but a little over 37 miles. And then, too, it is thought that a "middle route" to Providence by way of Bradford, Wood River Junction, Shannock and Carolina to Kingston and a center layout between the Noose Neck Hill road and the Boston Post road coming into Westerly by way of Oak street will increase the traffic to such an extent that a wider High street is an absolute necessity. It is understood that the Westerly highway commission would like to add a fifteen-foot strip of land to give High street the desired width.

Beginning today (Thursday) Miss Ethel M. Doherty of Holyoke, Mass., will assume her duties as superintendent of the Westerly hospital. Miss Doherty was the choice of the committee on hiring a superintendent and this selection has been confirmed by the board of directors.

Miss Doherty was in Westerly on January 8 and inspected the hospital property in company with the committee. Her character, education and past record as a hospital executive combined to make her the unanimous choice of the committee and the board of directors as well.

A native of Clinton, Ontario, Miss Doherty attended the Clinton Collegiate institute later was a student for two years at Huvergal college, Toronto. In 1909 she was graduated from the Massachusetts General hospital school for nurses. After seven months of service as head nurse of the Massachusetts General hospital, she was surgical supervisor there for one year and first assistant to the training school superintendent for one year. Subsequently she became connected with the Holyoke City hospital, serving as superintendent of nurses from 1912 to 1917 and superintendent of both hospital and nurses from 1917 to 1923. The Holyoke hospital has approximately 150 beds.

Miss Doherty is not a stranger to this section of New England, having been a summer resident of Groton Long Point a number of years ago. Westerly appeals to her as an excellent town in which to live. Miss Doherty recently returned to Holyoke after spending six months abroad for purposes of rest and recreation.

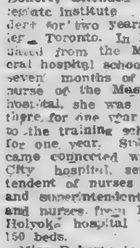
WOMEN BORN 1873 TO 1881

Now Is the Critical Time. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will Help You Safely Through

Convoy, Ohio.—"During the Change of Life I was weak and run-down and could hardly do my work. By reading your advertisements I found out about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has straightened me right out and made me feel like a new woman. By the time I had taken eight bottles I was well and could do my housework on the farm without trouble. I recommended it to my daughter-in-law after her second baby was born and it did her a wonderful lot of good. I told her to try it and if it didn't help her I would pay for it, and before she had taken one bottle she said to me, 'You won't have to pay for it! It is helping me wonderfully!' And she took three bottles of it. You can use my testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. ELSIE ACKERMAN, Convoy, Ohio.



Consider carefully Mrs. Ackerman's letter. Her experience ought to help you. She tells of the trials of middle age and the wonderful results she obtained from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Its Greatest Values Cannot Be Copied

The Chassis Is Patented

As its Coach Body changed the whole trend to closed cars, so the Essex Chassis likewise forecasts the mechanical design of the future.

Essex provides stability without unnecessary weight. It has economy without sacrifice of performance.

It is low priced without disappointment in looks or reliability.

It is more than up-to-date in design. It is in advance of any car with which its price can be compared.

It is built on the Super-Six principle, by Hudson workmen in the Hudson shops.

In quality Hudson and Essex are alike. The patents which make the Super-Six the most enduring, smoothest motor and give it all advantages sought in eight cylinders, prevent any from copying its chassis as has been so generally done in copying the Coach body.

WILL WATCH ECLIPSES EFFECT ON STORRS HENS

There is some conjecture at Storrs concerning what will happen next Saturday among the hens in the laying trials. There are more than thirty laying contests in this country and Canada but only two of them, namely those conducted at Farmingdale, L. I., and at Storrs that will experience a total eclipse of the sun on the 24th of January. Since the poultry houses at Storrs are all equipped with electric lights these could, of course, be switched on and thus avoid any interruption in the laying program for the day. The management does not, however, intend to do this. Instead, arrangements have been made for special observations with particular reference to the behavior of the hens during this rare phenomenon. It is expected that many of the birds will go back to bed just as if night had come eight hours ahead of schedule. Although the eclipse is total at Storrs a little after nine o'clock some hens will nevertheless have entered the nests and gone about the day's business. In addition to noting the effect of the eclipse on these "early birds" there is also the question as to whether or not the high point of production for the day will be postponed.

In the eleventh week of the fourteenth annual contest the heavy breeds decidedly outstripped the Leghorns. D. H. Horton's pen of Rhode Island Reds from Farmingdale, L. I., made the best score with a total of 51 eggs. Ellen Day Ranken's pen of White Rocks from Huntington, L. I., was second best pen for the week with a record of 46 eggs. Thomas H. Matteson's pen of White Wyandottes from Davisville, R. I., was in third place with a lay of 44 eggs. Hilltop Farm from Suffield, Conn., had the only pen of Leghorns that made the honor roll. They did it very comfortably, however, as these ten pullets were only one egg behind the Wyandottes from Rhode Island. The total production for all pens was 3,468 or a yield of more than 35 per cent. This represents a gain of 251 eggs over last week's score. On the other hand this total is below expectation from the 1,400 birds in the contest when compared with the performance of 1,000 birds in the corresponding period last year.

A COUGH REMEDY WITHOUT OPIATES

Many cough preparations contain some one or more harmful drugs which are added to take the place of opiates. None of these narcotic substitutes have ever been used in Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. The name of every ingredient is plainly printed on every carton. You know what you are taking when you take Foley's. It clings to the cough, why not try it? Refuse substitutes. Lee & Osgood Co.

SCIENTISTS AND STUDENTS COMING TO NEW LONDON TO VIEW ECLIPSE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 21.—Several hundred scientists, astronomical authorities and college students will come to New London next Friday afternoon and evening for the purpose of viewing the solar eclipse at 9.13 o'clock Saturday morning. Among the many visitors to come here will be large representations from Harvard university, Wellesley college, Dana Hall and Walnut Hill schools and 500 students from Worcester, Mass., who will come to New London by special train.

Mrs. Christine Olson, 44, wife of Eric G. Olson of Poquonoc Bridge, died this morning at her home. Besides her husband, Mrs. Olson is survived by a brother, two sons and two daughters.

Mrs. Elsie B. Avery, widow of Gurdon C. Avery, has qualified as administratrix of the estate of her husband. Mr. Avery died suddenly following an attack of acute indigestion in East Lyme several weeks ago.

Traffic on all lines of the Connecticut company was practically normal today following the severe storm of yesterday. The only line on which cars were not operated on schedule was between New London and Norwich and the delay in the arrival and departure of cars on that line was not such as to seriously inconvenience patrons. About 10 o'clock last night and following the big snowplow having been in continuous service since 6 o'clock a. m., the powerful device became disabled, the brushes falling from the big cylinders at either end of the car. Shortly after 10 o'clock the plow was taken to Norwich, where repairs are being made to it so that in the event of another storm the plow will be ready for service again.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hickman, 233 Ocean avenue, are spending a few days in New York.

Morris Elionsky, a patient at Home Memorial hospital a fortnight, returned to his home on Moore avenue today.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reynolds and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Reynolds of Colman street have arrived at Hialeahs, Fla., where they will remain until spring.

An automobile owned by Albert E. Moore, Main street, merchant, and operated by Charles Grimes, was wrecked late yesterday when Grimes lost control of the machine during the blinding snowstorm in Chesterfield, the machine crashing against one of the protectory fences along the highway. The wishbone of the machine was smashed, as were three wheels. Grimes sustained injuries only of a trivial nature.

The police today received numerous complaints because of property owners failing to comply with the city ordinance relative to the removal of snow and ice from sidewalks. Particular complaint was made of sidewalks on Montauk avenue and on Connecticut avenue, corner of Rogers street. The city ordinances provide for the cleaning of the walks by city employes, the cost of performing the work to be taxed against the property, providing the snow and ice is not removed within 24 hours after the abatement of a storm.

Sergeant of Police John Cavanaugh was in New York today testifying in the United States district court in the case of the Maynard Brothers, arrested in Brooklyn several weeks ago, charged with the theft of property of the federal government. The brothers went to Fort Terry, where they stole a quantity of supplies and equipment. Loading the plunder into a boat, and coming across the sound, they made this port. Arriving here, they went to a junk shop, where they intended to negotiate a sale of some of the plunder, but when they scented the police on their trail they abandoned their loot and escaped, only to be taken into custody several days later at Brooklyn.

The vagrants being housed by the B. P. Learned mission were given plenty of work the past two days, for since the snow stopped falling fifteen of the wanderers have been engaged clearing the snow-covered walks throughout the city. It is the first time in many years that any such number of vagrants has been put to work while being housed by the mission.

The largest number of patrolmen to appear before the special committee of the city council, Councillors Edward L. Streeter, Jr., John F. Murray and Lucius E. Whiton, who are conducting an investigation to determine the efficiency of the police department, was that summoned before the investigators at the hearing which took place in the juvenile court room, municipal building, this evening at 8 o'clock. Nine patrolmen were quizzed by the investigators. They were Edward Daniels, John Clifford, John Sullivan, Carlos Selisnitsky, Timothy C. Sullivan, Dennis Murphy, Thomas Leyden, Braxton Hill and Frank Philopena. The hearing occupied about two hours. As a result of the examination of the witnesses tonight, but five more patrolmen remain to be interrogated. It is then planned to cause a number of citizens to appear before the board and relate what they allege to know of the workings of the police department and the alleged violation of the rules and regulations by some of the officers. With the remaining five officers to be questioned during the present week, it is believed that the hearings will be concluded within another week or ten days, after which City Manager William A. Holt will render his report of the findings of the committee, with possible recommendations to the council.

Antonio and Maria Bassi have sold a tract of land on Squire street to Mary Ellen Murtha.

Fritz Maibohn, of the tug Eugene Hughes; Mrs. Edwin McBrean and infant daughter, Preston avenue, New York; Miss Carl Herman, Williams street, and Miss Isabel MacKenzie, Groton, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Philip D. Stayner, about 52, son of Mrs. Marion Stayner Lillie, widow of Julius Lillie and former principal of Colt street school, residing at 55 Huntington street, died last night at his home in Aurora, Ill. Mr. Stayner had not resided in New London for about 26 years. Besides his mother, he is survived by a wife.

Mrs. Mary E. Moosbroker, 83, the widow of Sebastian B. Moosbroker, died last night at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Conrad Frueh, 396 Bank street. Mrs. Moosbroker had not enjoyed sound health for a long time because of infirmities attending her advanced years. Besides Mrs. Frueh, Mrs. Moosbroker is survived by three daughters, three sons, several grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Mrs. Carolina Perry, 68, widow of Antone Perry, died this morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Antone Aguiar 39 Denison avenue, her demise ending an illness of many months. Mrs. Perry was a native of the Madeira Islands, but had resided in New London many years. She is survived by a son, Manuel Perry, of Waterford, eight grandchildren and one great grandchild, other than by her daughter.

The police received a telephone message about 12.30 o'clock this morning that an automobile, owned by Rev. Joseph Raniszewski, rector of Our Lady of Perpetual Help church, was afire in a garage at 360 Main street. A telephone message was sent to fire headquarters and Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman and the Niemeo Engine company responded. The flames were attacked with chemicals and were quickly subdued, but the automobile was considerably damaged, while the garage also suffered damage.

Antone Enos, a member of Thomas Hose company, is a patient at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, suffering from a fractured ankle bone, which injury he sustained early this morning by being thrown from the Niagara Engine company.

About 1.45 o'clock when the fire apparatus was responding to a call from the authorities of Montville, where the storehouse of the Robinson paper mill was in flames, Enos attempted to board the apparatus as it turned from Main into Williams street. He was unsuccessful and was thrown with considerable force to the icy highway, landing in such a manner as to fracture a bone of the left ankle. He was picked up by Patrolman Braxton Hill and taken to the quarters of Thomas Hose company and later removed to the office of City Physician George P. Cheney, who, after examining the injury, caused Enos to be transferred to the hospital. Enos will be under treatment at the institution for some time.

Miss Ruth E. Cobb, Jordan village, became wedged in the mass of shoppers, early this forenoon, who attempted to gain admission to a hardware store, where a closing out sale is in progress. While being jostled about by men and women, Miss Cobb lost her purse containing $20 and a small sum in change. She reported her loss to the police, but the money was not recovered.

Samuel Campbell, 20 Division street, complained to the police this afternoon that while he absented himself from his home the place was entered by a thief and that a small savings bank containing $4 or $5 was stolen, together with a dollar bill that was in another part of the house. Mrs. Annie A. Latham, occupying the tenement beneath that of Campbell, informed the police that she had heard footsteps in the upper part of the house but believed them to be those of a plumber, who had been working there. Mrs. Latham also stated that a short time after hearing the footsteps she heard a knocking upon her door and before she answered the alarm, the door was opened and a young man inquired where "Williams lived." No one by the name of Williams resides in the neighborhood. It is believed that the young man was the thief.

At the New London Women's club last evening a group of interested persons gathered to hear Miss Charlotte M. Holloway, of 247 Williams street, industrial investigator for the state, and Dr. Henry W. Lawrence Jr., professor of history and political science at Connecticut college, debate on the proposed child labor amendment. Miss Holloway took the stand that the proposed amendment is predicated upon an entire revolution in the form of government of the United States.

She held that this amendment, if adopted, would give to the centralized federal agency an unlimited power which would find its limitations chiefly in the ideas of the administrators. This point of view she justified by asserting that power is always interpreted by the administrative agency. According to this speaker, it would be impossible for a central bureau by arbitrary standards and departmental rules to offset the different conditions of the 48 states. Referring to the charge that manufacturers' associations are financing the opposition, she declared that she was the first one in the state to come out in opposition and that no manufacturer or employer of labor had ever dared to influence her or even discuss the question.

Doctor Lawrence said in his address:

"Those persons who are opposed to the child labor amendment are being greatly aided in their fight by the fact that a great many people are disgusted or disgusted by the difficulties which have assailed the 18th amendment and the Volstead act. They are saying 'let's not add to our present oversupply of lawlessness by authorizing another federal law that can not be enforced.' But these people are speaking out of their angry hearts rather than out of their clear heads."

SHE THREW AWAY CALOMEL AND TOOK BEECHAM'S PILLS

"I felt so miserable," said the young woman cashier in a fashionable New Jersey hotel. "A friend suggested calomel and I was about to take it.

"Another friend noticed the calomel on my desk and cautioned me against it. She said her sister took calomel and ate some fruit and the combination 'salivated' her, loosened some of her teeth and made her very sick.

"Fearing that my stomach might be in an acid condition, I bought a 25c box of Beecham's Pills and took a dose. The next day I felt fine and I haven't needed anything during the three weeks since.

"I wouldn't take anything but Beecham's now. Some of the other girls here take Beecham's and all say they are wonderful."

THOUSANDS HAVE KIDNEY TROUBLE AND NEVER SUSPECT IT

APPLICANTS FOR INSURANCE OFTEN REJECTED

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.

Peter Becomes Really Anxious

The simpled things may chance to be The harder they may be to see.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was free, but just the same he was a prisoner. He was free because he could leave the little bramble-tangle in which he was hiding whenever he pleased. He was a prisoner because he didn't dare leave that little bramble-tangle. All night Hooty the Owl had watched that bramble-tangle ready to pounce on Peter the instant he left it. Peter had thought that with the coming of day he would have a chance to get away, but hardly had Hooty given up and gone to spend the day in a dark place when Terror the Goshawk took his place and watched that bramble-tangle.

Several times Terror flew away to hunt for food, but he never went far. Peter didn't dare leave the bramble-tangle while there was any chance that Terror might be near. Each time Terror returned and resumed watch. Twice during the day Reddy Fox came and peered into the bramble-tangle.

A little before sunset time Terror the Goshawk flew away and Peter knew by the way in which he flew that he had gone for good. With a little sigh of thankfulness Peter prepared to leave the bramble-tangle. He had just poked his head outside and was looking this way and that when Hooty the Owl arrived on his watch tower again. Peter saw him just in time and hurriedly drew back.

"It's of no use," said Peter, "I can't hide and that's all there is to it."

"Oh, dear," whimpered Peter. "I wonder if that fellow is going to keep me here another night. I'd starve to death if I can't get out of here soon. It was bad enough over in the dear Old Briar Patch, but it is worse here. Mr. those fellows must be hungry to be so patient. If Hooty keeps watch all night and Terror comes back tomorrow morning I don't see how I am ever going to get away from here. If only I had a white coat like my cousin, Jumper the Hare, I might have some chance. But without any leaves on the brambles I am in plain sight all the time. Those fellows can look right down through the brambles and see me sitting here. If only I could hide they might think that somehow I had managed to get away, and then they would stop watching."

Then Peter really began to use his wits. He began to look about for some means of getting out of sight. He crept under where the brambles were the thickest, but it didn't take him long to find out that even there he could still be seen by sharp eyes. He hunted all through that little bramble-tangle, but there wasn't a place in it where he couldn't be seen.

"It's of no use," said Peter. "I can't hide and that's all there is to it." And right then he thought of something that was so simple he couldn't understand why he hadn't thought of it before.

"I guess I must be getting stupid. I guess my wits must have been asleep," muttered Peter.

Winehill and Briscoe are here [illegible] for a laugh.

Love sure is a wondrous thing, but try to [illegible]!

[illegible] at a movie? Life fixed [illegible] life you're going to [illegible] Sayres' latest production [illegible] count. Worldly Goods [illegible] at the Broadway theater [illegible] a screwing comedy in every sense of the word, with just enough drama and loads of heart-appeal.

Sophie Kerr wrote the story from which the picture was adapted by A. P. Younger. It first ran serially in the Ladies' Home Journal and was later published in novel form. To say that the book was successful is putting it mildly and to say that the picture is the book brought to life just about describes the screen version of the story to a "T."

Bread Theater

He Who Gets Slapped is a motion picture production that can truthfully be called great. It opened at the Bread yesterday and that house should do capacity business during the engagement, for the picture is one of the finest contributions of the year.

The story centers about a noted scientist whose life work and wife are taken by a man who was supposed to be his best friend. Despondent, the scientist joins a circus as a clown. This gives an opportunity for many amusing touches and also for a tender love story. While the story is essentially a tragic one, the background of the European circus takes away any depression that might result.

The notable cast includes Lon Chaney, Norma Shearer, John Gilbert, Ford Sterling, Tully Marshall, Marc McDermott, Clyde Cook, Paulette Duval, Ruth King and others.

He Who Gets Slapped is a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production and was adapted to the screen by Carey Wilson and Victor Seastrom.

A Larry Semon comedy and the Pathe news make up the remainder of the bill.

Lyceum Theater, New London

On Saturday morning New London folks will have a fine view of the total eclipse of the sun. In olden days this phenomenon was supposed to foretell the end of the world or other dire events. In case the world really comes to an end on Saturday New London theatergoers can go happily, for they will feel that they have seen the treat of a lifetime of theater-going in The Stork, the smart and audacious comedy which is bound for Broadway, where it opens its run next Monday, but which stops off in New London for two nights, this evening and Friday night, at the Lyceum theater.

A cast of all-star quality was selected to present The Stork and it is seldom indeed that New London playgoers are treated to such an aggregation of such high class dramatic talent. In the company are Katherine Alexander, Geoffrey Kerr, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Lora Sanderson, Barbara Bennett, Ralph Shirley, Carlotta Irwinn, Thomas McLarnit, Lee Baker, Mildred Brown, and many others.

Tonight's performance will not be the first of The Stork. It opened in Albany last Monday and the critics of that city were a unit in pronouncing it the wittiest and most brilliant of recent comedy productions. This opinion was shared by the many New York theater managers who journeyed to Albany to see the first performance, for they all tried to get the attraction for their Broadway houses. The Cort theater was finally selected, and it will open its Broadway run in the playhouse next Monday, immediately following its two performances at the Lyceum theater.

A Possible Shortage of Tea

Shall we have a tea shortage?

That is the question that is causing more or [illegible] concern among tea merchants and tea buyers the world over. [illegible] there has been a phenomenal rise in the market, so that it was found necessary to raise the prices to the retailer and consuming public. This is not at all due to the high cost of living, but is fully justified by the fact of an increase in the consumption of tea [illegible] being the reason.

The fear expressed by the larger tea houses of the country and [illegible] is that they [illegible] to fill [illegible] the same [illegible] it would [illegible] the [illegible] in the world's market [illegible] who is the expert tea [illegible] of the S[illegible] no encouragement [illegible] the [illegible] has yet been known. Palace Theater

Tad Tieman and his Collegians appear at the Palace today and for the rest of the week. This famous aggregation of musical entertainers with Mr. Tieman appearing in person will be the last act on the bill that promises to surpass anything the management have offered us to date which is a strong recommendation.

The vaudeville today offers vaudeville in the true sense of the word, variety. Dancing, singing, music, acrobatics and novelties, every act on the bill being big enough to be featured in any theater.

The Kee Tow Quartette offer a popular selection of the latest songs and some old ones that are still popular.

The Anchor Trio offer a study in musical Culture that is away out of the ordinary, Dorothy D'Orsay offers a dancing revue assisted by three other artists and Labelle and Walters furnish plenty of comedy. Its a fast snappy bill and this is followed by an excellent good comedy on the screen The Narrow Street.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS STRONG.

New York, Jan. 21.—Stock prices turned upward today after an early period of heaviness resulting from an unsuccessful attempt by bear traders to unsettle the general list by attacking the motor and textile issues. While closing prices disclosed some irregularity, net gains predominated with a number of the popular industrial and railroad issues showing net advances of 1 to 2 points above last night's closing figures.

Trade news continued favorable. The weekly trade reviews reported a high rate of mill operatives and attached considerable importance to an advance by a Chicago independent of $2 a ton in the price of plates, shapes and bars for the second quarter delivery.

The announcement that the United States Steel Corporation had fixed $125 a share as the price at which to offer stock to employes under the annual subscription plan, against the price of $100 a year ago, also was regarded as a bullish factor. United States Steel closed 1 1-4 points higher at 126 1-4, the top price of the day.

Oil shares responded to reports of an increse in crude prices and further indications that production in the New Wortham Pool was near its peak. Marland was one of the leaders in that group, climbing more than a point to 44. Most of the others improved fractionally.

Selling of the motor shares reflected the increasing competition in that industry as disclosed by recent price cuts. Chandler was the center of attack, being hammered down to 28 3-4 the lowest price in about a year and then rallying to 30 3-8, for a net loss of 1 1-2 points on the day. General Motors sold down to 82 1-8 and then rallied a point from the low. Nash which had recently scored a sensational advance of about 80 points within 30 days, dropped three points to 274.

Liquidation of the textile issues apparently was based on the speculative belief that the recent advances had over-estimated the improvement in that industry. American Woolen sold down to 57 5-8 and then moved up to 58 3-4, off 1 1-2 on the day.

Commercial solvents issues gave another impressive demonstration of strength by adding about 11 points to their recent gains. Their closing prices today represented an appreciation in quoted value of more than 300 per cent. above their low prices of last year. National Surety jumped 36 1-4 points to 206 on one sale.

General Electric advanced 2 1-4 points to 310 1-2 and net gains of 1 to 3 points were recorded by American Can, American Sugar Refining, Brooklyn Union Gas, Du Pont, Pressed Steel Car and United States Cast Iron Pipe. Texas Gulf Sulphur closed 4 3-8 higher at 57 1-8.

Issues of interest in the rail groups centered in the southwestern carriers. Their current earnings outlook is reported to be unusually good. Kansas City Southern was bid up 36 3-8 and then dipped back to 35 3-4 for a net gain of about a point on the day. "Katy" common also sold about a point above last night's close but was unable to maintain all its gain.

Call money opened at 3 per cent. and then dropped to 2 1-2 where it closed. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchange rates showed moderate improvement. Demand sterling was quoted above $4.78 with buying influenced by reports that Monague Norman would return to England probably for an early return to the gold standard. French francs held firm around 5.40 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 21.—Bond trading today was devoid of features, with prices holding fairly steady on a reduced volume of business. Demand for railroad issues improved but selling pressure was directed against a number of industrial and public utility liens.

With informal discussions opened between A. J. Pani, Mexican minister of finance, and Thomas W. Lamont, chairman of the international committee of bankers on Mexico, Mexican bonds continued to display a strong tone. While the advance rested upon the supposition that debt payments would be resumed, it was made known that no proposals to this effect had been outlined and no formal conferences on the subject scheduled.

Growing interest in South American obligations was linked with reports of new financing. The most tangible of these concerned negotiations with local bankers for a loan of $6,000,000 or $7,000,000 for the Republic of Chile, the proceeds of which would be used for railway construction. It was indicated that the operation might be a straight bank loan involving no public offering of bonds.

Seaboard Air Line bonds led a moderate upturn in railroad issues, in which Frisco and other semi-speculative liens joined. Virginia Carolina 7 percent certificates jumped four points and the 6 bonds 1 1-4. Magma and Chile Copper Company obligations lost ground on the shading of metal prices.

Public offering will be made soon of a $3,000,000 issue of 30-year 1 percent bonds for the Rima Steel Corporation of Hungary. Preparations also are being made to market about $15,000,000 in bonds for the Cosden Oil Company.

An issue of $5,000,000 A. M. Byers Company first mortgage twenty-year six percent bonds will be offered tomorrow at 99 by a banking group headed by Dillon, Read and Company, and including the First National bank and the Peoples Savings and Trust Company of Pittsburgh.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Jan. 21.—Stock prices drifted irregularly for the greater part of today's curb market, turning upward towards the close in sympathy with the rallying on the "big board." Oils held relatively firm on reports of declining production in the new Wortham Pool. Ohio Oil moving up more than a point at 69 1-8 and Prairie Pipe closing two points higher at 115 1-2 after selling as high as 117. Prairie Oil and Gas (old stock) was heavy, dropping 2 1-2 points to 228.

Public utilities moved within narrow and irregular limits, the only change of any consequence being a drop of one point in Commonwealth Power.

Radio issues held relatively steady, Charles Freshman duplicating its high of 27 7-8 in anticipation of the inauguration of dividends which was announced after the market closed. The new Music Master stock was active between 21 1-4 and 21 1-2.

A jump of four points in Grand Stores was the feature of trading in industrial shares. A good demand also was noted for Gillette Safety Razor and Ward Baking B, each of which closed about a point higher.

Chief interest in the mining group centered in the penny issues with Independent Lead the active feature.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Extremely heavy selling after prices had equalled the season's previous top record led to a sharp decline in the wheat market today. Much of the selling was said to have been in the nature of profit-taking on the part of the holders. Wheat closed weak, 1 1-4 to 2 1-8c net lower. May $1.38 3-8 to $1.38 1-2 and July $1.65 5-8 to $1.65 3-4, with corn 2 to 2 7-8c down, oats showing 7-8c to 1 7-8c drop and provisions varying from 12c decline to 27c advance.

Except at the outset, the volume of wheat offerings proved to be decidedly burdensome notwithstanding that the demand became much broaded on all the downturns in price. Early advances, which carried the market to the day's highest point, were ascribed to a jump in quotations at Liverpool and to reports of Russian buying there. Subsequent breaks here took May down 3 3-8c, the market meanwhile fluctuating at a rapid rate and numerous holders seeling freely whenever the market rallied. The most conspicuous selling was from New York houses.

Corn and oats were depressed by reports that one of the largest individual consumers of corn had reduced the price of gluten meal $2 a ton, besides, there were indications of an increased movement of corn to terminal markets.

Provisions averaged lower, responsive to the weakness of grain.

There is much interest being manifested in the contest going on, under the auspices of the Lookout committee of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the First Congregational church.

The contest, which began Sunday January 11th, and to close Sunday February 15th, was originated by Miss Elizabeth Avery, chairman of the Lookout committee. The other members of this committee are Ralph H. Marsh and Miss Dorothy Waterman. The main thought in the contest is to get others interested who are not members of this C. E. society, in attending the meetings. The membership of the society was equally divided into two teams. One-half was called the Reds and the other half the Whites, these being the Christian Endeavor colors. Each member is expected to bring one or more visitors to each weekly meeting Sunday evening, each visitor counting one point for the host's side at the end of the contest.

SCHOOL CENSUS SHOWS STATE'S POPULATION IS NOW OVER 1,500,000

The population of Connecticut now exceeds 1,500,000, according to the estimate made at the office of the state board of education, based on the enumeration of children between four and 16 years old in September, 1924, when the number in the state was 362,276, according to the returns from the 169 towns in Connecticut. The 1924 increase over 1923 was 5,879. Hartford county showed the biggest increase in the year, with 3,189, this figure being more than half the gain in the whole state. TOTAL OF $205,422.31 IN MOTOR VEHICLE FINES

Fines imposed in Connecticut courts for violations of the motor vehicle laws in the year 1924 reached a total of $205,422.31 according to a statement for the calendar year made public Wednesday at the state motor vehicle department. This was an increase of $63,147.70 over the aggregate of fines imposed in the previous year. Since there were 7,321 fines imposed in the past year, as against 5,492 in 1923, making an increase of 1,829 cases, the average fine for 1924 was $2.55 higher than the average for 1923, being $28.05 for each offender of last year as against $25.50 for each one fined in the preceding year. The number of fines increased 33 per cent. during the year, while the number of motor vehicles registered increased slightly more than 23 per cent., showing some general tightening up in discipline as the persistent effort to make the highways safer advanced.

It was the first year during which hearses were registered under an independent classification having formerly been listed as "commercial motor vehicles." 147 hearses were offered for registration, one for approximately every 10,000 inhabitants of the state. FOUR GENERATIONS AT HER 87TH BIRTHDAY

With her children and several of her grandchildren and great-grandchildren about her, Mrs. Rebecca Morarty of Worcester, Mass., observed her 87th birthday on Monday at the home of one of her daughters, Mrs. Adrian Vander Pyl of 9 Clifton street, Worcester, where she makes her home the greater part of the time.

There were twenty-one at the gathering, the out of town guests including her son-in-law and other daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Byron H. Evans of Norwich, and Mrs. Morarty's sister-in-law, Mrs. Annie Smith of New London.

At one o'clock the guests were served a fine dinner and the latter part of the afternoon refreshments were served. Mrs. Vander Pyl was assisted by her eldest daughter, Mrs. William Moore and two of her daughters-in-law, Mrs. Edward Vander Pyle and Mrs. Walter Vander Pyl, all of Worcester.

The dining room was attractively decorated with blue and yellow crepe paper. On the table was a birthday cake made by Mrs. Morarty's oldest granddaughter, Mrs. Moore. Besides receiving some very nice gifts, there was a shower of post cards from relatives and friends in all more than fifty.

Mrs. Morarty, who is a remarkable woman in every respect for one so advanced in years, is very proud of her kin. Besides her daughters, Mrs. Evans and Mrs. Vander Pyl, she has twelve grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren.

Many were unable to be present because of living so far distant. Mrs. Morarty's grandchildren include the following: Dr. John H. Evans of Erian, Armenia, Major Lafayette E. Evans of Bridgeport, Conn., Mrs. Frank Thurston of Cuba; John Vander Pyl of Kentucky, Robert Vander Pyle of Detroit, Mich., Mrs. H. Webster Powell, wife of a Methodist clergyman of Cambridge, Mass., Mrs. Everett Bryant of Arlington, Mass., and Mrs. William Moore and Edward, Harry and John Vander Pyl, all of Worcester, and Miss Mary Vander Pyl, R. N., of Pennsylvania.

Mr. and Mrs. Burdette Kelley, also of Worcester, the latter a niece of Mrs. Morarty, were included among the guests at the gathering on Monday.

WHITTLESEY SAYS FARMERS SHOULD RAISE SHEEP

Hartford, Jan. 21.—"Shall Connecticut abandon her farm lands; shall she turn the agricultural heritage of the forefathers over to the state for game preserves, for forest areas, for a breeding place for rabbits and a propagation area for acres of white birches; or shall she by the adoption of more diversified systems of diversified agriculture, keep her proud self determinative heritage?" This was the question raised by Commissioner on Domestic Animals Whittlesey at the twenty-third annual convention of the Connecticut Sheep Breeders' association at the state armory today.

"Livestock is still the foundation of agriculture," said the commissioner. He advised the complaining dairy farmers with their 25 per cent. milk surplus to turn to sheep and wool raising. "Dairy farmers sell sunshine and part of the farm with every marketed can of milk but the sheep farmer sells none of his farm when he markets mutton and wool." Commissioner Whittlesey said.

He characterized sheep raising as a vital industry; not only for the food and clothing products but because sheep only are able to turn the waste roughage of the farm into marketable products. "Sheep," he said, "are the only market for the grazing lands and the meadow hay of the state."

Commissioner Whittlesey touched briefly on the proposed codification of the dog laws saying that the present statute passed in 1919 and amended in 1921, to put teeth in it, had resulted in extracted teeth. The proposed codification contains two striking amendments. First, it proposes to incorporate an anti-roaming mandatory dog law to make sheep husbandry safe in the state; it also proposes to increase the state dog license from $1.25 to $2 exclusive of kennel dogs and females, the second point to be in lieu of the taxation of dogs as personal property.

Charting the rise of the state dog population and the decline of Connecticut sheep, he showed but 46,000 dogs in the state to 289,574 sheep in 1845. In 1924 he listed 85,000 dogs and but 18,000 sheep.

Endorsing the commissioner and standing solidly behind him the sheep breeders' association moved unanimously: "Whereas, this association in annual convention assembled, commands the policy and activity of the commissioner on domestic animals in the enforcement of the dog laws as authorized by statute; and whereas, this association, viewing with alarm the increased damage caused by dogs in the last six months; be it resolved, that we recommend and urge the enactment of a statute that will provide for the control of roaming dogs and will prevent the destruction of sheep thereby."

F. S. Chapman, of Saybrook, was re-elected president of the association. Other officers elected were: Vice president, A. F. Greene, Middlebury; treasurer, B. C. Patterson, New London; secretary, Professor, H. L. Garrigus, Storrs; county directors, Hartford, C. Frederic Beach; Fairfield, Conrad Green; Windham, Henry Hopkins; New London, W. F. Coult; Middlesex, C. D. Manwarring; director-at-large, Edwin Coulter.

Opening the afternoon session, C. A. Green, of Bradstreet, Mass., spoke on sheep, as a side line. He told how sheep were profitably raised in connection with tobacco and onions in central Massachusetts. He later spoke on "fitting and showing sheep."

Henry Perry, of Eagle Bridge, N. Y., speaking on sheep husbandry as a business, said that he maintained himself and his family by his flock. He gloried in the hard and dirty work entailing in the fact that he was doing his own bidding and that he was contributing to the self-determinative early settlers of the country by maintaining their independence.

C. Frederick Beach, of West Hartford, gave a brief resume of the 1924 wool pool in which the product of the farmers is turned into cloth and returned to the producer as finished goods. He said that 26,000 pounds of wool had been so treated the past year.

At the morning session the president read his annual message. Reports were received from the treasurer and secretary, with a business meeting. The Connecticut wool producers' association closed the convention with a business meeting.

CONNECTICUT THIRD IN STATE PARKS

Connecticut, although one of the smallest states in the Union, holds third place in the number of state parks within her borders, according to word from the National State Parks association, which states, too, that interest in the creation of state parks is growing steadily and they are becoming of one of the most important factors in our outdoor life.

Connecticut has 25 state parks, while Texas, which leads that country, has 46 and Michigan which is second has 26.

Three of the New England states, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, have no state parks.

CORNING ROAD PLACE TO SEE THE ECLIPSE

Daniel A. Dean of the Corning Road extended an invitation Wednesday night through The Bulletin for the public to use his place as a point from which to view the eclipse on Saturday morning.

Mr. Dean says he has a high sightly open lot with a view in all directions that will make it a most advantageous place from which to view the great celestial show fievt Saturday morning on which the curtain is rung up about 8 o'clock with a continuous performance until the final curtain at about 10.30.

Mr. Dean called upon Manager Fred Watson at the Wauregan House Wednesday night and asked him to extend the invitation to scientists or any others who may be at the hotel Saturday morning and who want to know of a fine spot to see the eclipse. The way to get to his place says Mr. Dean, is to drive the full length of Hamilton avenue, turning to the right at the state road and then taking the first road about 150 feet along on the right. He will be glad to welcome all who want to use this spot and assures them that there is none finer in the city.

CHAPMAN ON MURDER CHARGE TO BE TRANSFERRED TO CONN.

Department of Justice Has Granted Request of Connecticut State Authorities—Actual Method of Transfer From Atlanta Has Not Been Determined—Gunman Will Be Tried During March Term For the Slaying of Patrolman Skelly in New Britain—Chapman Says He Does Not Expect to Live to Serve 25 Years Sentence.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Gerald Chapman today reached what is regarded as the most critical point in his long, spectacular career, when federal officials agreed to turn him over to Connecticut authorities for trial on charges carrying the death penalty.

Described in police circulars as the most dangerous criminal of the age, Chapman, who escaped in March, 1923, several months after beginning a 25-year sentence for participation in a $2,400,000 mail robbery in New York, was returned today to the Atlanta federal prison from Indiana, where he was captured Sunday after a pistol fight on the streets of Muncie.

He is wanted in Connecticut on an indictment returned at Hartford, charging first degree murder in connection with the killing of James Skelly, a patrolman, at New Britain, last October, and Assistant Attorney General Donovan today consented to his transfer from federal to state jurisdiction so he can be tried.

Decision to give the Connecticut authorities custody over Chapman was reached at a conference between Mr. Donovan and State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn, who assured the assistant attorney general that evidence against the man in the murder case was "indisputable and complete."

Details of the transfer of jurisdiction over the prisoner remain to be worked out. Mr. Alcorn said it was merely a question of legal technicalities and, with the department of justice co-operating, he was convinced Chapman could be placed on trial when the case is called at the March term of court in Hartford.

Chapman's habit of escaping from custody has led officials to plan especial precautions to keep him in sight pending the trial at Hartford. His career, as far as the public knows, began in 1917, and since then the record of crimes charged against him, ranging from plain robbery to murder, has been punctuated by several dramatic escapes.

Sentenced to Sing Sing in 1912 for grand larceny, he was paroled in March, 1919, before completing his 10-year term. Little was heard of him until October, 1921, when, with two companions, he carried out the $2,400,000 mail truck hold-up, escaping in a stolen automobile. Two months later, in a single day, he held up an American Express company truck at Niagara Falls, taking $70,000 in travelers' checks, and robbed a jewelry store in the same city. Within the week he also robbed a jewelry store at Binghamton and the postoffice at Fulton, N. Y.

After this series of exploits, Chapman's ways led once more into temporary obscurity, but in July, 1922, he was found living in a luxuriously appointed apartment in New York. He was promptly taken to the Federal building there, but, while a guard stood near, he leaped from a third-story window and escaped. He was quickly recaptured, however, and the next month was sentenced to 25 years in the Atlanta penitentiary for the mail truck robbery.

Although the federal authorities succeeded in getting him within the prison walls at Atlanta, he began trying to escape within a few months and eventually got away, while undergoing treatment in the institution's hospital. He was wounded and captured several days later and placed in a hospital at Athens, Ga., but despite his wound he escaped again and clung to his freedom until last Sunday, when Muncie detectives recognized him on the street.

In the interim no crimes had been charged definitely against him until last October the store of Davidson & Leventhal in New Britain was robbed, two safes blown and the policeman killed by the robbers as they fled.

Walter E. Shean of Springfield, one of the men, was apprehended, but the other, recognized by police as Chapman, Mr. Alcorn asserted, made good his escape by "shooting his way out."

Connecticut authorities learned that he was in Muncie when the trail became clear. Even then, however, Chapman took one more shot at officers of the law before one of them leaped on his back and knocked the gun from his hand. Today he passed grimly once more into the prison at Atlanta, technically to resume his 25-year sentence, but actually to wait until the Connecticut authorities take over the direction of the next act in his career.

SOLAR ECLIPSE FLIGHT OF DIRIGIBLE LOS ANGELES

Lakehurst, N. J., Jan. 22.—The solar eclipse flight of the dirigible Los Angeles will begin tomorrow evening at sunset when the giant ship leaves the hangar here for a 24-hour trip. High up in the bank of the big ship, will be a group of scientists from the naval observatory at Washington, who plan an unobstructed observation.

The itinerary of the Los Angeles provides for local cruising for some time after leaving the hangar. Later, the airship will cruise over New York, affording the theatre crowds an opportunity to view her on a night flight, after which a course will be laid up the Atlantic coast as far as Connecticut. The airship will then head out to sea, cruising about a course which will bring it to a point over Nantucket light at daylight, from which position it is planned to view the eclipse.

During the eclipse, the observers aboard the Los Angeles plan to broadcast their observations, if the weather is favorable. However, if visibility is impaired by unfavorable conditions, there will be very little to broadcast until the photographic plates of the special cameras aboard the ship have been developed, Prof. George F. Peters, astronomer at the naval observatory announced tonight.

POSTAL PAY AND RATE BILL DISCUSSED IN THE SENATE

Washington, Jan. 22.—The administration postal pay and rate increase bill was subjected, at the outset of debate today in the senate, to an attack from the democratic side which aimed at elimination of all the proposed rate advances.

A vote on the elimination proposal, which is in the form of a point of order, went over until tomorrow. If adopted, it would leave the bill in substantially the same form as the pay increase measure passed at the last session and vetoed by President Coolidge.

Senator Swanson, democrat, Virginia, raised the point of order against the sections of the bill proposing rate increases on the ground that all revenue legislation should originate in the house under terms of the Constitution. Senator Jones, republican, Washington, who was presiding, ruled that the senate would have to decide the point, and a close vote is expected by both sides.

Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, in charge of the measure, intimated tonight if the point is sustained he will make no objection to having the bill replaced by other legislation on the calendar. This would leave prior action on the legislation to the house, where it is yet to be decided upon by the post office committee.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The French debt was debated in the senate.

The senate began consideration of the postal increase bill.

The senate committee endorsed the bill for government purchase of Cape Cod.

The war department appropriation bill, carrying $332,000,000, was reported by the senate appropriations committee.

Justice department officials decided Gerald Chapman, robber, should be sent to Hartford, Conn., to answer a murder charge.

NEW YORK HAS AN EMBARGO ON MARYLAND OYSTERS

Baltimore, Jan. 22—Governor Ritchie was informed today of action to prevent the sale of Maryland oysters in New York city. The J. Hall Miles company, packers of Somerset county, telegraphed the governor that G. W. Aylor, director of food and drugs, refused to allow a shipment from Tangier Sound to enter the New York markets.

Governor Ritchie said he would take immediate steps to acquaint the New York authorities of the fact that repeated tests had shown Maryland oysters to be in healthy condition, with the idea of having the embargo removed.

OBITUARY.

Joseph French Johnson.

Newfoundland, N. J., Jan. 22.—Joseph French Johnson, 71, dean of the School of Commerce of New York University, and president of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, died at Idylease Inn here this morning from angina pectoris. Dean Johnson had been in ill health for some time.

Dean Johnson was born in Hardwick, Mass., in 1853. He was on the staff of the Springfield Republican, when Samuel Bowles was editor, and from there went to the Chicago Tribune to be financial editor. He established the Spokane Statesman in Washington in 1890.

Frank A. Vanderlip was a secretary to Dean Johnson on the Chicago Tribune, having been discovered by him.

Dean Johnson left the newspaper business in 1893. For eight years he was a professor in the Wharton School of Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania, and from 1899 to 1903 he lectured on finance at Columbia university. He was appointed dean of the School of Commerce at New York University in 1903 following his appointment as professor of political economy in 1901.

Dean Johnson contributed widely to financial publications and was the author of several books on financial subjects.

He is survived by his wife, who is now in California, and by two sons, Dr. Redford K. Johnson, of New York city, and Harold Johnson of Fort Washington, Long Island.

Interment will be at Dana, Mass., where Dr. Johnson had a summer home.

Vote of Approval For Luther Cabinet

Result Shows That German Clerical Party Holds Whip-Hand in Reichstag.

Berlin, Jan. 22.—(By the A. P.)—Dr. Hans Luther's non-partisan cabinet, was accorded probational approval tonight by a vote of 246 to 160. A motion approving the new government's official programme was actively opposed by 160 socialists and communists, while 39 democrats and fascisti deputies abstained from voting.

With the exception of former Chancellor Wirth and several other members of his party, the clericals voted for Dr. Luther. The outcome of today's balloting reveals the doubtful nature of its standing in the reichstag, in that it is entirely at the mercy of the clerical party.

The clerical spokesmen left no doubt in the chancellor's mind that his cabinet will for the time being be tolerated only on the basis of probation. This attitude the democrats share, and with the aid of the socialists, it can be readily converted into one of decisive opposition.

Today's vote, which called for approval, in place of the customary confidence, came at the close of a heated debate. None of the opposing speakers was able to pick a flaw in Dr. Luther's program, the central point of the attack being its politically multi-colored composition and the presence in the ministry of half a dozen avowed monarchists.

Chancellor Luther and Dr. Stresemann, his foreign minister, appealer pleased with the majority accorded them today.

That the Luther government escaped overthrow at the very outset of its career was due solely to the clericals' disinclination to take the responsibility for another crisis. This also was the motive which finally prompted the democrats to cast blank ballots. A motion of no confidence, introduced by the socialists was discarded by President Loebe after the first vote was known.

The new government's immediate troubles will begin with the question of the evacuation of the Cologne zone and securing renewed assurances that the Ruhr would be vacated by the French and Belgians by August 15, the outside limit accepted by the London conference.

BUCKLAND EXPLAINS NEW HAVEN RAILROAD FINANCES

New Haven, Jan. 22.—In the course of his address to a group of New Haven manufacturers at a dinner here today, Edward G. Buckland, vice president of the New Haven railroad, reported on the movement of New England financial and industrial interests to support the new 15 year six per cent. New Haven railroad loan and touched optimistically on the outlook for the railroad property.

"The New Haven has no floating debt, it does not owe a dollar to any bank," he said. "It does not owe a dollar outside of its funded debt and its current liabilities, the latter being less than its current assets. It has no maturities of consequence before 1930 when part of its loans from the government fall due. These government loans, it is believed, can be satisfactorily cared for upon maturity.

"The outlook is for an increased surplus in 1925 if present business indications can be relied upon. The bill for the reduction of interest on government loans, advocated last week by Mr. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, will of itself decrease the company's fixed charges $1,150,000 a year and correspondingly increase its income.

"In the last ten years the company has spent more than $65,000,000 in improving its roadway and structure and increasing its equipment. As a result it so quickened the movement of its traffic that it is doing its business more satisfactorily with 6,000 fewer cars, lessening the expense of operating and cutting down the cost of car hire.

"The company closed the year 1924 with a surplus of $3,000,000 the first surplus since the company was taken under federal control in 1918."

The object of the meeting was to explain to the manufacturers the progress of the New Haven loan and to explain its provisions

Mr. Buckland estimated the cost of the shopman's strike to the New Haven road was ten million dollars.

BELIEVE DEATH LETTER CAUSE OF INSANITY

New York, Jan. 22.—A death letter sent to Wong Shee Foon, a wealthy Chinese merchant, was believed today to have caused Foon to go suddenly insane. Magistrate Goodman directed him sent to a hospital for examination after Foon, said to be a member of the Hip Sings, had gone on a rampage in Chinatown.

Attention was first attracted to Foon, who is just five feet tall and weighing about 100 pounds when he walked up to Patrolman Samuel Weiss, one of the largest men on the force and stuck his tongue out at the policeman. A moment later, Foon lowered his head and butted Weiss in the stomach, knocking the officer into a snowbank.

Foon then started capering about the block while Weiss and a rapidly increasing throng pursued him. He was caught two blocks away and taken to the police station. There it took twelve reserves to keep the Chinese in check, and when he had been taken to the court, he demolished two hardwood benches during the few moments in which his guardians neglected to watch him.

He was searched and a key ring with eighty keys, a check for 500 yen and a cryptic letter in Chinese, telling him his days were numbered, were found on him.

NEW HAVEN ROAD TO RUN 16 SPECIAL ECLIPSE TRAINS

Boston, Jan. 22.—Announcement was made today at the officers of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad that eight special trains, to transport 6500 persons, will start from Boston for Westerly, R. I., on Saturday morning. Eight other trains from Massachusetts cities will carry similar loads to points of vantage in Rhode Island and Connecticut, for the eclipse of the sun.

Maltbie Named to Succeed Kellogg

Nominated by Gov. Trumbull For Associated Justice of State Supreme Court.

Hartford, Jan. 22.—Gov. John H. Trumbull today sent to the senate the name of Judge William M. Maltbie, ranking member of the superior court bench, to be an associate justice of the supreme court to succeed the late Judge John P. Kellogg.

Mr. Maltbie's advance in public life has been rapid. Born in Granby, March 10, 1880, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore M. Maltbie, he received his early education in the Granby public schools, following which he was graduated from the Hartford Public High school in 1897, from Yale University in 1901 and from Yale Law School in 1905. He was admitted to the bar in June, 1905, after which he practiced law in this city. In 1913 he was elected to the house of representatives from the town of Granby, and he was made a member of the committee on constitutional amendments. Eleven years ago State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn appointed him to succeed Theodore G. Case, as his assistant, which place he still held until appointed to the bench, and the following year Governor Holcomb selected him to be executive secretary. Judge Gardiner Greene, in the superior court on March 3, 1916, made him a member of the grievance committee of the bar to succeed the late William Wolcott Hyde, an unusual recognition for so young a member of the bar. Mr. Maltbie has filled several minor offices, among them the clerkship of the statute revision commission created by the legislature of 1915.

Judge Maltbie has been particularly insistent upon rigid enforcement of the prohibition laws since the passage of the eighteenth amendment.

The governor requested the return of the reappointment of John P. Kellogg as associate justice of the supreme court.

Giving added interest to the measures relating to the higher courts now before the assembly there came a bill today providing increased salaries for many of the judges. Salary increase bills are being offered and some of these relate to departmental employes.

COSTA RICA WITHDRAWS FROM LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Geneva, Jan. 22—(By the A. P.)—Costa Rica's resignation from the league of nations was announced today. The latter resigning membership was communicated to all the members of the league just as was a recent German note.

The Central American republic's communication was received at Geneva about Christmas time, having been written December 24, by M. Peralta, the Costa Rican minister at Paris. He enclosed a check for back dues drawn on a New York band and asked for a triplicate receipt, together with a statement of the present position of Costa Rica with the league.

Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the league, acknowledged the receipt of the letter and check, but took no further action at the time. Officials today explained the delay in making public the news by saying that they had not been able to agree on the form in which it should be made known. They finally decided to issue the text of the letter of resignation which was sent to the league members on January 11.

About a year ago Honduras informed the league that it might resign unless its dues were decreased, as they proved too heavy a burden. Subsequently they were decreased to $5,000 annually and Honduras remained.

Great regret is expressed in league circles over the action of Costa Rica, and undoubtedly efforts will be made to bring that country back into the fold.

JURY IN THE WEEHAWKEN LIQUOR CASE DISCHARGED

Jersey City, N. J., Jan. 22.—The jury in the trial of ten Weehawken police and two civilians charged with conspiracy to violate the state prohibition act, was discharged today by County Judge Egan following its failure to agree after 19 hours of deliberation, and it was announced the case would be re-tried here within the next few weeks.

Previous to the next trial, the general subject of rum running in Hudson county will be reviewed when Prosecutor John Milton presents to the grand jury next week the evidence brought out in the trial implicating United States Senator Edward I. Edwards in the alleged rum ring.

This evidence was introduced into the trial of the Weehawken police by three federal prohibition agents, one of whom, Lionel Wilson, later admitted that he had been convicted of petty larceny in 1913.

NEW HAVEN RAILROAD TO FIGHT BUS LINES

Providence, R. I., Jan. 22.—"The New Haven proposes to protect the public and its property by aggressive action," declared Arthur P. Russell, vice president of that railroad, while outlining the railway's policy regarding bus lines during his address at the sixth annual meeting of the Rhode Island Textile association in the Biltmore hotel here tonight.

"The New Haven will leave no stone unturned to eliminate this unfair and unwarranted competition," he continued. "Unless the rights of the railroads are protected, service is bound to be curtailed possibly to be restored only after a dangerous experiment has overloaded highways and proved that anything short of a well organized transportation is destined to utter failure."

SENATOR BORAH TALKS ON PROBLEM OF FRENCH DEBT

Infers From Speech by Deputy Marin in the French Chamber That the Question Now At Issue is Cancellation or Repudiation—Resents Efforts Made to Place the United States in the Position of an "Exacting Creditor."

Washington, Jan. 22.—The real problem with respect to the French debt is that of repudiation, Chairman Borah of the foreign relations committee declared today in the senate.

Replying to the speech in the French chamber of deputies yesterday by Deputy Marin, Senator Borah said no one could read that debate or the French press without concluding that "acquittal" of the debt is now the issue, "that no part of it is to be settled, that no part of it to be paid."

"Of course, that great people can take that position and repudiate their obligation in that way," he added, but if they choose to do so, the truth of history ought to carry the actual facts in regard to the debt and the conditions and circumstances surrounding the settlement.

"I do not know whether it is exactly just to say that we are now discussing the question of absolute repudiations, but in view of the fact that for five years there has been no offer of settlement; no payment of principal and no payment of interest, in view of the further fact, that no specific proposition for settlement has ever been made, that it is not apparently now intended, as the press of France and as the speakers upon behalf of those people now indicate, I assume that that is the real problem before us."

Quoting at length from M. Marin's address in the course of which the French deputy said it would be injuitous for the United States to collect its $4,000,000,000 debt from France, Senator Borah asserted that there was no justification for the efforts made to place the United States in the position of an "exacting creditor."

"It has displayed none of the qualities of an exacting creditor," he declared. "On the other hand, I undertake to say that the settlement with Great Britain is the most generous proposition for the settlement of international debts that can be found anywhere in history."

LEAVITT DENIES SALVAGING COPPER TO VALUE OF $600,000

New York, Jan. 22.—Question of the authenticity of the recently reported $600,000 copper salvage from the wreck of the British frigate Cape Horn, off the coast of Chile by Captain Benjamin Leavitt, inventor-adventurer, announced by the Westinghouse Lamp company, was raised today by no less a person than the captain himself.

Captain Leavitt intimated that if he had salvaged cargo valued at more than half a million dollars he ought to be informed of the matter personally and not have to depend on hearsay for the information. With $600,000, Captain Leavitt's hearers were given to understand, the crew of the salvage ship Blakeley might even be paid off to raise libel proceedings now pending and the good craft might be either patched up or allowed to sink in peace.

Captain Leavitt said that he was in his Brooklyn home at the time he was said to have led the successful foray into the kingdom of the deep. The salvage was reported to have been accomplished by the aid of special lamps which enabled divers to work more than 300 feet below the surface of the water "as though in daylight."

CHAPMAN DOES NOT EXPECT TO LIVE TO SERVE 25 YEARS

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 22.—While plans were being completed in Washington for the transfer of Gerald Chapman, mail robber, from the penitentiary here to authorities from Hartford, Conn., where he is under indictment for murder, prison authorities here said they had had no official notice of such action. They will await further action on the part of the authorities in Washington.

Chapman early today arrived in Atlanta in custody of Deputies W. H. Berrong and G. W. Hughes, who escorted him at once to the federal penitentiary.

The movements of the three, since the deputies arrived in Indianapolis, have been veiled in secrecy, as the authorities feared a possible attempt on the part of his confederates to rescue Chapman.

The prisoner is quoted as saying that he does not expect to live long enough to complete the sentence of 25 years which he was serving for committing a $2,400,000 robbery in New York.

THREE MURDERERS WERE ELECTROCUTED IN SING SING

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 22.—John Leonard, of New York, Florence Lerma, of Buffalo, and Nicholas Ferranti, of Binghamton, N. Y., were executed late tonight in Sing Sing prison. The men went to the electric chair in the order named.

Lerma was charged with killing a policeman in Buffalo. Ferranti is alleged to have killed his common law wife near Binghamton. Lerma was 25 years old, Ferranti 42.

It was a lonely day for all three men. Ferranti had children in Italy but no relatives here.

The Rev. Father John J. McCaffrey, the prison's Catholic chaplain, consoled Ferranti and walked to the electric chair with him.

The Rev. Father William E. Cashin, former Catholic chaplain at Sing Sing and several others had tried in vain to have the death of Ferranti changed by Governor Smith to life imprisonment. Ferranti claimed he had been greatly provoked and was in a frenzy when he killed his comm law wife.

The total New England gallonage subscribed up to today was five million.

WALTER DAMROSCH REPLIES TO THE VOSSICHE ZEITUNG

New York, Jan. 22.—Walter Damrosch, the composer and conductor replied today to comment published in the Berlin newspaper Vossiche Zeitung in connection with the suggestion of his name for the American ambassadorship in Germany.

Referring to the newspaper's paragraphs as "a rather violent onslaught on me," Mr. Damrosch pointed out that he was 62 and not 65, as the writer of the article had stated.

"I was not elected conductor of the New York Symphony orchestra merely 'on the strength of being my father's son,'" continued the composer's statement. "Its directors must have supported me capable of some talent, as they have retained me in this position for forty years.

"I never in my life wrote an article wherein I 'characterized German cultural life and German education as humbug.' Nor on the contrary, I have upheld German masters in art, literature and philosophy before the war, during the war, and since the war.

"But I freely acknowledge that before we entered the war, I expressed my strong regret at Germany's breaking into Belgium, and the sinking of the Lusitania. That it was not easy for me, coming of German parentage, to take such a stand, can be imagined, but I could not see my way to act otherwise, and if I had to make the decision over again, which God forbid, I would not act differently. The war is over and it behooves us all, former friend and former foe, to forgive and forget."

Mr. Damrosch said he would send a copy of the statement in the editor of the Vossiche Zeitung with the request that it be published.

GAIN IN LAUNCHINGS OF MERCHANT SHIPS

New York, Jan. 22.—Merchant ships launched throughout the world last year aggregated 2,247,731 tons, a gain of 37 per cent. over launchings for 1923, Lloyd's register of shipping announced today.

The 1924 total is the first post-war return to show an increase over the year immediately preceding it. Last year's figure, 2,247,000 tons, compared with 1,643,000 tons in 1923 and 3,332,000 tons in 1913.

Last year's gain, said the statement, was due in great measure to the increased volume of launchings in Great Britain and Ireland.

Returns for 1924 show Great Britain and Ireland still in first place in the construction ranking, with Germany second; the United States third; Italy fourth, France fifth; Japan sixth; Denmark seventh; Holland eighth, and the British dominions ninth.

American shipbuilding amounted to 37 per cent of the world output in 1919, but last year was only 6 per cent.

BINGHAM NON-COMMITTAL ON LEAGUE OF NATIONS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Washington, Jan. 22.—Mrs. Josepha Whitney of New Haven headed a delegation of prominent Connecticut women members of the League of Woman Voters who sought an interview today with Senator Bingham as to his stand on the league of nations, the world court and other international matters. They propounded a set of formal interrogatories but the senator confined his reply to the simple statement that the matters were not before the committee of which he was a member and until they reached the senate he had no opinion to express other than the stand he had so openly taken on the league of nations before he was elected to the senate. Senator Bingham explained that he had had no opportunity to follow the Pepper and other bills as he had been closely confined to hearings before the military affairs committee of which he is a member.

STUDYING ACTIVITY OF BRITISH WOMEN IN WAR

Boston, Jan. 22.—The war department is making a study of the organized activity of British women with their armies in the World war as a basis for a probable military organization of women in this country in time of emergency, Major General John L. Hines, chief of staff of the United States army, said in an address before the Woman's Republican club of Massachusetts today.

"Our late experience has convinced us that it will be necessary to ask the women to serve, to release men for duties for which the latter are better fitted," General Hines said.

"It will be necessary to increase efficiency by the use of women in positions in which they excel; and also to allow women that share the burden which they will naturally desire and have a right to demand. It is, therefore, proper that some practical plan be evolved to use their services to the best advantage of all concerned and in such a way that they shall have the official status comensurate with the duty performed.

"The war department, as a proof of its recognition of the incalculable value of woman's past service in the nation's defense and the need for closer alliance in the future, has established a woman's relations section on the general staff, with a woman in charge, for the purpose of bringing about a better understanding and a closer co-operation between the army and the women of civil life. The department is conducting a study of the use of women with the military services of England and the United States during the world war to determine in what way women can best and most suitably serve the country in the event of a future emergency."

WOULD MAINTAIN FRENCH EMBASSY AT THE VATICAN

Paris, Jan. 22 (By the A. P.)—Former Premier Briand, speaking before the chamber of deputies this afternoon, for the first time since his resignation during the Cannes conference, in January, 1923, made a stirring plea for the continuance of the French embassy at the vatican.

The speaker prefaced his remarks by saying that he fully approved the present government's foreign policy, and thanked the government for having given him the opportunity as its representative at Geneva for judging the great moral force of France.

M. Briand said he was going to limit his speech to the question of the vatican, because he believed it would be cowardice for the man who re-established the French embassy at the vatican not to oppose its suppression. He begged Premier Herriot, while there was still time, not to take the irreparable step.

The former premier argued that the holy see was a center of international activities that France could not afford to neglect.

"We are leaving Rome at the moment the others are arriving," declared M. Briand. "The last time I was in Rome I could not help hearing talk that the United States had allowed it to become known they were considering how they could arrange to be represented at the holy see."

OPIUM CONFERENCE DISCUSSED IN HOUSE

Washington, Jan. 23. — Chairman Porter of the house foreign affairs committee, was attacked and defended today on the floor of the house for his activities at Geneva as head of the American delegation to the international opium conference.

Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, declared the participation of Mr. Porter and his colleagues in the conference was another example of unauthorized meddling by Americans in European affairs.

Replying, Representative Burton, republican, Ohio, pointed out that congress authorized American representation at the Geneva conference, appropriated funds for expenses, and that the president, acting under congressional authority, selected the American delegates.

Blanton expressed the opinion that there was as much reason for the United States to tell Europe to quit drinking liquor as for it to suppress the opium traffic.

"We ought to enforce prohibition in this country," he said, "and stop the use of smuggling of opium, instead of wasting money telling others how they should handle their affairs.

$30,000 FIRE IN MIDDLESEX CASKET PLANT, WORCESTER

One fireman was badly cut about the arms by flying glass.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Attendance that was representative of all the jurisdiction of Putnam lodge of Elks and of many other points in eastern Connecticut and nearby Massachusetts towns came here Thursday evening for the annual concert and ball of Putnam lodge, No. 574, B. P. O. E., held for the second time in Danielson, where there is a heavy proportion of membership of the lodge.

The event was the most important affair of the kind of the winter season in Danielson and as such brought out large numbers of beautifully gowned women who found the splendidly decorated drill shed a glamorous setting for the dancing of the evening. Members of the Order of Elks predominated among the men who attended although many were present who are not affiliated with the organization.

Nile green, white and pink predominated in the coloring of the decorative plan. Streamers of green and white radiated to all parts of the drill shed from a central point high above the floor and the walls were draped in the same shade of bunting. A rich drapery of gold embroidered and gold fringed garnet velvet ran along the balcony fronts and at conspicuous places in the drill shed Elks' emblems, electrically lighted, added to the beauty with which the decorations had been arranged.

Out in Railroad square a long line of colored electric lights showed the way to the armory, and suspended across the street were the electrically lighted letters B. P. O. E.

Music for the concert, the program of which is presented herewith, and for the dancing was by the Danish band and orchestra of Providence.

PROGRAM.

March, Stars and Stripes Forever, Sousa; overture, Raymond, Souppe; cornet duet, Italia Bella, Denish; vocal solo, Dreamer of Dreams, by John Crowley; descriptive, Down South, Middleton; trombone solo, selected; vocal and instrumental duet, Follow the Swallow, Kearn; Star Spangled Banner, Keyes.

The 11 o'Clock Toast: March, orchestra; chimes (11 o'clock); Elks' Toast, given by E. Graydon Sharpe, exalted ruler; Auld Lang Syne, orchestra.

The dance program continued into this morning, and at about 11 o'clock there was an intermission during which large numbers of the dancers availed themselves of the opportunity to be served with lunches at the Attawaugan hotel or the Casino, where an orchestra played while the diners were being served.

The ball was a splendid success, measuring up in all its features to the high standard of doing things that has long been the tradition of the Order of Elks.

The general committee in charge of the arrangements for the ball was made up of W. W. Wheatley, chairman; Frank M. Bedard, secretary-treasurer; Louis E. Kennedy, Sidney Marland, Aldai Lamothe, Henry S. King, E. A. Kristel, Joseph Raymond, Jr., James E. Murray, John Lynch, C. E. Hellener and Oscar Peterson. The reception committee was made up of F. E. Storer, Rene Caron, Leo Bedo, Herbert Pepler, L. E. Kennedy, George J. Henenuit and John Marland.

The fine of $1,500 and the sentence of from three to four years in the state prison imposed in the superior court at Putnam upon Charles Berzuch by Judge Jennings for violations of the liquor law appeared Thursday to have struck terror to the hearts of those engaged in the illegal purveying of intoxicants in towns hereabouts. At least, such were the reports that came sifting through the usual underground channels for such information.

The immediate effect of it, it is indicated, will be to make extremely unpopular appeals from fines and jail sentences imposed in liquor cases in the lower courts. In all probability accused who are found guilty in lower courts will take their medicine, bitter though it may be, for, at least a lower court cannot send a person to state prison, having no such jurisdiction.

The penalties imposed in the Berzuch case were startling to the average person, and all through the territory it was discussed with very great interest on Thursday. It has been said that fines or even a jail sentence has not meant a great deal to a successful bootlegger who has had sufficient time to make his roll, but three to four years in state prison, not to mention $1,500 as a fine, is another thing entirely.

Observers of the sun as it fared dull red and smoky through the clouds low in the southwest about 4:20 Thursday afternoon might have been impressed that the coming eclipse was on the job somewhat ahead of scheduled time. It was a peculiar looking sun that these watchers saw, one experiencing a eucalyptus, as a distinguished citizen of Norwich might have said, and probably would, or something of the sort, yet withall very beautiful in its setting of gray blue clouds.

The Windham County National bank joined on Thursday the list of business places announcing that they will remain closed during the period of the eclipse Saturday morning. Thursday afternoon Cashier Francis E. Storer said that the bank will not open for business Saturday morning until 10 o'clock. This will give the banking force an opportunity to see the eclipse as well as those who will have business at the bank and will not want to hurry there until after the great event is over.

The citizens of Putnam are taking more than ordinary interest in the eclipse of the sun Saturday morning because it has been definitely determined that the northern boundary of th shadow will pass through this city. The majority of the residents are planning to select a viewpoint a half mile or more to the south. The one is sure to see the totality of the eclipse whether the edge of the shadow is along Park street or Mechanic street. The despatch sent out from Cambridge Wednesday said:

"The northern edge of the path, as nearly as known, passed one-half mile south of Cohuit, Mass., directly through Providence, R. I., one-half mile south of Putnam, Conn., and three-quarters south of Westfield, Mass., crossing the Cenral Vermont railroad about a mil south of the Massachusetts-Connecticut line in the town of Stafford. This data will make it possible to find the line on the map at intermediate points."

COURT INTERPETER SPEAKS SEVEN LANGUAGES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 22.—Nearly all the alleged violators of the liquor laws that were on the calendar for the present term of criminal court have been Poles and their testimony as well as their witnesses has required an interpreter. Matthiew Matinowsky, of New Britain, has been acting here. He is a state interpreter and he speaks Polish, Lithuanian, Slavish, Hungarian, Russian, German and English.

Without question he is the most efficient interpreter ever in the local court. He quickly repeated the questions of the attorney to the witnesses in a language that apparently has no use for vowels, then he conderol the answer in perfect, in fact, scholarly English. In a translated answer to one question, he said, "I suspected."

One of the noticeable features in connection with the hearings during the present session of violators of the liquor laws is that the liquor which they have been charged with selling, which witnesses for the state and the defendants have admitted drinking and which has appeared in bottles as exhibits A or B or C, has been raw alcohol, more or less diluted. Whiskey, rye or Scotch, gin from Holland or East Killingly, Jamaica ginger, have all given place to alcohol splits. As for wines, light or otherwise, they have gone into the discard completely.

In the Berzuc case, which ended so disastrously for the defendant, the jurors were given two bottles of a colorless liquid to take with them when they retired for deliberation. It had been admitted as evidence and there was some question about its alcoholic contents. But judging from the appearance of the bottles they had evidently arrived at their verdict without personally testing the fluid.

Among the Polish population at least the invitation to have a drink evidently means a bit of 190-proof alcohol.

LIQUOR LAW VIOLATORS ALL QUICK TO PLEAD NOLO

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Putnam, Jan. 22.—There was a quick break to cover this morning by all who were charged with violations of the liquor laws. The sentence given Charles Berzuc Wednesday by Judge Jennings, three years' imprisonment and a fine of $1,500 was the actuating cause. Everyone had taken an appeal from the lower court, whether he had been put to plea in superior court or not, entered a plea of nolo contendre, and was given the same sentence that Judge Geissler had imposed on each a month ago, with the added costs of appeal. The execution of the jail sentences were suspended by Judge Jennings and the accused were put on probation for six months.

Mrs. Charles Berzuc, who looked as if she had spent a very unhappy night, pleaded nole and was sentenced to 30 days in jail, the execution of it suspended. Judge Jennings said that it was his understanding that her husband was the real offender and that the woman had followed his directions. He was of the opinion that the punishment given her husband would prove a deterrent to her.

Joseph Kolat pleaded nole contendre (this is regarded by the court as practically a plea of guilty, that the accused does not wish to contend) was fined $250 and sentenced to 120 days' imprisonment, the execution of the latter suspended. Mrs. Kolat was sentenced to 30 days, execution suspended.

Bertha Sobelowski entered the same plea. She is probably not more than thirty, but she has six children born in the past eight years, the latest having arrived six weeks ago. Several of them were in court with her, as were the Tyburski children. The execution of her jail sentence of 30 days was suspended and the costs remitted. She had been released in the city court on her own recognizance. Judge Geissler said that she had nothing but the children and he could not send the entire family to jail.

Fred L'Heurreux was fined and execution of jail sentence suspended.

Victoria Simonoski was the only one of the Polish offenders who did not need the aid of an interpreter. She is 25 and has three children. Her husband was a soldier, but died after the war. A pension of $42 a month was her only income and she had tried to add something to that by selling contraband. She promised the court that she would discontinue the practice for all time. In her case the costs were also remitted.

John Tyburski, who was put on trial Wednesday before a jury, withdrew his plea of not guilty and entered one of nolo. He had been convicted once before as one of thirty members of a Polish club. He said that he was arrested only because he was the president of the club. The court said that he would not hold him as a convicted second offender and allowed him to go with a suspended sentence.

This cleared up the calendar. The jurors were brought in and dismissed, after the court had expressed appreciation of the expeditious way in which they had discharged their duties.

THE AUTO DEATH TOLL.

During 1923, according to a statement by a member of the New York state traffic bureau, there was property loss amounting to $54,000,000 due to motor vehicles in New York state.

During 1924, in the same state, there were 2,029 persons killed, or an increase of 63 over the previous year. That means that despite the startling disclosure of the 1923 deaths by autos there was an average increase of one in every week and one more in every month, and a few more thrown in for good measure during 1924. And the worst of it is that the record of New York state is not so different from that in other commonwealths. Autos are increasing, traffic regulations are increasing and deaths from automobiles are increasing, when the number of fatalities and the number of accidents ought to be on the decrease.

If that number of deaths was being reported from a battlefront there would be a howl of protest throughout the land.

If such a death rate was resulting from an epidemic there would be an outcry, and an alarm that would be nationwide.

If lives were being taken by criminals there would be a general protest and a demand that something be done to correct the condition. And all of them would be thoroughly justified. Additional reasons for them would be furnished by the cases that would correspond to those who are injured in automobile accidents.

Why then shouldn't there be just as great a demand and just as much emphasis put back of it for the prevention of this wholesale slaughter of human beings?

The situation is one that appeals to the many, not the few. On an average every one in seven has an automobile. That shows how general is the appeal for united action in behalf of greater safety and how great an opportunity there is for general cooperation to provide much relief. There are conditions, however, which have been too long neglected, and a carelessness in the use of machines that has received too much toleration.

LORD CECIL AT GENEVA.

When Lord Cecil was appointed a delegate to the opium conference at Geneva as a British representative it was expected that his influence would be exerted in the right direction, that he would labor for the betterment of world conditions concerning opium as he has done in behalf of international peace. It is to be remembered that there are countries which have a different interest in opium than do others, and among those is Great Britain, because of the opium that is produced, but that of course does not justify Lord Cecil in making unjustified claims concerning the consumption of opium in the United States.

If it were so that this country used more opium than India it would be a situation which even the representative of Great Britain ought to be anxious to overcome. It would disclose a condition which he ought to be desirous of relieving. But such claims as he made were not based upon facts. What he said is not so, and Congressman Porter, representing this country at the conference, was quick to correct the assertion and to give emphasis to the correction by calling the British representative to account. The withdrawal of the statement and the apology by Lord Cecil were no more than the situation called for. He showed that he was dealing in unwarranted claims and endeavoring to give justification to the huge production and consumption of habit forming drugs because this country was using them.

That was a most unfortunate position to take. His retreat while prompt nevertheless creates the impression that not very much is to be expected in the way of cooperation from those countries which are getting such large financial returns from the poppy. That unwillingness to participate in a plan that would put an end to such a demoralizing influence upon humanity gives an idea as to how selfish motives can block important undertakings of this kind. Apparently it was revelations of just this kind that caused Bishop Brent to withdraw from the previous conference and to indicate that the accomplishment of the desired results seemed hopeless.

ALIEN DEPORTATION.

In the admission of aliens into this country it is planned to keep out the undesirable. The effort is successful in some instances, but not in others. Whether they are undesirable when they are passed, it is evident that some develop that characteristic after they have been here a while, and inasmuch as there is a desire to protect the contry against such persons it is not surprising that plans are being considered for the removal of them when discovered.

Interest attaches in this respect to the bill which has been reported favorably by the house committee on immigration, by which it will be possible to deport aliens under any one of the 34 grounds. By the bill anyone who entered contrary to the law, anyone who dodged examination at entrance, anyone who remains longer than the law permits in his case, anyone becoming a public charge not shown to have arisen since entry, a feebleminded or insane person, one sentenced to imprisonment for 18 months on one or more convictions, one convicted of a violation of the dry law, one engaged in the white slave traffic, an alien harboring an alien, one engaged in bootlegging aliens or one found on coastwise vessels without having been admitted to the country as a permanent resident.

It is not the intention of this country to admit those of other countries who are not disposed to respect our laws. If they figure on coming here to get rich by breaking the laws there is a well developed feeling that the time has come to discourage them.

There are features of the bill, including the simplification of the deportation proceedings, that have been established because of disclosures in the recent past. The alien that isn't ready and willing to behave himself after he gets in is entitled to no more favore than the fellow who has been found out before he steps foot on these shores. When deportation is set forth as the penalty it is not until they bring deportation upon themselves.

MEETING COMPETITION.

When attention has been called to the large amount of western fruit, particularly apples, that is to be found in the stores for eastern consumption, it is invariably offered as the reason that it is impossible to obtain anything else. Neighborhood or state producers have failed to compete. What is obtainable is soon gone and then the only thing available in the market is the western crop.

The answer to that is that the western producers have apparently made the market. They have offered attractive fruit and they have made it available. They charge good prices but they balance that by grading their fruit and furnishing something which others might but do not attempt to do.

The marketing methods of the western growers is a vital factor. There are certain instances in the east where the same ideas have been adopted. In those instances there appears to be good prospects of a healthy competition. The fact is there should be no change for the western apple to compete with the eastern fruit. Quality is obtained in this part of the country quite the same as elsewhere. Nearness to market is a decided advantage to the eastern growers, and when they put up their fruit in as attractive form and show that they can compete as to looks as well as quality, and are ready to cater to the requirements of the trade there'll be no doubt as to the success of the competition. Virginia has taken a conspicuous stand in this respect. Perhaps in time there will be a more general recognition of it in Connecticut and New England.

JAPAN AND RUSSIA.

By the treaty which has been negotiated by representatives of Japan and soviet Russia, which will undoubtedly be ratified, both countries can present good reasons for it.

Soviet Russia has been engaged in the work of establishing better relations with the other nations of the world, especially the big ones. It has concluded treaties with the British, with Germany, with France and with China. It has won recognition from most of the nations and now that it has laid the foundation for closer relations with Japan it is certain to feel that good progress is being made.

Both Japan and soviet Russia have interests in the far east which needed the protection of such an understanding as has been reached. There will be advantages accruing to each and following ratification it can be expected that Japan will extend recognition to the Moscow government. The bearing of this treaty upon the far east will be watched with increasing interest.

The treaty has long been underway and it is in keeping with expectation. What, if any, will be the effect upon the effort so long put forth by soviet Russia to obtain the recognition of the United States?

Uncle Sam has set forth the basis upon which such a result hinges. His attitude has not undergone any change in regard to his demands. If and when the Moscow government meets the requirements laid down there will certainly be removed what are now regarded as obstacles. Russia has been experiencing certain changes. Possibly it is getting ready to put itself in line for a different appraisal. The Russo-Japanese treaty hasn't hurt it in any way.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Eclipses remind us that life is just one thing after another.

Don't figure on getting such an announcement as "The eclipse is three hours late," Saturday morning.

Those who declare they like zero weather, deep snow or torrid heat are always certain to find a few with different likings.

If we judge the president right he thinks it far more important to mobilize at the polls than at the inaugural ceremonies.

We are told the weather of Saturday will not be known till Friday afternoon, but how many of the prognosticators admitted that?

While there was some uncertainty as to what Trotzky would do to Russia there's no uncertainty now as to what Russia has done to Trotsky.

Probably the one who advocates having the government buy all the whiskey knows how easy it is to get the stuff away from the government.

What would Lucy Page Gaston say were she alive to hear that 63 billion cigarettes were consumed in 1923 and that the big increase is attributed to women smokers?

Secretary Hughes denies that the Paris agreement involves the United States in European commitments, and even though Colonel Harvey takes the opposite view we have the feeling that the Hughes opinion will be generally accepted.

FROM LUCILLES DIARY

On a lovely day last June Dexter Haines and I were driving out on the north shore and I suggested that we stop at the Olivers in Glencoe for a little visit. It was disappointing not to find any of the family in, but I feel so much at home in their hospitable house that I did not hesitate to ask the maid to give us afternoon tea, which she did delightfully on the spacious porch.

While Dexter was tinkering with the car I picked up a book of travels and I found it so fascinating that I simply could not leave it when he called to me that the slight adjustment he had been making was completed.

"I believe I'll just carry this book along," I said as I stepped into the car.

"Isn't that rather high-handed, Lucile?" asked Dexter, laughing.

"Oh, you don't know these lovely Olivers, Dexter. Marianna and I are old friends, and this place is like a second home to me. I am welcome to anything here, and besides, I won't keep the book long."

But as it turned out I did not get a chance to run out to Glencoe again as soon as I expected, and then in all the various gayeties and activities of the summer the matter escaped my mind until two weeks ago, when Marianna entertained the Dix Amies at an autumn luncheon. Polly Gray, who is really a frightful gusher, was raving over the Olivers' place.

"I never can tell," she said, "which is lovelier, your house or your garden, Marianna. I love the outdoors, but what could be more adorable than this wonderful library living room, simply lined with books? I suppose you have so many that you'd never miss one if you lost it. I never saw so many books in a private collection."

"Well, reading is father's hobby, and, contrary to your idea, Polly, he keeps track of every book here, and if one disappears he is actually bereft. Why, early this summer his 'Galapagos' disappeared and he has mourned ever since for it. I offered to buy him a new one, but Mr. Beebe had autographed that, and no new one would take its place. It was the most exasperating, mysterious disappearance. I can't see how anybody would take a $9 book and forget to return it."

I was glad I was standing by the open fire, for I felt myself flushing under this unconscious rebuke.

I hastily decided to say nothing then about having 'Galapagos' in my possession, as I knew after what she had said it would embarrass Marianna. However, I wrote a penitent note in my most graceful style that very evening and slipped it into the book which I intended to mail the next day. But George Requier called me up the next day, which was Saturday, and asked me if I should like a country drive.

"Oh, yes, to Glencoe," I answered.

"Anywhere you wish," he said, and we were soon on our way.

"I shall be so thankful for this opportunity to return a book to the Olivers," I said. "It's unpardonable to keep a borrowed book, isn't it?"

"I'm sure you'd never do a careless thing like that," said George, smiling admiringly at me.

It was certainly annoying not to be able to get into the Oliver house, but as I wished to get that tiresome book off my mind I left it on the porch where I knew that the first person who came home would find it.

"Well, Lucile," said Marianna, who called me on the phone this morning, 'I found 'Galapagos' when we got home a few minutes ago. I must say that it hasn't weathered the autumnal storms very well. You knew that we were all going down to Ashville the day after the Dix Amies luncheon."

"Why, Marianna, I thought of course that the maids would be—"

"Now, Lucile, did you think at all? If you did, I don't see how you could have been so careless with such a handsome book, especially after keeping it all summer the way you did."

"Oh, Marianna, dear—" I started, but she had broken the connection.—Chicago News.

Blasco Ibanez, the Turbulent

Vicente Blasco Ibanez could not agree with the existing orders of things about him, and his expression of his opinions frequently got him into the direst trouble.

In his native Valencia, Spain, he followed the desire of his father, owner of a dry-goods shop, and studied law in the local university. As a student he was conspicuous for his revolutionary ideas, and wrote a sonnet against the government, for which he had to serve six months in jail.

After graduation he began the practice of law, but became so active in radical agitation that he was forced to flee to Paris, at 23, to escape a second imprisonment. After two years of exile he received an amnesty but soon after his return he led a demonstration against the government's measures in Cuba—and had to flee again. He returned three months later, and was forced to serve three years in prison.

After his release he started a Republican newspaper entitled The People, and as editor, reporter and reviewer made it the most influential publication in Spain. Later he began the publication of translations of European works of science and sociology. Elected Republican deputy from Valencia, he became leader of his party in the Cortes, but after eight years of "militant politics" he devoted all his time to literature.

After his flights to France and Italy he had written his impressions of those countries, but the books attracted little attention. Later his The Farmhouse was translated into French and English. To further his ideas, he wove them into novels. In the Shadow of the Cathedral attacked the church. Blood and Sand held up the horrors of bull fighting and The Saloon attacked the drunkenness of Spain. His forceful writing was condemned as often violating the highest standards of art but his ideas aroused discussion in many countries.

In 1918 he published The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse dealing primarily with the horrors of war, and it was translated into many languages and appeared on moving picture screens. His Mare Nostrum also created much discussion.

Today Blasco Ibanez, at 57, is one of the best known authors of the world.

YOUR INCOME TAX

Expenses

Traveling expenses form an important item in the returns of many taxpayers. The revenue act of 1924 provides that traveling expenses, including railroad fares and the entire amount expended for meals and lodging when away from home solely on a business trip may be deducted by a taxpayer from gross income in determining net income upon which the tax is to be assessed. On a journey for other than business purposes, railroad fares are personal expenses and the cost of meals and lodgings are living expenses. Therefore, they can not be deducted.

If a salesman is not reimbursed by his employer for his traveling expenses, or if employed on a commission basis with no expense allowance, his entire traveling expenses may be deducted from gross income. If he receives a salary and is also repaid for traveling expenses, he should include in his return of gross income the amount of repayment and may deduct such expenses.

A salesman receiving a salary and an allowance for meals and lodging should include the allowance in gross income, from which may be deducted the cost of meals and lodging.

Only such traveling expenses as are "reasonable and necessary in the conduct of the business and directly attributable to it" may be deducted. Examples are payment for the use of a sample room, or the hire of vehicles used in visiting customers.

A taxpayer claiming a deduction for traveling expenses must attach to his return a statement showing the nature of the business in which engaged; number of days away from home during the taxable year on account of business; total amount of expenses incident to meals and lodging while absent from home on business; total amount of other expenses incident to travel and claimed as a deduction. Among the "other expenses are tips, which are held to be a part of traveling expenses, provided they are reasonable in amount.

Claims for traveling expenses must be substantiated when required by the commissioner of internal revenue by records showing in detail the amount and nature of the expenses incurred.

Suburbanites who commute daily from their homes to their places of business are not permitted to deduct the cost of transportation it being a personal expense.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO SWOLLEN JOINTS VANISH

Rheuma—The One Safe and Quick-Acting Remedy for Rheumatism—Money Back if it Fails

Thousands of sufferers have freed themselves from the bondage of rheumatism; rid themselves of the torturing pain; reduced the swollen joints; thrown away canes and crutches, and from helpless beings became able to work and to be of use to themselves and their families.

They took Rheuma; the modern enemy of rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, arthritis, gout and chronic neuralgia.

Don't be sceptical about Rheuma. You will know in a few hours after beginning the treatment that the poisonous uric acid is leaving your system through the natural channels. You will feel better in a day; you will know you are going to be helped in less than a week.

Don't think because Rheuma is not expensive that it won't bring you back to health. There is no guess work about it. That's why Lee & Osgood Co., and good druggists everywhere sell it with guarantee of money back if it does not give quick and blessed relief almost at once.

"Why, Aunt Millie, you're undressing it, aren't you?"

A New Variety

Dickey was unlike most children and loved his morning bath. One morning his nurse told him to hurry up and jump into the tub. Dickey was all smiles until he saw the water in which he was to bathe. There had been a fire in the neighborhood and the water was a rusty brown. Dickey looked at his nurse and pleadingly said: "You're not going to make me take my 'baff' in soup are you?"

Dickey's "baff" was postponed until afternoon.

Connecticut College

"Whoopee—a holiday!" This is the one thought that raced through the minds of the four hundred and fifty girls at the Connecticut College for Women when President Marshall announced at chapel on Wednesday that Thursday, Jan. 22, would be declared Winter Sports day, no classes meeting on that day. One condition was, however, attached to this glorious promise—that the day be fair. If bad weather set in, the classes would meet as usual and the holiday would have to be foregone. From the hearts of all the girls, thereupon, prayers and entreaties went forth to the weather-god that the day prove fair. And perhaps because of all the entreaties the girls welcomed a glorious New England winter day on Thursday.

Wednesday evening the merry jingle of sleighbells was heard about the neighboring countryside as students and faculty joyously rode forth to celebrate. And after the brisk, cold rides the girls, eyes sparkling and cheeks rosy from the sting of the night air, rushed back into cozy dormitories to warm up and chat about college and the sport of it all.

Thursday again coasting, skiing, snowshoeing and tobogganing were enjoyed. Mr. Lambdin, business administrator of the college, had a large toboggan slide built off Mohegan avenue, a steep grade sloping off to the river below. This was in constant use by the students who signed up for the privilege in the college gymnasium.

The holiday was one that had been looked forward to by all since the previous winter, for two years ago the college was given a half-holiday and a full day was promised last year, but the weather was not as expected and the pleasure was, in consequence, foregone. So this year the girls have all rushed forth to doubly make up for the joy once denied them.

DISTRICT GOVERNOR LAVERY MAKES OFFICIAL VISIT TO ROTARIANS

Albert E. Lavery of Bridgeport, district governor of the 30th district of Rotary International, made his official visit to the Norwich Rotary club on Thursday evening and was royally entertained by the club at dinner at the Wauregan hotel. The regular weekly meeting which was to have been held on Wednesday noon was postponed until Thursday evening and a special effort was made to make Governor Al's stay in Norwich a most enjoyable one.

Governor Lavery had been the guest of the New London club earlier in the day, where he delivered an inspiring message. During the afternoon he had been the guest of Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, president of the Norwich Rotary club, at the Norwich state tuberculosis sanatorium. Governor Al was greeted heartily by the 60 members of the club when he arrived at the hotel and was escorted to a seat of honor by President Campbell and the past presidents of the club.

The meeting opened with the singing of America and the invoking of divine blessing by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott. William G. Park, a past president of the club, was the song leader for the governor's meeting and several attractive musical features were provided for the governor and the guests of the club. Among these was the quartet selection by Rotarians Ely, Tirrell, Worth and Abbott, who sang "How I Wish I Knew," a sentiment that was strongly mutual. Another exceptional feature of the evening's program were the selections by the double quartet—Eben Learned, J. C. Worth, F. Russell Smith, Alex Abbott, Henry J. LaFontaine, Grosvenor Ely and William G. Park—who sang "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," and for an encore "Stars of a Summer Night."

After several announcements regarding club matters there was a report by F. Russell Smith, chairman of the committee in charge of the Brown Glee and Musical clubs' concert at Slater hall. Tickets were distributed to the members to sell. Announcement was made that the Feb. 4th meeting would be in charge of the doctors of the club, assisted by Bert Gager and Joe Curtis. Chat Saxton is to be the speaker on Current Events. The meeting next week will be a business session and Dr. R. R. Agnew will make an extensive report on the Boys' Week conferences at New Haven.

The Rotary quartet gave a novelty selection, with William G. Park taking the solo part in Go 'Long Thar, Mule. The verses of the song were parodies that playfully knocked several prominent members of the club and also Governor Al.

One of the most pleasing features of the program was the solo Cargoes (Dobson-Macefield) by Henry J. LaFontaine, who gave as an encore Trees (Kilmer-Rasbach) in a very pleasing and rich voice. Aime Pepin was Mr. LaFontaine's accompanist.

Arthur M. Brown, the speaker of the evening on Current Topics, took for his topic the child labor amendment. In opening his remarks Mr. Brown paid tribute to Governor Al and told of his fire hearing Mr. Lavery speak at a judiciary meeting in Bridgeport some time ago, when he addressed the judges of the Connecticut bar. Mr. Brown said that Governor, although a layman, "warmed the cockles of the hearts of those cold, stiff-necked judges." In speaking of the child labor movement Mr. Brown said that he spoke only as a citizen and did not represent any client. One hears and reads much about child labor and the amendment. In 1909 and later in 1919 an effort was made to give congress the power to regulate child labor, but the supreme court ruled that it was unconstitutional, deeming that the states still had a right in some matters. Now if the child labor amendment is ratified it will provide congress with the power to control the labor of a child up to 18 years of age. If this passes, the farmer will not be able to employ anyone under 18; the housewife cannot have a girl under 18 to come in and wash the dishes or do other household work, and in fact it will bar the child from doing any profitable work before he is 18. The advocates of the amendment say that congress will not set the age at 18. Can we depend on congress, or will this body run true to form and go the limit? I think the question of child labor is best left in the hands of the state.

In my opinion it is good for the child to work. When I was 13 I went to work to earn money to go to the Norwich Academy. I worked from 6.30 in the morning to 6 at night for $3 a week, and it didn't hurt me a bit. The boys and girls have a right to express themselves and while some do not do it exactly according to some standards I think it is partly the fault of the parents. Work teaches the child responsibility and it also teaches them the value of money and promotes thrift.

Following Mr. Brown's talk, a clever little skit, "An Episode in an Insane Asylum," was enacted by Henry J. LaFontaine, Joseph C. Worth and Bill Pa. Mr. LaFontaine taking the part of the superintendent of the institution, Mr. Worth, the governor's wife, and Mr. Park, the patient. The skit was cleverly worked out and equally as clever in presentation.

President Campbell, in introducing Governor Lavery, spoke of the magnitude of the governor's work and the inspiration that comes from Rotary and work for Rotary.

Governor Lavery expressed himself as mightily pleased to come to Norwich and commented humorously on his trip into the city saying that he was glad he had a chaperon to show him the way through Norwich's one-way street. He complimented the club on its representative membership and said that it was like the many other clubs in the district where Rotary has taken a firm hold and instilled in its members an enthusiasm to serve the community. Mr. Lavery also called attention to the convention of Rotary International at Cleveland next Spring and urged a large attendance. He also mentioned the spring conference at Pittsfield. In his message to the Rotarians he emphasized the necessity of adhering more strictly to the business methods program as outlined by Guy Gundacker of Rotary International and also to the Rotary educational programme. In speaking of the business methods programme, Governor Lavery advocated a return to the old Golden Rule basis in business or the old fashioned 100 per cent. value plan. Put these Rotory principles into your home and business and community life for Rotary is just as strong as its individual member. Put the principle of service into the community and put it in a practical way, he said. There are 110,000 Rotarians in this country and 96 per cent. of these are married and are home builders. This fact will help Rotary for the home life give impetus to any service.

Some people wonder what Rotary is. We have nothing to hide. We meet to cement friendship and to help serve the community. We sing, there is a little horse play, but it all goes to create a better feeling for our fellow man and make us greet him as a friend and be a friend to man.

Many of us have our radio with which we reach out, tuning in for entertainment. We comb the air for the best programs. But right inside our own bodies we have a radio—our hearts—which we should adjust to a certain wave length. Tune in on the first principle of Rotary and when we have that keep right on down until we have all six other objects of Rotary.

A noted English Rotarian, Paul Graves, said that give him 200 Rotarians in England and 200 in America and he could do more toward promoting international peace than any other agency in the world because these Rotarians had the spirit of peace and brotherly love in their souls. Let the inner soul peal forth and we can well afford to practice and live Rotary whose principle is "Service above Self."

Governor Lavery was warmly applauded and President Campbell in behalf of the club presented a carafe to him which he said was for Mrs. Lavery. Governor Al gracefully thanked the club on his own behalf and on the behalf of "Sadie and Sally."

The meeting closed with the Star Spangled Banner.

The decorations of potted plants, daffodils and smilax used on the tables where the roast capon dinner was served were by Rotarian Otto F. Ernst.

CLAIM $70,226 MISSING FROM TOWN DEPOSITS

The attention of Governor John H. Trumbull is called to the loss of $70,226.41 from the town deposit fund in the annual report of the state board of education which has been filed with the governor. This loss has been accumulating since the establishment of the fund in 1837 and its distribution to the towns of the state.

The fund amounted to $763,661.83 in 1837 at the time of its distribution and on Jan. 1, 1924, was $693,435.42. The difference of $70,226.41 is unaccounted for, according to the report of the board of education.

The town deposit fund originated through the fact that in 1836 there was a surplus in the federal treasury and congress voted that a portion of this be distributed among the various states in proportion to their representation in congress. Connecticut's share of this sum was $764,670.60.

The state legislature passed an act providing for the distribution of $763,661.83 of its share to the various towns of the state with the provision that one-half of the income which the towns should receive from this money was to be used for education. In 1885 this act was amended with the provision that the total income from the fund was to be used for education.

"Alleged" Interest.

The board of education has concluded that in many cases the town deposit fund is no longer an educational asset and it speaks of the interest which the towns are supposed to spend for educational purposes as "alleged."

"The waste of this fund has gone so far that in most towns the alleged interest is no longer a contribution to the support of schools. When the fund exists in a town order no tax is laid to meet the interest and the school resources are increased on paper only."

Asahel J. Wright, chief clerk in the office of the state board of education, has been working the greater part of a year making investigations as to the condition of the town deposit fund in the various towns of the state.

County Situation.

Mr. Wright's investigations show that in Hartford county the total town deposit fund on Jan. 1, 1847, was $130,197.41; that by Jan. 1, 1896, this had decreased to $126,937.12, and that on Jan. 1, 1924, the total was $128,879.48.

In New Haven county the totals are: 1847, $113,885.23; 1896, $109,329.96, and 1924, $90,777.85.

New London county: 1847, $111,977.60; 1896, $112,600.77; 1924, $89,816.30.

Fairfield county: 1847, $120,583.42; 1896, $123,814.04; 1924, $100,974.05.

Windham county: 1847, $66,494.85; 1896, $64,077.99; 1924, $64,633.78.

Litchfield county: 1847, $110,106.20; 1896, $106,941.69; 1924, $106,635.09.

Middlesex county: 1847, $63,807.30; 1896, $62,684.60; 1924, $62,700.05.

Tolland county: 1847, $47,933.95; 1896, $48,051.07; 1924, $49,018.52.

The town deposit fund is missing entirely in the following towns: Weston, $7,106; Easton, $2,323; Wilton, $6,000; Granby, $2,183; Hartland, $3,135; Derby, $5,806; Wallingford, $6,210; Waterbury, $6,027; Naugatuck, $1,240; Sprague, $2,567; Groton, $6,839; East Lyme, $3,450; Montville, $5,064. The state board of education received no reply to its inquiries as to the status of the town deposit fund in the town of Waterford. In 1896 this fund was reported as $5,793.

At the office of the state board of education Thursday it was said that in many cases where the town deposit fund had been reported to the board as having been invested as a loan to the town, the principal is actually missing and the money that should come to the town each year as interest on this principal is raised by taxation but is reported as "income from town deposit fund."

JOHNSON TO SUE NEWS SYNDICATE FOR SELLING HIS BASEBALL STORY

New York, Jan. 22.—Walter Johnson, veteran pitcher hero of the last world's series, today asked the supreme court to issue a restraining order enjoining the Thompson Feature Service, Inc., The Brooklyn Daily Eagle and other newspapers throughout the country from further use of a series of syndicated articles purporting to be a history of his baseball career.

The star of the Washington twirling staff also served notice in the courts that he would sue for $50,000 damages and for an accounting of receipts from publication of eight of a projected series of twelve articles dealing with his life. The veteran pitcher alleges that the series is "a ham, a fraud and a fake." His injunction plea will be argued before the supreme court by his attorney, Hyman Bushel, next Thursday.

Johnson's complaint recites that since November, 1924, The Brooklyn Daily Eagle and many other papers in the United States have been publishing articles in the series. The articles, written by Lillian Barker, represent Johnson as having related his experiences to the writer for purposes of publication. The complaint charges that the Thompson Service sold the series on the representation that they had been related to Miss Barker in Johnson's own words, and that this concern had the sole right to dispose of the article in the United States.

The accounting is asked in addition to damages in the sum of $50,000 because, the complaint says, Johnson has no way of estimating the profits that have accrued through the sale of the allegedly spurious series by the Thompson company.

YANKEES TO MOBILIZE 38 PLAYERS FOR TRAINING

New York, Jan. 22.—The New York Yankees today announced that 38 players would be mobilized for spring training at their St. Petersburg, Fla., camp. The list includes thirteen twirlers, five catchers, ten infielders and ten outfielders.

Rookies of the squad will report about February 22 to Manager Miller Huggins, while several veteran pitchers, together with Babe Ruth, will "boil out" for two weeks at Hot Springs, Ark., prior to reporting March 1 at St. Petersburg with the rest of the regulars.

The list announced by the Yankees, in addition to the regulars, includes such promising young talent as John Levi, Haskell Indian star who is an outfield prospect; Thomas McIntyre, Boston College infielder; and Gehrig, former Columbia slugger recalled from Hartford of the Eastern league.

William McGowan, newly signed American league umpire, will officiate in the exhibition games at St. Petersburg and also during the Brooklyn-Yankees series on the way northward.

MILLS AND WILCOX BEAT SANK AND THOMPSON EASILY

At the Riverview alleys on Thursday evening the two man team of Wilcox and Mills handed out a severe defeat to the bowling team of Thompson and Sank, winning out by the margin of 112 pins. SWIMMING RECORDS ARE BROKEN BY NORTHWESTERN

Chicago, Jan. 22.—The Northwestern University relay team broke three National Intercollegiate swimming records in a special exhibition 400-yards race at Evanston.

The team shattered its own record of 3:45 1-5 for 4000 yards, making the distance in 3:44 3-5. It also beat its record of 4:45 3-5 for 500 yards, making the distance in 4:39 2-5.

The full 400 yards, Yale's intercollegiate record of 5:45 3-5, was smashed when the purple natators swam the distance in 5:39, this mark also bettering the world record of 5:49 3-5 held by the Illinois athletic club.

The team is composed of Breyer, Howell, Manowitz, Corbett, Kimball and Ramsey.

INTERCOLLEGIATE TITLE TO BE DECIDED ON 4-MILE COURSE

New York, Jan. 22.(By The A. P.)—The struggl efor this year's intercollegiate varsity rowing championship, blue ribbon event of the annual Poughkeepsie regatta, will be contested over a course of four miles for the first time since 1916.

Fixing Monday, June 22, as the date for the regatta, the board of stewards of the intercollegiate rowing association decided at their annual meeting today to lengthen the distance of the varsity event, which since the war has been rowed once a two miles, on Lake Cayuga, and four times at three miles on the Hudson at Poughkeepsie.

The change, which is the culmination of several years' agitation to return to the longer distance that prevailed from 1895 to 1916 with the exception of one year, was not accomplished without keen debate, however. The final vote on the issue was three to one, with Columbia, Pennsylvania and Syracuse voting for four miles while Cornell, despite the fact that it ahas not won a varsity race since shorter races were inaugurated, held out for the three mile distance.

The decision came as somewhat of a surprise as Columbia, only outspoken advocate of the four-mile race for the past few years, was still believed to be largely alone on its stand. Two years ago, Syracuse supported Columbia for a time but finally voted with Cornell and Pennsylvania to keep the shorter race.

The stewards ratified invitations to University of Washington, California, Wisconsin, Naval Academy and Princeton to participate in the 1925 regatta. Washington, varsity titleholder for the past two years, is expected to defend its laurels, but first must face its far western rival, California, in their annual race in April. The Navy already has signified its willingness to accept an invitation to return to the Hudson where the midshipmant scored triumphs in 1921 and 1922.

No change was made in the regatta program, which also includes junior varsity and Freshman races, both rowed over two-mile courses. It was understood Pennsylvania might seek establishment of a race for 150-pound crews, but this was not brought before the stewards.

CHAPMAN TURNS TABLES ON PLAINFIELD HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 23. — Chapman Tech decisively defeated Plainfield High at the school auditorium this evening, at the same time atoning for the defeat Plainfield administered Tech at Plainfield earlier in the season. Tech's victory was 37 to 17 and it was Hewitt's scoring ability which enabled Tech to finish on top.

The Red and Black began early for a victory and with Hewitt leading the assault with 25 points Tech finished easily in front of the visitors. There was no pass work that brought the ball down the court for Plainfield, while Chapman Tech displayed a knowledge of Plainfield's defense and went through for numerous scores. Plainfield was helpless before the cleverness of Hewitt and here lie Tech's success.

Hicks and Andrews played well for Tech, while Allard of Plainfield was high scorer for his team with three field goals. The score:

Mr. Sullivan Pulls Alibi

Sporting Editor: We were glad to have heard from Mr. Sullivan, but did you notice how he was trying to "alibi" his way out of the trimming handed his "Colts" by the "Colchester five" last Saturday? Who were these three star players that were stalled between Danielson and Putnam and how come they were stalled? Did they have a blizzard up there Saturday? "Governor" had a full team on the floor and nothing was said about any star player at that time.

Mr. Editor we are in a position to say that "Governor" was passing out "Blarney" when he made that statement and as a witness to the game, let me say that the "Colts" were handed one beautiful trimming regardless of what Sullivan's local critics claim.

At any rate we are glad to have heard from him even though he is trying to make a lot of noise. He is also a little absent minded when he says the "Richmond Five" are unknown for he has long been associated with the threee Richmond Bros. and star center Danny Draft who formerly played with the "Buffalo Orioles".

Our lineup is: R. Richmond, rf; S. Richmond, lf; D. Draft (capt.), c; N. Richmond, rg; M. O'Del, lg.

We agree to Mr. Sullivan's terms with but one exception which is the gambling aspect to his proposition. Being ardent supporters of all sports we believe in keeping them as clean as possible. If satisfactory to Mr. Sullivan let us hear when he will play and where.

M. O'Del.

NURMIS SUPREME TEST TO BE MADE ON FEB. 7

New York, Jan. 22.—The supreme test of Paavo Nurmi's American campaign will be made in the Wilco A. A. games in the 13th Regiment armory, February 7, when he will attempt to break four world's records in a single performance.

The flying Finn is entered in the 3,000 meter special together with Joie Ray, Verne Booth, William L. Cox, and Eddie Kirby. In filing his entry for this race today Nurmi said he would better his own mark of 8:26 4-5 made in the municipal games, and establish the mark at 8:20. Enroute to the 3,000 mark Nurmi will attempt to break the one and three quarter mile mark. At the conclusion of the 3,000 meter race Nurmi will continue on to the two mile point and endeavor to shatter the one and seven-eighths mile mark and the two mile mark.

Joie Ray holds the two mile record at 9:08 2-5, the fastest two miles ever made by a runner, inside or out. Nurmi said he would attempt to run the two miles under nine minutes.

NURMI'S RECORD BREAKING HAS TAKEN HEART OUT OF HIS RIVALS

New York, Jan. 22.—(By The A. P.)—Over the spectacular course that has put him in a class by himself as a greatest distance runner of all time, Paavo Nurmi has raced the heart out of many of his foremost rivals, runners who would stand out themselves among the most brilliant were they competing in a generation that knew no Nurmi.

Since the coming to this country, the phantom Finn has sped to ten world's records in six victorious races and handed his rivals a beating as merciless in its way as Jack Dempsey deals out to his ring opponents. Nurmi has "carried" none of his opponents alone. There has been no let-up in his terrific pace, for he enters each race apparently with the sole idea of wiping out every mark within reach of his flying feet.

Runners who have sought to follow Nurmis dizzy clip have quit or cracked under the strain of trying to stay with this super-athlete, or, discouraged, they have dropped out of sight in the ruch. Not since his first race at Madison Square Garden, when Joie Ray, Lloyd Hahn and Jimmy Connolly ran the greatest indoor miles of their careers in a vain effort to catch the Finn, has anyone even threatened Nurmi.

The apparent fruitlessness of trying to chase Nurmi has already had a marked effect on the fields opposing him. Runners have shown a decided reluctance to meet the invaders in a test which seems hopeless at the start. The result has been that in the past two races he has won, Nurmi had for opponents only a handful of fellow countrymen, members of the Finnish-American club, who, even with liberal handicape, were outclassed.

Nurmi's outstanding individual conquests go back to 1923 when he first started to settle accounts with his Swedish rival, Elwin Wide. The Finn established his outdoor mile record of 4:10 2-5 that year in a race with Wide at Stockholm in which the Swedish flier wilted after staying with Nurmi for over half the distance. Wide tried to come back against Nurmi at the Olympics last summer but he was beaten in every race and finally collapsed under the gruelling strain and terrific heat marking the cross-country championship, which the Finnish ace won handily.

In the 1,500-metre final at Paris, Nurmi broke the heart of another great runner — Ray Watson, gallant American who went to pieces after sticking to Nurmi's heels for two-thirds of the distance.

Joie Ray, American mile champion for many years, failed to give Nurmi a battle in the Olympics but after pushing the Finn in his first start here, the little Chicago star felt confident he would take the Finn's measure indoors. The scene of their next meeting was laid at Chicago last week; but Nurmi ran Ray into the ground and won by 80 yards in world's record time.

Willie Ritola similarly has tasted the bitterness of such overwhelming defeat, both here and abroad. Recently, he announced he probably would not compete against his phantom countryman again during the indoor season. The last time they met, Nurmi won by 65 yards, although Ritola himself bettered former world's record time.

These are but a few of the high spots of Nurmi's conquering march. Time is the only opponent he has left and the Finn has even that rival groggy.

DUNDEE BARRED FROM FRENCH PUGILISTIC RANKS

Paris, Jan. 22.—(By The A. P.)—The French boxing federation today definitely made Johnny Dundee person non grata to the French ring and also declared Jimy Johnson, Dundee's mentor, ineligible to fulfill the post of manager of boxers in France. The action of the federation was taken after M. Boyen, the promotor of the proposed bout between Dundee and Fred Bretonnel, had presented evidence that Dundee had disregarded the terms of the alleged contract calling for his appearance in the ring with Bretonnel and departed for his home in the United States.

In the emase of Dundee the decision of the federation was unanimous, but that with regard to Johnson required an hour's discussion before a verdict could be reached. Boyer's testimony was to the effect that Johnson failed to inform the promoters of the Bretonnel-Dundee fight of his contemplated departure for the United States and that Johnson did nothing to persuade Dundee to carry out the terms of the contract.

Boyer submitted the contract which bore a signature alleged to be that of "James Johnson for Johnny Dundee" and one of Dundee himself. He also turned over to the federation a receipt from the federation for a check for 20,000 francs as Boyer's guarantee for the fight. The federation's secretary announced that Dundee had failed to deposit with him the $300 as requested by the terms of the contract.

Boyer under oath asserted that Dundee on Friday January 16, although he already had tickets for the homeward voyage purchased two days previously went through training exercises for photographers and that the former featherweight champion reiterated his previous announced intention to meet Bretonnel January 27.

Tonight the following communication was issued by the boxing federation:

"After hearing evidence on the claim of Boyer vs. Dundee and Johnson, the French boxing federation has decided unanimously:

"First, that Dundee and his manager, Johnson, must be penalized. Consequently Dundee and Johnson are declared ineligible to box or to fulfill the posts of manager in France 'sine die.'

"Second, that the application of a similar penalty in countries affiliated with the international boxing union will be asked of the federation interested, as well as of the British boxing board of control.

"Third, that the National Boxing association and the New York State Athletic commission, the national boxing powers on which Boxer Dundee and Manager Johnson depend, will be requested to apply to them penalties corresponding to the decision taken by the French federation.

"Fourth, that the 20,000 francs deposited by M. Boyer shall be refused to him."

Neither Dundee nor Johnson was represented at the meeting of the federation. Registered letters inviting them to be present were sent to their last Paris address, in accordance with French law, but these are said to have been returned to the federation with the notation "left without giving forwarding address."

BULKELEY BEATS MYSTIC FIVE IN CLOSE GAME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 22.—Presenting a rearranged team, which was an improvement over the efforts in the previous games, Bulkeley broke into the winning column after three defeats. This afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. gym surface floor, the Bulkeley forwards struck while the iron was hot, taking into camp the Mystic All Stars by a 25 to 17 score, after four periods of fast and furious basketball.

Bulkeley played smarter basketball than her rival, but the newly acquisition of Huck Taylor at left forward gave Bulkeley the punch to come through with a victory this afternoon. Taylor was all over the court and he made Bulkeley seem a new team—in fact it was partly, for the team was rearranged that only one player remained at his old station and that was Captain Graves at guard.

In the Mystic All Stars, the Orange and Black did not have any setup. The visitors fought every minute of the game and had such an advantage over the Bulkeley team in the first half that they were in the lead by a 9 to 8 score at the termination of half time. Long baskets were means of the All Stars' success. Several of these being sunk without even touching the draperies.

The Bulkeley team got under way a fine offense after Mystic had increased the lead in the second half on baskets by Hutchinson and MacMahon. Being the first game these players performed together, they seemed to gain their bearings in the final leg of the journey. A rapid fire upon the Mystic hoop by the Bulkeley forwards and their center, Watterson, brought Bulkeley out to the front with plenty to spare when the final whistle was blown. Bulkeley showed good form in this period.

Argo Vogt who was shifted to forward from center was high scorer for the afternoon with five baskets. He made some difficult one-hand shots which brought the crowd to their feet at intervals. Huck Taylor and Watterson were also prominent in the scoring line, while the former's work in dribbling and in other phases marks him as a valuable addition.

Cars will not be permitted to go up the mountain, and all drivers are requested to park their cars on Pleasant street or in that locality. It is also requested that headlight be used as little as possible to avoid interference with the full force of the eclipse. The length of totality of the eclipse is placed at one minute and fifty seconds, starting at 9.12 in the morning. Broadway Theater

It will pay you to see the fine diversified program that opened at the Broadway theater yesterday for a three day run.

Clifford Jordan started the Keith vaudeville program with a Spinning Novelty. Here is a juggler par excellence with a real novelty.

Bobby Carbone followed in An Oddity in Laughter and Song. Laughs abounded in this act with songs put over in a real way. He is accompanied by a lady in his offering.

The Rounder of Broadway gave a real treat to the delighted audience. It is a comedy with a moral and played by Nell Barrett and Co., giving a sketch of characters from life as seen along the great white way.

Winehill and Briscoe in Just for a Laugh kept the smiles and laughter going. They have a line of song and patter that goes over fine.

Sulkin's Argentines is a band of ten people including one girl. You must see this act to appreciate perfection. Novel effects are introduced.

Worldly Goods, a Paramount picture starring Agnes Ayres, is the feature at the Broadway theater this week. The production is an adaptation of Sophie Kerr's Ladie's Home Journal serial and popular novel of the same name. Paul Bern directed and A. P. Younger wrote the screen play.

Worldly Goods is entertainment for everyone, a matrimonial comedy-drama that is not just "another picture of married life." It's something new and you'll like it!

Victor Varconi and Edythe Chapman also have fine roles.

Broadway Theater

Bebe Daniels and Ricardo Cortez, featured in the principal roles of the Allan Dwan production of Argentine Love for Paramount, treat fans to some of the finest exhibitions of the Argentine tango as it is really danced by the Argentinians ever shown on the screen.

Argentine Love, coming to the Broadway theater on Sunday next for a run of four days, is a big special production by the man who made Robin Hood, and many of the Big Paramount hits starring Gloria Swanson. It's a story of a young Spanish girl who defies every tradition that she might marry the man of her own choice.

There's a big cast of well known players in support.

Italian Band Concert

At the studio of the Norwich Royal Italian Band on Tuesday, the final programme was decided upon. The music lovers of Norwich can be well assured that the concert on Friday evening, January 30, at the Community house, given by the Norwich Royal Italian band, will prove to be a rare treat. At such an event, every seat in the house should be filled. Professor Pasquale Puca, who has worked strenously for weeks, has selected a varied programme, which will prove most delightful to all who take advantage of this rare opportunity. It is most gratifying to learn that Mr. Demetry, first cornet soloist of Creatores band for 15 years, will make his first appearance with this band in Norwich.

Breed Theater

One of the most appealing and tragic stories ever filmed, with all of the director's delicate artistry at its best.

That is the verdict on He Who Gets Slapped, Victor Seastrom's second American picture, which is the feature attraction at the Breed theater today and tomorrow.

Adapted to the screen from the play by the noted Russian author, Leonid Andreyev, He Who Gets Slapped presents a tragic intense story of an unhappy clown. The picture is set in the colorful locale of a European circus. The choice of Victor Seastrom, the Swedish actor-director, as the maker of the story, was particularly fitting and he has made what is undoubtedly his greatest picture of it.

Lon Chaney gives many tugs at one's heart-strings in his portrayal of He, the unfortunate clown, and easily surpasses his other great roles.

The story is a tragic, but not an unhappy one, and Chaney makes of the unfortunate clown a most appealing character.

Norma Shearer adds another triumph to her list as the girl of the circus, and John Gilbert, as the romantic lead, does creditable work.

Excellent character portraits are drawn by Tully Marshall, Marc McDermott, Ford Sterling, Clyde Cook, Ruth King, Harvey Clarke and other members of the cast.

Days of 49 a Larry Semon comedy and the Pathe news make up the remainder of the bill.

Lyceum Theater, New London

Are you satisfied with your birth rate? Susanne, wife of the impassioned young orator who became premier of France, was not. In fact Susanne's birth rate was zero minus. The tactics adopted by Susanne, a charming and quite innocent bride from the country, to convince her public spirited husband that her birth rate was every bit as important as the birth rate of France, constitute the hilarious excitement in The Stork.

The Stork, Schwab and Mandel's production after The Firebrand now a great hit on Broadway, will arrive at the Lyceum theater, New London tonight. Lassio Fedor and Ben Hecht have created in The Stork a comedy of morals and emotions, laughter and excitement which will endear that gawky and ludicrous bird to your affections.

It has the Broadway cast, including Katherine Alexander, Geoffrey Kerr, Ferdinand Gottschalk, Lora Sanderson, Morgan Wallace, Barbara Bennett, Thomas McLarnie, Ralph Shirley, Carlotta Irwin, Mildred Brown, Conrad Cantzen, Lee Beggs, Monroe Childs and other New York favorites.

While the play deals with sex and contains several delicious little thrills in addition to its abundant laughter, it is really a wholesome comedy and one that the sophisticated playgoers will positively love.

White Fleet Orchestra at Armory

Dance lovers are looking forward to a gala night next Saturday when Charles Mazzetti's White Fleet orchestra plays a return engagement. This sterling outfit which played under the auspices of Battery B early in December is about to fulfill a number of private engagements through New York state and Pennsylvania next month, a return engagement was secured through the efforts of Battery B which is noted for the brand of music it offers to its patrons.

Charlie Mazzetti has plenty of music in store for the dance lovers. The last time this orchestra played here it amused the crowd with its novelties. It is rated as the best traveling orchestra in New England. A new comedy number Horse Fly is a real treat Railroad Man featuring Harry Odell acrobatic drummer is another hit, it is expected that the largest crowd of the season will attend the dance. People from Norwich and the neighboring towns are afforded the last opportunity to hear this wonderful team until next spring.

Strand Theater

Here's a sensational piece of news for those who go to the Strand theater today and Saturday. Yakima Canutt winner of the Roosevelt trophy as Champion All-Around Cowboy of the World is the star in Ridin Mad as one of the features on the double program at the Strand today and Saturday. Canutt shows unlimited nerve, and daring in this picture and goes Ridin Mad to the finish. He will prove a new idol for fans who admire pictures and speed. The companion feature of the program is a matrimonial quadrangle of modern men and wives titled Dangerous Pleasure. Dorothy Reiver and Niles Welch are the featured players. The story is one refering to mistakes the average man and wife make. The modern husband and wife (or most of them) think the land of jazz is one of happiness but in the end it proves the undoing of many a happy couple. In Dangerous Pleasure you will see one of the best pictures of the year shown in a way pleasing to everyone. Sid Smith in Make it Snappy a mirthquake in two shocks is the comedy feature. Performances are given at two and seven P. M. and the admission at all times is ten cent any seat for the matinee and ten and twenty for the evening performances.

The German exports of aniline and alizarine dyes now total only one-third of the pre-war figures, owing to the United States and Great Britain becoming independent of the German dye manufacturers during the war.

Crime or Jest?

Not long ago a small box with an insufficient address was held up at an English post office. As the address could not be found it was opened and disclosed a parcel of bones, established to be human. The mystery was never cleared up. What crime it shrouded, or whether it was a joke on the part of some hospital student, must be left to conjecture.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

Tells Safe, Certain, Speedy Relief for Acid Indigestion.

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food, are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating, or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antiacid, such as Bisurated Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form, enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestents. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

THE HOLIDAY HABIT

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

Perhaps some of you can remember, as I can, when there were fifty-two holy days,—Sundays,—in the year and three holidays,—Christmas, Thanksgiving and Fourth of July. That made fifty-five all told.

But I'll bet you a dozen doughnuts against a dozen eggs that you can't tell, off-hand and without looking over three or four almanacs, how many holidays there are in a year, now. There are so many of them that it takes a fairly industrious man to keep up with them so as to make sure that he takes every one "off."

Let's see, there's New Year's day and Washington's birthday and Lincoln day and St. Patrick's day and Good Friday and Decoration day and Columbus day and Labor day and Arbor day, some of which are legal holidays in all the states and all of which are in some of the states. Nor am I the least bit sure that those complete the list. There may very likely be more. Every year some organization of loafers, in some state or other, makes a drive for the legalization of some other holiday, and too often gets away with it.

I have heard travelers say that in such countries as Spain, Italy and Portugal there are so many saints' day and feast days that have to be observed by the orthodox that there is very little time left for sawing wood or raising cabbages. Which is one of the chief reasons why those countries are poor, unprogressive, and several centuries behind the times industrially.

It may be that the hordes of immigrants which we have in the past welcomed from those and similar superstitution-ridden lands, bringing with them their holiday-hunting habits have had something to do in leading us, also astray. Such an explanation is not unreasonable if it really be valid, then it furnishes one more evidence to prove the advisability of shutting down on immigration from those lands.

For, not to put too fine a point on it, we've already got three or four times as many holidays as are good for us, and any man or woman, or set of men and women, who try to inflict us with more are highly undesirable citizens. The man whose chief interest in his job consists in looking for an excuse to shirk it, naturally wants all the holidays the calendar can hold. Also, the man whose chief interest in his job consists in watching for all possible chances to "chuck it," is exactly the sort of man America doesn't need or want. His permanent absence is a consummation devoutly to be wished. His room is worth at least double what his company is.

When—if ever,—we return to sane and common sensible government in our states, towns and cities, one of the first acts of the first reinvigorated legislature will be to repeal at least two-thirds of the statutes now cumbering the law books, including two-thirds of those establishing legal holidays.

"What?" I seem to hear some one asking: "Do you want everybody's nose held forever on the grindstone?" "Aren't you willing Jack should have any time for play?" "Do you want all life made drudgery?"

No, sir; no, ma'am; no, bub; no, sis;—I don't want to hold any body's nose on any grindstone, anywhere or any time. I want Jack to have all the time for play that's good for him. And I don't want to make life all drudgery. Anyway it isn't I who brings noses to grindstones, but the stern exigencies of life. And if Jack works eight hours a day and sleeps eight hours and has eight hours for play I frankly confess that I don't see where his kick is coming from. And as to making life drudgery, you know just as well as I do that life is drudgery for the most part, whether it is lived in a farm-house on the hills of Wayback, or in a tenement on G street, or in Buckingham palace. I read, the other day, a list of the daily functions which King George and the Prince of Wales go through, every day. After reading it, I humbly thanked a favoring Providence that I hadn't any more to do than split wood and shovel snow and clean stables and milk cows and a few vastly more congenial things of that sort.

As things are arranged, the grindstone is skinning noses rather impartially, and Jack has all the time for play that his constitution calls for, and life is drudgery, in the main, and is going forever to remain drudgery, whether we like it or not.

One of the symptoms of sickness in our civilization is that too many of us are trying to dodge the inevitable and substitute a sort of mollycoddle picnic for the stern and somewhat sordid business of living.

The popular question of the age seems to be, not "How much can I do and how well can I do it?" but "How little can I do and get by with it?" It isn't "How much can I produce with profit to myself and my fellows?" but "How little can I turn out without being myself turned down?" It isn't "What does duty demand?" but "What does self-indulgence crave?" It isn't "What is right?" but "What is easiest?" We spend more hours and fry out more brain sweat trying to avoid work than we do hunting after work. If we aren't bawling for more wages, we're plotting for fewer hours; if we aren't hoping for bonuses, we're hankering after holidays.

This is just as true of the golf-mad employer as it is of the unionized employe. It is just as frequent on the farms as it is in the shops. It is just as true of our own boys and girls as it is alas! too often of ourselves.

Recall again Huxley's definition of education as that which makes us do the thing we ought at the time we ought in the way we ought,—whether we want to or not. Judging by all one can see of the work-a-day world this is about the exact opposite of present day ambitions. We are vastly less concerned with doing things the right way than we are in hunting some easier way to do them.

Now, Mrs. Partington is a favorite of mine. I am constantly visualizing her trying to sweep the Atlantic ocean out of her cottage with her kitchen broom. Of course she couldn't do it. But, by cracky she's a vastly more imposing figure battling the rising tide with her broom than sap-headed old King Canute, sitting on his royal throne with his royal sceptre in his hand and ridiculously requiring that same tide to halt without wetting his royal tootsies. Mrs. Partington at least did her best: Old Canute didn't really do a thing; he just sat there and sovietized.

Perhaps we few remaining old farmers are engaged in as futile an undertaking as Mrs. Partington in trying to stop "the spirit of the age" from slobbering itself into what Cleveland called "innocuous desuetude." So far as the cities are concerned anything we may say or do or any example we may set is utterly hopeless. The "slacker" urge is, at present, is absolute control there. But out on our own farms and in our own neighborhoods, we can, perhaps, even yet keep some ideals before young eyes.

The tide may seem too much for our feeble old brooms. We may very excusably feel little hope of staying its swelling flood. But remember the story of the pious old darkey who used to say that he always did and always would do what de Lawd done tole him. "Why, Uncle Ned," said a white-skinned doubting Thomas, "If the Lord told you to butt a hole through this stone wall with your head, do you think you could do it?" The old darkey scratched his thick skull a moment and responded, "Wa'll, Massa, if de Lawd tole me to butt a hole in dat stone wall, I'd start right at it. Buttin' 'd be my part uv de job; gettin' through be de Lawd's."

Brethren, let's "butt" like Uncle Ned, or wield the broom, a la Mrs. Partington.

But don't let's lay down on our jobs, just because they're hard and seemingly hopeless, or because everybody else is. Leave that to the effeminates and degenerates who are doing their flabby worst towards the emasculation of a once hopeful civilization. We aren't asked to accomplish the impossible. Nor shall we be held guilty for failing to do it. But we are responsible for doing what we know to be the right thing, at the right time, and in the right way, whether we feel like it or not. Whether we shall be held to account for our inches in some divine tribunal matters comparatively little. We cannot help being convicted by our own souls if we shirk. Do we want to sleep with a slacker every time we go to bed alone? Does it in any degree excuse us, that so many others seem to crave such bedfellows?

"The Old Guard dies but never surrenders." Historical criticism denies that Cambronne ever uttered such words. Perhaps he didn't. But we can,—you and I.

If progress is to be assured,—if growth is to be nurtured,—if civilization is to be saved, some of us must keep aloft the standards of right thinking, right acting and right living. Some of us must hold the last ditch, if for no other end, then as a rallying point around which the forces of the future may gather for a last and, we may hope, triumphant attack.

Men of the cities may find some excuse for their failure to resist the swirling and muddied current which sweeps towards the cataract. But we of the quiet farms stand outside the clutch of that flood. Whether we can fish out from its edges any of its victims is one question. The more important question is: Why in the name of all that's sensible should we deliberately roll into it, in order to be whirled down stream with the rest?

For a long time, as you'll recall, poor David had to fly before Saul, had to hide in caves — daylight and march like mad by moonlight. Nevertheless, there came a time when Saul lay dead on Mount Gilboa and reigned king in Jerusalem.

History has repeated itself; it may do so again.

Who sides with David?

THE PORT O' HEART'S DESIRE

Down around the quay they lie, the ships that sail to sea,
On shore the brown-cheeked sailormen they pass the jest with me,
But soon their ships will sail away with winds that never tire,
And there's one that will be sailing to the Port o' Heart's Desire.

The Port o' Heart's Desire, and it's, oh, that port for me,
And that's the ship that I love best of all that sail the sea;
Its hold is filled with memories, its prow it points away,
To the Port o' Heart's Desire, where I roamed a boy at play.

Ships that sail for gold there be, and ships that sail for fame,
And some were filled with jewels bright when from Cathay they came,
But give me still yon white sail in the sunset's mystic fire,
That the running tides will carry to the Port o' Heart's Desire.

It's you may have the gold and fame, and all the jewels, too,
And all the ships, if they were mine. I'd gladly give to you,
I'll give them all right gladly, with their gold and fame entire,
If you would set me down within the Port o' Heart's desire.

Oh, speed you, white-winged ship of mine, oh, speed you to the sea.
Some other day, some other tide, come back again for me;
Come back with all the memories, the joys and e'en the pain.
And take me to the golden hills of boyhood again.

—JOHN S. McGROARTY.

Peter Gets Out of Sight

Wherever you're sure to find
That out of sight is out of mind.
—Peter Rabbit.

If Peter Rabbit's wits had been asleep, they were asleep no longer. Peter was very much awake. He had thought of a way of getting out of sight of those who were watching the bramble-tangle, waiting for him to come out. The snow was deep even in the bramble-tangle. Peter in his brown coat showed so plainly against the white of the snow that whoever looked into that bramble-tangle was bound to see him. He hadn't been able to find any way of getting out of sight.

Terror leaned forward, and those keen eyes of his searched everywhere through that bramble-tangle

But now he had thought of a way, and he was merely waiting for a chance to make use of it while no one was watching. He couldn't help thinking how stupid he was not to have thought of it before. So Peter was very much awake as he watched Terror the Goshawk sitting in a tree not far away and watching him. He knew that Terror wouldn't sit there all day. He knew that Terror would make short, quick trips in search of Mice or other little people, and then would return to watch him. He hadn't dared leave while Terror was away because he knew that the latter was never far away and would be almost sure to see him.

Now, it seemed to Peter that Terror would never leave his perch. He just sat and sat and sat and watched and watched and watched. But at last he did spread his wings and fly away. He was gone only a few moments but when he returned and looked down in that bramble-tangle through the branches Peter Rabbit was nowhere to be seen. Terror leaned forward and those keen eyes of his searched everywhere through that bramble-tangle. Right away Terror made up his mind that Peter must have slipped out and run away while he, Terror, was away.

"He can't have gone far," thought Terror, "I was gone only a few minutes and he can't have gone far. There is no other place near where he could hide."

Up into the air went Terror and over the tops of trees this way and that, looking down through the tree-tops with those wonderful eyes of his. From up there in the air he could see all around for a long distance, and you know his eyes are very wonderful. But nowhere did he see a little brown form bounding along over the snow. Terror's wings are swift and strong. It took him the bramble-tangle, waiting for him to almost no time at all to look everywhere that it was possible for a Rabbit to have run in the short time since he had last seen Peter sitting in the bramble-tangle.

Back to his perch Terror flew and once more looked all through that bramble-tangle. Peter wasn't there. Anyway, Terror couldn't see him there. It was hard to believe. Terror began to suspect that Peter must have left the bramble-tangle and been caught by some one else. But he hadn't seen anyone else there that morning, and when he had flown around looking for Peter he hadn't seen any one who could have caught Peter. Finally he decided that sitting there now was a waste of time and he flew off to hunt for some one else.

Where was Peter? He was down under the snow. He had dug a hole while Terror had been away and in that hole he had sat chuckling to himself while Terror was vainly looking for him.

CONNECTICUT SECOND IN N. E. R. R. ACCIDENTS

Connecticut had the second highest number of train and train service accidents during the three months, July, August and September, of any New England state, according to a report of the interstate commerce commission of Washington which shows, also, that the largest part of the accidents in highway grade crossings were ones in which automobiles were involved.

A total of 18 persons were killed in train and train service accidents in Connecticut during the three months, and 185 were injured, the number of persons killed being 2. This compares with the other New England states as follows:

[illegible] lead in train accidents resulting in death to 27 persons, of whom [illegible] New Hampshire [illegible] persons killed, [illegible] Vermont [illegible] killed, [illegible] Rhode Island [illegible] killed, [illegible] Maine [illegible] killed. The number injured in Rhode Island was 22; in Vermont, seven deaths, and 27 injuries, while Maine had 14 casualties, making two deaths and nine injuries.

Of the total accidents reported in Connecticut, one-third occurred in highway and [illegible] grade accidents caused death to four persons, and injuries to the same number, the deaths in which automobiles were involved being one, and persons injured, two.

WILL TRY TO PAINT ECLIPSE OF SUN

It was announced at Middletown by Professor Slocum, head of the Astronomy department of Wesleyan University, that Howard Russell Butler, N. A. of Princeton, N. J., a famous artist, is coming to the Van Vleck Observatory of Wesleyan University to paint the eclipse of the sun.

As a portrait painter, Mr. Butler usually requires from ten to twelve sittings of two hours each, but during the eclipse he will have less than two minutes. Mr. Butler has devised a shorthand method of recording color values which enable him to make a most satisfactory painting of the 1918 eclipse. This painting is now in the American Museum of Natural History, New York. That eclipse and also the eclipse of 1923, Mr. Butler saw through clouds. He is hoping that he will have an opportunity to portray an eclipse against a clear sky Saturday.

WESTERLY

Listed as passengers on the White Star line steamship Homeric, sailing from New York Jan. 24th, are Mr. and Mrs. George C. Moore of Westerly, for a Mediterranean cruise. The itinerary includes Madeira, Cadiz, Gibraltar, Algiers, Tunis, Naples, Athens, Constantinople; a long stay in Egypt, Holy Land, returning via Naples, French Riviera, including stop-over privilege in Europe with a return to New York on April 1st.

The session of the Third district court, Judge Michael J. Turano, will be a busy one this (Friday) morning when it comes in at 8 o'clock in the district court room of the Westerly town hall. At the session last Friday a number of criminal cases were continued to this session for trial and in a number of special hearings during the past week more criminal cases were set down for Friday trial, although a number will be for preliminary hearing as they are "bind over cases." The civil docket will be called previous to the criminal one.

Westerly Highway Engineer A. J. Leon has had a large gang of shovelers working almost continuously since the nine-inch snow storm of last Tuesday. With truck scraper and dump trucks the snow has been gathered up on Broad and High streets, to be dumped into the Pawcatuck river off the Walter C. Hiscox lumber docks on Commerce street. The road department worked all night Tuesday and to such advantage on Wednesday and Thursday that the snow banks were carted away on Railroad avenue. The department, after clearing near the railroad station, will devote their attention to Vose park and the Foster farm in anticipation of the arrival of people to view the solar eclipse.

Known in Westerly, where he was a visitor about two weeks ago, to visit his cottages, "Snug Harbor," on the Pawcatuck river, near Watch Hill, James Wilson Taylor, a summer resident of Watch Hill, died suddenly Wednesday afternoon while in the barber shop of the Union League club in New York city. Mr. Taylor, a banker and retired contractor, suffered a slight heart attack about a week ago and was ill for two days, but apparently had fully recovered, when he went to the club, of which he was a member, and entered the barber shop. An attendant saw him fall forward in his chair and called a physician, who found Mr. Taylor lifeless. A cerebral hemorrhage was given as the cause of his death.

The deceased, until his retirement three years ago, was a member of the contracting firm of Giblon & Taylor, which specialized in the building and operation of apartment houses. He retained at the time of his death an interest in the Sterling Building and Operating company, of which he was assistant secretary and director, and also was a trustee of the Citizens' Savings bank in New York.

Mr. Taylor was a member of the Collegiate Reformed church, taught a Bible class there and was a member of the New York Bible society. He belonged to various social organizations, including the New York Athletic club and the Union League club. His summer home at Watch Hill was Snug Harbor, on Breen road, which he and Mrs. Taylor occupied with their daughter, Mrs. Wilder Gutterson, and the latter's husband. His winter residence was the Hotel Bretton Hall, Broadway and 86th street, New York.

His wife, who was Miss Alice Pope, of Boston, and two daughters, Mrs. John Russell, of New York, and Mrs. Wilder Gutterson, of Detroit, survive him, with three sisters, Mrs. John C. Coit of South Orange, N. J., Mrs. Mary Farnum fo Nevada and Miss Sarah Taylor of New York.

Alvin S. Kenyon of Pawcatuck left Westerly Thursday morning for a business trip to Boston.

David Novogrod was a Westerly business caller ni Boston Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter R. Scott were Boston visitors Thursday morning.

Almy Shackley of Taugwonk was a visitor in Westerly Thursday morning.

George Corey was a Providence visitor from Westerly Wednesday evening.

William P. Dodge of Providence was the guest Wednesday of his father, Edward M. Dodge, in Westerly.

Reginald Horn was a Westerly visitor at the submarine base in New London on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Rev. F. H. Nibecker of Westerly was a passenger Thursday on the Everglades Limited express for Florida. He is to pass the winter months in that state.

Sheriff Fred T. Mitchell of Westerly was a visitor in Kingston Thursday.

Rev. Mr. Schoning of the Broad Street Christian church and Rev. William L. Walker, pastor of the Calvary Baptist church, are to exchange pulpits this coming Sunday.

In the third of the series of the four-square bridge games played on Wednesday evening, Masonic club team No. 1 defeated the Mistuxet team of Stonington by 176 points at the former's club rooms. A Boon to Mothers

Mothers everywhere who realize the danger to delicate little stomachs of too much dosing appreciate the value of Vick's in treating croup and children's colds.

With Vicks there is nothing to swallow—you just rub it on. The body heat releases the ingredients —Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine—in the form of vapors which carry the medication directly to the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

Colds go overnight, croup is generally relieved within 15 minutes.

Money in Unsealed Packets

The implicit faith of the public in the honesty of the post office is shown by the huge sums of money sent through this channel. One ordinary business letter, not stuck down, was found recently to contain a negotiable check for half a million. Frequently banks, and even private people, send unsealed letters with checks running into four and even five figures.

A good substitute for wood is said to have been made from corn cobs. RCSA PONSELLE RECOVERING FROM ILLNESS AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, Jan. 22.—The condition of Rosa Ponselle, Metropolitan Opera Company singer, whose concert at the state armory scheduled for this evening was postponed as a result of the singer being stricken with a form of stomach trouble at her apartment at the Hotel Mohican last night, following her arrival here from Worcester, Mass., was considerably improved today. The patient is responding rapidly to treatment. Two nurses are in constant attendance on the patient. So marked was Miss Ponsele's improvement today that the singer expressed a desire to appear in a concert scheduled in the state Saturday, but the physicians would not countenance such an act, fearing a relapse. The officials of the Connecticut College for Women, under whose auspices the concert here this evening was to have been conducted, announced that Miss Ponselle would appear in New London as soon as her condition would permit and give the same programme that she was to have sung tonight.

Miss Ponselle was taken ill on the train from Worcester to this city. She was considered much improved tonight by her manager, Miss Libbie Miller. Miss Miller said Miss Ponselle was suffering from an acute attack of indigestion but that her illness was not serious. Miss Miller said that no other concerts had been cancelled. Miss Ponselle has sent for her personal physician, Dr. Arnold Galarie, of New York, and he will leave that city for New London tonight.

Mrs. Patty Newell, 46, colored, wife of William Newell, employed by the Pennsylvania railroad as a Pullman car porter, was found dead at her residence, Broad street extension last night. Death was caused by heart trouble. It was determined following an investigation conducted by Medical Examiner Ross E. Black, of Waterford. Mrs. Newell had not been seen about her home since Monday by neighbors, which fact was most extraordinary and when night fall had set in and no lights were observed in the Newell home, Constable Herbert Dayton was informed of the suspicion of the neighbors that all was not as it should be at the Newell residence. The officer visited the house and was unable to obtain admission so forced the door. Constable Dayton found the lifeless body of Mrs. Newell on the kitchen floor where she had suffered the attack, presumably late Monday night or early Tuesday morning.

An automobile owned and operated by Henry J. Maynard, 37 Mahan street, collided with a gasoline supply pump in the yard of the Central Coal company this noon. After putting the pump out of commission the driver operated his car away without stopping to ascertain the extent of the damage occasioned. Charles R. Stoll, proprietor of the coal company, lodged complaint with the police. Maynard was located and gave assurance that he would confer with Mr. Stoll for the purpose of effecting a settlement of the damage.

Commercial men who come to New London have the most cheerful predictions of the business outlook for the spring and summer. They say that the leaders of business in every line are anticipating better times as soon as spring business comes along.

Edward Hickey, the special detective assigned by the state attorney's office at Hartford to bring Gerald Chapman back to Connecticut to stand trial for the murder of Policeman Jim Skelley when the latter discovered Chapman robbing a place at New Britain, was stationed in New London during the period of the World war connected with the department of justice. He is a courteous officer, young and strong and the port of man who will take every precaution to see that Chapman is safely jailed at New Britain prior to indictment and trial for the killing of Officer Skelly.

It is believed the annual banquet of the McKinley association at New Haven on the 7th of February will have a larger attendance from this section of the state than has been the case at a similar banquet in many years. The speakers have reputations that insure high grade of oratory. Senator Bingham's acquaintances in this section will desire to hear the senator, Gov. Trumbull and Secretary Davis.

The thaw today put a bad crimp in the coasting on the various hills of the city. It assisted the gang of city laborers who were clearing the streets, too. Howard street was clear of snow from curb to curb this morning, the city scraper having been sent along that highway for some reason.

Paul W. Conant, 16 Berodell place, last night reported to the police that his home had been entered during his absence and that $1.10 had been stolen, this being the sole plunder the thief obtained. The thief gained access to the house through a window that had been left unlocked.

Mrs. Elizabeth Buckley has sold a house on Blackhall street to Catherine Corcoran.

The funeral of Mrs. Mary E. Moos-broker, widow of Sebastian B. Moosbroker, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Conrad Frueh, 896 Bank street. The services were conducted by Rev. Joseph A. Elder, pastor of the Huntington Street Baptist church. Relatives acted as bearers. Burial was in Flanders cemetery, East Lyme.

James Saunders, 43 Jay street, and Martin Kelley, 46 West Colt street, young men about 21 years, caused considerable damage late last night by their pranks on the slippery sidewalk on Bank street. In passing the store of the Sharaf Furniture company Saunders and Kelley were engaged in pushing and tugging with each other when they fell through one of the large plate glass show windows. Both visited the police station where they made it known as to the manner by which the window was demolished and today conferred with Mr. Sharaf relative to a settlement of the damage.

Several sailors of the United States Coast Guard service became entangled with the police of the New Haven railroad at the union station, early this evening and in a fight that followed, Sergeant Martin Kane and Office; Edward J. Montgomery were beaten, the former seriously. Sergt. Kane sustained the loss of four teeth and numerous cuts and abrasions about the face and head, his injuries compelling him to obtain treatment by a physician.

About 6 o'clock six or eight sailors who have been aboard the revenue cutter Tampa arrived in New London with orders to report at the local coast guard station. Some of the sailors were partially intoxicated and they became boisterous and abusive, their conduct resulting in Captain Richard Kelly, Sergeant Kane, and Officer Montgomery going to the passage room to quell the disturbance. The sailors started to mix it with the officers and they were good mixers. Sergeant Kane appeared to be the target for the blows of the bluejackets for he was terribly beaten, while Montgomery received slight wounds. Patrolman William Babcock on duty at the station, went to the assistance of the railroad police and with the assistance of the railroad officers two of the fighters were taken into custody. En route to the police station the prisoner of Officer Babcock attempted to gain his liberty and while giving the officer a tussle, Traffic Officer John Courtney observed the fight and went to the assistance of his fellow officer. The two sailors were landed in cells shortly and charges of assault and battery were entered against them. A bottle partially filled with liquor was taken from one of the fighters.

Miss Martha Gaskin, superintendent of Home Memorial hospital; Miss Marion MacLeod, assistant superintendent; Miss Priscilla Gaskin, day superintendent on the door; Mrs. Norman L. Kimball, sister of the Misses Gaskin, and instructor of student nurses and probation nurses, and Miss Emma Leete, operating room nurse, tendered their resignations late yesterday and without further delay concluded their services with the institution. As a result of the resignation of the nurses but one graduate nurse is now on duty at the institution. Miss Myrtle Meyers, night superintendent. The only other nurses on duty there are student nurses and probationers. The reason for the sudden resignation of the nurses is not given out, all of the officials of the institution refusing to talk on the matter. It is understood that dissatisfaction by the board of directors over the administration affairs of the hospital by Miss Gaskin is the real case for the resignations. Miss Gaskin has been employed as superintendent there about four years and came to New London highly recommended.

Miss Gertrude Kretchman, Wester-ly, and Mrs. Earle Holmes, Uncasville, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

Mrs. John Cook and infant son of Waterford; Harry Funky, U. S. C. G. destroyer Downes; Antone Enos, Bayonet street, and Joseph Perry, Stonington, who has been under treatment several weeks for a bullet wound in the leg sustained when he was shot down by state police officers in a liquor raid at Stonington, were patients discharged today at Lawrence hospital.

Duncan Sinclair, of 26 Linden street, reported to the police late this afternoon that upon his arrival at his home from his business, he found a peddlar roaming about in the attic. When the peddler was questioned he stated that he had crash toweling for sale and that he did not need a license to sell it from house to house. When Mr. Sinclair ordered the peddler from the house the latter refused to go and he was ejected.

Now that a bill has been introduced in the general assembly to recompense the former liquor dealers for the surrender of their licenses and their abstension from doing business before the license year expired at the time the Volstead law became operative, New London dealers at the time see a chance that they may get back the money due them from the state. There were some 90 liquor dealers who went out of business at the first of July when their licenses had yet three months to be in operation.

While the family of Henry Corey, 67 Maple avenue, was absent from home this evening, a thief gained entrance, making a hasty search for plunder. The crook obtained money and two or three articles of jewelry, the combined loss of the members of the family being estimated at $200.

The family left the house about 7.30 o'clock and when a member returned about 8.45 o'clock, it was discovered that one of the rear windows had been pried open with a jimmy or similar instrument. A search of the house then revealed that the money and jewelry was missing. The police were notified.

Two business places suffered the loss of broken windows tonight. Shortly after 8.30 o'clock the high wind caused a sign on the Empire theatre, Bank street, to be dislodged from its fastenings, and in falling it struck and demolished one of the plate glass windows of the Post & Lester store, located in the same building.

The other window destroyed was a show window in the store of George H. Beck, 40 North Bank street, when children snowballing each other, carelessly hurled one of the frozen missiles against the glass.

SAILOR TEMPTED BY MATES DRANK—THEN CAME TROUBLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 22.—George W. Oakley, 18, in the service of the government as a sailor at the submarine base, tackled red-eye last night and as a result he spent the time from midnight till the police court convened this morning in the police station. "You are a fresh kid," said Judge Prince in passing out a penalty to him, "for abusing officers as you did the policemen who arrested you! You have a future, but it will be a bad one, if you continue in the way you are going!" Oakley said he was invited to drink by other sailors last night and finally yielded and became wildly drunk. He went from the Salvation Army hotel on State street to the corner of Bank and State street and there abused officers who attempted to influence him to go to the army hotel and to bed. He accused them of having stolen from him. He used the vilest of language and became so tough that he was treated with scant consideration when the officers lost their patience with him. Oakley was fined $10, but as he had overstaid his leave from the base and was due for punishment there, the payment of the fine was suspended. Oakley said he was in the third year of his enlistment.

COLCHESTER MAN SOUGHT FOR BEATING UP MR. ADELL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Jan. 22.—Jacob Shedroff, about 33, of Colchester, is being sought by the New London police and the state police at the Centerbrook barracks and if he is arrested, which will probably be the case with in a day or two, he will be presented in the police court on a charge of assault. This afternoon Shedroff brutally beat Mendell Adell, a junkman, at the home of the latter, 13 Archer court.

Shedroff who was an acquaintance of Adell, came to New London this afternoon and went to the Adell residence, but Adell was not at home. Being intent upon seeing the occupant of the house, Shedroff seated himself in the kitchen and awaited the arrival of Adell. When Adell put in an appearance some time later, Shedroff leaped from his chair and rushing across the room started to administer a beating to Adell and in this respect was entirely successful, for Adell received a terrific pounding about the face and head, the assailant inflicting numerous cuts, bruises and scratches. The fight attracted neighbors, who caused the police to be notified, but on the arrival of Patrolmen William Babcock and George McCaskey at the Adell house, Shedroff had made his escape, disappearing through Shaw street, headed toward Bank street. A search of the city for Shedroff failed to locate him and it is believed that he will next show up in Colchester. Before leaving the Adell house, Shedroff declared that he would return to the place within a few days and resume the assault where he left off today.

Shortly after 4 o'clock Sergeant Clifford Gorman of the Groton state police barracks and Officer Bernard Kemerson, who had gone to Colchester in search of Shedroff, approached the home of the fugitive and just as Shedroff was emerging and on his way to go to Hartford. The officers placed him under arrest and brought him to New London where he was locked up, pending the convening of the police court tomorrow morning.

MAKING DRASTIC MOVES AGAINST OVERLOADED TRUCKS

Decision to put an immediate stop to the overloading of trucks which traverse Connecticut highways has been reached by the state police and highway departments. As a result, a statewide campaign has been started by the state police department to penalize owners and drivers of trucks carrying loads in excess of their stipulated capacity.

A number of flagrant violations of the law have been brought to light during the last two days and prosecutions have followed. Covering all main routes, officers have been stationed at various points on the state's borders where trunk lines enter Connecticut to examine all trucks passing into and out of the state on roadside heavyweight scales designed for such work.

In addition, the police and highway departments, in co-operation, have pressed into service a number of portable weighing machines which will be used at all points on main line roads where the roadside scales are unavailable, thereby completely blanketing the state and making it extremely difficult for truckmen to escape examination.

The need for action to remedy this condition was shown since recent frosts made roadbeds very susceptible to severe damage by overloaded vehicles, which raise havoc with the base and surfaces of the highways at this season of the year particularly. In early Spring following the winter's frosts, heavy damage also results from abuse of the roads in this manner, the highway department points out.

A determined effort is therefore being made to save the state roads by forcing truckmen to hold the weight of their machines with the capacity. It is the incessant pumbing and impact of the wheels of an overloaded vehicle on the road's surface which brings about such noticeable ruts and ridges on the highways, causing large unnecessary maintenance expenditures by the state, and, continually watched, complete rebuilding of a roadway.

The impression has become quite general, the state police department points out, that a tolerant of a certain percentage was to be permitted, but Superintendent Robert T. Hurley has instructed officers to enforce the law rigidly and strict observance will be called for.

STOCK PRICES SOAR.

New York, Jan. 22.—Stock prices surged upward today under the leadership of United States Steel common, which advanced three points to 129 1-4, the highest price since 1917. Buying orders, which were spread over a broad list, were influenced by the further rise in sterling exchange to the highest level in ten years, increased Mid-Continent Crude prices, and favorable earnings reports.

Transactions in United States Steel common alone approximated 150,000 shares, or about one tenth of the day's total stock business. Steel closed at 129 for a net gain of 2 3-4 on the day. Indications of the improvement that is taking place in the steel industry were furnished by the report of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation for the fourth quarter, which was issued after the market closed. This showed net earnings of $9,550,715 as against $6,495,731 in the third quarter of the year.

The Commercial Solvents issues continued their sensational gain, the A stock showing an extreme advance of more than 11 points at 149 1-4 and the B stock soaring more than 13 to 149 3-4. Both reacted about five points from their tops on profit taking. United States Cast Iron Pipe closed 5 1-2 points higher at 170 1-2 in response to the declaration of an extra dividend on the preferred, clearing up all arrears, and the publication of the 1924 earnings report showing net profits of $43.27 on the common stock as compared with $21.92 in 1923.

So brisk was the demand for United States Steel common that bear traders rushed to cover in other standard industrial issues. American Can crossed 166 and then slipped back to 165 5-8 where it was up 1 7-8 on the day. Baldwin closed 2 1-2 points higher at 134 1-8. Savage Arms was bid up to 91 and then dropped back to 89 1-2, or two points above last night's close.

American Agricultural Chemical preferred sold up 3 1-2 points to 52 1-2 and then dropped two points from the top on profit taking. Other outstanding strong spots in the industrial list included American Car and Foundry, American Sugar Refining, General Electric, Public Service Corporation, Texas Gulf Sulphur, California Packing, Davison Chemical, Electric Storage Battery, Federal Light and Traction, Goodyear Tire preferred, Kresge Department Stores, National Cloak and Suit, Pullman, Sears Roebuck, Sloss Sheffield Steel, Stewart Warner, Utah Securities and Woolworth, all of which closed from 2 to 3 1-2 points higher.

Rails failed to participate in the advance as extensively as the industrials. Chicago and Eastern Illinois issues each advanced about two points on reports that the Pennsylvania would take over that road and guarantee a $5 dividend on the preferred. Special strength also developed in "Katy" preferred and Missouri Pacific preferred which showed net gains of 1 5-8 and 2 points respectively.

Call money opened at 3 per cent. and then dropped to 2 1-2 where it closed. The time money and commercial paper markets continued quiet with rates showing a tendency to ease.

Demand sterling crossed $4.80, an overnight gain of 2 cents, to the highest price since 1915 and within 6 1-2 cents of par. The demand for the British currency reflected predictions of its early return to parity and the resumption of the gold standard in England by London bank executives. Other European rates improved in sympathy, French francs ruling about 3 1-2 points higher around 5.43 1-2 cents and Belgian francs jumping nearly ten points to 5.15 1-2 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, Jan. 22.—Moderate improvement in bond prices took place today as the market followed the upward trend of stocks and foreign exchanges. The foreign movement and changes. The foreign government and speculative railroad groups provided the most interesting features of trading.

With sterling resuming its march toward par, United Kingdom bonds forged ahead, the 5 1-2 of 1929 attaining a new high at 117 1-2 and those of 1937 showing increased activity around 106 5-8. No new developments took place in the Mexican debt situation, but strength of the government's bonds was well sustained.

Demand for the low and medium priced rail liens broadened considerably. Most of the Seaboard Airline issues were carried to new big levels while a rally of more than two points forced attention on Chicago and Eastern Illinois 6s. Gains of a point or so were recovered by "Katy" fours and adjustment 5s, West Shore 4s, Chicago and Great Western 4s and International Great Northern adjustment sixes.

Industrial and public utility bonds maintained a firm tone with a good demand noted for Anaconda, Magma and Chile Coper liens, Pan-American Petroleum, Sevens American Agricultural 7 1-2s and Fisk Rubber 8s. Wickwire Spencer 7s however, fell back about 3 points on a few sales.

Plans for new financing by the Consolidated Gas Company of New York call for the offering of a $50,000,000 issue of twenty year 5 1-2 per cent. debentures as soon as approval of the publicm service commission is obtained. The Wabash Railway is expected to sell about $10,000,000 or $12,000,000 in bonds to be issued under its new mortgage within the next fortnight and new financing of about the same amount by the Chicago Western Indiana also is expected.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, Jan. 22.—Enlarged report demand led to a rush of general buying in the wheat market today and whirled prices up to new record heights. All deliveries both of wheat and rye soared beyond any previous altitude this season, May wheat touching 193 1-2, an overnight rise of 5 1-8c a bushel. Wheat closed strong, at 3 1-4 to 4 7-8c to 189 3-4, with corn 1 7-8 to 2 1-4c up, oats showing 7-8 to 1 1-4c lift, and provisions ranging from 7c decline to 15c advance.

At first, the wheat market displayed only slight upward tendency, helped by indications of at least a moderate amount of new export business and by the fact that sterling exchange had gone to the topmost point since 1915. Later, there were signs that wheat purchasing for shipment to Europe was attaining much greater momentum, and that United States wheat especially was in better request, the discount for Argentine wheat having narrowed from about 15 cents to 2 cents. Meanwhile, reports that Russia had bought a liberal quantity of flour at Minneapolis attracted particular notice.

It was only near theendofthe feH,gal It was only near the end of the day, however, that wheat values went skyward in good earnest. An explicit statement from a leading exporter that he and others prominent in the foreign trade were disposing of breadstuffs in Europe as fast as purchased in this country gave a decided stimulus to traders who looked for higher prices.

Despite heavy profit taking sales on the upward swing of the market, the renewed buoyancy kept growing, and the close was within a trifle of the tiptop figure reached.

Corn and oats derived their strength from wheat.

Provisions averaged higher; sympathizing with grain.

CURB MARKET.

New York, Jan. 23.—Heavy buying of the oil shares following a general advance in crude prices was the outstanding feature of today's curb market. Prairie Oil & Gas (old stock), soared ten points to 338, South Pennsylvania Oil jumped 7 points to 186 1-2 while net gains of 1 to 3 points were recorded by Prairie Oil & Gas (new stock), Prairie Pipe, Ohio Oil, Imperial of Canada, and Red Bank. Recent strength of New Mexico & Arizona Land, in which the Frisco Railroad owns a half interest, was explained by reports that the company has contracts for the drilling of four wells of its acreage.

A brisk demand for Rova Radio which sent that stock up 2 1-2 points to 12 5-8, was the feature of the trading in the radio group. Freshman Radio touched a new high record at 28 in reflection of the inauguration of dividends and then dropped to 26 3-4 on profit taking.

Strength of Middle West Utilities, which advanced three points to 88, featured the trading in public utility shares. American Ligc & Traction advanced 1 1-2 points, and Lehigh Power securities 1 but most of the other changes were of a fractional character.

DEMONSTRATION ALL THIS WEEK

The Corset's the Thing to accomplish slender lines for stout or semi-stout figures.
And the model here shown has an upper re-enforced front-lacing which supports the diaphragm and controls the abdomen. A long skirt checks rolling flesh and produces the much desired flat back effect, yet it is not too heavily boned for comfort. Silk flossing of front bones checks wearing through and the boning is both rustless and flexible.
This is a made-to-order model for stout, semi-stout or full-figured women.
In two qualities, BON TON or ROYAL WORCESTER.
The model illustrated and other BON TON and ROYAL WORCESTER corsets, nationally advertised in leading Women's Magazines, are now being demonstrated this week only by a prominent New York Corset Specialist.

WIDOW GIVEN AWARD FOR 312 WEEKS FOR DEATH OF HUSBAND

A workmen's compensation award of $18 per week for 312 weeks for the death of her husband, Antonio Polcaro, has been made by Commissioner J. J. Donohue in favor of Anna Polcaro of 17 Division street, New London. The accumulated weekly payments since Oct. 30, 1924, up to the present time are to be paid in a lump sum and payments thereafter will be made weekly. There is also an allowance of $100 for funeral expenses and medical and surgical expenses which will be paid by the company that insured McGann Bros. of New Haven, for whom Polcaro was working at the time he was killed in an automobile accident on Stanton Hill, Mystic.

At the hearing before Commissioner Donohue the points at issue were whether the injury in question arose out of and in the course of the decedent's employment, also the question of intoxication and that of serious and wilful misconduct.

Memorandum of Decision.

In his memorandum of decision Commissioner Donohue says:

It is found that during October, 1924 the respondent employer was under a contract with the state highway department to construct and improve a section of highway in Mystic, known as the Baptist Hill job, and that said Antonio Polcaro was the general foreman in charge of the work.

It is further found that at about this time, namely, Oct. 29, 1924, or a few days prior thereto, it was found advisable to secure the services of one or more masons to hurry along the concrete work at this point, as it was getting late in the season and frost was expected at most any time, and during a conversation between James E. McCann, Jr., one of the McCann firm, and the said Polcaro it was agreed that a mason should be secured and that Polcaro should endeavor to find one, he stating he would try to get a mason.

It is further found that on the morning of Oct. 29, 1924, said Polcaro asked Claude G. Jette, who was at the time engineer and inspector of the job in question, acting for the state highway department, to take him to New London in quest of a mason, and the said Jette complied with his request and took him over to New London in his own car, a Nash touring car, leaving the job in Mystic about 10 a. m.

It is found that no stops were made on the way over to New London, the first stop being at Shaw and Bank street, where Polcaro asked Jette to stop so he could go into a couple of places where he thought he might be able to get track of a mason, but after 15 minutes had elapsed the decedent came out and reported that he was unable to find a man, but that a fellow was going to get a mason for him.

Before starting back to the job in Mystic, the decedent invited Jette to go to his house on Shaw street to sample some wine he had made, and it is found that they did so. Jette drinking two glasses and Polcaro drinking three glasses of newly made grape wine, which in the opinion of Jette had been made a week or so, it being in the process of making at the time. As to the size of the glasses used, Jette stated it would take five of them to fill a quart bottle.

After drinking the wine, the decedent filled a two-quart bottle with wine and placed it in Jette's car on the right hand side where he was to sit on the return trip.

After leaving Polcaro's house they proceeded down Bank street, where Polcaro again went into a store (I) see if he could find a mason, presumably) and then they drove through various streets in New London and started for Mystic by way of the bridge and through Groton and Poquonnoc.

While returning to Mystic, at a point called Stanton's hill, Jette's car was about two feet off the macadam road to the right and struck an obstruction which swerved his car to the left, and after going a distance of about 80 to 100 feet the car suddenly turned to the right and crossed the highway and struck a tree, breaking the right side of the windshield of the car and damaging the right side of the car somewhat, and evidently giving the decedent a blow on the head as he died shortly after the car struck the tree.

Immediately following the accident, Jette, who received no injuries at all, set out to summon a doctor, as the decedent was bleeding considerably, and finally succeeded in locating one, and when he returned to the scene of the accident, after using the telephone at Stanton's house another doctor had arrived at the spot as well as several members of the state police department.

The decedent died about as soon as Jette returned to the car, Mr. McGann, one of the contractor's having arrived during Jett's absence to summon a doctor.

After the state police had made an examination of the car and premises in question and had questioned Jette as to the accident, they took him before Dr. J. K. Bucklyn of Mystic for an examination as to his being intoxicated, and in the doctor's opinion Jette was slightly under the influence of liquor. On cross examination at the hearing, Dr. Bucklyn testified that Jette was highly nervous, was unsteady on his feet, was shaking all over and was under high nervous tension, and that he said he had killed his best friend, but that the shaking condition and apparent nervousness could have been due to killing his best friend, and in reply to the question, "If it had not been for that odor and he had said he had killed his best friend in an accident, you would not have said he was intoxicated?" Dr. Bucklyn's reply was "No."

The attorneys for the claimant and respondents have submitted briefs setting forth their various claims and citing cases to substantiate their claims, all of which have been carefully considered in drawing up this finding and award.

The respondents first claim is that the injury did not arise out of and in the course of the decedent's employment, and that the burden of proof is upon the claimant, and the testimony conclusively shows that the decedent, by virtue of his position as general foreman for the said contractors, had full authority to hire help, and leave the job in order to secure necessary workmen at any time the necessity for same arose, and the testimony of Mr. McGann and Mr. Rose, the timekeeper on the job, as well as the testimony of Mr. Jette, clearly shows that a definite need of a mason had come up for discussion between the contractor and his foreman, and that the latter had agreed to get a mason, and had told the timekeeper to look out for the job on the morning in question as he was going to New London to see if he could find a mason, and when asking Mr. Jette to take him to New London Polcaro had definitely stated to him what his errand was. For which reasons it was found that at the time of his death Polcaro was fulfilling the duties of his employment, the injury occurred within the period of his employment, and at a place where he might reasonably be and while he was reasonably filling the duties imposed upon him as general foreman of the job.

As to the second claim of the respondents, that the injury was caused by the wilful and serious misconduct of the deceased and by his intoxication, there was absolutely no evidence put in that the deceased himself was intoxicated and the only direct evidence before me is the testimony of Jette who says that Polcaro and he talked all the way over from New London to Mystic, that he acted natural in every way and did not show any signs of intoxication and in Jette's opinion Polcaro was not intoxicated. In fact, at the hearing it appeared to the trier of the case that Jette was almost being advanced as the one to whom compensation was either to be given or denied as a result of the accident in question rather than the real claimant in the case, the widow of the deceased.

On the question of serious and wilful misconduct there is found to be a lack of evidence; in fact, the respondent's claim is that the decedent's invitation to Jette to visit his home and sample some wine which he was making constitutes a case of serious and wilful misconduct, as they claim it was done within business hours and that it evinced a reckless disregard of consequences to himself, knowing that Jette would be obliged to drive him back to Mystic, and that his drinking the wine might affect his ability to drive.

The evidence is that Jette, just prior to the accident and on the way over to Mystic from New London, was driving at his regular rate of speed, 30 to 35 miles an hour, that Jette was not affected by the wine, neither in Jette's opinion was the decedent affected, and according to Jette's testimony, Polcaro acted in his usual manner and conversed with Jette on the way, and asked him when he would show him how to drive a car, Jette replying that he would teach him some time, and demonstrating the use of the shifts on the way over from New London.

There is an absence of evidence as to whether or not there was any odor of liquor or wine on the decedent's breath at the time of the accident, and this fact would be of far more vital interest, so far as this compensation claim is concerned, than the fact that Jette's breath evidenced the odor of wine. While the liquid which they drank at Polcaro's home has been called "wine," it has been found that it was in process of making and was very new, and the amount of alcoholic content was practically nil.

As to Polcaro's invitation to Jette to visit his home and sample some new wine, Polcaro was no doubt in the habit of drinking more or less of such wine all his life and knew there was no intoxicating effect resulting from the habit, people of his nationality drinking light wines as freely as other people drink water, and ever realizing that Jette might not be in the habit of using wine of this character as freely as he, and also knowing that he must go back to the job with Jette driving the car, Polcaro was not afraid to sample the wine and to treat Jette, drinking three glasses himself and Jette drinking two.

Taking the testimony as a whole, there is found to be nothing about either Jette's or Polcaro's acts on this day which could be considered as wilful and serious misconduct, neither has the evidence showed that either of these men was intoxicated after drinking the wine, all that can be shown from the evidence is that there was an odor of wine on the breath of Jette, and there is no evidence at all as to Polcaro's condition in this respect.

None of the state officers who testified at the hearing would go so far as to say that Jette was intoxicated, and they apparently did not go so far as to inquire into the condition of Polcaro in this respect as no evidence was put in along this line, and it must be remembered that we are trying Polcaro's case at this time rather than Jette's.

Mr. Jette was a very material witness in the case, in fact the chief witness, and it should be noted that his testimony and the manner in which it was given showed that he had a very clear recollection of every act on his part and on the part of Polcaro from the time they left the job in Mystic about 10 a. m. up to the time of the fatal accident about 12.30 o'clock. His recollection of each detail and his being able to account for everything that took place, certainly would not lead one to think that he was under the influence of liquor, for which fact I am led to believe that he is correct in his statement that neither he nor Polcaro was intoxicated at the time of the accident.

Also the uncontradicted testimony of Jette as to the newness of the wine, and the fact that the wine was all they had to drink, leads me to conclude that it was not of sufficient strength to cause intoxication, and the only result of the drinking of this wine was to leave an odor on Jette's breath.

No case of intoxication or serious and wilful misconduct is found to exist; in fact, the medical testimony introduced by the respondents, which is the chief evidence introduced on this point, is not at all convincing on direct examination and is positively contradicted on cross-examination. And as stated heretofore, all this evidence on these particular questions, as to intoxication and serious and wilful misconduct, relates to Jette's condition and not to the decedent's, and it is the latter party and his condition that comes up before us at this time for determination.

To summarize briefly, the facts immediately preceding the accident, the decedent was evidently killed or his death resulted from his head striking some part of Jette's automobile when the car ran up against the tree as the only evidence introduced on this point was Jette's statement that he was bleeding considerably from the head, for which reason he sought a physician at once; that the accident was caused by Jette's car in some way and for some unknown cause pulling to the right and off the macadam, whereupon he pulled it strongly to the left in order to overcome the slight rise at this particular point on the highway, bringing him considerably to the left of the road and finally swerving back to the right again. It is found that this steering wheel seemed to pull to the right as the evidence shows that he got out of his car some time previously to look at his tire to see if it was partly down, but it did not appear to be. This would tend to lead one to conclude that there was something the matter with the steering apparatus, causing the car to pull to the right, as Jette's attention had been drawn to it and he had examined the tire to see what the trouble was but failed to locate it, and the accident resulted because of this tendency of the car to pull to the right, and the reason why the car pulled to the right will probably never be known. The above opinion is based wholly on the evidence, supplemented by what any automobile driver sooner or later experiences when his car tends to pull to one side or the other for some unknown reason, and relates to the respondents' claim that at the time of the accident "that said car of said Jette was being driven at a wanton, wilfull, reckless and outrageous rate of speed." Besides whatever is claimed or found as to the manner in which the car was being operated at the time, it must not be overlooked that it was Jette who was driving the car and not Polcaro, and it is the latter's conduct which we must take into consideration at this time when a claim is being made for compensation by his widow, and the negligence of the party operating the car does not come within the jurisdiction of a compensation commissioner.

On the question of injury arising out of and in the course of employment, the respondents characterize the trip of Jette and Polcaro to New London as a "drinking frolic" and a "drinking bout," but I fail to find anything in the evidence to support the contention that any such state of affairs existed. The evidence is that Polcaro had three glasses of wine which was in the early stages of fermentation, and Jette had two glasses. The alcoholic content of a fruit in the process of fermentation is extremely small, and it is seriously to be doubted if the stomachs of either Jette or Polcaro could have contained a large enough quantity of wine of the type in question to have produced any intoxicating effect whatever.

Regarding the claim of serious and wilful misconduct, all the facts show that there was no act or conduct on Polcaro's part which would justify drawing such a conclusion. It is fair to presume that these men were probably thirsty on the way over and it would not be considered that they had committed any great misdemeanor if they had stepped into a drug-store and drank some soda or other beverage, and the wine to Polcaro was practically equivalent to what ginger ale or soda would be to the ordinary person, and it is very questionable if the effect upon a person, so far as intoxicating them is concerned, would have been very much different.

From the evidence before me it is found that the fatal injury in question arose out of and in the course of the decedent's employment, and that it was not contributed to by intoxication or serious and wilful misconduct on his part.

PRAYER BY BLIND CHAPLAIN AT INAUGURATION

The legislators who gather at the state capitol these days recognize in the prayers of the senate chaplain, Rev. Edward P. Ayer of Branford, who lost his sight during his college course, that brevity and conciseness are secured without a loss in reverence and dignity. Those who listened to Chaplain Ayer's prayer at the inauguration of Governor Hiram Bingham were strongly reminded that the chaplain has the ability to express in simple truths that appeal to all hearts. The wish has been expressed that this prayer might be given to the people of this state in printed form and it is appended herewith:

Almighty God, Father of us all, giver of all good, reverently we wait in Thy presence. We are grateful for the day, the hour, the place. Bless our state and nation. Bestow Thy wisdom upon these our chosen servants and guide those whom we send into the nation's service. Make us all true patriots and worthy citizens in the kingdom of God. Grant us Thy pardon and peace. We remember faces and forms that are not here. Be with us ye, lest we forget. And when our day is over and evening fails, bid us welcome and grant us a safe lodging. For we ask in the name of our great Master, and in Thy Holy Name. Amen.

CAPT LENNEN'S NIECE WILL CONTEST WILL

Through Attorney G. Curtis Morgan and Abel F. Tanner of this city, Annie Lennen McQueen of Killingly, has entered an appeal from the terms of the will of her uncle, the late Capt. James Lennen, of Norwich. Captain Lennen died, and his will, filed for probate in the probate court at Norwich showed an estate of more than $500,000, and divided a huge sum of money among several charitable institutions.

The appeal of his niece is taken on the grounds that Captain Lennen was incompetent to execute a will and that undue influence was brought to bear on him to bring about the execution.

CONNECTICUT IN CLEAR SKY ZONE FOR ECLIPSE TODAY

Overcast Skies Are Forecast Over Most of the Territory Within the Eclipse Belt—Arched Shadow (243,000 Miles Long) of the Moon is Traveling Thousands of Miles an Hour Towards the Earth—When the Ray of Blackness Encounters the Earth This Morning There Will Be a Brief Period of Midnight Darkness as the Shadow of the Moon Eclipses the Sun—Twenty Airplanes Are to Make Observations of the Eclipse.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Tomorrow's total eclipse of the sun is likely to be obscured behind overcast skies over most of the territory within the eclipse belt in the opinion of weather bureau forecasters.

Only in eastern New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island does the bureau see a likelihood of clear weather tomorrow morning in the strip from northern Wisconsin eastward to be covered by the total eclipse.

A special forecast issued late today follows:

"Northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan—Overcast sky Saturday morning.

"Northern Lower Michigan and Lake Huron—Partly overcast to overcast sky Saturday morning.

"New York State—Partly overcast sky over west portion; uncertain over east portion, but with fair probability of clear sky Saturday morning.

"Connecticut, Rhode Island and Massachusetts—Probabilities are for clear sky Saturday morning.

BRIEF EXPLANATION OF THE ASTRAL PHENOMENON

New York, Jan. 23.—A ray of blackness swung among the spheres tonight, silently and majestically bearing toward earth.

It was the ebony shadow cast by the moon in eclipsing the sun, gliding through the void and from star to planet, on eternal cosmic tour.

At a rate of thousands of miles an hour its arch described itself in the heavens. But this shadow traveled in frigid darkness, and therefore went unseen by humans.

For a brief space tomorrow, however, it will have encountered with earth. As it rushes upon the abode of humans and off again, a darkness as of midnight will be spread on a path 100 miles wide extending from Red Lake, Minn., to the Shetland Islands in the Atlantic.

Every few years some part of earth's surface is visited by a solar eclipse, a partial or total. But the last eclipse to travel in the approximate path of tomorrow's came in 1806, and the next won't come until the year 2144.

Passing, as the impending one will, over the most densely populated part of the United States and Canada, where all known facilities for scientific observation are present in abundance, its arrival is heralded with more ado than greeted any of its predecessors.

Departments of the government weather service have utilized every known device to determine the skies will be clear or cloudy at strategic points in the path of the eclipse; for a single capricious cloud, sailing across the line of conjunction of sun and moon at the crucial moment can upset the labors of an army of astronomers and spoil the fun of a host of laymen.

The latest report of the weather bureau tonight was destined to spread disappointment over some states. It said that only in eastern New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island was there likely to be clear weather during eclipse time. Overcast skies were predicted, elsewhere.

Directors of the Canadian weather bureau issued prognostications similarly disconcerting to those who will be within the northern boundary of the eclipse's path, for there, too, partly cloudy skies were predicted, with possible snowfall.

Preparations more extensive than ever were made before the arrival of the tip of the moon's shadow 243,000 miles long. Leaders in all branches of science will observe a record at sea, on land and in the air, this phenomenon of solar eclipse, which is called nature's most awe-inspiring and most beautiful spectacle.

In 13 fixed observatories noted professors will manoeuver ponderous telescopes and cameras. On seagoing and battleships, government scientists will conduct similar operations. The giant dirigible Los Angeles will join a squadron of army airplanes in making observations at great altitudes, above possible clouds or fogs that may frustrate earth-bound observers.

Here below, probably 20,000,000 people will squint through smoked glass at this sight of several lifetimes. At least one railroad will run an "Eclipse Special" from cities to points within the path of total eclipse. In New York city the transit systems have announced rush-hour service will be maintained to suburbs during the period of the phenomenon.

The New York exchanges will remain closed until after the moon and sun shall have finished their performance; banks will remain closed also; in most large cities special police patrols will be on duty to guard against [illegible] burglaries; numerous business [illegible] and outlying factories in the [illegible] district will not take [illegible] operations until the [illegible] come and gone.

Railway locomotives and trains operating within the zone of totality will be lighted as at night, and night-time signals will be in operation. In cities, notably in New York, elevated and surface transportation will be all lighted up. Streets will, too, in cities where police believe the few minutes of total darkness will be temptation to criminals.

Moment-by-moment descriptions of the eclipse will be broadcast by news reporters and radio announcers from laboratory, airplane, dirigible and listener's various points.

The life of the eclipse will be 2 hours and 20 minutes. It will begin at 5 a. m. (Eastern Standrad Time) when the lunar shadow first will make contact with earth at a point near Red Lake, Minn., and the moon's rough-rimmed disc will begin slipping across the sun's face.

Through smoked glasses the sun will appear to go through the phases of full, three-quarter, half, quarter, and finally, at the period of total eclipse, new moon, as its obliteration by Luna progresses.

For a period, varying from a couple of minutes in the central line of totality to a few seconds on the edge of the path of totality, the eclipse will be total. The time will be about 9.11 a. m.

In place of the sun will be seen a black disc hallowed with flashes of vari-colored flame which will be seen shooting beyond the moon's rim for millions of miles, or several times its own diameter.

After 30 seconds to a minute and a half, the total eclipse will be over. A sickle-shaped slice of the sun will have slipped into sight, and gradually the evolution from "quarter-moon" to "full moon" will progress until, at 10.20 the sun will again be visible in entirety. Daylight will resume and the moon's shadow, having raced from Red Lake to Nantucket Light, will chase itself off to sea, toward the Shetland Isles.

The corona, flashing from the background of the moon's bulk, will be the big sight for scientists and laymen as well. After it will be seen Bailey's Beads—the curved string of incandescent drops which appear as the rays of the nearly-hidden sun shine through the volcano-bitten rim of the moon.

The umbra—direct shadow of the moon—will "come on like thunder" in the race from the west, adding awesomeness to the occasion. And there will be the peculiarity fitting latticed shadows, almost spectrals, which so inspire the scientists with curiosity.

For those outside the path of the eclipse there will be the "penumbra" to wonder about—the moon's secondary shadow which diffusing a form of semi-twilight will be seen from the Amazon to Labrador.

20 AIRPLANES TO MAKE OBSERVATIONS OF ECLIPSE

Mitchel Field, L. I., Jan. 23.—Issuing instructions this afternoon to the pilots of the 20 airplanes that are expected to take off at 7 o'clock tomorrow morning to make observations of the eclipse, Major William M. Hensley, Jr., divided the aircraft into three squadrons in order to avoid the possible accident during the moments the earth is in total darkness.

The first squadron will conduct its observation over Danbury, Conn., Major Hensley directed; and the fifth squadron will fly in the vicinity of Greenport, L. I. The 61st squadron which includes visiting planes, will cover the territory between New York city and Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

All pilots were ordered to carry flashlights to be used during the period of totality of eclipse to avoid accident. If the day is clear the photographers to be passengers on the planes, are to record the passage of the shadow of the moon, which advances in regular bands across the earth.

BORAH'S SPEECH AROUSES MISGIVING IN FRANCE

Paris, Jan. 23.—(By The A. P.)—The speech of United States Senator Borah in reply to a declaration in the chamber of deputies by Lois Marin has aroused a certain amount of misgiving in France as to the wisdom of general enthusiasm over the opposition deputy's theory that war debts and losses should be pooled.

Editorial comment, however, is meagre, partly because of important parliamentary debate and other burning internal questions, and partly, apparently, because there is some doubt as to exactly how Senator Borah's vigorous thrust ought to be taken. The speech is reproduced briefly from European editions of American newspapers and all of the French organs seem to realize the serious effect it may have on the debt settlement.

INCREASE IN GASOLINE AND CRUDE OIL PRICES

New York, Jan. 23.—Gasoline and crude oil prices advances became general today in practically all districts east of the Mississippi river. The advance in gasoline ranges from one to three cents a gallon, while crude was marked up from 15 to 35 cents a barrel.

Although the American Petroleum Institute published figures yesterday showing an increase of 13,650 barrels in the daily average production of crude oil for the week ended January 17th, the subsequent sharp drop in the output of the New Northam field in Texas, and the steady drain on crude and gasoline stocks, undoubtedly promoted the general advances of prices for the raw and refined products.

Surrender of Man Who Aided Bergdoll

Eugene Stecher Held Under $10,000 Bail Charged With Helping Bergdoll Escape.

Philadelphia, Jan. 23.—Eugene Stecher, chauffeur and companion of Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, millionaire draft evader, surrendered to the United States district attorney here today.

Stecher, who is alleged to have aided Bergdoll in his escape from the United States was formally placed under arrest on two indictments charging conspiracy and harboring a fugitive, and was held in $10,000 bail by Federal Judge Dickinson. He was unable to obtain the bond and was locked up in the county prison.

Stecher said that he had returned to this country by way of Holland, England and Canada, wandering about Philadelphia for the last ten days unrecognized, with only Mrs. Emma Bergdoll, mother of Grover, aware of his presence here. He said he had traveled under the name of Frank J. Johnson. He had left Bergdoll in Germany, he added.

In a detailed statement to Assistant United States District Attorney L. Leroy Deinoger, Stecher said he had repeatedly urged Bergdoll to return to the United States and "face the music" and that their differences on the subject had caused them to separate in Germany, two and one-half years ago. The last he had seen of Grover, he added, was in Eberbach, the scene of an unsuccessful attempt on the part of a group of American to kidnap the draft evader, in which one man was shot and killed by Bergdoll and another badly bitten.

Stecher's narrative, Mr. Deiniger said, recited every incident from the time Stecher, with the draft dodger beside him in army prisoner's uniform fled from two army sergeants, at the Bergdoll home who had been detailed to guard Grover while he searched for a supposed "pot of gold" he told authorities he had buried in the hills of Maryland.

The escape of Bergdoll, Stecher stated, came as a surprise to him. The chauffeur was seated under the portecochere of the Bergdoll mansion in Grover's powerful racing car. Inside the house, the two army sergeants were being entertained. Suddnly Grover burst out the door, hurled a bundle into the car, leaped to the seat and the flight was on. Stecher said Grover paid no heed to his remonstrances. Instead, the draft dodger headed the car for the west and the race for a doubtful freedom was on, while the countryside teemed with searchers for the man who had defied a nation.

On the way, Grover changed from prison garb to civilian clothes.

Streaking out of Pennsylvania, Stecher said, they tore through Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and other states and then to the northwest, driving day and night, one taking the wheel while the other slept. Near the Canadian border they abandoned the racer, and started walking. They got a "lift" from two men over the Canadian border, Stecher continued. Walked 15 miles to throw pursuers off the trail and then obtained their steamship tickets for Europe.

Mr. Deiniger did not refer to Stecher's description of events after he and Bergdoll reached Germany, nor to the attempts to kidnap Grover there and Stecher himself, declined to comment.

As the result of Grover's escapades here, His mother, Charles Braun, his brother, who changed his name to avoid notoriety, and James E. Romig, a family friend, were brought into court on charges of aiding his escape, together with Albert S. Mitchell, and Harry Schuh, who played minor parts in the affair.

Mrs. Bergdoll was fined $7,000; Braun, $5,000; Romig, $5,000; and Mitchell and Schuh $1,000 each. Mrs. Bergdoll paid all the fines. Grover's property, seized after his flight, is still in the hands of the alien property custodian.

MONTH OLD GIRL WAS FOUND IN PILE OF SNOW

New York, Jan. 23.—A month old girl was found in a snow pile today by a street cleaner on the East Side. Physicians at Bellevue hospital said the child would live.

She was thinly clad in a white dress and apparently had been laid in the snow only a short time before the shovereler found her.

WILD SCENE IN FRENCH CHAMBER OF DEPUTIES

Paris, Jan. 23.—(By the A. P.)—The chamber of deputies today was the scene of the greatest disorder ever witnessed there, the trouble arose over the failue of the chamber to vote for the posting of the recent speech on the subject of inter-allied debts made by Deputy Marin.

Bitter criticism was launched against the government majority by Deputy Desjardins because of its refusal to adopt the theory of M. Marin with regard to France's debt, and after 25 minutes of uproar President Painleve suspended the session.

Nevertheless the excited deputies remained at their desks shouting and gesticulating until, finally Premier Herriot ascended the rostrum. He was greeted with a mixed reception of applause and shouts of derision. When a degree of quiet had been obtained, M. Herriott said that he would not discuss the debt question but would take up the matter of the suppression of the French embassy to the vatican.

Wilcox to hard labor in state prison for 20 to 30 years for assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to kill Turnkey Ralph M. Meare of the Washington county jail. The crime was committed while Shontell was confined in the Washington county jail on the evening of Nov. 15, 1924. The jury returned the guilty verdict after an hour's deliberation.

COLD WAVE PREVAILING THROUGHOUT NEW ENGLAND

Springfield, Mass., an. 23.—Western Massachusetts and the Connecticut valley shivered with the rest of New England today in the coldest weather of the season. Tonight indications were that the thermometer would droo to even lower figures than were recorded today. Retain Rate Increase In The Postal Bill

Senate Voted 50 to 29 Against Elimination of the Rate Raising Section.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The postal pay and rate increase bill was given a clear road in the senate today when a point of order against all the proposed rate advances was defeated, 50 to 29.

Further consideration of the measure went over after the vote, which came late today, and there is a likelihood also that Senator Moses, republican, New Hampshire, in charge of the bill, will permit it to be laid aside tomorrow for the war department appropriation measure.

Eleven democrats and one farmer-labor, Johnson, Minnesota, joined with republicans in defeating the point of order against the rate increase sections.

The point of order was raised by Senator Swanson, democrat, Virginia, on the ground that the rate advances constituted revenue raising legislation and as such should originate in the house under the Constitution and supported by 23 democrats, three republicans, Brookhart of Iowa, Frazier of North Dakota, and Norbeck, of South Dakota; and one farmer-labor, Shipstead, of Minnesota.

The democrats who voted against the point of order were Bruce, of Maryland; Dial, South Carolina; Ferris, Michigan; George, Georgia; Gerry, Rhode Island; King, Utah; McKellar, Tennessee; Reed, Missouri; Sheppard, Texas; Smith, South Carolina; and Walsh Montana.

Debate on the point of order occupied most of two sessions of the senate, with several democrats, including Senators Simmons, North Carolina, and Underwood, Alabama, also voicing considerable opposition to the bill itself. Senator Underwood attacked the principle of the bill, arguing the postal employes should be given salary advances for services rendered and that the question of rate increases should be considered solely on the basis of whether they were too low for the service rendered.

J. C. Tait, of Tait Brothers, Springfield, Mass., was elected president of the New England Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers in the closing session of the two-day convention at the Hotel Bond, Hartford.

Produces Results Both Ways

You cannot be abreast of the times if you overlook the advertisements. For advertisements give you the real news of business. They are the message of business to you. They tell of the new and wonderful things created for your convenience and pleasure—of merchandise gathered from the myriad markets of the world for you and your family.

On the other hand there should not be overlooked the importance of putting and keeping this business news before the readers. An illustration that shows the importance of this was furnished to an advertiser the other day who from his automobile advertisement made three sales and obtained six prospects on the day of publication in The Bulletin.

Advertising gives knowledge that pays. It teaches how to get the most in value and enjoyment for the least money. It pays to make use of as well as read the advertising columns of The Bulletin.

EIGHT YEARS, $14,000 FINE FOR TRANSPORTING BEER

Sentence Imposed by Judge Maltbie on Jacob Levy, an Inn Proprietor in Westbrook—After Deliberating One Hour and Ten Minutes the Jury Returned a Verdict of Guilty on Each of Seven Counts—Convicted Man Will Be Taken to Wethersfield Today to Remain Pending Outcome of an Appeal to the Supreme Court of Errors.

Bridgeport, Jan. 23.—Jacob Levy, proprietor of the Compo Inn, Westport, was sentenced to state's prison for a maximum term of eight years and fined a total of $14,000 by Judge William M. Maltbie in criminal superior court this afternoon.

The jury was in deliberation for one hour and ten minutes before returning a verdict of guilty on each of the seven counts charging transportation of intoxicating beer.

Levy will spend tonight in a cell at the county jail, where he was confined within an hour after sentence was passed. He will be taken to the state prison at Wethersfield probably tomorrow.

Attorney Henry Greenstein, his counsel, will take an appeal to the supreme court of errors.

Levy, however, will not be granted a stay of execution and released on bonds, but must stay in prison while his case is being prepared and argued before the high court.

Eugene M. Tolles, a retired coal merchant, of Norwalk, and foreman of the jury, solemnly pronounced the word "guilty" seven times as each count was read amid the hush of a court room filled with a crowd of the curious that overflowed out into the corridors.

Levy, with downcast eyes and bowed head, sat unstirring as Judge Maltbie, pronouncing sentence, said:

"Well, in the first place, it seems so perfectly obvious from the bank statements in evidence that this accused has made large sums of money from this traffic, that I don't see any course open, except, in so far as the law would allow, something of that profit to revert to the state for the expenses that it has incurred.

"For the rest, it is perfectly obvious from these young men that go on the stand here and testify to being caught in transporting this liquor, and receiving fifteen days or thirty days, and coming back and going right over again, that a fourteen days sentence is no deterrent for these fellows.

"I came to realize that some time ago over another case of a similar nature which I had to try, and recently my sentences have probably averaged in the neighborhood of nine months for the man who actually does the transporting.

"Now, if that is just for them, and I have every reason to thing it is, when we come to the man who coolly makes it his business to violate the law, it seems to me there is nothing to be said that should mitigate the penalty which the law allows.

"That penalty, for a single offense, is two years, the maximum penalty. Under our system of imposing sentences. If it is more than one year, it has to be state prison, but all counts above the first, simply go to increase the maximum but there are no assurances that the accused will stay in prison longer than the maximum which is imposed under the first count.

"That being so, I feel that I must gauge my penalty by the largest sentence which I can impose on one count, adding the usual amounts for the subsequent counts.

"Let the sentence be: $2,000 fine on each count, and not less than one year and nine months or more than two years imprisonment on the first count and one year on each of the subsequent counts."

After the Levy case had been disposed of, members of the jury, many of whom have sat throughout the December term of the court, presented in open court the following testimonial which was read by State's Attorney William H. Comley, Jr., on request of Jury Foreman Tolles:

"To the Hon. William M. Maltbie:

"After being associated with your honor as jurors for the past eight weeks, and at the conclusion of this session of the superior court, we wish to make the following statement:

"That we have always found you just and equitable toward all. In the many cases brought before you honor, we have concurred with your decision. We regard you more as a personal friend than a magistrate of the law. In many instances of thoughtfulness and kindness, you have been considerate of our welfare.

"In your promotion to a higher bench may you be blessed with health and happiness and may God guide you in your new position."

Levy was arrested on December 2 on a bench warrant charging him with the transporting of intoxicating beer after he had applied for passports to leave the country. The arrest brought a crimimax to various incidents prominent among which was the [illegible] Levy's place in Westport on December 11; resulting in the arrest of Levy and four others, which followed the appearance of Joseph Lord and Hadley Thorpe, truck drivers, [illegible] each commanded $10 a day bonds which the claimed Levy had promised them in serving terms in jail on the charges of assault, Levy and three others were bound over to the superior court and the cases are on the docket for the February term.

Levy was released on bonds of $2,000, and a special session of the criminal superior court was called, to expedite the trial. After the opening of the trial, last week, Levy's bond was increased to $10,000. The presentation of the state's case indicated preparation since last August, and involving in its ramifications, most of those convicted within that time in the courts of transporting liquor.

State's Attorney Comley introduced testimony during the trial to show that Levy was the head of a liquor business engaged in regular shipments to New York city, where, according to statements attributed to Levy, the product sold at 75 cents and a dollar a bottle. The operation of a bottling plant in a garage on the waterfront, and the shipment of beer from New Haven in kegs to the plant, the packing of loads of bottled beer to New York, for which the drivers were paid $50 aland the appearance in court to defend them of lawyers whom they had not employed and did not pay, and statements attributed to Levy, that he wasn't afraid of being caught anywhere along the line but in Greenwich, were features of the trial, which attracted wide attention throughout the country, and has drawn crowds to the courtroom which required special accommodations to handle.

QUADRUPLETS BORN TO MR. AND MRS. JOHN KELLY

New York, Jan. 23.—Mrs. Catherine Kelly today presented quadruplets to her husband, John, a 30-a-week electrician employed by a Brooklyn gas company. The Kelleys have been married eight years and now have eight children.

An hour after the births the mother sat up in bed to receive the congratulations of neighbors, while the babies—two girls and two boys—became the center of awed admiration at the Jewish hospital, to which they were removed shortly after their arrival. Three of them were said to be sound and healthy, but the fourth, a boy, wasn't doing so well, although hospital attaches said they thought they could save him.

The children arrived in pairs, the girls. The eldest, named after the mother, was the heaviest, weighing three pounds, six ounces. Sarah, the two pounds, 14 ounces; Edward, the opounds, thirteen ounces. Mrs. Kelly's first four children made their appearances singly.

There was a bit of celebration at the home that later in the day, during which the following message reached the father from the captain of his police precinct:

"More power to the Irish Kellys."

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
Willimantic Office, 771 Main Street
Telephone 1151
Office Hours: 8:30 to 12 m.; 1:30 to 6 p. m.

Advices from scientists of Harvard college reaching here Friday stated that Willimantic is a favorable competitor to Westerly as an ideal spot from which to view the wonders of the eclipse this (Saturday) morning. These statements, made at an eleventh hour, have caused many interested in securing a good glimpse of the phenomenon to select Willimantic in preference to other localities. Boston will send on a special train of twelve cars with about 600 passengers to this city and Agent Harry A. Blanchette of the local yard has been notified to expect the train to arrive here about 8.20 a. m. It is also stated that another, similar train will probably be run to this city. This would mean an influx of 1,500 Massachusetts people for the event. Hosmer mountain is the ideal look-out spot in the city. Acting Mayor George W. Hickey has arranged to have the Boy Scouts take an informal part in the reception of visitors and direct them to vantage points. 9.12 a. m. to the minute is the exact time when the eclipse will be most colorful. People collected on Hosmer mountain will also have the unusual advantage of being pre-informed of the progress of the eclipse by Edward J. Foran, a Willimantic man who witnessed the eclipse in California. There will also be police protection on the mountain. Other good places in this section from which to witness the eclipse include the hill section of the city, Obwebetuck mountain in South Windham, Zion's Hill in Windham Center and the grounds about Connecticut Agricultural college. The precaution to look at the eclipse only through smoked glass is again broadcasted to avoid permanent injury to the eyes. The program: 7.30 a. m., sunrise; 8.10, moon begins to nick the sun's face; 9, sun's face largely obscured; 9.10 a. m., sun reduced to small crescent; 9.12, small crescent breaks into separate points; 9.13, moon's shadow advances across the face of the earth; 9.13 1-2 a. m., Corona should be watched. The rarest part of the event takes place at this time; 9.15, note planets, Venus, Mercury and Jupiter close together and near the sun. Mercury is a planet that is rarely seen because of its proximitey to the sun. Totality will last slightly less than two minutes and but little more than one minute in Connecticut.

Following high wind Thursday night the weather turned to bitter cold Friday, causing the thawing snow to freeze and leave a thin coating of ice on the streets and highways. Traveling was not, ever, actually dangerous, although admittedly unpleasant.

Both were for chimney fires, the first, which occurred at 12.06 was in the home of Andro Chupick. It necessitated the use of six gallons of chemical. The second responded to treatment with only three. This was in the home of Henry Nichols at 27 High street.

An organization meeting for a social club to be know as the Alle club was held Thursday evening. A committee was appointed to arrange for a banquet and social to be held before long at one of the nearby inns.

Light Colors Aid Growth

Young animals, and presumably children as well, grow more rapidly in rooms with walls painted in light cheerful colors than they do in dark painted apartments, says Popular Science Monthly. Experiments show that pale blue, white and light tan are most conducive to rapid growth.

Peter Has Company

Experience to wisdom tends,
And of the past the future bends.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was impatient to get out of that little bramble-tangle, in which he had so long been kept a prisoner. You see, he was very, very hungry. It was hard work to start out at once as soon as he saw Terror the Goshawk fly away. But Peter is old enough now to be wise from experience. So he remained for a long time in that hole he had dug in the snow, peeping out, but not showing himself.

At last he made up his mind that it would be safe to go. He was just getting ready to leave that hole in the snow when he heard some one right in that bramble-tangle. It startled Peter. For a minute he couldn't think of any one who would venture in amongst those branches. Then he heard some one saying very softly, "Quit! Quit! Quit!" As once Peter popped his head out.

"Hello, Mrs. Grouse!" said Peter. "What are you doing in here?"

Mrs. Grouse showed the surprise that she felt. You see, she hadn't known that there was any one in that bramble-tangle. "Why, Peter Rabbit, where under the sun did you come from," she exclaimed.

Peter grinned. "I was right here all the time," said he.

Then Mrs. Grouse saw the hole in the snow and understood. "My, it's good to feel safe for a few minutes," said she. "I've just had the narrowest escape from Terror the Goshawk. And then just before I got here I ran almost into the mouth of Reddy Fox. What a blessing brambles are! Have you been here long?"

"I've been here so long that I've nearly starved," said Peter. "I was just getting ready to leave when you arrived. It seems to me I never in all my life was so nearly starved. I've eaten all the tender shoots of the brambles I can reach, but they are not very filling. What did you say about Reddy Fox?"

"I said that I nearly ran into his mouth just before I got here," replied Mrs. Grouse.

Peter sighed. It was a long, deep sigh. It was a sigh of disappointment and discouragement. "Then I suppose Reddy is somewhere around here now," said he.

"He was a few minutes ago, replied Mrs. Grouse. "And if I know anything about that red scamp he is hiding right close at hand, where he can watch this bramble-tangle. If you know when you are well off, Peter Rabbit, you will stay right where you are."

Again Peter sighed. "I suppose I'll have to," said he, and his voice sounded hopeless. "It begins to look to me as if I will be kept a prisoner here until I starve to death. Mrs. Grouse, you ought to be thankful that you have wings."

"I am," replied Mrs. Grouse. "I don't know what I would do without them. They have saved my life more times than I like to think about. Still even my wings wouldn't save me if it were not for the brambletangles. I have come in here to get a much needed rest, but I can always get out of here with my wings any time I want to."

"I wish I had wings," said Peter dolefully.

SAYS LATE PASTURES ARE NOT DEPENDABLE

Sometimes too much dependence is placed on the value of fall pastures for feeding dairy cattle, especially when the grass makes considerable growth late in the season, G. A. Williams, of the Purdue university dairy extension department, says. A large part of the grass consumed in the late fall is dry and dead, while the remainder is lacking in the feeding value of pasture produced earlier in the season. Frozen pasture, especially alfalfa and clover, are not to be recommended because they may cause fatal cases of bloating.

The dairy cow uses about one-half of her feed for the production of heat and energy. More heat is lost from her body when roaming around a bleak hillside on a cold, blustery day than if she were protected by buildings, or placed in a sanitary and well-ventilated building. The body temperature of the cow must be maintained and additional feed is consumed to replace the loss where she is not protected.

A cow's water supply should not receive indifferent attention, Williams said. The herd, while roaming in a field for a number of hours, oftentimes is watered at the trough on the way to the stable. This makes the cow cold and chilly, for two or three gallons of ice cold water does not appeal to the cow, and so she refuses to drink much. Eighty-seven per cent. of the milk which the cow produces is water. Consequently it is small wonder that the milk production decreases in the winter months.

Cows nearing the end of their lactation are not affected as seriously as cows that have freshened recently. Careful feeding and care in the winter must be taken of the animals which supply milk in the cold months of the year. If the cow is permitted to become thin in flesh, the milk flow suffers and it is almost impossible to bring the cow back to her full supply of milk in the winter months after the production has dropped.

Successful winter dairying requires liberal feeding and good management. When a suitable grain ration, silage, and a legume roughage are fed to high producing cows, according to live weight and milk production and fat, profits will always follow.

Helen's Promise

Helen had been brought up a strict Congregationalist. Last summer she had heard of the excellent preaching of an Episcopal minister, and she begged that she and her sister be permitted to go and hear him. Her father demurred; whereupon Helen burst forth with: "Oh, papa, if you will only let us go and hear him preach we'll promise not to believe a word he says."—Boston Transcript.

Care of Goldfish

Many goldfish are killed by kindness. There is a widespread belief that the water needs changing frequently, but this is a mistake. The chief cause of impurity in the water is the use of too much food of the wrong kind. Greasy substances should be avoided, and the bowl should remain as far as possible in the same temperature. Don't put it in the hot sunlight one day and in shade the next.

"Capital" vs. "Capitalism"

Capitalism must not be confounded with the accumulation and use of capital. This is a very common mistake made by the masses. Capitalism means operation of industry and commerce for profit, while capital represents the result of years of thrift and self-restraint. As self-gratification is at the bottom of capitalism, so self sacrifice is the basis of capital.—Roger Babson

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Of interest here, where some of the officers of the corporation are resident and where there are numbers of the stockholders, is the following from a Worcester paper relative to the L. A. W. corporation, now located in that city, but formerly with headquarters in Putnam:

The L. A. W. Acceptance corporation of Worcester plans to increase its working capital through the sale of additional stock. It has been the policy of the company to increase its working capital only as fast as requirements warranted. It has outstanding at the present time about half of an authorized issue of $700,000 7 per cent. preferred. The company, since coming to Worcester, has expanded its business to a point where the directors feel confident their customers' requirements this spring will necessitate a much larger working capital, and at their regular meeting next week it is expected they will authorize the sale of the remainder of the authorized stock. It is expected the stock will be offered in units of 10 shares of preferred of a par value of $10 a share and five shares of common of no par value, at $150 a unit. The preferred pays 7 per cent. and the company has been paying $1 a share on the common, making the total return on a unit $12 a year, or at the rate of 8 per cent.

The company confines its business to the financing of automobile time sales. The company was founded by Louis A. Wolfe, its president, at Putnam, Conn., in April, 1921, with a capital of $27,000. It was successful from the first and in the fall of that year, seeing the possibilities in the automobile financing business, Mr. Wolfe interested several of his business associates in forming the present corporation. The company has shown a remarkable growth since that time and has total assets today in excess of $440,000. It has paid dividends regularly on the preferred stock since the day of its issue and has paid dividends on the common stock at the rate of 10 per cent. on the selling price. In addition the surplus and reserve at the present time is in excess of $100,000.

The company moved its executive offices from Putnam, Conn., to Worcester last year in order to secure banking and other facilities not obtainable in a smaller city.

There are 900 pullets at the poultry farm of Frank J. Quinn at East Killingly, where several thousand chicks were hatched last year. Mr. Quinn has been very successful with his poultry flocks. The great quantities of eggs he obtains are disposed of mostly in Providence.

There are indications that the new issue of shares of the Danielson Building and Loan association will be subscribed for more liberally than one might anticipate would be the case. The association has been a great success all the time since it was founded nine years ago and this fact is becoming impressed on an increased number of interested people.

To gain relief from the water short-age they have been experiencing for weeks, and to avoid the drudgery of bringing water from considerable distances, one hears of some farms where quantities of snow are being melted every day over fires that would be going in any event. A considerable amount of water is thus obtained during the course of a day.

Though numbers of men have put in considerable time this week seeking to establish the identity of those who have been setting snares and distributing poisoned bait in territory hereabouts, the vigil has not as yet been productive of such results as are hoped for eventually, for the vigil will be maintained.

The announcement that two Putnam fishermen caught two pickerel from Alexander's lake of such size as to be amazing has stirred others to a desire to try their luck there. The pickerel are said to have weighed, respectively, 5 pounds and 6 ounces and 6 pounds and 2 ounces, this last pickerel being probably as large as was ever taken from that body of water.

Speaking of the trepidation with which some people are awaiting this morning's eclipse, Judge James N. Tucker of East Killingly opines that a few will don their ascension robes this morning and otherwise make ready for an anticipated trip on high.

What may be regarded as the very first sign of sepring hereabouts is the advertising of baby chicks and ducklings. It is a hopeful sign in a confined cold period.

South Killingly will have numbers of visitors this morning, for that locality is a splendid one from which to view the eclipse. The range is true of East Killingly and vicinity.

For a few minutes this morning, at about the time the eclipse is total, trolley cars operating on the line through Danielson will halt, wherever they may be, as will be the rule on trolley lines throughout the state. This will give the passengers an opportunity to view the eclipse.

Records at the office of Town Clerk Frank T. Preston show that there were more than twice as many births as deaths in Killingly during 1924, the deaths numbering 87.

The Larkin Reed company is one of the concerns that has made arrangements to allow those employed there to see the eclipse this morning.

A class in radio receiving set construction is organized at Killingly High school and after school hours will engage in the assembling of apparatus. The completed sets will be the property of the boys who build them.

It was remarked many times that Friday was a perfect, cloudless day, though extremely cold. The prospect at sunset was that this (Saturday) would be a clear morning, something so many are anxiously hoping may come true.

Numbers of radio fans here plan to be at their sets during the eclipse this morning to listen-in on the special tests that are to be made by broadcasting stations at that time.

Mrs. Leonard James will have the members of the Reading circle at her home for a meeting Monday afternoon.

PUTNAM

Instead of the rush that was expected to secure dividend checks from the receiver of the First National bank employes have not been hurried or required to work overtime. On the afternoon of the first day that the checks were obtainable there were probably 200 people in line outside the bank, but nothing like that has occurred since. Less than one-half of the 3349 dividend checks had not been called for at the close of banking hours Friday afternoon.

Wrecking crews have been busy getting the derailed freight cars at Mechanicsville back on the track. were filled with potatoes and when the wreck occurred about one-third of them went into the river which is close to the track. The bride is a graduate of Putnam High school and of St. St. Joseph's Academy, Hartford.

The banks and many of the business houses of the city will not open until 10 o'clock this (Saturday) morning in order to allow employes to see the eclipse. Gerard Chapman, bank robber, al-leged murderer, and characterized as the most dangerous criminal in America, in press dispatches that have occupied almost as much space as the sloping on the front page, is to be brought from the federal prison at Atlanta, to Connecticut to answer to the charge of killing Patrolman Skelly. He will be arraigned in the superior court at Hartford on March 3rd before Judge Newell Jennings. The last mentioned fact is what interests Putnam readers. Judge Jennings has been the most talked of individual in this community since Wednesday noon when he sentenced Charles Berzac, convicted violator of the liquor laws, to imprisonment for three years and to pay a fine of $1000.

Because Berzac's sentence in the city court of $1000 fine and 90 days in jail was deemed excessive, he appealed to the higher court and asked for a jury trial. The prison sentence of three years instead of three months was like a bomb dropped from an unseen airplane.
